THE call of the stage came to Miss St. John at the age of sixteen, and as her father, a member of the legal profession, sternly refused to sanction anything of the kind, she did the obvious and ran away from home. She secured a pantomime engagement to play a small part, introduce a skipping-rope dance, go on with the crowds, and form a part of the centre of the transformation scene, all for the magnificent salary of a guinea a week. After that a special engagement for stock with Bogus, Esq., and consequent penitence and return home for a short spell. A few weeks' engagement with Mr Rollo Balmain at the old Astley's, just before its demolition, supplied the needed encouragement, and a useful help in her career was a long engagement with Mr Julian Malvern, in which she played every line of business (excepting lead) in his very extensive répertoire. Then followed an engagement with Miller and Elliston's My Sweetheart company, a short stock season with David James as Mrs Oregan, Colleen Bawn; Arte O'Neil, The Shaughraun; and Mrs Fleeter, My Sweetheart; &c. Then came engagements as lead with Charles Hermann, Buffalo Bill, Hubert O'Grady, Kennedy Miller, G. A. Lionel, followed by a stock season in which she played Pauline, Lady of Lyons; Lady Isabel, East Lynne; Eliza, Uncle Tom's Cabin; Lucy, Streets of London; to mention only a few of the parts. Later she filled engagement and re-engagement as Mrs Rowstock with John Lawson, of Humanity fame, in the drama of that name. When under the management of that gentleman, and during a tour in Scotland, she played Sal Rawlins in The Mystery of a Hansom Cab, Lady Charteris, Barnes of New York, Rose in After Dark, and other characters. A stock season with Messrs Jefferson and Thorn included Gervaise in Drink, Mary, My Partner, and several other leading rôles. A pleasant engagement was one as Estelle Vaudrais in Face to Face with Mr Fred Wright. A starring tour as Lady Josephine Blair in Mr Mark Melford's very clever play Kleptomania preceded an autumn engagement as Ruth Glyndon in The Black Flag with Mr Fred Gould, and a starring engagement as Zanetta, The Zingara. A Christmas stock season followed, when Miss St. John appeared as Jessica in The Merchant of Venice, Lady Dedlock in Bleak House, and other well-known parts. Some very comfortable special engagements with the late Mr Andrew Melville were at intervals filled in at the Grand, Birmingham, Swansea, and Bristol. She created the comedy lead in a farcical comedy Red and Blue, and in The New Adam, the latter play being by Mr Mark Melford. Miss St. John fulfilled a short engagement as Ogaia, in Denounced, and once more starred, this time as Hester, in The Fugitive. Amongst a long list of other parts played, she recalls with pleasure that of Audrey, in As You Like It, for she is devoted to the study of Shakespeare, and much regrets that in her varied experience she has had so little chance of appearing in his delightful plays. She, however, cherishes the hope that fate may assist her in her desire to appear as "the serpent of Old Nile," a part which appeals to her most strongly. Recently she has accepted engagements at "at homes" and conversaziones, giving her monologue (written by herself), The Man Who Didn't, with gratifying success; and she has just concluded a new and original duologue, which she will shortly produce in the variety theatres, supported by Mr Charles Lilliford Delph, whom she has specially retained.

MISS EDITH STEWART.

MISS EDITH STEWART has been on the stage between five and six years. Her first engagement was with Mr F. R. Benton, and she considers herself very fortunate to have commenced her theatrical career under such favourable conditions, for not only is the management an exceedingly nice one to be under, but the constant change of plays Miss Edith Stewart considers of great value to a beginner. While with Mr Benson she had the opportunity of playing Nerissa, in The Merchant of Venice, and several smaller parts. A pastoral tour of As You Like It followed, in which Miss Edith Stewart was engaged by Mr Harcourt Williams for the part of Phœbe. Then, in the autumn of the same year, she was engaged for a season at Drury-lane, when she understudied the part of Dora Woodberry, in Hearts Are Trumps. The following spring Mr Henry Arthur Jones secured her for his tour of The Dancing Girl, when she had the opportunity of playing both Faith Ives and Sybil Crake. Then followed a long engagement with Mr Percy Hutchison. For three tours Miss Edith Stewart played Lucy Pillenger, in Lady Huntworth's Experiment, which parts she also sustained at the Criterion during the illness of Miss Muriel Beaumont. During her last tour of Lady Huntworth's Experiment she was seen by Mr George Musgrove, who engaged her for his English comedy company, which he was then taking out to Australia. Miss Edith Stewart gained much experience while touring through Australasia and New Zealand, and retains many pleasant recollections of the two years she was abroad. The parts she played when under Mr Geo. Musgrove's management included, amongst others, Lady Olivia Verlon, in Sweet Nell of Old Drury; Fuchsia Leach, in Moths; Alice, in Zaza; Dora, in Dolores. Since returning from Australia, the beginning of the present year, Miss Stewart has been playing Lucy M'Cullum, in Mr Charles Steuart's company of Our Flat. The photo reproduced represents Miss Stewart in the part of Lady Olivia Vernon, in Sweet Nell of Old Drury.

MR. EDWIN F. FYSHER.

MR EDWIN F. FYSHER was educated at a R. C. College with a view to entering the Church, and sang in the choir of boys, principally as a soprano soloist. In the annual production of plays, in which no female was allowed to perform, he played the singing juvenile parts, &c., such as Diana Vernon, Lucy Mannering, May Edwards, &c. He commenced earning a salary in 1872 at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on the occasion of Miss Wallis making her début under the direction of the late John Ryder. When making this, his first professional engagement, he had rather an amusing interview with the late Mr Knowles, who after many inquiries asked him "What wage does ta want?" and after some hesitation he replied "as much as I can get, please sir." Mr Knowles replying "tha'll do, go to Mr ——— and tell him to start thee," meaning the gentleman who held the then important position of stage manager. At the end of the first week he received 30s. instead of the usual "one one." At the age of twenty he played Ralph Lowries, in Liz, and was reputed to be the originator of the gag "Hod thi' din, dom thee," used ever after in the drama. Then followed stock seasons at Greenock (two), Aberdeen, Plymouth, Exeter, Dundee, Glasgow. Pantomime engagements at Glasgow (three), Edinburgh, Liverpool, Dundee, Manchester, Nottingham, &c. On several occasions Mr Fysher produced and stage managed entire productions as well as played a part. He went on tours with the late Wm. Sidney as Gilbert Medland, in Queen's Evidence, &c., receiving valuable instruction in stage management from this "governor" whom Mr Fysher considers to be the best stage-manager he ever worked under. He played Tom Cooper, in Shadows of a Great City, and also toured as Arthur Golding, in A Quarter of a Million of Money with Mr Fred Wright, and later as Ned Hayes, in Face to Face, with the same gentleman. Other parts he played on tour included the Governor-General, in Siberia; Mister Burton Barnes, in Barnes of New York; Robert Brierley, in The Ticket-of-Leave Man; Count De Liniere and Pierre, in The Two Orphans; Tony, in My Sweetheart; Marquis and Gaspard, in Les Cloches; Macari, in Called Back; John Lemoine, in For a Life; John Grazebrook, in The Unequal Match, &c., and later Joe Silver, in The Favourite. He was stage-manager for the production of The School Girl for Miss Minnie Palmer; he played Jan Stoefel, in The Fisher Girl, and last year appeared as Dr. Candy, in The New Boy. Mr Fysher is especially well suited in any kind of dialect character part, and thinks this line of business is neglected in the many schools and academies of dramatic art.

MR. EDMUND EDMUNDS.

MR. EDMUND EDMUNDS.

MR EDMUND EDMUNDS is the proprietor and principal comedian of the celebrated Albert and Edmunds Troupe, whose concerted antics have provided wholesome amusement to the playgoing public for many years past. The troupe was originally founded by the late Frank Albert (the father of the present members), who will be remembered as an old-time stager and agent. From the inception of the troupe the onus of the comedy fell upon Mr Edmund Edmunds, whose natural gifts as a comedian and stage-manager fitted him to take the lead in this fun-providing combination. In pantomime Mr Edmunds has proved his usefulness and versatility. All parts come alike to him; he is no specialist or one-part man, he is a valuable acquisition to any annual. Managers of note have recognised this fact, and with past managers none more so than the late Sir Augustus Harris, the late George Conquest, the late Mrs Sara Lane, and others. Mr Edmunds has not been out of pantomime for twenty seasons, during which he has played in the biggest provincial productions, and also in London at Drury-lane Theatre, Kennington Theatre, Surrey Theatre (six seasons), Britannia Theatre (six seasons), several seasons with Robert Arthur, &c. Mr Edmunds believes in more fun, brighter music, and less spectacle in Christmas entertainments, and he proposes to produce a real funny pantomime next Christmas, in which his ripe experience should be of service. He will be supported by his own troupe of comedians and other clever people. Mr W. Scott Phipp will write the "book" and music, and will also be the business-manager of the show. It has been said with a great deal of truth that to be successful in the theatrical business one of two courses must be followed, namely, one must be able either to create laughter or tears. Neither Mr Edmunds nor Mr Scott Phipp has any ambition to cause tearfulness, and we may, therefore, look forward to witnessing some exhilarating shows emanating from their business connection.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

PITTSBURG, PA., AUG. 22.—BIJOU THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs R. M. Gulick and P. J. M'Nulty; Manager, Mr R. M. Gulick.—Harry Clay Blaney's company, in Charles E. Blaney's military drama Across the Pacific, was the attraction at this theatre last week. The play is built around incidents of the war in the Philippines, and abounds in startling situations. The opening act of Across the Pacific is laid in Montana, the next takes place in Chinatown, San Francisco, and the third act shows the departure for Manila of a large United States transport laden with troops. The last act, representing the fight around a blockhouse in the interior of the island, is highly thrilling. Harry W. Fenwick as Joe Lanier, a mine owner, is excellent. The rôle of Bud Stanton is played with grim humour by Frederick Ormonde, who is ably assisted by Will Woolfolk as Sam Drysdale. A very pathetic delineation is given by Miss Augusta Gill as Elsie Escott, and Miss Frances Desmonde acts ably as Nell Hazelton.

MR T. W. DINKINS' Utopians have held the boards of Harry Williams's Academy with the satirical comedy entitled Broke and Broken, by George B. Alexander, and the burlesque The Yellow Dog, from the same author's pen. The first-named is a highly amusing skit on the German Emperor. Miss Lulu Valmore and Mr Jack Horton do some smart singing and dancing. Miss Mildred Stoller is a charming comedienne, and Mr George Fredo and Mr Harry Dare are high-class musical artists. The Boston City Quartet call forth rounds of applause.

M. DUJARDIN, of the Paris Conservatoire of Music, seeing the other day two men fighting in front of his house, took his violin and began to play in order to soothe the combatants by his music. The result was that one of the men attacked him furiously with a knife, stabbing him in several places, and he was removed to the hospital in a serious condition.

ADVERTISERS and SUBSCRIBERS who are moving about, and who have their Copy of "THE ERA sent direct from this Office, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, are requested to forward the Addresses for their Papers not later than the Tuesday in each Week.

NEW FOREIGN PLAYS.

"A CASE OF ARSON."

Mr Howard Pearcy's Copyrighted English Version of Heijerman's Famous Play, "Brand in de Jonge Jan."

Scene of action, Private room of the Magistrate in a small Dutch town. The Magistrate is holding an inquiry as to the fire which caused the death of Jan Arend—the innkeeper's—little daughter. There is a strong suspicion that Ansing, Jan's weak-minded brother, set their house on fire, in order to revenge himself on his brother who had insulted him, and upon the little girl, who had vexed him just previous to the outbreak. The Magistrate brings pressure to bear upon the poor idiot by narrating all those circumstances which appear to conclusively prove Ansing's guilt. The latter, although quite taken back by the Magistrate's attitude towards him and by his touching allusions to the little girl's death, strenuously denies his guilt. Ansing is dismissed and Jan is summoned to appear. In spite of the Magistrate's endeavour to get Jan to confess his brother's guilt, he most positively asserts that the cause of the fire is due to a defective stove and that there can be no question of arson. In answer to the Magistrate's question why the child was in the house alone during the conflagration, he explains that he took the child out for a walk and left her, ordering her to proceed to his father-in-law; instead of which she must have at once gone back to the house, must have scrambled in through the window, and being fatigued, laid down to rest, and, falling quickly asleep, been unable to effect her escape. The Magistrate sympathises with Jan in his great grief, but proceeds to examine him as to his financial position, remarking as a curious coincidence that the property had only a few days before been insured for a sum which more than represented its actual value. Jan's reply to this and other leading questions is unsatisfactory, and the Magistrate's suspicions become aroused. The evidence given so far justifies him in thinking that Jan himself, after leaving the child, had by a circuitous route returned to the house, and set it on fire, being, of course, quite unaware that the little girl had returned in the meantime before him. The motive, therefore, appears to be quite plain, in view of Jan's unsatisfactory financial state and the recent heavy insurance. The depositions of Blankert (Jan's father-in-law), Putten (the innkeeper), Biesen (sergeant of police), Nicolaus Post (the grocer), and Bik (the painter)—all very characteristic, but strangely contrasted types of Dutch country folk—taken collectively form another link in his chain of evidence against Jan. The Magistrate therefore calls Jan back, and going to work carefully, elicits a confession of guilt from him. Jan breaks down completely when the Magistrate refers to his beloved child's tragic death and urges him to make a clean breast of it. Jan, far from offering any resistance to his arrest, implores the Magistrates to keep him in prison for life-time, as, having unconsciously become the murderer of his child, he could never again face his grief-stricken wife. Ansing is next called in, but upon the Magistrate apologising for the error he at first committed, and informing him that Jan has confessed his guilt, he is quite bewildered, and in order to shield his brother emphatically assures the Magistrate that he himself was the culprit. The Magistrate is deeply moved by the poor creature's noble self-accusation, and has the greatest difficulty in convincing him that he is discharged.

"L'ASSASSINEE,"

Produced with notable success at the Théâtre Antoine.

ACT I.

Creates a deep interest as to the disappearance of the lost wife, "Lili," Madame Du Bernay. Her parents and servants all believe that she has been assassinated by Richard, her husband.

ACT II.

Satirises the modes of French law, &c. It affords splendid scope to the Judge to play many parts. There is a fine adjustment of contrasts in this act, the essence of the art of the stage.

ACT III. and IV. (only one act really).

The satire on law-justice is continued and in the end reduced to an absurdity, by the appearance of "Lili," the assassinated wife. Although she is alive she cannot prevent her husband, Richard from being imprisoned for having killed her. There is the logic of law: the law has condemned him for killing a woman, and does not regard the fact whether she be dead or not dead.

"FAIT DIVERS,"

Jacques Lemaire's great Parisian success.

Un Monsieur is a humorous swindler who makes vigorous love to Une Dame and steals her time-piece; then flirts with and kisses Une Bonne and takes her watch and chain for repairs. The merry rogue aping the too-sentimental in love-making will appeal to an English after-dinner audience, although the play, of course, is small.

"DAS WUNDERKIND."

("THE PRODIGY.")

Comedy, in Four Acts, by Annie Neumann-Hofer.

The play deals partly in a humorous, partly in a pathetic, manner with the hardships a young lady violinist suffers before she becomes a celebrated artist, and is directed against the unscrupulous and greedy way in which the parents and the concert-agent profit by the lovable young artist's exceptional talent. The scenes between her and her father, a great Italian tenor, ruined by his craving for drink, and between the latter and the ingenious Impresario are conceived in the real spirit of satirical comedy, whilst those between the young violinist who has never tasted the pleasures of youthful exuberance and who is tired of her triumphs, and a young fellow who has already loved her when she was but a child and who now proposes to her, are imbued with rare spontaneous charm. This play affords particularly great acting opportunities to Pietro Rizzoni, whose greed and immodest drinking habits are partly atoned for by his really great affection for his daughter, and to Milly herself, who, with all her moods and self-asserting temper, is a most charming and fascinating girl.

A RECEIVER OBJECTED TO.

In the Vacation Court, on Wednesday, before Mr Justice Bigham, Mr W. Alison Russell (instructed by Messrs Wilkinson, Howlett, and Wilkinson) moved, on behalf of the plaintiff in the action of Dangerfield v. Lockwood, for the appointment of a receiver of the profits of two companies touring the provinces with La Poupée pending the trial of the action. It was, he said, a motion by a mortgagee to protect his security, the mortgage money being repayable out of the profits of these companies, and defendant not having paid over the profits or taken any notice of the plaintiff's claim to them.

Mr Russell—We only want a receiver to investigate the accounts; we do not wish to interfere with the plaintiff carrying on the business.

Mr Elgood—It would paralyse the whole concern.

Mr Justice Bigham—I do not see why he would paralyse La Poupée.

Mr Elgood—We should have a receiver who would have to go round with the tour.

Mr Justice Bigham—You would not book him on the stage.

Mr Elgood—I am instructed that the news of the receiver being appointed would precede the company from town to town.

Ultimately Mr Ernest Winston was appointed receiver of the profits.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Drama, in Five Acts,
"THE HARBOUR LIGHTS."

After a phenomenally successful week's business with The Worst Woman in London, Mr Davey has revived for the ensuing week the ever-popular Harbour Lights, and the wisdom of the choice was shown by a capital house on Monday. Mr Oswald Brand is again responsible for the production, the result being most satisfactory. The company engaged for the presentation includes Mr Ernest Leicester, who was entrusted with the part of David Kingsley, and who took full advantage of the many fine opportunities the rôle affords. The success of his impersonation was never for a moment in doubt. Mr Joynson Powell as Nicholas Morland is no stranger at this theatre, and he submitted a portrayal of the altogether unpleasant character that was skilfully conceived and as effectively acted, his make-up being particularly commendable. Mr Harold Aylmer as Frank Morland was in all respects good in his portrayal of the dissolute squire, the value of his performance being always in evidence. Mr James C. Aubrey as Mark Helstone was responsible for a vigorous and clever character study, Mr Ernest Mayne was quite acceptable as Captain Nelson, the deeply pathetic note which runs through the part being skilfully presented. That firmly established favourite in Islington, Mr Hal Collier, appeared as Tom Dossiter, and in the rôle of the amorous sailor again succeeded in raising many a hearty laugh. Mr Fred Baines was quite adequate as Solomon, and Mr Arthur Estcourt as Captain Hardy brought his ripe experience and style to bear on the rôle with very successful results. Miss Helen Bancroft as Lena Nelson repeated a clever reading, her performance being sustained at a very high level of emotional intensity, and her reception being very flattering. Miss Kate Brand as Dora Vane invested her delineation with the requisite tender touch, and speedily became established in the sympathy of the audience. Mrs Stanislaus Calhaem's Mrs Chudleigh was especially good as a character study, and the humour was cleverly sustained. Nor was the character overdone. Witnessing her acting from the stalls one might, indeed, have well imagined that this Mrs Chudleigh was no other than a fussy, nervous old body whom one had met in real life. The manner in which the tale is told of the bad half-crown which is palmed off on the unsuspecting landlady is extremely laughable. Miss Winnie Leeson as Peggy Chudleigh was very alert, and played up very capitally to Mr Collier. As Mrs Helstone Miss May Howard struck the right note, her depiction of the much-suffering woman being very finely portrayed; and Mrs M. Ritter as Bridget enacted that peculiar rôle with success. The remaining parts were all in good hands. Mr Davey's early door programme for the week includes Bent, a facial artist, and a very clever scena performed by the Two Dees, one of the ladies having a really excellent voice.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Drama, in Prologue and Four Acts, entitled "ALONE IN LONDON."

Highly successful performances of Alone in London, a drama of considerable interest, are being given at the Standard this week. The company is an exceptionally good one, the members working well together, and the result being an interpretation worthy of high praise. The scenes, mostly of the mechanical order, and in every way well suited to the production, reflect great credit upon Messrs W. T. Hemsley, E. Howard, and Selby Hall, who have turned out some really pretty and effective sets. Mr Stafford Smith plays with warmth and feeling as Mr Burnaby; Mr Herbert Light is all that can be desired as Walter; and Miss Lily Lewis capably handles the rôle of Ruth Clinton. Mr Stephen Ewart ably depicts the cruel and heartless nature of Richard Redcliffe, playing with considerable force and skill; as Spriggins Mr Hugh Brady is at times particularly amusing; Mr J. W. Wilkinson contributes a capital performance as Jenkinson; Mr Lonnen Meadows renders admirable assistance in the lighter portion of the drama as Charley Johnson, and receives substantial help from Miss Ada Elliston as Liz Jenkinson. Mr J. F. Clarke is good as Jack Wood; Little Ella Gillette sweetly portrays the child Paul; and Mrs C. Wood is an amusing Mrs Maloney. Mr Gerald Kennedy is well placed as John Biddlecombe; Miss Ada Tilley exhibits genuine ability in her portrayal of Tom Chickweed; and as Nan, the flower-girl, Miss Madge Devereux plays with great skill.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Drama,
in Four Acts, by Edward Elsner, entitled
"UNDER TWO FLAGS."

A well-pleased audience welcomed here on Monday the visit of Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow's capable company in Mr Edward Elsner's adaptation of Ouida's famous novel "Under Two Flags." The many stirring incidents are admirably depicted, and the theme of interest is centred mainly in the thrilling adventures of the wayward, but courageous, self-sacrificing vivandiere Cigarette, an exceedingly complex rôle, interpreted with dramatic intensity, yet with characteristic abandon, by Miss Constance Elgin. Mr Mark Blow makes a handsome and attractive Bertie Cecil Royellieu in the uniform alike of Life Guardsman and Chasseur d'Afrique, and gives a sound and consistent reading of the part. Mr Reginald Harley-West does well as the dissipated Barkile Royellieu, and the stern, unlovable, father, Lord Royellieu is capitally impersonated by Mr Charles Brooke Lord Rockingham is played with good effect by Mr George Norman-Burt, and Mr Charles D. Pitt puts all the venomous blackness required into the character of Colonel Châteauroy, "the Black Hawk." Mr Will Hook affords the necessary light relief as the valet, Rake, and another humorous rendering is the Ezra Baroni of Mr Albert Rogers. Miss May Pardoe portrays with delicacy and refinement the womanly feelings and sympathetic tenderness of the Princess Venetia Corona, "the Silver Pheasant," and Lady Beatrice Guinevere finds a suitable exponent in Miss Bertha Kingston. Mr Sydney Riche is successful as Capt. Claude De Chanrellon, and Mr Francis Curtiss is a satisfactory Babazum. Miss Daisy Carlton is a vivacious Lavina, and Miss Joan Stean a pleasing Countess Olga; whilst commendable work is done by Mr Reginald A. Hunt as Marshal of France, Mr George Shaw as Lammericière, Mr Harry Poyntz as Jean Bergeau, Mr Charles V. Watson as Pierre Martin, Mr Fred Hilliard as Abe-al-Karen, Mr William Bebb as Be-Kassam, Mr Stewart Henson as Si Allam, Mr W. R. Boycott as Noureddin, and Mr Alex Clayton as Youssuf. The drama is excellently staged and presented generally, important features being the tableaux ("The Battle" and "The Victory") that end act two, the duel in the dark between Châteauroy and Bertie in act three, and the sensational sand storm scene in the last act, in which Cigarette escapes from the Arabs by galloping up a rocky pass. The play is preceded by Messrs Vaun and Attwood's highly amusing farce Aunt Rebecca, smartly performed by Messrs W. Hook, G. Norman-Burt, R. Harley-West, and Miss Leslie Wynne. We must especially mention the fine playing of the excellent Pavilion orchestra, under the talented direction of Mr Charles Aves, whose selections this week are particularly good, noticeable amongst which are the overture "Morning, Noon, and Night" (Suppé), and The Cingalee (Monckton).

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Aug. 29 the Military Drama, entitled
"ONE OF THE BEST."

Mr Robert Arthur's company is here in the above drama this week. Mr Stanley Bedwell as Dudley Keppel has a manly personality, and his elocution is of the best. He greatly delights the audience, who cheer him again and again. The part of the clergyman's daughter is charmingly played by Miss Jeanette le Gros; Mr Bellenden Clark makes an excellent villain, aided by Mr Frederick Earle, who as M. Jules de Gruchy calls forth condemnatory hisses; Miss Helen Haye acts finely as Esther Coventry; and Mr Herbert Darnley is a comedian of great merit; Miss Lilla Norden is capital in a comic rôle; and other parts are well sustained by Messrs Maltby, Challis, Beckwith, Medwin M'Allum, and Miss Nellie Gilmore. The piece is excellently staged and dressed.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Drama, by George R. Sims, entitled
"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

Mr George R. Sims' popular melodrama, The Lights o' London, is proving an attraction at this theatre this week, and it is receiving a capital representation at the hands of Messrs Hollister and Dew's company, which includes many who played in it when it was here previously. Miss Jeanne Burgoyne draws a pathetic picture of Bess, a character which she plays capitally, and enlists the entire sympathy of the audience for it. Harold Armytage is well played by Mr Cecil G. Calvert, while Mr Herbert Hollister submits a conventional but neatly drawn sketch of the villain of the story, Clifford Armytage. Mr Percy Compton supplies a delightful delineation of the old showman Jarvis, and Miss Emilie Dawson is likewise good as Mrs Jarvis. Shakespeare Jarvis has a bright exponent in Miss Gladys Murray. Mr Benson Kleve deserves high praise for his playing of Seth Preene, while Miss Kate Randolph is in every way acceptable as Hetty Preene. Marks is carefully played by Mr Harold Wallace, and the somewhat small part of Squire Armytage is quite safe in the hands of Mr F. V. Lloyd. Philosopher Jack is cleverly handled by Mr Ernest K. Nelson, who extracts a vast amount of humour from the character. A couple of quaint and diverting characters, Percy De Vere and the Man in the Park, are extremely well done by Messrs R. Gear and Tom Raymond respectively, and a word of praise is due to Ida Murray, a young lady who shows promise by her acting of Joey. The other parts are all suitably played, and the mounting of the play is in every way adequate. Mr Harold Wallace is responsible for the stage-management, which is most satisfactory.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Aug. 29,
the Comedy, by H. J. Byron, entitled
"OUR BOYS."

In spite of their age Our Boys do not grow old, and appear likely to "live on for ever," to judge by the reception accorded to them and their excellently contrasted parents on Monday evening at the King's Theatre, when Mr Charles Otley's company gave delight to a large audience, most of whom, perhaps, had not previously witnessed the never-to-be-forgotten comedy which showed the late H. J. Byron at his best. The part of Perkyn Middlewick, the retired butterman, of course stands out most prominently, and Mr Charles Otley's impersonation was highly acceptable, and caused much unrestrained laughter. The starchiness of Sir Geoffrey Champneys was well accentuated by Mr Milroy Cooper. Mr Arthur Eldred played skilfully as Talbot Champneys, and Charles Middlewick was ably rendered by Mr Lewis Willoughby. Miss Edith Heron Brown pleased the audience by her impersonation of Violet Melrose, and Miss Beatrice Marsden made an engaging Mary Melrose. The Clarissa Champneys of Miss Keith Lytton was quite refreshing, and Miss Marie Jonquil's interpretation of Belinda, the lodging-house slavey, was a study which caused a deal of merriment. The comedy was preceded by A Case for Eviction, in which Mr Arthur Eldred, Miss Beatrice Marsden, and Miss Maxim proved very entertaining. To complete a triple bill Raymond's celebrated Bioscope, illustrating the Russo-Japanese War, the Toronto fire, and stars of the cricket field, assisted to pass a pleasant evening.

GRAND THEATRE, FULHAM.

On Monday, Aug. 29,
the Drama, by Dion Boucicault, entitled
"THE COLLEEN BAWN."

The production here of Boucicault's stirring drama The Colleen Bawn was made the occasion of a sort of souvenir in the shape of the Irish ballads "Wearing of the Green," "The Irish Emigrant," "Kate Kearney," and "Kathleen Mavourneen," to the members of the audience on Monday. Teeming with sensational incidents and spiced with plenty of patriotism and pathos, the whole is exquisitely flavoured with Hibernian wit and humour such as only Dion Boucicault knew how to concoct. Mr Henry Wright is again the typical happy-go-lucky, devil-may-care, good-hearted vagabond as Miles-Na-Coppaleen, and keeps the house in a roar with his droll sayings so quaintly delivered, and also bursts into song ever and anon. Mr Arthur Burne acts with dignity and distinction as well as verve and conviction as Hardress Cregan; Mr J. J. Bartlett contributes a good, sound, sterling performance as the faithful servant Danny Mann. Mr Forbes Harrison is fairly good as Kyrle Daly, and Mr Charles Langley is a satisfactory Father Tom. Mr Dennis Campbell is as good at the brogue as any of them, and contributes a characteristic and laughable sketch of the contemptible villain Mr Corrigan. Miss Marie Wright is excellent as the gentle, loving, impulsive Colleen Bawn, Eily O'Connor, and Miss Rose Ralph comes out with flying colours as Anne Chute, a part which appears to suit her down to the ground. Miss Emily Dowton gives an accurate and striking portraiture of the poor peasant woman Sheelah, and Miss Daisy England acts well as the distracted mother Mrs Cregan, pressed on all sides by her creditors and undeserved misfortune. The pièce de résistance was preceded by a laughable and diverting farce entitled A Wife in Reserve, in which Mr Fred De Vere as Mr Tibbles especially distinguished himself, with able assistance from Miss Gertie Rosalind as Matilda and Miss Emily Dowton as Eliza.

PRINCESS OF WALES'S, KENNINGTON

the Musical Play, in Three Acts, by Maurice Ordonneau, Composed by Hugo Felix,
with Additional Numbers by Ernest Buccalossi, entitled
"MADAME SHERRY."

An auspicious start has been given to the tour of Madame Sherry, which has been revised by Mr George Dance, who has subjected it to renovation, freeing it of all blemish, and turning out a piece the gaiety and brightness of which remain throughout its performance. It has proved a delight this week at the handsome Kennington theatre to crowded audiences, who have been highly diverted at the amusing incidents of the piece, and have enjoyed its melodious numbers to the full. The comedy is performed by Mr Dance's company, each member of which is adapted to the requirements of the part, some of the artists displaying artistic gifts that entitle them to a place in the front rank. Barbara, the lady of the title, is played by Miss Lily Elsie, about whom there is a refined simplicity which emphasises the talent that her performance reveals. She has a voice of great strength and purity, which is heard to the greatest advantage in "Under the Panama" and in a quaint Negro melody bringing in "De Ole Banjo." Miss Elsie wears some delicious dresses, and her dance is a marvel of grace and daintiness. The tribulations of Andrew M'Sherry are buoyantly borne by Mr J. Robert Hale, who is a frequent cause of merriment by the significance he gives to his lines. He has an effective song in "The Ten Little Waitresses," in the business of which he has admirable assistance from the ladies sustaining those parts, his last effusion, "Sarah put on spectacles," winning numerous encores. Miss Nellie Dade presents a slavey, original in conception but realistic in treatment. She utilises to the full her natural qualifications for comedy, making quite an oddity of the lively Maud, her song of "A Perfect Gentleman" being cleverly delivered. Mr F. W. Ford is a comic Colonel M'Sherry, and the eccentricities of Mr Fred Walton as the landlord, Joseph, are overpoweringly droll. He takes part in a duel trio with Maud and a lively police officer, out of which much comic capital is made, the Colonel in "The Only One" also supplying a well-managed piece of fun. The gendarme Gustave is entrusted to Mr Ivan Berlyn, whose talents are well employed in a broken English part, and whose vivacity never flags. The turbulent spirit of the revolutionary Catarina is vividly depicted by Miss Georgina Delmar, whose cultivated voice has ample employment in her fierce ballad of "The Family Dart," and later in "The Night of the Ball," which she renders emotionally and which wins hearty applause. Miss Mabel Sealby prettily indicates the girlish propensities of Mistigrette, acting with naïve charm, and singing "Daddy's Baby Girl" with expressive archness, and her fiancé, Leonard, is adequately enacted by Mr Arthur Stroud. Susanne has a skilled exponent in Miss Gladys Stewart. Mr J. Owen Ford is a properly stolid Commissaire of Police, who is the hero of an effective chorus at the end of the second act. Mr R. C. Harcourt makes a dignified President of the Conservatoire, and Mr Albert Bruno is Fritz, the head waiter. With a comely chorus, dresses of the finest material and design, and the most elaborate mounting, Madame Sherry is well equipped for a long and prosperous itinerary.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Aug. 29,
the Drama, by Charles Berte and W. Bailey, jun., entitled
"THE CITY OF MILLIONS."

When this stirring piece, with its moving accidents by flood and field and its well-contrived sensation, was produced at the West London on Whit Monday last year, we noted a crescendo of interest, thrilling curtains, and a generous supply of low comedy as its chief recommendations to the favour of provincial audiences, to whom it will shortly be presented by Miss Madge Girdlestone and company, who have been warmly welcomed at Mr Purcell's fine theatre in Stoke Newington. At its original production in Marylebone Miss Girdlestone was associated with the part of Rosa De Valois, and she is again seen in a character to which her fascination of manner, charm of style, and Juno-like beauty enable her to do complete justice. Rosa in her earlier career has been known as La Belle Cerise, a decoy for shady sharpers in the low gambling saloons of Paris; and even when the wily adventuress is fêted and flattered by foolish admirers it is easy to glean from Miss Girdlestone's demeanour in the part that beneath the petrified crust of selfishness engendered by contact with a hard and cruel world, there beats a woman's heart. The villain with whom she has a liaison has murdered her brother in the earlier portion of the play, and she determines to be even with Wilfred Dread, and when he calls upon her at her flat she wrings from him a confession of his crime by threatening him with a revolver. No sooner has he written and signed the document than, finding she is no longer protecting herself by the shooting-iron, he seizes and stabs her. This is one of the most thrilling scenes in the piece, and it is most powerfully enacted by Miss Girdlestone, who brings out to the full the intense hate of the adventuress for the man who has been the bane of her life. The vixen-like ferocity of the wronged woman is unrestrained and terrible, and in strong contrast to it are the coquettish airs and simulated tenderness of the fascinating demi-mondaine. Mr Martin Sabine, the producer of the drama, has a part of unusual heaviness in that of Captain Wilfred Dread, and his cool determination and unchecked ardour in the breaking of most of the ten commandments elicit outbursts of indignation in all parts of the house—a genuine tribute to the thoroughness and intensity of his acting. In the scene of the murder, to which we have already referred, Mr Sabine acts with a strenuousness and a simulated brutality that positively set the pulses of the audience tingling. Mr Vernon Sansbury represents the long-suffering hero, Herbert Stacey, with the necessary manliness and self-reliance, and his elocution has none of the stiltedness that so often afflicts the utterer of virtuous sentiment. The drama is strong in its comedy scenes. Mr Sam Wilkinson as Bob Westwood, an ex-coastguardsman and dustman, has a broadly humorous style that is most effective in bringing out the fun of the comic situations, the drollery of which is also emphasised by Mr Clarmont Gaskell as Smudgeley, pavement artist from choice but policeman by necessity. Smudgeley is Westwood's rival in the affections of Kitty Taylor, a pert little minx, who fools both of her suitors to the top of their bent, and there are scenes between the three which form exceedingly good comic relief. Kitty is played by Miss Gladys Vernon with a sly coquetry that is immensely effective in raising the laughter of the audience. The Hon. Benjamin Boodle, a vacuous youth, with little brains and much heart, is consistently represented by Mr David Denard, Mr Henry Nelson is effective in the small but important part of John Townsend, and the artless innocence of little Jessie is most happily realised by the pretty child actress, Miss Audrey Sutherland. Miss Audrey Canning does complete justice to the part of Mrs Chesney, and Miss Agnes Verity as Timothy Tippett, a waif, acts with intensity and conviction, the French maid Juliet being capably handled by Miss Elaine Wilson. Mr C. Elliott as Goldsworthy, Mr F. Bowman as the Judge, Mr H. Stanley as the bandsman, and Mr Pickering as the inspector, lend efficient aid in small parts. The life of the London masses is well represented by bustling scenes, both in Regent's-park and on Hampstead Heath, and the staging generally is on a most lavish scale.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

With his natural foresight, Mr Purcell has secured Mr Geo. Musgrove's company in order to give his patrons a last chance of witnessing this phenomenally successful musical play, this being its farewell tour. The Belle of New York is still a fresh and blithesome maiden, and is drawing full houses. Ten months have elapsed since her last visit. The principals, with Mr Harry A. Meymott and Miss Beatrice Lamotte at their head, are all energetic workers, whose endeavours are supported by the chorus and minor characters with that animation and show of interest which are the essence of success in this class of play. Mr Meymott, with his long acquaintance with the part of Ichabod Bronson, displays an unfailing fund of humour, his eccentric mannerisms and general alertness being the cause of much genuine laughter. Mr Philip Leslie is acceptable as Harry Bronson, treating the part deftly, and rendering his songs with much sympathy. What more can we say than has been said of Mr Max Copland's Polite Lunatic? He is no less successful here than he has been elsewhere, everyone being quite overwhelmed with laughter at his eccentricities. The solid and serene "Doc" Snifkins and strongly-made-up low comedian, Kenneth Mugg, are still admirably sustained by Mr Cecil Burt and Mr Paddy Dupres; and Messrs Alfred Selby and Albert Sealy are very smart as the Portuguese Twins. The talented whistling and dancing artist, Frank Lawton, is in his original rôle of Binky Bill; his style is decidedly quaint, his whistling solos admirably rendered, and his bone solo is a work of art. Mr Davis does well in the small part of Mr Twiddler, and Mr C. W. Auson still makes an excellent Frico the French chef. Mr Stage-Manager Arthur Lifforth bravely tackles the part of Mr Sheep, the Minister; whilst the good services must not be overlooked of Messrs Charles Wakeman (the Butler), Morton (Photographer), Wilson (Reporter), and Charles (Gateman at Central Station). The title-rôle is played in a winning way by Miss Beatrice Lamotte, who is as expert in her singing as ever, having to repeat several of her songs. Miss Lillian Digges plays Fifi with much charm of manner, and vocally does the part no less justice, her broken English being unimpeachable. Miss Winnie Browne is a handsome and impressive Cora Angelique with a fine stage presence, and the Pell-street girl, Mamie Clancy, is vivaciously undertaken by Miss May Angus Young. The Marlborough orchestra, under the direction of Mr Leonard Hornsey, adds in no small degree to the success of the performance, and Mr Purcell is to be congratulated on having so able a lieutenant as Mr F. R. Yeulett, who is most courteous and obliging.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Aug. 29,
the Drama, by Theo Kremer, entitled
"THE FATAL WEDDING."

This American play of great heart interest attracted a huge crowd to the Lyric on Monday, and the audience was by no means disappointed, for although The Fatal Wedding differs very little from other dramas of the same class, yet it is dished up in such novel fashion that it serves to interest and amuse to the utmost. Since its first production at the Princess's the drama has been presented almost everywhere, but this is its first appearance at the Lyric. Mr Bert Coote's company is excellently adapted for dealing with the characters in the play to the best advantage. Mr Wilfred Payne's rendering of Howard Wilson is exceedingly good, and proves him to be an actor of great merit. Robert Curtis, a thorough-paced blackguard, is well impersonated by Mr Leyton Cancellor, and Mr Charles H. Kenney as Toto, the French butler, gives evidence of comedy powers which are vastly entertaining. Mr Fred Dobell as Peter Schwartz is very satisfactory, and the O'Reilly of Mr Henry Welbeck is a clever sketch of the New York policeman. A very sympathetic performance of Mabel Wilson is presented by Miss Marie Housley, who quite wins the favour of the audience. Miss Beatrix De Burgh as the adventuress Cora Williams plays a repugnant part to perfection, and could hardly be improved upon. Bridget, the cook, finds an able exponent in that very experienced actress Miss Harriet Clifton, who keeps the audience in roars of laughter. Miss Ida Valli's impersonation of Jessie, the little mother, is delightful, and meets with cordial approval. Jessie and her friends, Molly, Pat, Gipsy, and Trixie, played by Miss Gladys Rose Jones, Miss Maggie Hudson, Miss Mabel Barker, and Miss Addie De Wing, assisted by about thirty other clever children, have a scene almost to themselves, in which they sing, dance, recite, and romp generally with success. The scenery and effects are in every way in keeping with the play.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Fred Karno, Charles Baldwin, and Fred Kitchen, with Music Composed by Dudley Powell, entitled
"SATURDAY TO MONDAY"

Audiences at this handsome theatre have been greatly amused and entertained this week. Perhaps the very inconsequence of the piece is responsible for it, but seldom are such roars of laughter as we have heard this week aroused in the Shakespeare. The life and soul of the fun is Mr Fred Kitchen in the part of John Willie Jaggs; Mr Henry Kitts makes an excellent Mr Blake; Mr Charles Baldwin as Mr Potts, the best man, gives every support; Mr Alec Roma as Tom Freeman has a good voice which he knows how to use; and Mr Dick Harcourt as John Willie Jaggs, jun., and Mr Lepo as Bartlett Jaggs are very amusing characters. Miss Cossie Noel makes a handsome bride, Clorinda Blake, and works hard; Miss Gladys White is pretty and sings and dances very pleasingly as Violet Blake; Miss Ada Maskell deserves praise as Aunt Skinner; and the Misses Amy Minister, Lucy Walden, Lily Craig, and Sophie Mordecai are pretty and accomplished dancers as the bridesmaids. It is impossible to mention all in the very long cast, which does not spare any effort to make the play "go;" but among the more noticeable were Messrs Jack Lloyd, James Fletch, Frank Haylett, H. Paulo, jun., Master W. Bentley; Misses Lily Olive, May Harries, Sybil Groves, Milly Hazleton, Dudley Herberte, Muriel Palmer, Alice Hatchwell, and Kate Rose.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Drama, by Arthur Shirley, entitled
"THE MIDNIGHT MAIL."

This interesting drama of domestic interest, by that copious and practical playwright, Mr Arthur Shirley, is paying a return visit to the Dalston Theatre this week, and the welcome accorded quite justifies the reappearance. Scenes relating to railway work are generally interesting, and those presented in this production are well worked. The engines that are seen on canvas look realistic enough, but in two instances locomotives emit steam and one is actually at work. The youthful members of the audience at least grow enthusiastic over this enterprising realism. The cast is efficient. Mr George Harvard gives a manly rendering of the engine driver, Harry Steyne, who is always a good fellow at heart, although for a time he falls into somewhat bad ways, drinking included, owing to failure to withstand the temptations of his bibulous friend, Billy Brewer, who was once stoker on the same engine. Mr Fred G. Evison makes the part of Billy Brewer decidedly amusing at times, although the character is far from an admirable one, and the audience are delighted when Brewer is frustrated in his deep-laid scheme to throw his old mate from his locomotive. Brewer's subsequent attack of delirium is vividly portrayed. Mary Steyne, the engine-driver's faithful wife, who goes through quite a long list of trials, is admirably represented by Miss Ada Oakley, who secures the sympathy of the onlookers. Miss Mildred Carr is successful as Nancy Brewer, Miss Millie Stevenson is sufficiently distinctive as Lady Phyllis Eustace, and Miss Jennie Weston appears as Mrs Mildmay, matron of a home for deserted children. Mr Alfred Warne's Gerald Eustace is played with care; Mr Alex. Alves plays Leonard Royle, an African explorer; and Mr Arthur Gilroy's impersonation of Hassan Padisha, a Turkish adventurer, is an effective bit of acting. Among the most popular personages in the play must be mentioned Donald Craig, locomotive manager of the railway, and this official finds a most capable representative in Mr Charles M'Cann. Mr R. Entwistle's Jasper Thornleigh, a bluff old signalman, is an admirable character. The cast is not only strong, but long, and, in addition to those already mentioned, includes Mr Warburton, Mr R. Banks, Mr C. Wells, Mr F. Morley, Mr Stead, Mr Clearbrook, Mr R. Bell, Mr G. F. Ford, Mr Tanswell, Miss Lelie Vere, and Miss Dolly Gilroy. Mr W. R. King, the business-manager for Mr Milton Bode and Mr Edward Compton at the Dalston, can congratulate himself on having to accommodate fairly large audiences considering the time of year.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Drama,
by Joseph Arthur, entitled
"THE STILL ALARM"

Brixtonians have a real treat this week at their local theatre, and Messrs Mathew H. Glenville and Frederick Osmond's company in the above popular drama has been received in a manner most gratifying to all concerned. As Jack Manley Mr Mathew H. Glenville is capital. Whether as the clerk in the employ of the New York merchant, or as an active servant in the New York Fire Department, he is equally effective, and never misses a chance of making the most of the many opportunities afforded by this cleverly written rôle. Miss Mary Lovett appears as Elinore Fordham. Mr Lewis Gordon gives a suitably reserved embodiment of the merchant Franklyn Fordham. As the villainous John Bird Mr Paul Lovett succeeds in securing the fullest contempt of the audience. Mr Fred Osmond is admirably cast as Doc Wilber; Willie Manley is capitally played by Mr Tom Beasley; and Miss Hettie Zillwood makes a vivacious Carrie Wilber. Mrs Manley, enacted by Miss Mabel Veriton, achieved a conspicuous success. As usual, the scene at the Central Station, where the brigade are called to a fire, evokes much enthusiasm, and the singing by the Brigade Quartet is excellent.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH-END.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Comedy, in Four Acts, by Sidney Grundy, entitled
"A MARRIAGE OF CONVENIENCE."

This engaging comedy of manners is exceedingly well played by Mr Russell Rosse's company. The portrayal of the Comte De Candale by Mr W. Lawson-Butt is marked with considerable dramatic ability, and his acting has a manly ring which makes an irresistible appeal. The Chevalier De Valclos of Mr Horace Pollock is a most successful exposition of the character; Mr E. Storey-Gofton scores by his presentment of the General, of which part he makes the very most; Mr Arthur Munro lends due weight to the part of Jasmin; Miss Sybil Ruskin deserves complimentary commendation for the breeziness she introduces into her portraiture of the maid Morton; and Miss Muriel Godfrey-Turner's delineation of the Comtesse De Candale wins warm tributes of praise. She combines versatility with emotional power. The piece is preceded by the one-act drama, A Queen's Messenger.

BROADWAY THEATRE, NEW-CROSS.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Drama, entitled
"THE SILVER KING."

Mr Austin Melford, supported by an excellent company, is appearing here this week in the play made so famous by the late Wilson Barrett. Mr Austin Melford's finished and impressive performance of Wilfred Denver has frequently been mentioned by us in terms of high praise; it is, therefore, sufficient to say that he is as good as ever. Miss Emilie Polini is a charming Nellie Denver, sufficiently powerful yet always tender and womanly. Cissy and Ned are prettily acted by Miss Amy Manfree and Master Jack Evan. The Olive Skinner of Miss Phyllis Dailley is an interesting performance; Miss Amy Wood is a capable Tabitha Durdon; Miss Margaret Rooke does well as Suste; and Miss Dolly Norton is an amusing Mrs Gammage. Mr Charles Levey is a clever and incisive Spider, and his companions in villainy are ably portrayed by Mr H. Rooke as Eliah Coombe and Mr C. P. Amalia as Cripps; while Mr James L. Power is an excellent Henry Corkett, Mr C. C. Gratton is very popular as the faithful Daniel Jaikes, Mr Arnold E. Palmer is an earnest Geoffrey Ware, and Mr Wallis Lindon a competent Samuel Baxter. The remaining parts are all well acted.

NEW EALING THEATRE.

On Aug. 29, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Ben Landeck and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"WOMAN AND WINE."

The powerful realistic drama entitled Woman and Wine fully deserves the good opinions which have been everywhere passed upon it. From the opening scene in England to the closing scene at the Palais de Justice in Paris the interest never flags and excitement is kept up to high tension. The fight with knives in the Flower Market between the rivals Marcel and La Colombe holds the audience spellbound. In this drama the villain is not the central figure of the play, but an adventuress, otherwise Marcel Rigadout, and right well does Miss Edith Blande enact the difficult and trying character. She is well supported by her fellow conspirator, Phineas Collins, ably played by Mr Frank Eaglesfield, and Miss Nellie Lauraine as La Colombe is excellent. Mr Frank Robertson as Dick Seymour, who falls into the clutches of Marcel, in the closing scenes plays with dramatic force; Miss Ernestine Holker as Mary Andrews, the heroine, is sweet and winsome; and Mr Percy Dawsone as Charles Sawter and Miss Muriel Vox as Janet Marlow respectively give a light touch to the play. The Edene Troupe of lady dancers show themselves to be skilful dancers by their display of the Terpsichorean art in the Ball-room scene.

TERRISS THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Drama, in Five Acts,
by G. Carlton Wallace, entitled
"THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH."

This piece, which has been making its appearance at an almost adjacent theatre, was received with every appreciative manifestation on its opening night at Rotherhithe, and judging by the crowded state of the house a very favourable reputation must have preceded it. The most prominent character in the production is that of John Strong, whose vocation has suggested to the author a very apt title for his work, and in the skilful hands of Mr Sam Livesey, who interpreted the rôle, a fine manly impersonation was presented. Another apparently popular person was Mr George V. Campbell, who as Billy Turg proves himself a very capable comedian. All the time-honoured and necessary adjuncts of histrionic villainy are incorporated in Mr Joseph Carter's rendition of Captain Leo, and it is a most effective conception of the part. Miss Ethel Kay gives a distinctly interesting portrayal of the heroine Kate Strong, and is deserving of great praise. An amusing sketch of Martha Mopps is presented by Miss Edith Giddens, and the vocal abilities of Miss Maggie Edwards, who appears as Ruth Perkins, are much appreciated.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

"THE MEDAL AND THE MAID."

The bright and attractive musical comedy The Medal and the Maid is here this week, and is being received with the enthusiasm it so richly deserves. The members of Mr Tom B. Davis's company all work hard for the success of the piece, which is, indeed, to a large extent ensured by the lavish manner in which it is dressed. Miss Rita Leonhardt is charming as Merva Sunningdale, all being captivated by her winsome singing and dancing. Josephine is admirably played by Miss Maude Lake, who knows well how to make use of her excellent voice. As Miss Ventnor Miss Edith Housley is really delightful, her vivacious acting, combined with her dainty singing and dancing, making her a general favourite. Miss Edith Blanche is very good as Mrs Habbicombe, and Miss Lillie Leroy makes a pretty and engaging Elsie. Mr Tom Fancourt does not neglect to make the most of the many opportunities offered by the part of Simon Pentweazle, the frequent and hearty laughter which greet his efforts showing that they are not in vain. As Levanter Mr Tom Graves is very funny, and Lord Belton is capably played by Mr Campbell Bishop. Mr William Bland has a very fine voice, and his singing and acting are much appreciated, though he has hardly the scope which his talents deserve. Allen Blythe is well played by Mr Cecil Kingsley, and Mr John M'Dougall is good as Lionel Habbicombe. The smaller parts are excellently sustained, and the able and pretty chorus work hard, their support to Miss Edith Housley in the "Frill" song and "In my Curriculum" being largely instrumental in making these two numbers among the most successful features of an altogether admirable performance.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at any of Smith and Sons' bookstalls throughout the provinces.

A VERY pretty wedding took place on Tuesday last at St. Philip's, Kensington, W., the bride and bridegroom being Miss Nellie Vanderbilt and Mr Albert J. Lapham. The bride was dressed in white silk, and rose orange blossom, having for her bridesmaid Miss Lilian Cook. After the marriage ceremony the bride and bridegroom drove to the bridegroom's home, where the wedding breakfast was held; and after the usual toasts, they left for Mr A. Cook's residence, Buckinghamshire, where they will spend their honeymoon. Amongst the guests present were Professor Hobday, M.R.C.V.S., F.R.C.S., and Mr Hodgins, M.R.C.V.S.

DRURY-LANE THEATRE.

COUNTY COUNCIL'S REQUISITIONS.

The seventh annual meeting of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, Limited, was held on Wednesday at the theatre.

Mr T. H. BIRCH, who presided, in moving the adoption of the report, said the company was in a strong position. In corroboration of that statement he could not do better than quote the statement contained in the auditors' report, which said, "As it now stands, the company's position is stronger than it ever was, and a comparison with some of its earlier balance-sheets cannot be otherwise than gratifying." The costs of productions had been written down to the extent of 19s. 7d. in the pound. In addition, £1,000 more had been written off this year for renewals and repairs than in the previous year. When the company was formed, seven years ago, they anticipated an average dividend of 16 per cent., and, with a 10 per cent. dividend this year, that estimate had been practically realised. That average would have been considerably exceeded but for the fact that whilst they were in the height of their last pantomime season—their harvest time—certain members of the London County Council went out of their way to make allegations both verbally and in print against the safety of the theatre, without even taking the trouble to verify the facts on which they based their conclusions. These endeavours to damage their business seemed hardly fair or above board, and a method of procedure one would hardly have expected from the members of a body such as the County Council. This led him to deal with a point which was necessarily of the most momentous importance to the shareholders. At last year's annual meeting he intimated that the County Council had served upon them a very great number of suggestions which were afterwards turned into requisitions and considerably added to. Many of these requisitions were of a very unreasonable and most exacting nature, and would have involved the expenditure of a tremendous amount of the shareholders' money, whilst on the other hand the directors were strongly convinced that they were quite unnecessary for the safety of the public, which they were, of course, always most anxious to safeguard. Moreover, they were informed by the superintending architect of the County Council that even if they did comply with the whole of those requirements in their entirety he would not be satisfied; and as they discovered in their interviews with the members of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee of the County Council that that gentleman's views apparently held complete sway over them, and as also nothing seemingly would ever have convinced that official that the theatre could be rendered safe, except perhaps by almost total rebuilding, they saw that no matter what they did they would never satisfy that irresponsible body. So they appealed against the whole of the requisitions, and Mr John Slater, a gentleman of undoubted position and knowledge, was appointed by H.M. Office of Works as arbitrator. Mr Slater's award had recently been made, and the result of the action had been that many of the requisitions had been disallowed altogether, many more had been considerably modified, and the general effect would be that thousands of pounds of the shareholders' money would thus be saved. When the alterations ordered by the arbitrator had been completed, Drury-lane Theatre would be unequalled for safety and comfort by any theatre in the world, and even the Superintending Architect of the County Council, accompanied, if he liked, by the Chairman and members of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, might witness the pantomime without a tremor. When the works were completed, they would have obtained finality in respect of the requisitions made. The cost of the works ordered by the arbitrator would be about £20 000 to £25 000. The theatre would have to be closed till Christmas, and there would consequently be practically no income in the meantime, whilst the general upkeep would have to be maintained. The present idea was that the provision for the payment for the alterations and improvements should be spread over a period of years in the accounts.

Lord GEORGE LOFTUS seconded the motion.

MR ARTHUR COLLINS, the managing director, in an account of the company's business, said they had no reason to be in any way discouraged as to their past work or future prospects. Humpty Dumpty, the pantomime of last year, was as great a success as ever. They were very pleased to have Mr Dan Leno with them again, and looked forward with much pleasure to his return next Christmas. After referring in sympathetic terms to the death of his old friend Mr Herbert Campbell, with whom he had been associated for over twenty years, Mr Collins said that, with regard to the County Council, he had endeavoured in every way to meet their demands. They knew that the County Council were endeavouring to do their duty to the public; but they seemed to lose sight of the fact that theatrical managers were equally, if not more, interested in the public than they were. He was glad to tell them that their American business and connection was now firmly established. Not only were they now able to place their pantomimes on the other side of the water, but there was every prospect of further development, and he hoped it would be extremely lucrative to the company. Last year the whole theatrical business throughout the United States was considerably hampered by the fire in Chicago, but he was glad to tell them that the damage to the properties and effects in connection with the production of Blue Beard was amply covered by insurance. The London County Council used that fire as a lever in insisting on their futile objections. Anyone knowing the circumstances of the case would ridicule the idea of comparing the two theatres. The Chicago fire was due to carelessness on the part of one of the workmen, and such a catastrophe could not occur at Drury-lane Theatre. They had arranged to produce The White Cat, by Mr J. Hickory Wood and himself, as the Christmas pantomime this year, and he believed it would be very successful. They would be supported by Mr Dan Leno, Mr Harry Randall, and many of their old friends. He had within the last few weeks arranged to produce at that theatre, in 1905, a work by one of our celebrated novelists and dramatists. He referred to Mr Hall Caine's Prodigal Son, upon which Mr Caine was now engaged. He had also practically arranged with Sir Henry Irving for a répertoire season there next spring. He was sure that they and the public would give Sir Henry Irving the welcome he so richly deserved. In conclusion, Mr Collins expressed his thanks for the courtesy and consideration shown him during the seven years he had been managing-director.

The report was adopted; a further dividend of 5 per cent on paid-up capital, in addition to the interim dividend already paid of five per cent., making a total of 10 per cent. for the year, was declared; Mr F. O'S. B. Reade was re-elected a director; and the meeting terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

MADAME MELBA has joined the Ladies' Committee in connection with the Special Appeal Fund of the Samaritan Hospital for Women.

AT the usual weekly meeting of the council, held on Tuesday, Edina R. Rolleston, Marguerite Cellier, and Walter Hampden were nominated as candidates for election as members of the Actors' Association. The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members, and had issued execution on behalf of another member, and the money had now been paid into court. A case of alleged insanitation at a provincial theatre was reported, and the secretary was instructed to enquire into the matter. The chairman gave the report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A very hearty reception was given to Miss Gladys Unger's new comedy Mr Sheridan on its first production at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, on Monday evening by Mr Arthur Bourchier's company, under the control of Mr Jerrold Robertshaw. The comedy is admirably and smartly written; it is replete and, perhaps, a little overburdened with incidents, and after a slow first act it secured the rapt attention of the large audience until the final fall of the curtain. Then there were loud calls for the author, and, after enthusiastic and prolonged applause, Miss Gladys Unger was led forward by Mr Jerrold Robertshaw and gracefully bowed her acknowledgment of the demonstrative plaudits.

The first act opens in the Library of Sheridan's House at Wanstead. Mrs Ogle and her daughter, Miss Esther Ogle, arrive on a visit to the renowned Richard Brinsley Sheridan, and it is soon apparent that efforts are being made that Sheridan's son Tom, at Cambridge, shall secure the hand and heart of the charming Miss Esther. Sheridan receives visits from several persistent creditors, while a messenger from Mr Morland, the banker, with a draft for £15,000 for Sheridan, also endeavours, though fruitlessly until nearly the close of the comedy, to see the impecunious author. From one of the moneylenders who puts in an appearance Sheridan gathers an inkling of his son Tom's intrigue with a lady at Cambridge. Tom at length arrives with a gay young spark, Lord Wilfred Cray, who is anxious to secure the hand of his cousin, Miss Esther Ogle. Tom and Miss Esther are left together. Tom, dreaming of the lady at Cambridge, proves an "inartistic and inarticulate lover," and Lord Wilfred Cray, finding his advances to Miss Esther are coldly repulsed, meditates revenge. He intends buying up Sheridan's debts, and then, as his sole creditor, he will secure a writ for the imprisonment of the debtor, confident that Miss Esther "can't marry the son of a man in prison." The act terminates with a merry scene between the creditors and Sheridan, toasts being given and reciprocated.

In the second act, in Sheridan's Library, it is soon obvious that Miss Esther's esteem and regard for Sheridan are ripening into affection. Sheridan receives a visit from a masked lady "in distress"—Kitty Montmorency, an actress—who has been shabbily treated by Lord Cray. Kitty is induced by Sheridan to accept an offer of marriage made to her by the honest innkeeper of the Happy Hymen, and her farewell parting with Sheridan is seen by Miss Esther Ogle, who bursts into tears. To add to Sheridan's disconcerting situation a Mr Rundle arrives from Cambridge. He is mad with rage and demands reparation for the wrong inflicted upon him by "Mr Sheridan" in driving about with his wife during his two years' absence in Jamaica. He produces a letter from Tom to his wife. Sheridan, to shield his son, accepts all responsibility, and a duel is arranged for the early morning. In the third act—in the Hall of Sheridan's House—Sheridan, who has given a ball in honour of Miss Ogle, bids his guests farewell. Mrs Ogle, realising that her visit on her daughter's behalf is fruitless, is determined to have an understanding with Tom. Then follows a pretty scene between Sheridan and Miss Esther. She is mending his cravat, and he ventures to kiss her; but immediately a scene in strange contrast follows. Mrs Rundle, the Cambridge lady, who is still enamoured of Tom, arrives, and Sheridan, to prevent her seeing his son, shows her to a room and locks her in. Miss Ogle has witnessed the quickly enacted scene, and, moved by jealousy, not only refuses Sheridan when he makes her a formal offer of marriage, but, in desperation, accepts Lord Cray. Meanwhile the furious Mr Rundle has been awaiting the duel. He brings pistols, but Miss Esther, who appears upon the scene and realises the truth of the whole story, recommends swords, and offers to act as referee. Mr Rundle is wounded, and left to the care of Sheridan's servant. Sheridan releases Mrs Rundle, and begs her to seek her husband and secure his pardon. Sheridan and Miss Esther are reconciled, and they hurry away to get married. In the last act, at the Happy Hymen, we find Kitty, married to the innkeeper. Sheridan and Miss Ogle arrive, and find a staunch friend in Kitty. The Sheriff's officers come to arrest Sheridan; he coolly puts them on the wrong scent; and in the end they seize upon Lord Cray as the man they want. Sheridan and Miss Ogle are married, explanations ensue, Lord Cray is released, Sheridan at last receives Mr Morland's draft for £15 000, and all ends happily for him and his charming young wife.

The various characters were admirably represented. Mr Jerrold Robertshaw displayed easy and polished acting as the highly courteous and nonchalant Richard Brinsley Sheridan, and Miss Elfrida Clement made a delightfully charming and winsome Miss Esther Ogle. Miss Lena Halliday was admirably suited as Mrs Ogle; Miss Rose Dupré acquitted herself very effectively as Kitty Montmorency; and Miss June Van Buskirk made full use of her few opportunities as Prudence Rundle. Mr A. B. Imeson as Tom and Mr Junius Booth as Lord Wilfred Cray, like the lords in Iolanthe, had little to do and "did it very well;" Mr Hubert Carter achieved distinct success as the irate and revengeful Mr Rundle; Mr Guy Lane as Sheridan's servant, Edwardes, was well suited; and the remaining characters were satisfactorily sustained.

PRINCE OF WALES'S, RICHMOND.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Drama, entitled "BETWEEN TWO WOMEN."

The above piece was performed here by Mr Frederick Melville's company before a large and enthusiastic audience on Monday. As the Earl of Millard Mr Sidney Price acted with force and distinction, his make-up also being effective. As the heir to the earldom Mr Harry Marlow proved himself a capable actor, and his portrayal was excellent. As the Rev. Philip Carton Mr Albert Ward showed that no mistake had been made in entrusting the part to him. The two villains, Major Strangeways and James Durward, were played by Mr Graham Woods and Mr Fred Morgan with much realism and intensity. The comic element was represented by Mr Tubby Edlin, who as Jack Pringle kept the house in roars of laughter whenever he was on the stage. Miss Marie Robson as Violet Thornton and Miss Morita Valda as Carmen De Savereaux were well suited, and Miss Alice Bowes played the blind boy with great effect. The minor characters were all well filled, and the play was effectively staged and dressed.

THE attraction at the Elephant and Castle Theatre this week has been The Drama of Life, which was fully noticed by us last week at the West London.

HISTORIC PROVINCIAL PLAYHOUSE.

BY T. H. BARROW.—II.

Sir Charles Wyndham told us the other day that religion gave rise to the secular drama. That is a proposition with which all intelligent people will agree. The Roman Catholics instituted mystery plays with the object of inspiring the fear of God in the hearts of the laity. It is a curious coincidence that a monastic institution in the heart of the ancient city of York should have provided a site for a modern theatre. A history of York published a hundred and twenty years ago contains this sentence:—"On the ruins of part of the old hospital stands an elegant theatre or playhouse, created in 1770 (? 1765) by Mr Baker, then manager, and which his successor, Tate Wilkinson, Esq., the present manager, hath since procured to be licensed by his Majesty with authority of Parliament."

When I explain that the hospital of St. Leonard was one of the most ancient and noble foundations of the kind in Britain I need advance no further reason for giving a brief historical description of its origin and palmy days of monastic government. "In the year 936 Athelstane, our famous Saxon monarch, being on a warlike expedition to Scotland, visited on his way thither three religious centres, York, Beverley, and Durham. He requested the benefit of the devout prayers of the monks on behalf of his troops, promising that if he succeeded in defeating the Scotch he would abundantly recompense them for their assistance.

"Gaining a complete victory over Constantine, the King of Scotland, near Dunbar, Athelstane returned to York. In the fine old Minster he gave hearty thanks to God and St. Peter, the patron saint of that sacred fane. Observing at the divine service certain men of a sanctified life and honest conversation—men then called Coledei, who systematically relieved many poor people out of the little they themselves had to subsist upon—he therefore, that they might be the better enabled to sustain the said poor, keep hospitality, and exercise other works of piety, granted to God and St. Peter and the said Coledei and their successors for ever one thrave of corn out of every carucate of land or every plowgoing in the Bishoprick of York, which to this day (1786) is called Peter corn, for by grant of the inhabitants within that district the King had to himself and his successors the said thraves for destroying of wolves, which, in those days, so exceedingly wasted the country that they almost devoured the tame beasts of the villages thereabouts, but by these means those ravenous creatures were totally destroyed.

"These Coledei being thus possessed of the said thraves and a piece of waste ground, which the King also gave them, began to found for themselves a certain hospital in the city of York; and they elected one of themselves to preside over the rest, for the better government and preservation of their rights and possessions.

"They continued thus till the Conquest, when William the Norman confirmed the thraves to them. But his successor, William Rufus, was a much greater benefactor, for he translated the site of the hospital into the royal place where it now stands, as appears by many houses then being on it, which in times past belonged to the king's use. He likewise built a little church therein, and caused it to be dedicated to St. Peter, which name this hospital bore to the last, as their common seal testified, viz:—Sigillum Hospitalis Sancti Petri Eboraci (the seal of the hospital of St. Peter of York).

"King Henry I granted to the monks the enlargement of the Close, wherein their house was situated, as far as the river Ouse—when he should recover the same from the monks of St. Mary! He also confirmed to this hospital all the lands which either he himself or Eustace Fitz-John, Lambert De Fossgate, or other of the king's men and burgesses had formerly given there unto within or without the burgh; especially the land in Usegate (now called High and Low Ousegate) which John Lardinarius had conferred on them. He freed them from all geids and customs, and granted to them the liberties of sac, soc, tol, them, and infangthef. As a more especial mark of his favour this king took to himself the name of a brother and warden of this hospital.

"King Stephen rebuilt the hospital in a more magnificent manner, and dedicated it to the honour of St. Leonard, and it was afterwards called Hospitalis S. Leonardi. The king confirmed the thraves, which were tithes of all the oats which used to be gathered betwixt the river of Trent and Scotland, for finding the king's hounds, which meant twenty-four sheaves of corn each plow-land by the year, and appointed the Dean and Canons of the Cathedral church to gather them for the relief of the said hospital. He likewise caused Nigel, Mayor of York (the first chief magistrate of the city of which there is any record), to deliver up a certain place by the west wall of the city to receive the poor and lame in.

"All these privileges and possessions were confirmed by King Henry II. and King John. The latter ratified them by charter, and further granted to the hospital timber for buildings, wood for fires, and grass and pasturage for cattle throughout his whole forest of Yorkshire. These possessions were continued, confirmed and greatly enlarged by succeeding kings and piously disposed noblemen and others to the reign of Edward I., when that monarch, upon return of a writ of ad quod damnum, granted to the master and brethren of the hospital liberty to take down the wall which extended from Blake-street to Bootham Bar, and set up a new wall for enlarging the court of the said hospital, and so enclosed to hold the same for the master and brethren and their successors for ever."

Limit of space precludes a complete detailed description of all the confirmations, privileges, and charters which belonged to the famous hospital of St. Leonard. Sir Thomas Widdrington, an antiquarian of note, who once had possession of the couchere book of the hospital (afterwards deposited in the Cotton Library), dealt with this matter very fully.

Walter Langton, master of the hospital, made in 1294 certain rules for the brethren and sisters. He provided that every learned chaplain should have a seat and a desk in the cloister, and all be present at matins and other hours, that at least four brothers beside the priest should assist at the mass of the Blessed Virgin, and, having said all their masses, to be at their chairs in the cloisters at prayers; that they should behave themselves in the chair; that one brother should read during meals; that in summer they should sleep a little after dinner and then read; that after supper they should go to the church and give thanks, say Compline, &c.; that silence should be observed in the cloister, refectory, and dormitory; that if anyone happened to be incontinent, disobedient, or hold anything of his own, he was to be denied Christian burial; that the lay brothers should not go beyond the door of the nave of the church except in processions, that the sisters should have a convenient place for them in the church; and that neither they nor the lay brothers should go out of the bounds of the church without leave. The master had nothing to himself but reliefs, perquisites of courts, and altarages, which he might dispose of in small gifts for his own honour and the honour of the house, as he should see expedient. He was to deliver the common seal of the house to the keeping of two brethren under his own seal. They were not subject to any visitor but the King or his deputies, though the hospital was in the collation of the Dean and Chapter of York.

The number of inmates constantly maintained in this hospital (besides those who were relieved elsewhere) were the master, thirteen brethren, four secular priests, eight sisters, thirty choristers, two schoolmasters, twenty-six beadmen, and six servitors—total ninety. This was the constitution of the famous St. Leonard's Hospital, a portion of which remains in the fabric of the Theatre Royal.

Sometime in 1758 Mr Baker, a highly-respected manager, had to supply the place of the popular actress Mrs Dancer, who had gone with her husband to Barry's new theatre in Dublin. He proceeded to London, where he first met the famous Tate Wilkinson, who became his partner and then his successor. Tate made his initial appearance in the city on April 30, 1763, in a play called The Minor. The season was concluded on May 17, when he was given a benefit, the pieces presented being The Jealous Wife, Duke and No Luke, and Tea, the latter being a mélange, the chief features of which were a series of imitations of popular London actors. There was a crowded audience, and "the stage was filled with gentlemen."

(FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THE autumn season started this week by M. Ruez opening the doors of the popular little house Parisana with a production of an operette entitled Venus à Paris, by Moreau, Verdellet, and Quinel. It would appear that classical topics for operette are all the fashion this season, for late this week, after my letter will have been despatched, another Olympian operette is due at the new Théâtre Titania, of which more anon. But to return to Venus at Parisana. Venus has grown old, and her fascinations have been relegated to her daughter, Mdlle. Venus, who exercises them under certain painful conditions. Being assured by that terrible old Beau Mars that the conditions are ripe for fulfilment, the party decide to descend to earth in Brother Cupid's aerial automobile. Once arrived in Paris, the fun waxes fast and furious. The trifle was admirably played by De Leka, who was delightful as Cupid, Villot, Leprince, and Portal. The best items of the concert portion of the entertainment were provided by those ever-popular favourites, Fragson and Vilbert; and Esther Lekain discoursed sweet music in her own charming fashion.

THE revue at the Marigny still continues to draw. The authors rely greatly on English and American music. "Say, My," and "The Cosy Corner Girl" are two of the most popular numbers. Dorgère has taken Mealy's place. The lady is tall and elegantly slim. The harlequin dresses were pretty, and the Chiffonière girls were cleverly made up. Darlès gave a burlesque of Mons. Max at the Théâtre Sarah Bernhardt, which served admirably to introduce Ida Fuller as the Sorceress in her fire dance. It was a charming number, and fully deserved the applause it obtained. Elise De Vere has left the cast. I heard that she was anxious to introduce an American speciality, which she had seen during her engagement in The Red Feather. It was presumably the Hiawatha ballet, but the management would only provide her with the eight English girls equipped in Scotch kilts, and could not for the life of them see why that savage costume would not do as well as any other. The Sandens are good gymnasts. They opened the programme agreeably, and did some capital work in the revue. The Four Juanitos are splendid acrobats; the little lad is very quick and neat. They utilise a see-saw which enables them to introduce some novel and clever acrobatic feats. The Ural Cossacks are eight pretty ladies who go through some curious military drill. The Three Lumars are a very clever and hard-working troupe. The girl is of great assistance to the two men. She is a dancer, an acrobat, a contortionist, and she utilises all her gifts. The men are very good. The final electric display when the girl revolves on a walking-stick held by the men was loudly applauded. Helèna is a portly American lady with an excellent voice. The Martini Brothers, eccentric acrobats, are full of humour; the tramp sets the audience in a roar; the straight partner is excellent. Sixty somersaults in sixty seconds are done without stopping! This act is hailed with delight. The up-to-date dancers the Sousloffs, the Tergernseer Nightingales, and Kitty Traney also appear.

MONS. LELAIR has charge of the production of Capus' new play La Jeunesse, which the eminent author will read to the company on Oct. 1 at the Théâtre Française, where they are at present rehearsing Georges Dandin, in which Mons. Laugier will appear in the title-part. Next week Bonheur qui Passe goes into rehearsal.

NAPOLEON plays seem in the air, what with Berton's Belle Marseillaise at the Ambigu, and the threatened production at the Porte-St.-Martin of Martin Laya's play entitled Napoleon, in which Duquesne will appear as the Little Corporal. The Odéon will reopen with an adaptation by Francmesnil of Dickens's "Cricket on the Hearth."

VERDI'S EARLY YEARS

In an appreciative account of the life beginnings of the composer who gave us Il Trovatore and a hundred other works, Mr J. Cuthbert Hadden, writing in the Argosy, says that no great musician that ever made a name for himself was more humbly born than Verdi, though it has been the rule for great musicians to be born humbly. His father kept a little inn and grocery shop in the main street of the village of Roncole, anciently in the Duchy of Parma, but at this time under the dominion of the French. There were but two hundred souls all told in Roncole, and the Verdi house, moreover, stood quite isolated from the rest of the houses. Someone who has seen it asks us to "imagine a kind of tumble-down house of stone and motar, standing almost alone in the midst of a fertile plain sown with maize and hemp." It is, in fact, a mere village cottage, with sloping roof, most of the rooms being on the ground floor, with a state bedroom on the top. The open door and the window, at which groceries and cheap wine were displayed, remind travellers very forcibly of the small sweetstuff-shops still to be seen in the rural parts of England. Environment must always count for something, and one can easily understand how an artist born in such a spot should preserve for the whole of his life a love for solitude which amounted almost to a craze. Imagination must be left to picture the humbleness of the future composer's earliest surroundings, but one or two incidents may be cited to help out the conception. Verdi's musical aptitude soon showed itself to his parents, and when the father made him a pupil of the village church organist it was with the view of his ultimately becoming the worthy man's successor. His ambition for the lad took no higher flight, yet when Verdi succeeded to the post in his eleventh year the salary was only thirty-six francs a year! After a twelvemonth it was raised to forty francs; but Verdi's income as organist, including the fees from marriages, &c., never exceeded a hundred francs. Yet to earn this wretched pittance the composer remained organist at Roncole for six years, during a part of which time he had to walk every Sunday and festival-day from Busseto, a town three miles distant, whither he had been sent for his general education.

Many incidents in the life of Verdi are connected with the church of Roncole. There is a very picturesque story according to which it became an asylum for him when he was little more than a year old. The Austrian and Russian forces were driving the French before them, and the poor people of Roncole had the horrors of war brought to their own doors. Some of them fled to the church for protection, Verdi's mother, with her babe, among the rest. She, it seems, did not stop in the main room of the sanctuary, but climbed the ladder into the belfry, and there remained till the soldiers had left the town. With what pathetic interest must Verdi have looked at that little church in after years! If the incident really happened as stated—and there is no reason to doubt that it did—there was a peculiar fitness in Verdi's dedicating himself to the service of the church, which he did by becoming an acolyte to the village priest when he was seven years old. It was his first day in that capacity, and when the organ began to play he forgot all about his duties, "listening in open-mouthed delight, so that the demand of the priest for water fell upon deaf ears." The story goes that "after a second or third repetition had proved equally ineffectual, the priest gave him a box on the ears, which sent him rolling down the altar steps. He was picked up insensible, but his first request when he regained consciousness was an appeal to be allowed to learn an instrument capable of producing such divine harmony." Many years later his name was found scratched on the case of the organ, and traces of it are still piously preserved. It was from one of the priests that his father bought the spinet by which Verdi learned to play. His Italian biographer, while examining it minutely, found written in it a certificate by one Stefano Cavaletti in 1821, which stated that he had repaired the instrument and added the pedal without charge, "in consideration of the good disposition which the young Giuseppe Verdi shows in learning to play on the said instrument, which quite suffices to satisfy me."

This is a very pretty story, but it is not nearly so pretty as that which tells of how Verdi got first a patron and then a wife. He had been sent to Busseto for his general education. Now, in Busseto there lived a certain musical amateur, Antonio Barezzi, a distiller, who numbered the elder Verdi among his customers. Barezzi was one of the big men of the place, and being musical, Verdi naturally sought his acquaintance. The connection proved in every way helpful, especially in opening to the young artist the various avenues of music which the town afforded. First, there was a cathedral, with a sour old pedant name Provesi as organist, in which on special occasions an orchestra played, Barezzi being one of the members. Busseto had a philharmonic society too, which met for practice in Barezzi's house. Verdi at this time lived with a shoemaker, but Barezzi presently opened his home to him, gave him employment in his warehouse, and allowed him the treat of practising on a piano fresh from Vienna. Nor was this all. Barezzi had a daughter; the daughter played the piano. Result—the young people fell in love with each other, just as Haydn had done with the barber's daughter under somewhat similar circumstances, and when Verdi asked her hand her father—consented! "Yes, certainly," was his answer to the friend who had interceded for the struggling musician. "How could I refuse so good a young man as Verdi? True, he is not rich, but he has genius and industry, which are better than patrimony." The marriage took place in 1885. It turned out a very happy one, but alas! the happiness was short lived. Two children had been born to the pair. Both sickened and died in 1840, and within a few weeks after the last had been laid to rest the mother was taken. Verdi had just accepted an engagement to write a comic opera, and he went on with it, while all the time his heart was breaking. He was so poor, too, at this period of his career that he had to pawn his dead wife's trinkets for the rent; indeed, it is said, that his triple bereavement was due, humanly speaking, to his lack of means for securing proper medical attendance.

Three years before his marriage—that is to say in 1832, when he was not quite nineteen—he had unsuccessfully endeavoured to obtain an entrance to the Conservatoire of Milan. The statement had all along been made that the directors of the Conservatoire had declined to admit him on the ground that he was not sufficiently talented—that, in fact, there was no hope of ever making him a musician. Verdi himself gave an emphatic contradiction to this absurd report in a letter which he addressed to an Italian journal not long before his death. "I underwent," he says, "a sort of examination on some of my compositions, playing then on the piano before Basily, Piantanida, Angeleri, and old Rolla, to whom I had had a letter of introduction from my master Provesi, of Busseto. A week later I called on Rollo, and he said to me: 'You must give up the idea of the Conservatoire, and take lessons in town from some new master, Luvigna or Negri.' I heard nothing more from the Conservatoire, and had no answer to my application for admission, nor did I ever hear why I was rejected." This letter sufficiently refutes the statement that the composer had been told he had no talent, but it still leaves us without an explanation of the curious circumstance that the man who had made melody for humanity for half a century and more was refused admission to the great training institution of his native land. Perhaps it was just as well that he was refused, for at these monster institutions it is too often the case that, as Burns said of Scots university students, the candidates "gang in stirks and come out asses."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

AT the meeting of the shareholders of Drury-lane Theatre on Wednesday, Mr T. H. Birch, the chairman of the company, said the cost of the works ordered by the arbitrator would be nearly £25,000, though, if they had been obliged to carry out the whole of the County Council's requisitions, they would have cost the company many thousands more. The great difference between the original demands and those which were settled by the arbitrator is only one more proof of the utterly unreasonable requirements made by the County Council from theatrical managers with respect to alterations in theatres.

MR RICHARD BADGER'S munificent offer of £2,000 in furtherance of a national memorial to Shakespeare is meeting with powerful support. Sir Henry Irving thinks to make it really national the subscriptions should range over the largest possible area. He would favour a penny subscription, with no limit to the number of pennies one might like to give. Mr Beerbohm Tree says:—"The suggestion that a national shilling fund should be started seems to me an admirable one. May I add to Mr Badger's donation of £2,000 mine of 2,000 shillings?"

AN amusing story is told of one of London's most prominent actor-lessees. Always on the look-out for new blood for his West-end company, this gentleman "spotted" a "juvenile lead" who he thought would be an admirable choice for a part in his new autumn production. The business-manager was requested to write and make an appointment. The youngster, full of glowing visions of future starring engagements, found the actor-lessee in his dressing-room making up. "Ah, Mr Blank," said the great man, in his blandest tones, "I have sent for you to offer you a position in my company, and if agreeable to you I intend to cast you for a part in my next piece. But before we get any further I should like to know your terms." "Thirty pounds a week," was reply. "Oh, indeed—[a pause]—Would you mind shutting the door as you go out?"

LADY BANCROFT writes from Overstrand:—"Much as I would like, and still hope, to see a worthy statue of Shakespeare erected in London, I venture to think the greatest tribute to his 'immortal memory' would be a National Theatre, in which one of his plays should be acted at least once in every week."

THE will of Mr Wilson Barrett is written in his own hand, and is dated June 29, 1902 and there is a codicil in the form of a letter to his brother-in-law, dated July 18, 1904. His personal estate is valued at £24,167 17s. 2d. net, and the gross value of the whole of the estate is sworn at £30,862 16s. 9d. He bequeathed £1,000 to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, £1,000 to the Actors' Orphanage Fund, £10,000 in trust for his daughter, Ethel Dorothea, with remainder to her children, if any, and, in the event of failure of such issue with the reversion of the capital, to the testator's two sons, father, sisters, nieces, and nephews mentioned in the will. He left £1,000 each to his sons, Frank and Alfred, £2 000 to his sister, Mrs Mary Heath, £500 to the Rev. Frank Heath; £500 to his nephew, Charles Barrett; £500 to his father, George Barrett; £300 each to his nieces, Kathleen, Caroline, and Monica Barrett; £300 to Mr George Herbert Smith; £500 to his sister, Mrs Emily Fontzloff; £200 to his valet, Walter Mitchell; £100 to his nephew, Leo Barrett; and £100 to Arthur Stevens, in his employ. He also left a sum of £100 for distribution among some of those who have best served him according to the discretion of the executors of his will, the said Rev. Frank Heath, of Cheddington Rectory, and Mr George Herbert Smith, for the last-named of whom power to grant probate was reserved. Mr Barrett left his theatrical property, effects, and royalties to his daughter, Ethel Dorothea, and his sister, Mrs Mary Heath, and he left the residue of his estate to them, except his books and manuscripts, which he gave to the Rev. Frank Heath.

ON one occasion when the Moody-Manners Opera Company were performing Lohengrin at Accrington, a gallerylte was much puzzled by the swan which is seen drawing a boat along in that opera. He craned his neck over and glared at the bird for a long time. Finally, he turned to his better half sitting beside him, and asked, "I say, ole gal, wot's that duck a-doing of?"

FOR a performance of Dorothy recently given by an amateur dramatic society at Hong Kong Mr Clarkson supplied the wigs. Special papers had to be sent from China for Mr Clarkson to fill up in order to prevent the wigs being seized as contraband of war.

AT Rosherville, Johannesburg, on Aug. 7 last, Mr Leonard Rayne's company, then performing at the local Standard Theatre, met in friendly rivalry a team selected from D Company of the Transvaal Light Infantry, in order to try their merits in a target-shooting competition, a hundred yards sprint race, a swimming match, and a cricket match. The first competition was a 200 yards target shooting match, in which the Volunteers easily held their own, and the Thespian Nimrods found second place. Coming to the 500 yards range, a keen and exciting finish resulted in the Volunteers again winning by a few points. Some brilliant shooting was done by Mr Leonard Rayne, Mr Tom Wootwell, and the veteran actor Mr Charles Vane. The selected men for the 100 yards sprint race next met, and another exciting finish resulted in Mr Leonard Rayne beating Sergeant-Major Covington by half a yard.

A 100 YARDS swimming match was the next attraction, the actors choosing as their representative Mr Tom Wootwell, then performing at the local Empire Theatre, the Volunteers being represented by Sergeant Hall, of the Witwatersrand Rifles. The race was never in doubt. Mr Wootwell, entering the water two seconds after his opponent, caught him up easily, and won comfortably by three yards.

MR G. P. HUNTLEY, writing from Sydney to Mr George Edwardes, says:—"I want to run some horses when I get home, and to commence I have just bought Lamond, who ran second for this year's Australian Grand National, and is considered one of the fastest and cleverest steeplechasers out here." Mr Huntley is also negotiating for the purchase of two other steeplechasers.

MRS BROWN-POTTER will shortly commence a season at the Savoy Theatre with The Golden Light, a modern play, in four acts, by "George Daring," the nom de plume of Madame Raoul-Duval, the authoress of several effective poems for recitation. In The Golden Light Mrs Brown-Potter will wear what are described as "emotional gowns," which will "express ideas in colours and curves." These expressive garments have been designed by Lady Duff-Gordon, and will "denote the heroine's moral progress in the play." Miss Elizabeth Care, who is described as a "Philadelphia beauty," will be in the cast.

AT the Royalty Theatre on Wednesday night, as the end of the third act was approaching, the fireproof curtain was lowered, and many people in the audience jumped to their feet and were about to hurry out. A minute or two later the fireproof curtain was raised, and the play was proceeded with. It transpired that the man in charge of the curtain mistook red limelight on the back cloth for a fire, and, in his anxiety to do his duty, promptly lowered the curtain.

SIR HENRY IRVING will begin, on the 19th inst., at Cardiff, his farewell tour, which will last till the middle of December. His répertoire will consist of The Merchant of Venice, Becket, Louis XI., Charles the First, The Lyons Mail, The Bells, Waterloo, Don Quixote, and Olivia. Included in his company are Miss Edith Wynn-Matthison, who will play Portia to his Shylock, Miss Maude Fealy, Mrs Cecil Raleigh, Mr Gerald Lawrence, Mr Charles Dodsworth, Mr James Hearn, Mr Frank Tyars, and Mr H. B. Stanford.

MISS GLADYS UNGER, the author of Mr Sheridan, which was produced by Mr Arthur Bourchier at Brighton on Monday, is about twenty years old. She is a Californian. She came to Europe, and attended the school at Hampstead where Miss Dorothea Baird and Miss Lilian Braithwaite were educated. Miss Unger's grandfather was Robert Buchanan, a Californian pioneer, and sheriff of the county in its wilder days. He was shot dead by the bandit king, Joachim Murietta, and in Miss Unger's possession is the blood-stained handkerchief which was tied round his wound.

MR BERNARD SHAW is writing an Hibernian play for the Irish Literary Theatre. It is in four acts and six scenes, and is a purely scientific demonstration of English and Irish character. All the personages are Irish, except the hero and his valet, who are English. None of the Irish characters possess the faintest sense of humour. The play has no particular ending, and consists largely of social, political, and religious discussion. There is evidently a treat in store for those who can appreciate Mr Shaw's work.

SIR THEODORE MARTIN, who will have his eighty-eighth birthday on the 16th inst., is staying at Bryntisilio, his Welsh residence. Every Sunday afternoon he reads the lessons at the neighbouring church of Llantysilio, which contains a memorial to Lady Martin, the late Miss Helen Faucit.

MR BEERBOHM TREE, in addition to an extraordinary storm in his production of The Tempest, at his Majesty's, will present to his patrons a Naiad ballet, designed by himself, Mr Raymond Roze having supplied the music, and also written a trio to be sung by Juno, Ceres, and Iris.

THERE was a humorous unrehearsed incident in the performance of San Toy at Yarmouth recently. Mr Henry Cleff, who was playing the part of Fo-Hop, a Chinese student, seized and dragged forward Miss Fanny Dango—San Toy—in the course of a "heavy" scene in the first act, with such energy that the lady's hair became completely loosened from its fastenings and tumbled down in a delightful careless manner. The performers were convulsed by the incident, inasmuch as San Toy was then enacting the part of the "little boy," and the strong scene that followed was pleasantly marred by the hilarity of the audience at Miss Dango's efforts to secure her hair ornaments, which were strewn about the stage, and to restore the refractory tresses to their proper position.

MR AND MRS KENDAL'S autumn tour will commence on Monday at the Grand Theatre, Llandudno. The repertory will include A Scrap of Paper, The Elder Miss Blossom, Still Waters Run Deep, and Dick Hope. All the principal theatres are to be visited during the tour, which, it may confidently be expected, will be a complete success.

THE first volume of Messrs Methuen's facsimile edition of the four folios of Shakespeare will be published on Sept. 8 The fourth folio, of which no reprint has hitherto been made, was originally produced in 1685 "for H. Herringham, E Brewster, and R. Bentley, at the Anchor in the New Exchange, the Crane in St. Paul's Churchyard, and in Russell-street, Covent-garden." The full title and contents are:—"Mr William Shakespeare's Comedies, Histories, and Tragedies. Published according to the true Original copies. Unto which is added. Seven Plays, never before printed in folio, viz, Pericles, Prince of Tyre, The London Prodigal, The History of Thomas Lord Cromwell, Sir John Oldcastle, Lord Cobham, The Puritan Widow, A Yorkshire Tragedy, The Tragedy of Locrine. The Fourth Edition."

BY arrangement with Mr James Hare, Miss Elizabeth Ruggles and Miss Gladys Rees are now booking a provincial tour of that pretty domestic drama A Woman's Redemption, from the pen of Mr Cyril Austen Lee.

MR MILTON BODE at the Dalston Theatre has no mercy on "dead-heads," and allows no free list of any description whatever, with the exception, of course, of representatives of the press.

THE structural alterations to the interior of the Haymarket Theatre will include the addition of a pit. It was on Jan. 3, 1880, that a disturbance occurred at this theatre owing to the playgoers objecting to the abolition of the pit. Sir Squire Bancroft, however, did not change his plans, and the theatre has remained pitless for twenty-four years.

MR AND MRS FRED H. GRAHAM (Miss Nellie Dent) have been playing the principal parts in In Town, A Gaiety Girl, and The French Maid through New Zealand and Australia with such success that they have had several tempting offers to remain in the Colonies.

THE first volume of the late Mr W. Davenport Adam's "Dictionary of the Drama," which will be published by Messrs Chatto and Windus on Thursday, contains a chronological list of plays and their authors, with the dates of publication or performance, or both, and biographical details of playwrights of the past. Lists of actors and vocalists, theatrical managers, scenic artists, and musical composers connected with the stage are also included. The work is arranged in alphabetical order and is divided into two volumes.

MR CHARLES MANNERS has appointed Mr Langley Wyatt business manager for his companies. Three years ago Mr Wyatt had his first introduction to the profession as secretary to the principal company, his second year was spent with the B company as manager, and for the following year he was again in the same capacity.—Mr Scott Craven, on his return from America, has been engaged by Mr Charles Frohman to play the part of Bernard Mandeville in Letty, originally played by Mr Fred Kerr.

AT the Hampstead Conservatoire a school of drama and acting will shortly be opened under the direction of Mr F. R. Benson, assisted by Mr Hugh Moss. The school will be divided into two sections. The first and most important is the artist section, intended for those wishing to study seriously for a stage career. To this study the aspirant must devote himself for thirty-six weeks, and must be prepared to pay £30 in fees. He will practice elocution, calisthenics, dancing, deportment, and fencing, and will also attend lectures on pictures, statuary, history, and physiognomy. In his second term the aspirant will be admitted to rehearsal and understudy classes; his elocution studies will include "declamation, gesture, and expression;" and he will be instructed as to making-up, exits and entrances, and costume. Third-term students will study "advanced acting," rehearse and perform plays, and continue to attend lectures on general subjects. Besides the artist section there will be a general section in which separate classes can be taken in "mimetic art," rehearsals, fencing, and stage elocution, and certain other subjects, at a charge of £2 10s for twenty-four lessons.

THE new musical comedy which Mr George Edwardes, by arrangement with Mr Frank Curzon, will eventually produce at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, is in two acts. Mr Paul Rubens and Colonel Newnham-Davis have written the "book," and Mr Rubens and Mr Howard Talbot the music. A young fellow who has joined the Yeomanry will be represented by Mr G. P. Huntley, Mr Louis Bradfield and Mr Fred Emney playing two adventurers, and Mr Maurice Farkoa, Miss Delia Mason, and Miss Madge Crichton also being in the cast.

MISS ADA REEVE has commissioned Mr Frank Barrett to write a play based on his novel "A Set of Rogues." It will be a costume comedy with music, and will be called Our Moll!

MR WILLIE CLARKSON supplied all the wigs and costumes, and, in addition, had a man in attendance to superintend the make-ups, &c., of the company who appeared in The Pantomime Rehearsal, performances of which have been given since Friday by Lord Londesborough at Londesborough Lodge, Scarborough. Among those who took part in the production were Lady Maud Warriner, Mr Leo Trevor, Miss Muriel Wilson, and Mr Rupert.

"THE DUKE OF KILLICRANKIE," which reached its 250th performance on Thursday, was on Monday evening transferred from the Criterion Theatre to Wyndham's, where it was performed with unabated success. Miss Eva Moore returned to the cast, and her Lady Henrietta Addison was as bewitching as ever. Mr Weedon Grossmith's Mr Henry Pitt Welby again evoked the heartiest merriment; Mr Grahame Browne played the Duke with delicate finish; and Miss Marie Illington as Mrs Mulholland repeated her delightfully humorous performance. Instead of a first-piece, Mr Frank Lincoln gave his very amusing entertainment.

MR GEORGE DAVEY was back again at the Grand Theatre on Tuesday night after a very pleasant driving tour to Margate and back. In spite of the great amount of work which he gets through, he is looking remarkably well.

MR EARDLEY TURNER having finished his very successful Australian engagement under Mr Beerbohm Tree's management, has returned to England, and has been re-engaged by Mr Tree for his Shakespearian répertoire company to play Falstaff in The Merry Wives of Windsor and Sir Toby Belch in Twelfth Night, commencing at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on the 26th inst.—Mr William J. Miller, having terminated his engagement as Rashleigh, in the production of Rob Roy, at Edinburgh, has been re-engaged, for the fourth consecutive year, to support Mr Edmund Tearle as lead.—Mr Slaine Mills, who reproduced Boy Bob for Miss Louie Freear, has been re-engaged as stage-manager for Miss Olga Nethersole's répertoire company.

MISS NELLIE PETTITT, daughter of the late Henry Pettitt, will be married, on Wednesday, at St Matthias Church, Earl's-court, to Mr Percy Bosworth Smith, of Oorgum, Mysore, India. They sail for India on the s.s. Sumatra, on Oct. 2, joining the vessel at Marseilles.

TOURING managers and other theatrical people visiting the popular Aquarium at Yarmouth, occasionally hint to the enterprising proprietor and manager, Mr J. W. Nightingale, the advisability of reconstruction; but if these individuals were present at any one of the banquets often held in this unique building (at which 1 000 or 1,500 people are supplied with meals throughout the day) they would alter their views. The Aquarium Theatre may be termed an elastic building—it can be stretched to suit the exact requirements of the alert Mr Nightingale. On the 26th ult. over 1,000 people were "refreshed" at the Aquarium. They came from Lord Iveagh's Thetford estate, and comprised his lordship's tenantry and employees, together with their wives and families. Dinner was served at the Aquarium, and the sight between 12·0 and 1 0 o'clock was a most remarkable one. From the large dining-hall right down to the theatre and along the balconies these hundreds of people sat at the tables. The work it entailed may be better imagined than described. Suffice it to say the whole of the seats in the theatre had to be removed during Thursday night after the performance of San Toy and tables erected there. The latter then had to be removed and the seats replaced in time for the presenting of the play the same night; but Mr Nightingale is nothing if not resourceful.

MR LEONARD SHEPHERD AND MISS HELENA HEAD, who starred so long with the Osmond Tearle Répertoire Company, have now sailed for New York to play in a répertoire of Shakespeare through America and Canada under Mr Ben Greet's management.

MR FRANK MILLS, who is to be Miss Lena Ashwell's leading man at the Coronet Theatre next week, was one of the first "American invaders of the London stage," having come to this country to play in The Heart of Maryland. He was afterwards a member of Mr Tree's company, and appeared in many of Mrs Patrick Campbell's productions. Mr Mills is the husband of Miss Helen Macbeth, who will also appear in Marguerite.

MISS MILDRED KEARNEY, the San Francisco actress, who appears nightly in The Prince of Pilsen at the Shaftesbury Theatre dressed as Britannia, and enthusiastically waves the Union Jack, has a powerful imagination. She says, "I live in the part. I am Britannia in heart, and when I wave the flag I think of England, and of King Edward, whose racing colours I wear. Each day I become more English, and the more I read English history the stronger becomes the belief; indeed, when on the stage I try to think I am Queen Elizabeth."

MR REGINALD CROMPTON, who was married last week to Miss Isabel Reaney, is an old Savoyard and one of the tallest men on the stage. He comes from Exeter, was formerly a solicitor, and one of his first musical achievements was winning the Holland Scholarship at the Royal Academy, in the days when he intended to go in for oratorio instead of comic opera. Mr Crompton owed much of his early success at the Savoy to the friendly help and interest of Mr Walter Passmore.

THE last dramatic attraction before the one-week's closing for pantomime preparations of the Grand Theatre, Islington, will be the famous old Drury-lane drama entitled The World, in which Sir Augustus Harris once played a leading part. The company will be Mr John F. Asche's, and it is booked to appear at the Grand on Dec. 12.

MISS LILIAN HALLOWS, who has been playing lead with Mr Leonard Rayne, in South Africa, since last April, has met with great success, both in Cape Town and Johannesburg. Her rendering of Sunday caused great enthusiasm. The Johannesburg Daily Mail says:—Her performance of Josephine, in A Royal Divorce, quickly won the house. Dignity and faithfulness were admirably portrayed, emphasising the expression that she is the most versatile and best leading lady Mr Rayne has brought to South Africa. For so young an actress this is praise indeed.

BY the introduction of the electric cars to Finsbury-park, visitors are now able to get from Wood Green and Tottenham to the Marlborough Theatre in little under twenty minutes. By changing to the cars that run past the theatre, the whole journey is done for two-pence. This is literally bringing the theatre to one's doors.

MISS LENA ASHWELL'S cast of Mr Michael Morton's Marguerite, at the Coronet, on Monday, will include, besides Miss Ashwell herself, Mr Frank Mills, Mr Charles Groves, Mr Thomas Holding, Mr Edward Knox, Mr H. Pellew, Mr C. P. Peel, Mr Charles A. Doran, Mr L. Savile, Mr W. Belgrave, Mr Cecil Pearce, Miss Marie Hudspeth, Miss Sydney Fairbrother, Miss Helen Macbeth, Miss Hilda Dick, Miss Mabel M. Aldridge, and Miss Beryl Mercer. The incidental music will be by M. Louis Keyzer and the scenery by Mr Walter Hemsley.

MR DENIS O'SULLIVAN, the well-known singer, will appear at a West-end theatre in January in a new romantic comedy, specially written for him by Patrick Bidwell, with the music by Esposito. It is entitled Peggy Machree, and it will be produced under the direction of C. E. Hamilton, the manager of Charles Frohman's touring companies. The scene is laid in Ireland, and the story is of Irish life in the eighteenth century.

M. JEAN DE RESZKE has accepted as a member of his advanced class Mr Jack Emerson, a young English basso who has been studying with Mr Iver M'Kay, the well-known tenor. Mr Jack Emerson is a native of Norwich, and the youngest son of Mr M. S. Emerson, solicitor, of that city.

MR SCOTT CRAVEN, who has recently returned from America, has been engaged by Mr Charles Frohman to play the part of Mandeville in Letty, by A. W. Pinero, for the tour of the Duke of York's Theatre company, including Miss Irene Vanbrugh and Mr H. B. Irving, which commences on the 12th inst. at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester.

MR CHARLES FROHMAN and MR ARTHUR CHUDLEIGH have arranged for a provincial tour of The Duke of Killicrankie, which commences at Buxton on Sept. 8. Among those engaged are Miss Doris Templeton, Miss Aida Jenoure, Miss Margaret Damer, Mr Arthur Grenville, Mr Langhorne Burton, and Mr Howard Williams.

MR VICTOR BENHAM has delivered to Charles Frohman the entr'acte music for Merely Mary Ann, which he has written specially for the production, which will take place at the Duke of York's Theatre on Thursday.

MR WALTER MELVILLE is reviving The Worst Woman in London at the Standard Theatre on Monday next, with Miss Olga Audré in the title-rôle, her original character. This play has been most successful in London and the provinces, and with the exceptionally strong company Mr Melville has engaged, including Mr Julian Cross, Mr Frank Lister, Mr Frank Adair, Mr J. T. Macmillan, Mr A. B. Imeson, Mr Andrew Emm, Miss Emily Dowton, and Miss Stuart Diewry, there will be no doubt about its representation. A short time ago The Worst Woman in London enjoyed a long run at the Adelphi Theatre, playing to crowded houses nightly. The drama will be mounted in Mr Melville's usually lavish style.

MISS MARIE DAGMAR begs to return hearty thanks for the many sympathising letters she has received from dog lovers in the profession. The illustrated account of the death of her favourite dog Cæsar has brought to Miss Dagmar an avalanche of letters, to which she is quite unable to send individual replies.

AT the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, on Monday will be given, for the first time on any stage, a comedy by Mr Gayer Mackay and Mr Robert Ord, entitled Dr. Wake's Patient. The principal rôle will be sustained by Miss Edith Ostlere.

THEATRICAL licences have been granted to the Grand Pier Pavilion, Weston-super-Mare, and the Pavilion, Kingstown. The bookings for both these successful undertakings are in the hands of Mr Fred M'Crea, Gloucester.

AT the Marlborough Theatre, which is approaching its first "birthday," Mr Purcell is contemplating further improvements to his already up-to-date building for the comfort of his patrons by the introduction of an additional heating service, which it is anticipated will make the theatre in the winter one of the warmest in London. This and a scheme for excluding draughts will be a noticeable feature in London's latest suburban theatre.

MR BANNISTER HOWARD finds that he will not be able to open the New Theatre at King's Lynn on the 19th of this month, as at first anticipated, and he has therefore deferred the initiatory ceremony until the 26th. The idea of opening with the Moody-Manners company has also had to be abandoned, and on the later date Mr Ben Greet's company will open the house with La Poupée. A special prologue has been written for the occasion by Mr Holcombe Ingleby, and Mrs Beerbohm Tree will recite it on the opening night.

THE principal members of the orchestra and chorus of the Moody-Manners Opera company, bound for South Africa, left Blackwall on Friday last week by the ss. Gascon. Among them were Mr and Mrs Salvi, Mr and Mrs Galleffi, Miss Lilian Coomber, Mme. Marie Titiens, Miss Florence Ballard, Mr Max Eugene, Mr Saxton Granville, and Mr George Neilson. Signor Sapio, the principal conductor, and Mr and Mrs Lauraine, the stage-manager and his wife, sailed on the following day by the Kinfauns Castle. A large crowd of friends, relatives, and admirers assembled on Blackwall Dock to give the first company that Mr Manners has yet sent abroad a hearty "send-off."

MISS SOPHIE HARRISS, a charming and experienced comedy actress, has been engaged by Mr Lilford Arthur to support Mr Charles Collette in a comedy, the tour of which will start at Aberdeen on the 12th inst.—Miss Grace Hampton has been re-engaged by Sir Henry Irving to play Nerrissa, Madame Mathias, in The Bells, and Margery, in Becket, on his forthcoming autumn and spring tours.—Mr Howard Williams-Cochran has been engaged by Mr Charles Frohman to appear in For Value Received, the piece which will precede The Duke of Killicrankie on tour.

MR FRANK LAWTON, who is playing his original part in the farewell tour of The Belle of New York, has appeared as Blinky Bill, "the Bowery tough," over two thousand times. He came to England for the memorable production of The Belle at the Shaftesbury Theatre, when his clever whistling and eccentric dancing contributed not a little to its great success, and during the last six or seven years he has perfected the art of "conversational whistling." Mr Lawton, who still speaks with a slight American accent, has become thoroughly attached to England, having married an English lady and made his home in London.

WHEN Mr Lawton first appeared as a whistler in New York, in a comedy called A Hole in the Ground, he was recalled so many times that his short solo bid fair to become the longest scene in the play. The stage-manager suggested that a humorous "last encore" would satisfy the audience and have the effect of pleasantly stopping the applause. Mr Lawton set his wits to work and hit upon a happy idea. A large iron safe was placed at the back of the stage, to which he would saunter after his turn, open the door wide, give one loud whistle with his back to the house, shut it again with a crash, turn the key, and make a low bow, indicating in pantomime that his whistle was locked up for the night.

MR OTHO STUART'S company at the Adelphi are well forward with the rehearsals of Mr James B. Fagan's play, The Prayer of the Sword, but in order to insure a perfectly smooth working, the management has decided to allow a full week between the exit of The Earl and the Girl and the entrance of The Prayer of the Sword. The first night of the latter play has therefore been definitely fixed for Monday, Sept. 19.

MISS LILY HALL CAINE has been obliged, through illness, to relinquish her part in The Axis, the new comedy by Cyril Harcourt, which Mr Scott Buist is to produce at the Theatre Royal, Worthing, on Monday week. Mr Buist has been fortunate, however, in securing the services of Miss Madge M'Intosh, who will sustain the rôle. Other parts will be played by Miss Marianne Caldwell, Miss Claire Pauncefort (by kind permission of Mr Lewis Waller), Miss Ierne Fitzgerald, Miss Ina Royle, Mr Maurice Mancini, Mr Athol Stewart, Mr Walter Russell, Mr W. R. Staveley, Mr Hugh Ardale, Mr Arthur Curtis, and Mr Scott Buist.

MR LEWIS WALLER reopened the Imperial Theatre on Thursday evening with Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner, to which had been added a prologue, written by the authors, Messrs R. N. Stephens and E. Lyall Swete. It takes the story back three years to the scene referred to in the first act, in which the hero, on his arrival in America, learns that he will have to fight on the side opposite to that on which his own family is engaged. Mr Lewis Waller, Mr Norman M'Kinnell, Miss Lottie Venne, Miss Grace Lane, and the rest of the cast repeated their "creations" very successfully.

MR CHARLES CARTWRIGHT has been secured to play the part of Herr Brahmson, the music publisher, in Merely Mary Ann, at the Duke of York's Theatre, on Thursday, and the piece will be produced under his stage direction.

MR EDWARD MARRIS, after repeated application, has at last succeeded in obtaining a full licence for the Grantham Theatre, and will shortly close for some weeks in order that alterations may be made and refreshment bars added.

HARDIE AND VON LEER send us a copy of their "A Path of Thorns" novelette, an original experiment in theatrical advertising, which is proving very successful in the country, where the little book is astonishingly popular with the public. Several thousands are used in every town visited. The first impression of 100,000 is nearly exhausted, and a second large edition is in preparation.

AT North London Police court on Tuesday Mr H. Douglass Brown, solicitor, introduced to Mr D'Eyncourt two ladies, who, he said, were playing at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, for the week. They took rooms at a house in Holloway on Sunday for the week, but were so disturbed the first night by the insects that they could not possibly stay there any longer. They complained to the landlady, and she acquiesced in their getting a bed elsewhere, but she would not let them have their luggage without paying a week's rent. The woman was abusive, and the husband (who was drunk) more so, and the present application was that the magistrate would order the boxes to be given up, or a summons granted against the people for detaining them. In reply to the magistrate the ladies said the rooms looked all right when they took them, but soon afterwards they discovered them to be in a very dirty and neglected state. Mr D'Eyncourt said he would send a warrant officer to warn the people, and if they refused to hand over the boxes he would grant a summons.

SIXTEEN years ago this week the Liverpool Shakespeare Theatre was built and opened. Since August 27, 1888, there have been many changes in the Fraser-street house. Originally erected in sumptuous style by Mr Ellis Brammal, the theatre commenced its career under happy auspices with a grand revival of As You Like It, with Miss Wallis as Rosalind; whilst the first pantomime, a great success, had the somewhat uncommon title The Yellow Dwarf. The property changed hands years ago, and is now owned by a limited liability company, of which Mr Hardie is managing-director. Mr John Gaffney, the present acting-manager, who commenced as treasurer, has remained steadfast from the beginning, despite the many changes, and this week is being congratulated on his "birthday."

AXTON, LIMITED (81,914), has been registered, Aug. 26, with a capital of £10,000 in £1 shares. The object is to acquire the business carried on at 47 and 49, Newington-butts, S.E., as the Axton Company, to adopt an agreement with F. E. Coe and W. E. Scott, and to carry on the business of manufactures of and dealers in machines and instruments for musical entertainment, instructive, surgical, and scientific business and other purposes, including phonographs, autoscopes, biographs, mutoscopes, cameras, automatic machines, &c.

AT Marlborough-street Police court, on Wednesday, Mr J. D. Langdon, solicitor, applied, on behalf of Mr Beerbohm Tree, for licences to permit twenty-five children—boys and girls—to take part in The Tempest at His Majesty's Theatre, for six months, from Sept. 1. An inspector arranged the group of children before Mr Plowden entered the court. Police and medical inquiries proving satisfactory, the magistrate granted the required licences.

MR GEORGE IMESON, of the Theatre Royal, Middlesbrough, is lying seriously ill in that town. Hopes, however, are entertained that he will soon be well enough to be removed to Harrogate.

MR GEORGE DAVEY is bestowing lavish attention on the early door patrons of the Grand Theatre, Islington, Saturday's programme consisting of six variety turns in addition to the Bioscope, resulting in five hours' solid amusement. Mr Davey, always on the look out for something new and novel, has secured the Lomas Trio for his early door programme at the Grand Theatre, Islington, on Monday next. The troupe will present for the first time in London an acrobatic performance on three wheels which revolve at a high speed. The wheels will occupy the whole of the capacious stage and will each be lighted by over 500 lamps.

THE Yarmouth police have destroyed some 500 copies of pirated music, the result of a raid made at the instance of the Music Publishers' Association in the local market on Saturday. Three men were concerned in its sale, but one disappeared, and all three were stated to be foreigners. The music, which was marked "Two shillings per copy," was being sold to the public at 2d. to 4d. per song. An application was made to the magistrates for the destruction of the seized music, which was granted in respect to that taken from the two defendants present, but that obtained from the third man, who could not now be found, the police were directed to impound only. Costs of £4 were allowed in each case to the Publishers' Association, and an order was also made for the payment of £1 Court fees in each case. The Mayor said it was just as much robbery to appropriate people's copyrights as to pick their pockets, and in his opinion it would not be stopped till the vendors of pirated music could be sent to prison without the option of a fine. Foreigners came to this country and thought they could rob song-writers and publishers with impunity. He considered the market authorities should not allow such an illegal business to be carried on. The police first tore up the music into strips, and on Wednesday conveyed it to the municipal destructor.

"THE CHEVALEER"

A Comedy, in Three Acts, by Henry Arthur Jones. Produced at the Garrick Theatre, on Saturday, Aug. 27.

The Chevalier Mounteagle	Mr ARTHUR BOURCHIER
The Earl of Birdlip	Mr WALTER PEARCE
Hon. Harcourt Cranage	Mr O. B. CLARENCE
Sir John Kellond	Mr H. NYE CHART
Charlie Inskip	Mr A. E. MATTHEWS
Abel Nokes	Mr SYDNEY VALENTINE
Professor Snewin	Mr WEBB-DARLEIGH
Sam Turvey	Mr RICHARD FIELDING
Ben Gollop	Mr DAVID DOMVILLE
Sellars	Mr ARTHUR CHESNEY
Dopson	Mr STUART DENNISON
Lindell	Mr F. G KNOTT
Lady Anne Kellond	Miss VIOLET VANBRUGH
Mrs Fulks-Meesom	Miss NANCY PRICE
Juno Mounteagle	Miss F. ARTHUR-JONES
Widley	Miss MARGERY FANE

It is never quite safe to prophecy failure for one of Mr Henry Arthur Jones's plays, if it has plenty of fun in it. Look at The Manœuvres of Jane; look at Joseph Entangled. The defects in these pieces—and what piece is without its defects?—were palpable; but their diverting merits outweighed their faults in the estimation of the paying public, which, after all, decides the fate of theatrical speculations. The Chevaleer certainly contains much amusing matter; and with a little curtailment in the last act, and a slight condensation of the rather boisterous exposition, we should not be surprised if it hit the taste of the migratory public now in London.

The Chevaleer is an entirely ideal figure. We can state from personal knowledge that no leading showman exists so exuberant, so extraordinary in attire, so aggressive in demeanour as Mr Jones's fantasy. We must take the self-ennobled William Makins as an author's midsummer night's dream. But, on this understanding, the Chevaleer is distinctly diverting. He is boastfully conceited, he is devoted to his profession, he believes himself to be irresistible by ladies. He wears a waistcoat of some mysterious fur, and an immense watch-chain with big gold coins dangling from it. He has the long, curly, and, possibly, dyed hair of the "blighted tragedian" of the last generation, as represented in contemporary prints. It is almost unnecessary to state that he dominates and fills the stage during the progress of Mr Jones's play.

A certain Sir John Kellond, a "county person," has hit upon the idea of celebrating the centenary of the day in which one of his ancestors did brave deeds at the battle of Inkerman by a fête and gala in his grounds. His wife, Lady Anne, is opposed to the idea, and thinks that the money which the gala must cost would be much better spent on a villa at Deauville. A quarrel is the result of this difference of opinion; and Lady Anne sets off on a visit to her friend, Mrs Fulks-Meesom. She fails to "make connections" at a junction station; and, missing her train, is forced to spend the night at an inn, under the same roof as her young, but ardent, admirer, Charlie Inskip. The Chevaleer, who has been "making a night of it" with some other showmen, is wrapped by them in a tarpaulin and put to sleep under a table in the sitting-room of the inn, while his treacherous "pals" go off to Sir John Kellond to compete for the job of organising the "centenary" show. While the Chevaleer still sleeps, Lady Anne and Inskip discuss their difficulty at length; and, when she discovers the Chevaleer, she naturally fancies he has "heard all," and that she is in his power. In order to buy his silence, she consents to use her influence with her husband to place the commission for the centenary in the hands of the Chevaleer, and to accept his offer of a "lift" to the Hall in his carriage.

Now Sir John himself has not a clean marital conscience, having once been found in very suspicious circumstances in a laundry in company with two pretty maids; and he soon imagines that the Chevaleer knows of this "regrettable incident." Thus both husband and wife believe it to be their interest to conciliate the showman; and they give him a certain pavilion in the grounds that he may organise the centenary. Lady Anne's anxieties are increased by the arrival of Mrs Fulks-Meesom, who, once a lady of many flirtations, has, in prospect of a marriage with a local curate, become intensely prudent and "proper." However, she consents to keep silence as to the fact that Lady Anne did not spend the night at her—Mrs Fulks-Meesom's—house.

In the last act, the ultra-careful lady comes under the control of the Chevaleer, who, overhearing a few words of hers in conversation with Lady Anne in the pavilion, uses his knowledge to extract damaging admissions from Mrs Fulks-Meesom, and frightens her into promising to be one of his allies. The piece concludes with the Chevaleer addressing the populace from the window of the pavilion. There are some amusing comedy scenes between Sir John's elderly great uncle and the showman; and some harmless, pretty "relief" in the shape of idyllic love-making between Juno Mounteagle, the Chevaleer's daughter, and the Earl of Birdlip, a susceptible Eton boy.

Mr Arthur Bourchier obviously revels in the rôle of the Chevalier Mounteagle. From first to last he is the central figure in the picture, carrying the play along on his broad shoulders by dint of sheer zest and enjoyment of his work. Mr Bourchier realises that a part of this sort must be attacked vigorously if it be attacked at all; and he acts up to his conviction by devoting to his performance a hearty energy and a joyous, overflowing humour which completely captivates his audience. Mr Bourchier's performance may, in the language of the Chevaleer, be described as "epoch making;" and it is alone sufficient to draw all London to see Mr H. A. Jones's new piece. Miss Violet Vanbrugh's part of Lady Anne Kellond is less emphatic in its appeal; but it needs careful handling for it to create conviction, and Miss Vanbrugh sustains it with the easy effectiveness which is the result of her complete command over her art. The intensity of Lady Anne's anxiety in what, to her, is a very serious embarrassment gives reality to the intrigue, and "masks" the slightness of the structure on which it stands—for Mr Jones has considerately made the lady absolutely irreproachable on the score of fidelity to the marriage vow. Mr Walter Pearce plays the artless Eton boy very naturally and neatly; and Miss Ethelwyn Arthur-Jones is delightfully fresh and refined—but not too refined for the character—as the showman's daughter, whose comparative polish is accounted for by the fact that she has been educated at a ladies' school at Upper Norwood. Mr O. B. Clarence, capitally made up, plays the acute, but slightly "finicking," Honourable Harcourt Cranage in very realistic style, the tone and accent of the elderly aristocrat and his general demeanour being very happily hit off. Mr H. Nye Chart's Sir John Kellond is another embodiment which must be highly praised for its truthfulness and plausibility, the type being clearly defined and humorously depicted. Mr A. E. Matthews is quite unconscious, and therefore completely effective, as the young gallant Charlie Inskip; and Mr Sydney Valentine by his admirable delivery makes tolerable a mock-religious lecture in the last act which otherwise would seem better omitted. Mr Webb-Darleigh, Mr Richard Fielding, and Mr David Domville are demonstrative as three drunken showmen; and Mr Arthur Chesney must be complimented on a crisp rendering of the rôle of the innkeeper Sellars; Mr Stuart Dennison being efficient as Dopson. Mr F. G. Knott supplies a distinct portraiture of the "sneaking" valet Lindell; and Miss Margery Fane is good in every way as Widley. Miss Nancy Price's Mrs Fulks-Meesom is an immensely clever impersonation of an unsympathetic character, and the actress deserves much praise for the thorough way in which she performs the unthankful part. The Chevaleer had a favourable reception on Saturday night, and, acted as it is with unimpeachable excellence all round, should secure considerable success at the Garrick Theatre.

"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

A Farce, in Three Acts, by W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker. Produced at the New Theatre on Tuesday, Aug. 30.

Capt. James Barley	Mr CYRIL MAUDE
Lieut. Seton Boyne, R N.	Mr KENNETH DOUGLAS
Herbert Manners	Mr H. MARSH ALLEN
Major Smedley	Mr EDMUND MAURICE
Tom Codd	Mr LENNOX PAWLE
Augustus	Mr ROBERT BOTTOMLEY
John Dibbs	Mr FREDERICK VOLPE
George Porter	Mr E M. ROBSON
Ted	Mr LITTLEDALE POWER
Joe	Mr A. G. ONSLOW
Bill	Mr J. B. FOX
Alf	Mr J H. BREWER
Jack	Mr R. EYRE
Mrs Smedley	Miss ADELA MEASOR
Ethel Smedley	Miss JESSIE BATEMAN
Lucy Dallas	Miss RITA JOLIVET
Mrs Porter	Miss MARY BROUGH
Mrs Baldwin	Mrs CHARLES CALVERT

Mr W. W. Jacobs is one of those fortunate and clever authors who have broken up new ground. The soil thus turned is the life of the longshoreman, the skippers and crews of little coasting vessels, half sea sailors, half river sailors. It is a queer, novel, slightly sordid, and wholly diverting series of pictures which Mr Jacobs paints, and the materials which he has gathered for Beauty and the Barge thrown into dramatic form by the experienced hands of Mr Louis N. Parker won a complete success at the New Theatre on Tuesday evening. The "beauty" of the story is Miss Ethel Smedley, daughter of Major Smedley, who lives on the shore of one of our river estuaries. The Major is a tyrannical parent, and he has determined that Ethel shall marry a certain Herbert Manners, who is about to return from abroad. Ethel is equally resolved not to have a husband forced upon her, and, in the nick of time, turns up an enterprising young lieutenant in the Navy named Seton Boyne, who introduces himself to Ethel, and begins to make love to her. She decides to run away from home, go to London, and take to the stage, and with these purposes, takes a passage in a barge belonging to a certain Captain James Barley, an elderly "ladies' man," whose affability to the sex is always getting him into scrapes. He has been paying his addresses not only to Major Smedley's elderly maid-servant, Mrs Baldwin, but to the wife of the proprietor of the local inn, the bar-room of which is the scene of the second act of the play. Boyne, in order to watch over Ethel, disguises himself as a sailor, and bribes one of Captain Barley's crew to feign illness so that he—Boyne—may be engaged in his place. He is thus able to "stow away" on board the barge Mrs Baldwin, who comes to spy on the Captain's flirtations, and in the last act we see the barge at anchor near the shore, the Captain's attempts to make love to Ethel being cleverly foiled by the lieutenant's ready interferences. In the end the young people come to an understanding, and the Major, arriving in pursuit of his daughter, has to consent to the match. The Captain falls between two stools, Mrs Baldwin casting him off, and he is seen setting sail disconsolately on his barge as the curtain descends.

Mr Cyril Maude's part of Captain James Barley showed the clever comedian in a new line of business, or, at all events, in one to which his admirers are unaccustomed; but the dry humour of the creation was undeniable, and in make up, attire, and general demeanour Mr Maude was irreproachable. His depiction of the complacent conceit of the plausible little commander of the barge was extremely amusing, and though it must be agreed that the part was a very good one, the fullest effect was thoroughly extracted from it by its experienced exponent. Mr Kenneth Douglas, who is ever improving, played Lieut. Seton Boyne with just the required resolute vivacity. His reading was firm, neat, and crisp, and there was an underlying virility in his rendering which was quite suitable to the character as suggested by the text. Mr H. Marsh Allen as Herbert Manners had little to do but to look handsome and gentlemanlike, and to indulge in a burst of hearty osculation. He performed all his duties with earnestness and vigour. Mr Edmund Maurice's make-up as Major Smedley was marvellous to behold; and the energy of his angry denunciations and the violence of his irate unreasonableness were very effective. Mr Maurice may be congratulated on a vivid character sketch of a very effective and striking sort—based on reality and truthful in every detail. Mr Lennox Pawle's Tom Codd was an original and ludicrous embodiment of a colossal barge-hand; and Mr Robert Bottomley, who is "getting a big boy now," was highly commendable as Augustus. A remarkably enjoyable performance was that of the part of John Dibbs by Mr Frederick Volpe, who showed what an excellent comedian he is by a rendering as natural and convincing as it was quaint and laughter-provoking. Mr E. M. Robson as the diminutive landlord of the Old Ship caused great amusement; the way in which he allowed himself to be dragged about clinging around the waist of an immense bargee sending the house into roars of laughter. Miss Adela Measor, with her silvery sweetness and winning mildness of manner, made Mrs Smedley just the submissive and amiable consort to contrast with the overbearing Major; and Miss Jessie Bateman was "bewitchingly simple" and agreeably alert and intelligent as Ethel Smedley. The rôle of Lucy Dallas was no very great test of Miss Rita Jolivet's powers; but she looked very pretty and acted, when necessary with animation; Miss Mary Brough as the "frisky" wife of the inn-keeper, flaxen of hair, and clad in a skyblue bouse, was very real and natural, and hit off the type to a nicety. Mrs Charles Calvert was, of course, grimly droll and queerly characteristic as Mrs Baldwin, her appearance, as usual, being a very valuable asset. The scenery was very pretty, Mr Joseph Harker's "practicable" barge being especially admirable. Beauty and the Barge was preceded by a piece, in one act, by Arthur Morrison and Herbert C. Sargent, played for the first time, and entitled

"THAT BRUTE SIMMONS"

Thomas Simmons	Mr FREDERICK VOLPE
Bob Ford	Mr W. CHEESMAN
Mrs Simmons	Miss CARLOTTA ZERBINI

The broad humour of this clever little piece, and the admirable manner in which it was acted, made its production a complete success. Mrs Simmons is an ill-tempered, tyrannical working man's wife, who keeps her husband, Thomas Simmons, so completely under control that he cleans the windows, gives up smoking, and consents to wear trousers which she makes for him, ill-fitting and of hideous pattern. When the fact of Simmons's servitude is sufficiently emphasised, we learn that he is the second husband of Mrs S., her first, Bob Ford, having been, it is believed, drowned at sea. He turns up, however, alive to his own interests, and endeavours to "blackmail" Simmons by offering, for a consideration, to again disappear. Simmons is delighted at a prospect of escape from his slavery, and will by no means consent to keep Ford "out of his rights." There is a comical contest of mock-generosity between the two men, and eventually Mrs Simmons is told of the return of her real husband. She is much "upset," and while she is absent from the room for a few moments Ford tries to escape from a window, Simmons having thoughtfully locked the door. Simmons returns, however, in time, and captures him; but, in the end, Ford gets off, "that brute Simmons" following his example, and leaving Mrs S. alone and unprotected. Mr Frederick Volpé played Thomas Simmons with just the necessary stolid drollery, and gave a capital comedy performance of the part; and Mr W. Cheesman's Bob Ford was a finished and convincing embodiment, completely clever and original. Miss Carlotta Zerbini depicted the termagant wife with just the necessary emphatic violence. That Brute Simmons put the audience in excellent humour, and quite fulfilled all the requirements of a first-piece.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS HELEN VICARY.

AFTER studying under Mr Chippendale, Miss Helen Vicary made her first appearance at the Imperial Theatre, where she played several parts with the late Captain Disney Roebuck, including Mrs Torrens in A Serious Family and Mrs Wedagain in My Awful Dad. She next went on tour with Mr Walter Browne's comedy A Wet Day; and after playing at several important London matinées she was engaged by the late Messrs Clayton and Cecil to play Charlotte in the company on the road with Mr Pinero's comedy The Magistrate. This proved a very good tour, in which she was associated with Miss Lottie Venne, Mr Alfred Bishop, and several other important people. Following in quick succession came a run in the provinces with Mr George Hawtrey's piece The Pickpocket, in conjunction with Jerome K. Jerome's Barbara. In this Miss Vicary can claim to have been the original Lillie, in the provinces, although, owing to the indisposition of the leading lady, at one night's notice, she played Barbara with great success, retaining the title-rôle to the end of the run. Then followed two short tours with Mr Edward Rose, in The Scorpion, and triple bill company, in which she played with Mr H. V. Esmond, the well-known and popular author. After this came a short engagement as heavy lead at the Standard with Luigi Lablache, and then, in 1887-8, a long and delightful season with Sam Austin in the Caste comedies, in which she took the characters of Esther Eccles and Blanche, in Ours, and Bella, in School; then two tours with Wallace Erskine and Charles Macdona, with Our Flat and Jane. After this, Miss Cissy Grahame secured her for her management at Terry's, when she played in the first piece, and understudied one of the characters in The Judge, taking up Miss Grahame's part at half an hour's notice at a matinée. After this, she turned her attention to musical comedy, playing the Abbess in Mr Hayden Parry's opera of Cigarette, and being associated with Geraldine Ulmar, Amy Sherwin, and Joseph O'Mara at the Lyric and Shaftesbury. In 1894 there came a Continental tour to Gibraltar for a few weeks; and then through Italy, in which country Miss Vicary played in Rome, Naples, and Florence in Our Boys, Our Regiment, Two Roses, Caste, and several other pieces. Then followed a short engagement with Miss Florence Wade at Brighton, and a special engagement with Mr Lionel Rignold at Boscombe in All the Comforts of Home. A tour followed with Mr W. G. Holloway's company in The Foundling, and later Miss Nellie Farren secured her services for her season at the Opera Comique. Here she took the part of Madame Vinard, in Trilby, for a short time, and then the title-rôle in the comedy of Madame during the whole of Miss Farren's season. From there she went to the Princess's Theatre, under Mr Albert Gilmer's management, playing in Mr George R. Sims's

Star of India. Then for a short tour with The Happy Life company, and later with Miss Kate Tyndall (Mrs A. Gilmer's) company in How London Lives. Miss Mary Austin next secured her for her touring company, when she played the comedy part of the Countess in Passion's Power, and immediately following this came a long tour of What Happened to Jones, in which she appeared as Mrs Goodley, supporting Mr Charles Collette in the leading rôle. After that a short tour with Mr A. B. Tapping's company, in which Miss Vicary played Mrs Ricketts in Mr Arthur Law's Comedy The Judge. In the spring of 1902 she went out with Mr Frank Wyatt's comedy of Who's Brown? and in the autumn of the same year with Mr Charles Macdona's Gay Grisette company. The spring of 1903 found her fulfilling a short special engagement at the Grand Theatre, Fulham, in Hearts and Coronets. Herein she was associated with Mr Sydney Brough, Mr A. E. Drinkwater, and Miss Beryl Faber, and last autumn came a long tour with Just Like Callaghan. Added to all these, she played in many short engagements, notably, one with Mr Lancelot Hilton, in which she was Cynisca, in Pygmalion and Galatea; and one with Mr Jack Wilcox at Richmond, in which she impersonated Mrs Hilary in the well-known piece Mrs Hilary Regrets, at one day's notice, with great success. She has also appeared many times for charity with amateurs and in club performances—twice with the Whittington as Mrs Gillibrand, in The Arabian Nights, and Mrs Poskett, in The Magistrate. She has staged-managed and produced a number of works and pantomimes for friends in private houses, and as lately as last Christmas she produced a musical version of Beauty and the Beast, done by children at the Hon. Mrs Athelstane Riley's house. Also three or four years ago she superintended the production of an amateur performance given in aid of charity by Sir Thomas Gooch in Suffolk, and she has further recited at large entertainments in private houses, and gained great popularity as a comic singer.

HERR KUBELIK, who will return to England on the 26th inst., for a seven weeks' tour, will give a concert in London on Oct. 8.

MR TREE has engaged Mr Douglas Gerrard to play Prince Kara with Mr Tree's No. 1 principal company.—Mr William Greet has engaged Mr W. F. Grant for the part of John Durham, in the late Mr Wilson Barrett's last play, Lucky Durham, to open at Chatham on the 12th inst.—Mr St. John Hamund, who has been playing the Rajah of Bhong, in Mr George Dance's Midland company of A Country Girl, has now been transferred to the North (principal) company.

Mr Malcolm Watson, the author of Winnie Brooke, Widow, which had its first London production at the Criterion Theatre on Thursday, is to be condoled with. The piece, which was originally produced at the Grand Theatre, Boscombe, on April 2 last, was then a musical comedy, and included some capital numbers, a quartet, and some good choruses. With the exception of a couple of songs, the musical part of the entertainment has been taken away; so that a work originally invented and arranged for a particular purpose is applied to another. There is a peculiar knack in the concoction of a successful musical play libretto. The leading writers of such works are specialists. Mr Malcolm Watson, as the author of some clever dramas, has given many proofs of his powers as a playwright; and in Winnie Brooke, Widow, he has tried to combine high and low comedy, to mix such delightful dialogue as that which he has allotted to his leading character with more conventional methods of creating laughter—the "Mawworm" clergyman and his wife, the amorous and ungrammatical Buttons, &c. A great deal of Winnie Brooke, Widow, is artistic comedy, worthy of serious consideration, and much of it is cheap comic relief. Mr Watson has thus fallen between two stools. His piece is too refined, in parts, for the musical play patron; and too obvious and crude, in parts, for the lover of light and delicate comedy.

The theme is the triumph of natural affection over voluntary celibacy. Dudley Mayne, a woman-hater, has established a "Brotherhood," whose members are men who have been crossed in love, and have resolved to take refuge in solitude from the snares of the opposite sex. Close to this Brotherhood is a young ladies' school, kept by a canting parson, the Rev. Elihu Garside, and his wife. A certain Reggie Frampton is a young member of the celibate association. His mother has fallen ill; and Mrs Winnie Brooke, a fascinating widow, invades the cloistered seclusion of the stern bachelors to induce him to come home for awhile. In spite of all opposition, she effects an entrance to the premises, and comes into contact with Mr Mayne, who receives her with appropriate sternness. She falls in love with him, and resolves to win him. By her arts, Dudley Mayne and his disciples are persuaded to attend a dance at Mrs Frampton's house at Highgate, and their good resolutions crumble rapidly away, each succumbing to the tender passion. Even the old porter of the Brotherhood is discovered to have a loving wife in the background, and he and she are happily united. The last to yield is Dudley Mayne, who eventually finds Mrs Brooke's fascinations irresistible. In addition to the development of this outline, there are farcical incidents—a fire at the school which forces the girls to take shelter at the Brotherhood, and the grotesque love-making of an odd "boy" and a little laundry maid.

The production of Winnie Brooke, Widow, served, at any rate, to show how clever an actress Miss Ada Reeve is, and how adroitly she can adapt her style to comedy without music. The part of the fair charmer suited Miss Reeve exactly. Attired in the most dainty and up-to-date of costumes, she was perfectly bewitching. Her crisp, clear, and pointed method of making the most of each line of her dialogue; the delicate tact with which she carried out Mr Watson's subtler ideas; the arch humour and merry malice of her acting throughout, and the sweetness and expressiveness with which she rendered two snatches of song made her performance immensely agreeable. She certainly scored a personal triumph. Mr Henry Vibart acted with well-restained power and quiet emphasis as Dudley Mayne, his treatment of the character being entirely effective and artistic. His performance was well sustained, solid, and strong; and he played the part with just the necessary ease and authority. Mr Roland Bottomley made a presentable and well-bred Reginald Frampton, acting with the necessary freshness and spontaneousness; and Mr Farren gave due weight and importance to the rather untractable rôle of the gloomy porter, Toby Blossom. Mr Eric Lewis's part of Montague Brent was well within his scope; but he devoted the utmost care and consideration to its rendering, every detail of dress and make-up being attended to with the scrupulous care which marks the conscientious artist. Mr Lewis, of course, represented the character in the most finished and polished style. Mr Douglas Gordon employed incisive earnestness as Julian Croft; and Mr Robb Harwood depicted the Rev Elihu Garside with a success which was only limited by the possibilities of the rôle, Miss Dolores Drummond contributing an unimpeachable performance as Mrs Elihu Garside. Miss Dora Barton was sweetly simple and winningly ingenuous as Gracie Frampton; and Miss Lillian Mather played Nora Caswell very nicely and prettily, Mrs Charles Maltby contributing several pathetic and dramatic touches as Hannah. The members of the Brotherhood and the school girls had competent representatives. The reception accorded to Winnie Brooke, Widow, at the Criterion on Thursday was not very enthusiastic; and there were no calls at the conclusion of the performance.

PROPOSED SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—It is with much interest I learn that Mr Beerbohm Tree is strongly in favour of a suitable memorial to Shakespeare. Does Mr Tree recall a proposal of mine originally made some years ago to the effect that this memorial should take the form of a gigantic charity in Shakespeare's name, founded by and supported by managers playing his pieces, who would pay a small author's fee (say five per cent on the gross drawings) to the fund, all actors and actresses playing under managers who contribute to the memorial to be, with their families, entitled in sickness or distress to the consideration of the charity, but to absolutely forfeit all right to such consideration directly they desert the colours and play Shakespeare under a non-memorial manager?

This would at once cover Mr Tree's suggested feeling of "conscience money" for having hitherto performed Shakespeare free, and would prevent the great dramatist's memory from being demeaned by an unnecessary "appeal to the nation." Funds would flow in, and a far nobler and more worthy monument would be established for all time than the mere statue proposed.

Yours faithfully, CHARLES HANNAN.

"THE CHETWYND AFFAIR."

A Modern Play, in Three Acts, by Reginald Kennedy-Cox, Produced at the Royalty Theatre, on Monday, Aug. 29.

Edward Hamilton	Mr CONWAY TEARLE
Montague Flacster	Mr TOOSE
George Devereux	Mr GORDON BAILEY
Frank Cardwin, M.D.	Mr A. G. POULTON
Henry Grove	Mr JOHN CABOURN
Brereton	Mr GALWEY HERBERT
Irene Merrick	Miss LUCY WILSON
Alice Vowdon	Miss VANE FEATHERSTON
Mrs James Blackwood	Miss JENNIE LEE
Hon. Mrs Fortescue	Miss BESSIE PAGE
Eileen Lynde	Miss MOLLY PEARSON
Jane	Miss BEATRIX BELL
Rita Chetwynd	Miss GRANVILLE

The name of Mr Reginald Kennedy-Cox must have been unknown to most of the audience at the Royalty that sat out the dreary and stupid play that he produced at the little theatre on Monday; but we are given to understand that The Chetwynd Affair is a youthful indiscretion committed when he was in his teens, and therefore it is not necessary to point out the numerous faults of an entirely hopeless piece. Mrs Chetwynd who is mostly responsible for the "affair," is the name of a society adventuress to whom fortune has been none too kind. When very young she had married a man for his money. He unfortunately possessed none, and his brutality forced her to seek sympathy elsewhere. A certain Edgar Hamilton—who is never seen—had written some compromising letters to her, and these Mrs Chetwynd threatens to publish, and thus prevent him taking holy orders. She makes known her determination to his brother Edward at a bridge party at Miss Irene Merrick's house in Hill-street, Berkely-square, where the company consists of Montague Flacster, an author, George Devereux an actor, Frank Cardwin, a genial society doctor, Henry Grove, a philanthropist, Miss Alice Vowdon, a lady devoted to athletics in general and cricket in particular, and Mrs James Blackwood, a rich, good-hearted, and loud Australian woman, who has come to visit England and to chaperon an engaging niece. Edward Hamilton's conversation in the first act with Mrs Chetwynd is partly overheard by Miss Merrick, who secretly returns his love for her, but imagines that he has been appropriated by Mrs Chetwynd. In the second act, the last sentence of another interview between him and Mrs Chetwynd reaches Irene's ears, and she rejects his proposal because she thinks he wishes to marry her for her money. Irene suffers a good deal of unnecessary distress apparently, but the reason of her severe depression, which dominates the piece, was scarcely fathomed by those who followed the play on Monday. There is a weary time devoted to talk of a supremely uninteresting nature until the third act is well on its way, when the sudden appearance of Mrs Chetwynd at Irene's Somerset residence foreshadows the necessary crisis. The adventuress comes to Irene for the fulfilment of a promise to help her should she ever be in deep distress. She implores to be hidden in the secret room in the old house, and when her request is granted, the audience learns through the medium of a newspaper report read by the doctor that a gentleman named Hamilton has been mysteriously stabbed at a private hotel in London, and that found near the unconscious man was a small stiletto. The description of the weapon corresponds with that always worn by Mrs Chetwynd on her chatelaine. Irene immediately rushes to the conclusion that the victim of the tragedy is Edward Hamilton, and she suffers acute distress until her lover walks in unharmed and takes her in his arms. Edgar, it appears, had been stabbed, and when the door of the secret room is once more opened the lifeless form of Mrs Chetwynd proclaims the fact that she has ended her own life and the affair at the same time.

Most of the hilarity heard in the house on Monday was caused by the very obvious amateurishness of Mr Toosé's efforts in the part of Montague Flacster. As several well-known professionals were in the stalls one could quite understand the merriment that flowed unchecked whenever Mr Toosé and his stick appeared. There were shouts of laughter when one of the characters put the pertinent question concerning Montague Flacster "Why do they allow that to live?" Mr Conway Tearle had a very poor chance of distinguishing himself as Edward Hamilton, but made the most of the interviews with Mrs Chetwynd, a part to which Miss Granville brought all the fascination of a ripe and finished style. That Mrs Chetwynd did not convince us either of her cleverness or her diplomacy was no fault of the actress, who must have felt that some of her lines were hopelessly inept. Miss Lucy Wilson as Irene Merrick displayed considerable emotional power, and is an actress of high intelligence and great sensibility. Her part, mostly in the minor key, was by no means a good one, but in it she conveyed the impression that she is capable of much better work. Miss Vane Featherston was quite in her element as the cricket enthusiast. Alice Vowdon, her dialogue being given with much crispness. Miss Jennie Lee as the Australian-bred Mrs James Blackwood had the smartest lines in the play to say, and gave them very amusingly, playing throughout with refreshing vigour and adroitness. Miss Molly Pearson furnished a lively and interesting sketch of the Colonial ingénue Eileen Lynde, her love scene with George Devereux being one of the most entertaining in the piece. The scene derived much of its attractiveness from the delineation of Devereux by Mr Gordon Bailey, who played with a light and genial touch. Mr A. G. Poulton made Frank Cardwin a jolly doctor; and Mr John Cabourn was responsible for the philanthropy and superstition of Henry Grove. Miss Bessie Page as the chaperon the Hon. Mrs Fortescue quite realised the responsibilities of her position; and the cast was completed by Mr Galwey Herbert, who stage-managed, as Brereton, and Miss Beatrix Bell as Jane.

THEATRICAL PROSPERITY.

Mr Frank Curzon has been giving The Daily Chronicle his opinions on the present state of theatrical enterprise in London.

"There are too many theatres in London now," he says. "Not that there is any lack of desire on the part of the public to visit them, but because we managers cannot find enough attractive entertainments. We can't get good plays, and if we got them then would come the difficulty of casting them properly. The dearth of dramatic material has very often been discussed, and comparisons have been made between the plays of to-day and those of, say, twenty years ago. On looking back I cannot believe that those plays were any better, or in fact much different, from those now offered, but the taste af the public has altered and dramatists have not kept pace with it.

"Take the best of the Adelphi dramas of the 'seventies and 'eighties—fine successes some of them, too; to-day the public would laugh them off the stage. Again, the Cup and Saucer school—I am not speaking of Robertson's masterpieces, but those slight entertainments which used to be the vogue—why, you couldn't fill a back drawing-room with an audience for such to-day; and the old Door and Window farces are quite obsolete, nor could you get the public to tolerate them for a moment, even if the actors and actresses were all that could be desired.

"What we want is some writer who will go just a little bit ahead of the public taste, and encourage them to like some novel form of entertainment Without being egotistical I might suggest that The Duke of Killicrankie is the sort of piece which is the farce of the future. Good old drama is voted commonplace, and worse than this, from my point of view, it doesn't draw any money.

"On the other hand, there never seems to be any difficulty about letting a good theatre, but in my opinion theatres are not worth the prices they were. We had a little boom, and it is over, and I am very much afraid that those people who are building expensive playhouses, or who are renting theatres at big figures with a view to finding sub-lessees who will give bigger, will be catching a heavy cold. But at the same time, a theatre, built at a reasonable cost, or rented at a reasonable rent, is a fine investment, better even than a warehouse in the City, and one day financiers will wake up to this fact.

"I think that the West-end will remain the theatrical centre, and the new theatres built in Aldwych will require the greatest caution. A theatre near Piccadilly-circus is certainly worth £1,500 a-year more than a theatre erected near the new Gaiety.

"It seems to me that the people who are normally most cautious lose all business sense when, unequipped with any technical knowledge, they embark in theatrical enterprise. A theatre should be conducted after the same manner that a tradesman conducts his shop. You must be careful, first, that you can sell what you buy; and, secondly, that you can buy it at a price which will leave you profit when you sell it. The money wasted to-day in theatrical productions is something stupendous, and for my part I have never known a bad piece succeed on account of lavish production. Such expenditure may, of course, make a moderate entertainment a little more acceptable, but the people who make the most money out of theatres nowadays are the dressmakers, and this, to my thinking, is too absurd

"Not only is there far too much money wasted on embroideries on gowns, and on lace that is not seen, but all these light stuffs and chiffons have to be kept in constant repair and have to be frequently renewed, and they make a vast difference in the weekly outgoings which come under the head of stage expenses. What popular manager of to-day cares whether or not he spends a pound or two in new falbalas for his small parts? Yet these few pounds mount up, and £20 a-week thrown away means £1,000 a-year, which is 5 per cent. on £20 000.

"Though I am a theatrical manager I pride myself first of all on being a man of business, and one of the most successful managers of London has recently placed on record that although he took £73,000 in a fifty-six week's season at a West-end theatre, he managed to lose £2 000 on the run.

"There never was such a chance as there is now for a dramatist. He could make a fortune out of one good play. Yet no one seems to be able to find one, though, really, the British public don't ask for very much. If a piece is at all bright and entertaining and well acted, it is pretty certain to be successful. If I could get hold of a light modern farce at the present time—a really good one—there would be scrambling at the door for seats. Yet nobody brings one along. And it must not be forgotten that a successful farce produced and run at comparatively small expense can draw as much money for six or nine months as the most extravagant spectacle ever put upon the stage.

"I have been asked whether there should not be a varying price for theatres. Certainly, the matter is worth consideration, for at some popular theatres a little play is put up at a maximum cost of £1,000, and a salary list of £200, and yet the public are invited to pay the same price to see this as to witness a show which costs £10,000 for production, and has a salary list of £700. As a playgoer, I would welcome the varying price; as a manager, I prefer the existing state of affairs. Besides, I have never known a reduction in price attract people, or an increase keep them away. On the last night of the opera season the stalls at Covent Garden, which are sold in the house for a guinea, were being disposed of in the West-end for 25s. and 28s. a-piece. The truth is that the liberal play-going public will pay any price to see what they want to, and you cannot induce them to go where they don't want to, even if you let them in for nothing.

"Curiously enough, there is a very narrow line to be drawn between failure and success. Some plays succeed, you don't know why, and the failure of others is difficult to explain. The first-night impression has ceased, however, to have the value of former days. You remember Dorothy, which was a failure for a month, and afterwards one of the biggest successes London has ever known. Then there was A Chinese Honeymoon; it was hissed on the first night, and the newspaper critics were unanimous in not liking it. We did bad business for several weeks, but eventually the piece became a gigantic success.

"I often wonder if people realise the amount of work there is in production, and grasp what is the manager's share in it. He has to think out the best means of putting into live shape the ideas of the author; he has to suggest and order scenery, fix on the colours for the dresses, arrange the lighting, and do a thousand little things that the public know nothing of. And when he has done all this he has to rehearse the piece, arrange to a nicety where each artist is to stand at a certain moment, and in what position he shall be when he says this line or that. Perhaps the people who dismiss a piece with a few words such as 'Rather good,' or 'Isn't it rotten?' would not be quite so hasty if they had any idea of the vast and intricate labour that even the simplest production entails.

"What do I think of the first-night boosers? Well, I have become callous. They boo for their own amusement; they do nobody any harm; they have no effect on public opinion; and even the artists who used to be hurt by the ill-treatment now look upon a few first-night boos but as a little set-back in the ordinary way of business.

"The idea of the Theatres Committee of the London County Council to only have two tiers in the future is excellent. Such houses are better and probably safer than those of three tiers, and if properly built they would hold practically as much money."

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

(SPECIAL TO THE ERA.)

A joint committee has been formed to organise, in aid of the Stage Employees and Musicians' Societies Benevolent Funds, a concert similar to that given at the Alhambra last December. The committee hope to secure a theatre or music hall for the purpose.

Mr A. Lenton has been engaged as property master by the new management at the Adelphi Theatre for the production of The Prayer and the Sword. The present staff will, almost without exception, go to the Lyric Theatre with The Earl and the Girl company.

Mr W. Telbin has kindly sent £2 2s. to the Benevolent Fund of the Heads of Departments' Association.

Mr Arthur Collins, in addressing the shareholders of the Drury-lane Company, Ltd., at their meeting on Wednesday, very kindly said that the worries and anxieties of his position as managing-director were amply compensated by the cordial support he had received from his colleagues and the employees of the house.

At the annual sports promoted by the Warrington Police Athletic Club, a novel feature was the introduction of a One Mile Bicycle Handicap for the employees of the Royal Court Theatre and Royal Theatre of Varieties. The result was as follows:—J. Glime, 40, first (gold-mounted walking stick, presented by Mr F. Willmot); J. L. Weisker, scratch, two (silver cigarette case, presented by Messrs Johnson and Potter); F. Ross, 50, third (silver cigarette case and meerschaum holder, presented by Mrs F. Willmot); S. Pomfrett, 50, fourth (silver match-box, presented by Mr Weisker).

FUNERAL OF BERTHA WARING.

The funeral of Bertha Waring (Mrs John Wilson Musante), of Wilson and Waring, whose death on Thursday, the 25th ult., came as a surprise and a shock to the many friends of this popular couple, took place on Monday at Tooting Cemetery. The cortége left Dunn's undertaking establishment at Camberwell at 12·0 o'clock, and a number of sorrowing friends accompanied the remains of the deceased lady to their last resting place. A beautiful plain oak coffin was buried deep in the floral offerings of sympathy of friends and comrades in the variety profession. Those who were present at the funeral were Mr John Wilson, husband of the deceased, Mr and Mrs J. Hyams, Messrs H. J. Austin, J. S. Morrison, H. J. Didcott, J. Lotto, C. Pratt, J. P. Coughlan, Dave Marion, E. Dubois, Ramza, Geo. Preston, and Mrs Frank Halter. Beautiful and costly wreaths were received from Mr and Mrs Eugene Stratton, Mr and Mrs Wilkie Bard, Mr and Mrs Jacob Hyams, Mr and Mrs Frank Coyne, Mr and Mrs George

THE LATE BERTHA WARING.

Booker, Mr and Mrs James Finney, Mr and Mrs Geo. Peel, Mr and Mrs James Howard, Mr and Mrs Herbert Austin, Miss Peggy Pryde and Mr Geo. Pearson, Mrs Hutchinson, Mr and Mrs Arthur Combes, the MacNaughtons, Mr Bert Shepard, Mr Jack Lotto, and members of the Vaudeville Club. There were numerous telegrams and messages of sympathy from all branches of the profession, and as it is impossible for Mr Wilson to reply to all these individually, he asks us to convey in these columns his very sincere appreciation of the kindness and sympathy of his many friends in the hour of his sad bereavement.

The late Bertha Waring was one of the most talented of all the Americans we have seen on this side of the water. In 1897 she with her husband, as Wilson and Waring, came to the Palace, and so great was their success that with the exception of a break of three weeks they remained there for a continuous run of sixty-eight weeks. Since then they have played every hall of note in Great Britain, and also made a tour of South Africa. Indeed, it was after their return from their last trip to South Africa that Mrs Wilson contracted the illness responsible for her untimely decease. She was born in New York City, and made her professional début in 1881 in Madison, Ind., playing Topsy, with the World's Uncle Tom's Cabin company. A little later she met Kitty O'Neil, from whom she received dancing lessons, and she was considered to be one of the best soft shoe and general dancers in the profession. She played a succession of important engagements until her marriage with Mr Wilson. As a team they had an unbroken success. Mrs Wilson's untimely death will be profoundly regretted by all who knew her, and her husband will have the sympathy and condolence of everyone in the profession.

GREENWICH THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Drama, entitled "A LONDON ACTRESS."

Mr William Tharp is now lessee and manager of the above theatre. This week the attraction is the drama by Miss Emma Litchfield entitled A London Actress. The fair authoress herself plays Hilda Mannering in a manner which wins general approval. Miss Maud Saxby is good as Nellie; Miss Maud Steeples is a capable Mrs Skinner; Miss Adele Wilford is a clever Rosie Blythe; Miss Louise Milward is a highly dramatic Biddy Maloney; and Miss Elsie Roberts is an interesting Phyllis Crawford. Mr Stewart Cleveland plays Major Crawford in excellent style; Mr Charles E. Leicester is remarkably good as Lieut. Kingston; Mr Sam Wilford is an amusing Pat Maloney, Mr Fred Tenaur is a capable Moses Mendoza, and Mr John Worth is highly satisfactory as Captain Mannering. The remaining parts are in good hands. The drama is liberally mounted, and the tasteful dresses of the ladies are pleasing features of the performance.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. EDWIN LING.

Mr Edwin Ling, although not of an acting family, had always an inclination for the stage. He eventually became a member of Mr Ben Greet's companies, and had two or three tours under this management. During a vacation about this time Mr Ling "walked on" at the Adelphi in a few performances of La Tosca by Madame Sarah Bernhardt. It was an interesting experience to be connected in this humble way with the great French actress's company. After playing character parts with Mr Greet Mr Ling was engaged by Mr F. R. Benson as assistant stage-manager, in which capacity he gained considerable experience. His time being fully occupied with other duties, he then only played occasionally such parts as Bardolph (Henry V.) and the Jester in the same play. After touring the principal towns Mr Ling came to London with Mr Benson for his Lyceum season. He played in some of the répertoire, viz, Seleucus, in Antony and Cleopatra, and Captain Jamy, in Henry V. Towards the end of the season Mr Ling was sent with a section of the company to Stratford-on-Avon to support Miss Marion Terry, Miss Eleanor Calhoun, Mr Hermann Vezin, the late Mr John Coleman, and Mr T. B. Thalberg, playing Corin, in As You Like It; Second Murderer, in Macbeth; Tubal, Merchant of Venice; and Gratiano, in Othello. He was also in Mr Coleman's version of Pericles, Prince of Tyre, which was played during the Shakespeare celebration that year. At the close of Mr Benson's Lyceum season, Mr Ling was engaged by Mr Henry Dundas to play Dr. Bartholomew Jones, in the farcical comedy Confusion. This was a long engagement, during which he also played Taddeo Ferrari, the drunken old violin-maker, in Fennel. While on this tour Mr Ling met his wife, Miss Nellie Ling. He then went to Mr John F. Preston to play Hassan in the play which was then called Secrets of the Harem. Returning to Mr Dundas, he went out with the first provincial tour of Riding to Win, to support Mr Ernest Leicester, and play Pinkie. In the following autumn Mr Ling was again engaged by Mr Dundas for Sir Simon Beaucierc, in The Great Ruby, and he subsequently took up the light comedy part in the same play, Lord George Hartopp. Mr W. W. Kelly then engaged him to play Talleyrand, in A Royal Divorce. After remaining with Mr Kelly from Christmas till the following May, Mr Ling joined Mr Douglas Phelps' stock season, playing the dandy, in Right's Right; Dill, in Fast Lynne; Father Doolan, in The Shaughraun; Stephen Lyle, in The Seven Sisters; and Pointer, in After Dark. Shortly after this Mr Ling played the marriage-monger, in Madame Butterfly, supporting Mrs Mouillot and Mr H. Cooper Cliffe. He was re-engaged by Mr Kelly for the part of Talleyrand, and this was followed by a long engagement as Justice Hare, in The New East Lynne, under the same management. At the termination of this tour Mr Ling again played Talleyrand, this time for about twelve months. Both Mr and Mrs Ling have toured Scotland supporting Mr Walter Bentley. They have just been fulfilling an engagement with Mr John A. Thomson in his stock season on Paignton Pier, Mr Ling playing Colonel Damas, in The Lady of Lyons; Little Billee, Trilby; Eccles, Caste; Abe Nathan, Shadows of a Great City; Colonel Chateauroy, Under Two Flags; and Mr Golding, Garrick. Some years ago Mr Ling played Sir Peter Teazle in some special performances of "the quarrel scenes." He has also played Strabo, Servillius, and Titus, in The Sign of the Cross, with Mr Ben Greet, and Silva Tosh, in The Little Minister. He was understudy at one time for the title-rôle in the latter play.

MR. EDWIN LING.

Mr Dick Tubb is a humourist with a large circle of friends and admirers, who gathered in force on the South Sands, Scarborough, on Thursday, on the occasion of his benefit. This is Mr Tubb's second season with Mr T. Carrick's Pierrot and White Musketeer Troupe, and the result of the concert was most satisfactory, both from an artistic and a pecuniary point of view. Mr Tubb sang several songs with great point and expression, notably "Little Willie Brown" and "Surely not!" Mr Bangs gave "Down the vale" with much feeling, and as an encore "My Lady Hottentot," assisted by Miss Babs Carrick in the dance. Other members of the troupe who contributed successful items were Mr Carrick and Mr Chadwick in a duet, and Mr Roberts in "A needle in the haystack," whilst Mr Day gave some illustrations of how different people walk, which caused much amusement. An extra turn was contributed by Mr Basil Thornton, lightning artist in black and white.

On the morning of Aug. 25 Jack Bangs, the popular baritone of Mr Tom Carrick's well-known Pierrot and White Musketeer Troupe, took his second annual benefit at Scarborough. There was a large and delighted attendance, and the entertainment was of the best. Mr Carrick contributed a clever character study of a huntsman, the first time of performance, which was received with great applause. Mr Bangs himself gave with great spirit a rendering of "Gretna Green" and in a cake-walk he was assisted by Miss L. Carrick, a graceful little girl of about five summers. Other items performed included "My Cosy Corner Girl," sung by Mr Evan Roberts; a burlesque recitation by Mr Fred Chadwick, which was pronounced by a "gallery" member of the audience "most comicky;" and "Any Rags," admirably sung by Mr Squire Day. At the close of the proceedings Mr Bangs made a grateful little speech.

Mr Alf Liverick has secured the lease of the Town Hall Theatre, Methil, Fife, and is busy booking companies. Methil is nine miles from Kirkcaldy, and is an easy break between Edinburgh, Dundee, Glasgow, Leith, and is one of the biggest shipping ports in Fife.

Pavilion Pier.—Proprietors, the Devon Steamship Co., Limited; Entertainment Manager, Mr John A. Thomson.—Our Boys is here this week. Mr J. D. Hunter is excellent as Perkyn Middlewick, and the part of Sir Geoffrey Champneys is ably sustained by Mr Frank Graham. Mr Frank Powell and Mr Frank Medhurst do well as Charles Middlewick and Talbot Champneys. Miss Blanche Bayley creates fun as the slavey, Miss Eva Bayley is quite at home as the Aunt, and Miss Mamie Stanton as Violet Melrose and Miss Nettie Schrier as Mary Melrose are well suited.

PAISLEY.

Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile.—A Little Coquette, performed by Mr J. Gar Kiddie's company, is meeting with success here. Miss Lizzie Payne is fascinating and sings well as Celia, and Miss Flo Warner gives a delightful impersonation of Robin Adair. Mr George Hestor is irresistibly funny as Anne Teeke, Mr J. Gar Kiddie makes a droll and amusing Simon Scrapps, and Messrs J. Bell and J. Clarence as Peter Pipeclay and Tommy Sharpshoot well sustain the fun. A characteristic representation of Gabriel Grabbe is submitted by Mr Forsyth Bruce, and as Captain Nevermind Mr E. H. Betram distinguishes himself by his singing. Miss Nellie Butt makes a pleasing Charlie Crowquille, Mr L. J. Headlam satisfactorily enacts Longpull, and other characters of a minor nature are adequately filled.

Empire.—Lessee, Mr J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr Delno Fritz.—The company engaged here includes the Moxons, marvels in juggling and acrobatic work, who play on various musical instruments, the Sisters Ross, duettists; Alex. B. Thorne, Scotch comedian; Max Merlin, contortionist; Les Fontains, marionette entertainers; Hettie Lewis, serio and dancer; the Deroys (Horace and Alice), eccentric comic prestidigitateurs; and the Singing Collier. The Empire cinématograph, with an entire change of pictures, is also an attraction.

PENTRE.

Lyceum Theatre.—Sole Owners, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr Eugene Hardie.—This week Messrs Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's No. 1 company presents Under the Russian Flag here. Mr Chas. Reyne as General Romanoff is seen to advantage. Mr Walter Howard as Capt. Demetrius is repeatedly applauded, Mr Geo. Arthur as Michael Romanoff is exceedingly good, Wolf Marischla has a capital exponent in Mr Fred Harker, Mr W. Wilson is a brusque, good-natured Colonel Souvaroff, Ivan Romanoff receives attention at the hands of Mr F. W. Freeman, and the capital acting of Miss Ada Champion as Vera Vassiloff contributes largely to the success. The Luka Marischla of Miss Ellen Snow is a clever impersonation, and the charming vivacity of Miss Agnes Howard as Ogarita and the drolleries of Mr Alf Bennett as Alexis Skopolopki and Mr Hal Ford as Peter Poluski contribute bright comedy.

PENZANCE.

St. John's Hall.—Mr Chas. Macdona's Chinese Honeymoon company has been here. Mr W. Goodwin Woodward is responsible for the management of the tour. The strong and well-balanced chorus is under the able direction of Mr Jean Desormes. Miss Ettie Cinders as Fifi entered thoroughly into the spirit of her part, and was deservedly rewarded by loud laughter and applause. Mrs Pineapple had a dainty representative in Miss May Grattan, and Miss Adah Lacroft as Soo Soo sang most pleasingly. Miss Gertrude Le Sage as the mother-in-law was very imposing. Mr Steane Touch lent much dignity to his performance as the Emperor, his fine singing eliciting warm approval. Mr Sidney Burt as Mr Pineapple worked hard and successfully. Mr Lindsay Harman as the Lord High Admiral and Mr Louis Ashmeade as the Lord Chancellor contributed much merriment, and Mr Arthur Foote as Tom Hatherton was thoroughly capable.

PERTH.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge.—Mr Eugene C. Stafford's Private Secretary company is here with Jane. Mr W. Hargreaves as Mr Kershaw is delightfully amusing; Mr Fred Inwood is an ideal Charley Shakleton; Mr Wilfred Compton elicits unrestrained mirth as William Tipson; Mr Raymond Chester is excellent as Mr Pixton; Mr Vivian Gilbert makes a hit as Claude; and Mr Alfred Davis wins quite a triumph as Mrs Chadwick. Miss Mary E. Deverell is very engaging as Lucy Norton, and Miss Cecily Wade is a forcible Mrs Pixton. Miss Dora Gray carries all before her. Jane is preceded by the one-act dramatic comedy, Good for Nothing in which Miss Dora Gray shows decided talent as Nan, and Messrs R. Chester, W. Compton, V. Gilbert, Donald Price-Evans, and D. Sanford ably assist.

PETERBOROUGH.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr A. Darville Vernon.—This week we have The Girl from Japan. Mr Tom E. Sinclair is wonderfully amusing as Horatio Blinks; Mr C. Lockridge plays in capable fashion as Lord Allenbury; and other effective impersonations are given by Mr Alfred Wood (Sir Mulberry Flippington), Mr Percy Baverstock (General Baugh) and Mr Ernest Spalding (Rev. John Smith). Miss B. Dane is a delightful Countess De La Rue; as Violet Meadows Miss Nellie Valentine scores heavily; and Miss Nellie Jackson does well as Polly Perkins.

PORTH.

Poole's Opera House.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—This week we are favoured with a visit of Miss Maud Camfield's company, in the four-act military play, entitled On Circumstantial Evidence. Miss Maud Camfield as Violet Ogilvy is decidedly good; Miss Gladys Clifford as Tim takes the part exceptionally well; Mr Charles Clifford is well suited as Captain Hamilton; Mr Gordon M'Leod merits praise as Jack Ogilvy; Miss Mabel Durham cleverly takes the parts of the twin sisters Olga and Mary Brandoni; Mr Percy Boucher as Jeremiah creates much genuine amusement; and Miss Florrie Hall does well as Polly Smithers.

PRESTON.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr S. Pitt.—Mr and Mrs Wm. Maclaren's company is here this week on a return visit with Proof, which has been received with hearty favour. Mr Wm. Maclaren gives a strong and manly impersonation of Pierre Lorance. The villainy of Lazare is depicted with sinister effect by Mr Richard Fulton, and a character in effective and pleasing contrast is that of Chamboran, capitally played by Mr Ardene Linden. Mr Kingsford Pearce is well suited as the Duke D'Aubeterre, Mr Alfred Wareing acquits himself creditably as Victor De Laugney, and Mr E. St. Clair Vayne as the Seneschal is praiseworthy. In the part of little Adrienne Miss Gertrude Coote proves herself to be a child-actress of more than average ability. Mrs S. Hay is seen to advantage as Madame Deprets. Miss Winnie Hanley makes a stately Duchess D'Aubeterre, and Miss Gertrude Evans deserves much praise for her clever portrayal of Madeline and Adrienne respectively. The rôle of Valentine is filled with distinct success by Miss Lily C. Bandmann, and the remaining parts are capably sustained. The drama is beautifully staged.

Prince's.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Sawyer and Woodruff.—There was a full house here on Monday to witness the production, "for the first time on any stage," of the romantic drama, in four acts, entitled Napoleon the Great, by Mr Frank M. Thorne, a notice of which appears elsewhere.

PONTYPRIDD.

ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr Rex Dooley.—The Garside, Knowles, and Ludlow company is here in The London Fireman. Mr Edward L. Garside's interpretation of the character of Henry Curtis gives unbounded satisfaction; Mr Wm. Burgess displays histrionic ability as Hal Curtis; Mr J. F. Knowles is a host in himself as Nixey Stinger; Mr Arthur Pringle's performance as the villain holds the attention of the audience completely; Mr J. Court Harvard gives a sympathetic rendering of Abel Fortnum. Miss Violet Temple exhibits dramatic power as Grace Curtis; Miss Nellie Garside wins credit as Polly Bramble; Miss Mona Greg's Ida Curtis is admirable; and Miss Adeline Raby is to be congratulated upon her acting as the Countess Fleming.

PORTSMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—The ever-welcome Country Girl is being presented here this week by Mr George Dance's very able company. Miss Maud Boyd makes an excellent and robust Marjory Joy, her singing being well received. Nan in the hands of Miss Daisy Le Hoy receives every attention, her acting and vocal efforts being much admired. Miss Ethel Negretti is impressive as Princess Melaneh, her interpretation being very good. Miss Maud Prenton's Madame Sophie is a well-balanced and vivacious performance; Mr Robert Michaelis is a manly and convincing Geoffrey Challoner; Mr Charles F. Cooke is successful as the Rajah; the resourceful Barry is capitally played by Mr Charles R. Walenn; and Sir Joseph Verity and Granfer Mummery are well sustained by Mr Joe Nightingale and Mr Arthur Leyston. The mounting and scenery are all that can be desired.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—This week is being produced here Mr Frederick Melville's Her Forbidden Marriage. The piece abounds in interest, and is capitally played by a carefully selected company. Miss Isla Garnet Vayne acts very well in the rôle of Lucy, and is ably supported by Mr Horace Hunter as George Madison. Mr Clarence Hague as the scoundrel Charles Devereux gains unlimited hisses from all parts of the house. Miss Doris Brookes as Lady Lucretia Lancaster, the accomplice of Devereux, acts powerfully. The Timothy Tuttutt of Mr Harry Elliston and the Pattie Lovejoy of Miss Marie Kildare keep the audience in roars of laughter; and Miss Emily Hughes in the part of the Mother Superior is seen to advantage.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—This hall is doing good business this week with a good all-round programme. The bill is topped by the Akimotos, real Japanese jugglers and equilibrists, who are very clever. Little Uno, comedian, is good, as are also the Brontes, comedy duologue artists. Maud Courtney, the American girl, in song and story is much liked; Will Musgrave, versatile comedian, is in great demand; Grey and Welford, comedians and boxers, are very amusing; the Musical Palmers, military musical experts, submit a very taking turn; and other attractions are Daisy Palmer, comedienne and danseuse; Sisters Terry, duettists and mimics; and Payne's Photo-Bioscope, with new pictures.

RADCLIFFE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr Jas. Boothman.—Mr Howard Hinton's company is here with the musical play Honour Bright. Mr Harold Hastings has a good voice, and is seen to advantage as Wyse J. Hopkins; Mr Richard Courtland is capable as Sir Godfrey; and the same remark applies to Mr Gilbert Ainslie as Frank Forrester. Mr W. Carriden ably represents Richard Ravenscroft; Mr Tom Robertson is an able exponent of Simon Hargreaves; and Mr R. Hamilton makes the most of Mr Gresham. Miss Violet Welsh is well suited to the part of Ruth; Miss Grace Olivia scores as Constance Hope; and Miss Nellie Marler in her original reading of Honour Bright is all that can be desired.

RAMSGATE.

AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr Henry Bowman.—On the first three evenings of the week Mr Ben Greet's company played to packed houses the well-known Hall Caine drama The Eternal City. The production was eminently successful. Chief acting honours fell to Miss E. Anton Laing as Roma, a part which gives a capable actress a good many opportunities of displaying her talent. All these were fully taken advantage of by Miss Laing. As David Rossi Mr Henry Deas appeared with brilliant effect, and the Baron Bonelli of Mr D. Lewin Mannering left nothing to be desired. Mr Leonard Grey was excellent as Pope Pius XI., and good work was also contributed by Mr H. Legerton (Bruno Rocco), and the Misses Millicent Granville (Elena), Edith Rubardt (Francesca), Renee De l'Estrade (Nattalina), and Alice Maude (Princess Bellini). On Thursday Mr Mouillot's company commenced a three nights' engagement in Old Heidelberg.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—Proprietors, the Corporation of Ramsgate; Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Herbert Jay; Acting-Manager, Mr N. Arthur Hornby.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings the clever troupe of I.D.K. Minstrels supplied the evening entertainments at the Pavilion, and capital programmes were given. On Thursday the Ben Greet company commenced a three nights' engagement in the delightful comic opera La Poupée. During the week the "Non N.T.T.'s" have supplied the musical fare at the afternoon entertainments, the artistes participating consisting of Miss Marjorie Clark, Miss Ada Rodney, and Messrs J. J. Gordon, Curtis, H. E. Garden, and Percy Barrow. The Bioscope pictures have also been exhibited.

ROCHDALE.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr Charles Clucas.—The Beautiful Avenger occupies the boards here this week. Mr Algernon Syms as Cyrus Telford acts with power and effect; Mr Lionel Scudamore cleverly maintains the part of Zadok Foxbane; Mr James Diamond as Herman Foxbane deserves a word of praise; Perugrine Patch and Jim Jahms are in the safe hands of Mr Wm. Ames and Mr Fred Withers; Miss Cissie Podmore enacts with skill Baldie Mansfield; Miss Nannie Meade shows superior power in the dual-rôle of Vashti Volta and Victor Stanhope; Miss Mabel Scudamore fills the part of Edna Volta with every success; and Miss Stelda Darling makes the most of Arabella Binks.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Smith and Lee Business-Manager, Mr Lee.—This popular place of amusement reopened for the season on Monday after a thorough cleaning. It has been beautified with pleasing effect. A capital programme was presented. Fred Horsfall, mimic; Miss C. Mayson, vocalist; Coram, ventriloquist; Coma, juggler; the Brewsters, dancers; Albert Ventor, comedian; Three Condos, foot equilibrists; and Shicklay's Bears make up a most enjoyable entertainment.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Hargreaves; Acting Manager, Mr Frank Hargreaves.—An attractive and lengthy programme is submitted twice each evening here. Wingorra Bros., hand balancers; Miss Clara Victor, character and descriptive vocalist; Ella Delara, American comedienne; Fred Bronte, actor-vocalist; Lil Esplin, comedienne; Dennis J. M'Carthy, in The Coastguard; Miss Lena Page, vocalist; Ray and Mills, a curious couple; Ottawa Trio, in the musical scene After the Hunt; Miss Ruby Bijou, dancer; and Craig, Rose, and Craig, the dental athletes, furnish an entertainment appreciated in all parts.

RAWTENSTALL.

GRAND THEATRE.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr J. Ellis Miller.—Mr Garrod Tod's company opened here on Monday in the fascinating drama A Daughter's Crime and gained a deservedly warm reception. Miss Grey Allison as Hilda Dundonald gave a truly sympathetic rendering of the part, as also did Mr Dennis W. Cleugh as Sir Charles Tremaine. Mr William Vaughan made a fine Rupert Thorne, and Mr Harry Talbot as Singh, Mrs Richardson as Mrs Oxen, and Miss Louie Emery as the sisters Eighteen were each in their respective characters all that could be desired. As Ivra Blight Miss Joan Pereira was exceptionally good. The costumes and scenery are of an elaborate character.

READING.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr Reginald Taylor.—The attraction here is Mr John Denton's company, in A Modern Judas. Mr John Denton ably plays the part of Elkanah Pearce, and is well supported by Miss Ada Palmer as Miss Agatha. The cast includes Messrs Percy Rhodes, Willie Scott, Trueman Towers, Frank Beresford, Miss Kate Walbran, and Miss Violet King.

RHYL.

QUEEN'S PALACE.—Manager, Mr P. J. Ashfield; Secretary, Mr E. W. Parry.—The Marconis give a remarkable entertainment here, with the aid of electricity and an exhibition of wireless telegraphy. The Solari Duo, operatic vocalists and instrumentalists, supply an attractive item, their mandoline selections being particularly pleasing. Ernesto juggles with his usual dexterity. Connie Williams is a smart comedienne and neat dancer. Bob Hamilton, comedian and concertinist, is well received.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr A. R. Sutcliffe.—On Wednesday this place of amusement was crowded, the occasion being the third annual benefit of Mr A. R. Sutcliffe, the popular manager of the Pierrots. The following assisted:—Edwin Adeler, W. G. Sutton, Edmund Bosanquet, Whit Cunliffe, Elsie Steadman, J. H. Scotland, Julian Mack, Daisy Lake, and Peter Flitcroft. The seating arrangements were in the capable hands of Mr T. Robinson.

ROTHERHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. Manning.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company is here with A Beautiful Fiend. Mr A. F. Dudley is a manly Sergius Strogoff, and Mr A. G. Polson Turner is seen to advantage as Captain Fedor Karateff. Mr Montague Beaudyn as Ivan Paulovitch gives a capital performance, and Mr Charles Kean is humorous as Christopher Crackles. Mr Robertson Foulis as Malachi is deserving of mention. Miss Irene Munroe is very pleasing as Nadine Karateff, and Miss Annie Clunn is a sprightly Patty Woodlands. Miss Sidney Crowe as Wanda Lubinoff supplies a highly finished rendering.

RUGBY.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Kingsley.—This week Mr Douglas Bruce's company is appearing in A Girl's Cross Roads. Miss Lily Hammersley as Barbara Wade gives a realistic and thrilling impersonation; Miss Kate Walford as Nellie Meadows scores a success in her part; and the rôle of John Meadows is ably interpreted by Mr W. E. Griffiths. As Jack Livingstone and his friend Dr. Weston Mr Geo Gaisford and Mr E. Eardley Howard both do exceedingly well, and Mr W. Fraser Brunner is excellent as Cuthbert Lumley. Mr John Rogers is good as Luke Ramsden, and Miss Ethel Bracewell as Constance Corneille acts the part charmingly. Miss Gladys Newcome is smart and amusing as Tilly Vane, and is well seconded in her efforts by Mr Will Corrie as Toby Turner.

RUNCORN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr H. W. Caddick.—We have a doubly welcome visit here this week in the person of Mr Ormonde G. Smethurst and company in the interesting drama, Parson Thorn. It is staged with precision, and is meeting with deserved success. Mr O. G. Smethurst sustains the title-rôle in a manner quite in keeping with the part. Mr Ernest J. Fare presents a vivid portrayal of Wylde Crewell; and Miss Mabel Fare in the rôle of Dorothy Thoroughgood gives a good exposition. The arduous rôle of Folly Bishop is capably handled by Miss Jessie Chandler; and Mr Butler Stanhope invests the character of Sir Geoffrey Dashwood with the necessary dignity.

RYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Bannister Howard; Business-Manager, Mr J. Westbrook Poole.—On the first three nights of this week Mr Henry Hare's company presented the farcical musical comedy, The Girl from Chicago. The piece is lively and amusing, numerous varieties being introduced, including a very clever troupe of speciality dancers styling themselves the Daffodils. Miss Lily Beverley is a lively Flora Bloomer, the girl from Chicago, and Mr Douglas Vigors is good as Percy Montmorency. Mr Buckstone Clair is most amusing as Judge Ananias Hussel; Mr Edwin Dodds scores as his clerk, Billy M'Guffin; Mr Henry Hare is capital as General Boomer; and Mr Clarence Ibbotson gives a good character sketch of Obadiah Cackles. Miss Lucy Beaumont very cleverly impersonates Mrs Sweetlove. For the last three nights Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's company was announced to appear in Cousin Kate.

SCARBOROUGH.

SPA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Fras. Goodricke.—Here we have Mr Edward Terry and company drawing good houses and appearing in the following plays:—The Passport, The House of Burnside, Sweet Lavender, Love in Idleness, You Never Know, and Bardell v. Pickwick.

LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Waddington and Sons; Acting-Manager, Mr J. T. Carpenter.—Messrs A. and S. Gatti and Mr Charles Frohman's company is appearing here in Quality Street. Mr David Glassford is a capable Valentine Brown; Miss May Whitty is excellent as Susan Throssell; Miss Lizzie Scobie is good as Patty, the servant; and Miss Grace Armytage is most charming as Miss Phœbe Throssell.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietress, Mrs Henry Mayhew; Manager, Mr F. P. Morgan.—Mr Frank E. Burdett's company is appearing here in The Indian Mutiny. Mr Fred Emery does well as Lieut. Manley; Mr W. S. Tindall as Major Ingleby is successful; Nebu Singh is well represented by Mr Villier Stanley; Mr Ernest Keand as Ra Goonga is capital; Miss Maud Digby gives a good portrayal of Ghuz-nah; Miss Agnes Kingston does well as Kate Ingleby; and the comedy relief is well supplied by Mr John M'Elroy.

PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing Director, Mr W. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr William Kitchingman.—The company engaged here provides a capital programme, which includes the Cairo Orchestra (director, Prof. Voorzanger), Miss Florence Bowness, vocalist; the Albano Troupe, musicians; Linton, acrobatic artist; the Pastor Brothers, musical comiques; Miss Flo Everette and her trained dogs; Miss Sadie Bush, vocalist; Mr Robert Grieve, ventriloquist; Will and Tim, eccentric tramps; the Itrams, in a perch act; and Prof. Dickinson and lady swimmers.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr George Zalva.—Mdlle Victoria Dagmar, gymnast; the Darrell Trio, in a musical act; the Brothers Llodge, on the Roman rings; the Yoricks, acrobats; the Zalvas, in their renowned comedy wire act; and the spectacle Cinderella form an excellent bill-of-fare this week.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901

Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

MISS ETHEL ARDEN.

AN APOLOGY AND EXPLANATION.

It is with the greatest regret that we ("The Umpire") find that in our issue of July 31—owing to an error in the transcription of a name—a report of certain proceedings (in the action of Methofer v. Methofer) in the Divorce Court turns out to be a serious libel on Miss Ethel Arden, the popular artiste.
We offer our sincerest apologies to Miss Ethel Arden, and express our deep regret that her name should have received so disgraceful an imputation in our newspaper. We feel sure that Miss Arden's many friends and admirers will understand that her reputation stands absolutely unsullied by the mistake we have made, and that her future career will continue unaffected by what has been published. We need hardly say that there was no intention to refer to her in the report. The name of the respondent in the divorce proceedings was Harben, which by mistake appeared in our issue as Arden. We trust that Miss Ethel Arden will receive this apology in the spirit in which it is tendered, and that it will help to remove the pain and suffering of which we have been the unintentional cause.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT

FOR

ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY

ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT

Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.

Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.

Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.

Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

49, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer, by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman, July 31st, 1901

Mr A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette, Aug. 2d, 1901

THE ERA
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1904.

THE MEMORY OF SHAKESPEARE.

The very handsome offer made by Mr RICHARD BADGER to assist in the erection of a statue to SHAKESPEARE'S memory by paying £500 towards the expenses deserves, at any rate, consideration. When a man is ready to "back his opinion" to that extent, and even promise an additional sum of £2,000 "if the result of an appeal for funds to the nation is such as to make it certain that a memorial commensurate with SHAKESPEARE'S greatness can be raised," his proposal deserves at least to be discussed. London can well bear being beautified even more than it is at present; and the addition to its public monuments of such a magnificent one as it would be possible to erect to the memory of SHAKESPEARE would be another step in the advance which we have been making of late years in the artistic improvement of our capital. Now that Sir HENRY IRVING and Mr BEERBOHM TREE have given their support to the scheme it must be successful; and the excellent suggestion of a shilling subscription made by Mr TREE will enable both rich and poor to contribute to the expense of a tribute to the great dramatic and poetical genius, who must ever be the pride and glory of Englishmen. A memorial to Shakespeare would be a "commission" worthy of our best English sculptors, and its erection would give an opportunity to one of them to display his genius in the grandest and most elevated manner. The proposal to raise funds for the purpose will find a responsive echo in the hearts of the whole English nation; and there can be little doubt that, once started, contributions will soon swell the total to an amount adequate to the grandeur and nobility of the scheme. It is not in a paltry or insufficient way that the colossal genius of WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE should be honoured. The monument must be worthy of the mighty mind it is meant to commemorate, and the existence of such a splendid statue will do credit to the generosity, the artistic feeling, and the patriotism of the nation at large.

Incidentally, and while dealing with this interesting subject, we may regretfully remark on the impossibility that existed of getting anything like an adequate portrait of SHAKESPEARE done in his time. In the then condition of painting in ELIZABETH'S England, only the husk and shell of a great man could be set down on canvas. Had an artist of WATTS'S genius existed in ELIZABETH'S reign, we might have had a picture of SHAKESPEARE on a par with the splendid limnings—so full of insight and imaginative perception of character—which grace the walls of our National Portrait Gallery. The poet's contemporaries were quite aware of the insufficiency of the "counterfeit presentments" then possible. BEN JONSON, as everyone knows, wrote of the "graver" of the first folio plate:—

O, could he but have drawne his wit
As well in brasse as he hath hit
His face, the Print would then surpasse
All that was ever writ in brasse.

Everyone, however, is not equally aware that the Baconites read an ironical intention in Rare BEN'S lines, and say that there should be a "dash" after the word "writ," "brasse" referring to the unblushing confidence of the actor-manager in getting credit for the plays really penned by the "wisest and meanest of mankind," as BYRON called BACON.

Curiously enough, just as we are delighted with the project of a memorial to our great dramatist, we are thrilled with indignation at a proposed desecration of his grave in order to gratify a cruel and a contemptible curiosity. The grave of SHAKESPEARE is situated near the northern wall of the chancel of the parish church of Stratford-on-Avon. The sepulchre was covered with a slab bearing the inscription:—

Good Friend, for Jesv's sake, forbeare
To digg the dvst enclosed heare;
Bleste be the man that spares thes stones,
And cvrst be he that moves my bones.

These lines, according to an early tradition, were selected by the poet himself for his epitaph. The transfer of bones from graves to charnel-houses was then an ordinary practice at Stratford-on-Avon; and it is probable that SHAKESPEARE'S feelings were created by the ghastly appearance of the local charnel-house which, in 1795, contained the largest assemblage of human bones which the elder IRELAND ever beheld.

Hitherto, respect for the natural feeling expressed in these lines, and for an instinct which in SHAKESPEARE'S time at any rate, had not been removed by the general appreciation of scientific fact, has kept sacrilegious meddlers from disregarding the poet's plea. The nearest approach to an excavation into SHAKESPEARE'S grave was made in the summer of the year 1796, in digging a vault in the immediate locality when an opening appeared which was presumed to indicate the commencement of the site of the Bard's remains. The most scrupulous care, however, was taken not to disturb the neighbouring earth in the slightest degree, the parish clerk standing sentry until the brickwork of the adjoining vault was completed, to prevent anyone making an examination. No relics whatever were visible through the small opening that thus presented itself; and, as the poet was buried in the ground, not in a vault, the chancel earth, moreover, formerly absorbing a large amount of moisture, the probability is that dust alone remained. "This consideration," says HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS, in his "Outlines of the Life of Shakespeare," "may tend to discourage an irreverent opinion expressed by some that it is due to the interests of science to unfold to the world the material abode which once held so great an intellect. It is not," he continues writing in 1877, "many years since a phalanx of trouble tombs, lanterns and spades in hand, assembled in the chancel at dead of night, intent on disobeying the solemn injunction that the bones of SHAKESPEARE were not to be disturbed. But the supplicatory lines prevailed. There were some amongst the number who, at the last moment, refused to incur the warning condemnation, and so the design was happily abandoned." It is to be hoped that if sentiment has ceased to be strong enough to prevent such desecration, there is sufficient Church authority and popular feeling at Stratford-on-Avon to make certain that SHAKESPEARE'S revered dust shall not be disturbed.

"WHITEWASHING JULIA" was the attraction at the Jersey Opera House for three nights this week, and the clever play attracted good audiences. The company, which was that of Messrs Silvanus Dauncey and Charles V. France, was a most capable one, and the audience were given a thorough treat. Mr H. Asheton Tonge as Mr William Stillingfleet gave a fine performance; his conception of the part could not have been bettered. Mr Samways was represented by Mr Archibald M'Lean in a most satisfactory manner. Mr Willox Cadogan was equally well suited as the Hon. Edwin Pinkney, and he acquitted himself with credit. Mr H. Carter Bligh also gave a very capable performance as the Hon. Bevis Pinkney. Mrs Ruth Maitland as Julia Wren had the lion's share of the work, and she looked and acted her part to perfection. Miss Kate Bishop made a most dignified Lady Pinkney, and proved herself a fast favourite with the audience. The acting of Miss Marie Lohr as Trixie Blenkinsop was also worthy of special mention.

AT the Elephant and Castle Theatre on Wednesday was given a copyright performance of The Music Master, a play by Charles Klein.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Messrs Arthur Hinton and Travis Green's new venture is a bright interesting play, pithily written, and presented in a manner calculated to please the most fastidious of audiences.

Olga Gwynne, the landlady of the Treharne Arms, has had an intrigue many years before the opening of the play with Sir Rupert Treharne, the squire of Corwen, by whom she has had a son now grown to manhood, and become the Curate of Corwen. This young man, Laurance Hastings by name, is betrothed to Letty, whose father had been mysteriously murdered in the Red Room of the Treharne Arms some ten years before, and who is now living under the protection of Olga Gwynne. The Red Room is reported to be haunted, and the arrival of an unsigned telegram asking for that particular room to be prepared for a guest not unnaturally creates a certain amount of curiosity and some alarm among the domestics of the establishment. Sir Rupert returns to the village after an absence of many years, and brings with him a clever young detective, Mr Smart, to attempt to solve the problem of the murder of the Red Room. The Squire is now anxious to wed his former mistress, Olga, but his offer of reparation has to be sadly refused by the repentant lady, because her lawful husband, Pietro Danelli, is still alive. She, however, implores his aid for their son, Laurance, to whom Sir Rupert makes a present of a considerable sum in banknotes, making a memorandum of the transaction in his diary and specifying the numbers of the notes. The mysterious visitor, on arrival, proves to be Pietro Danelli, Olga's rascally husband, an adventurer of the worst type, who regards men and women as valueless toys, to be played with so long as they amuse, and then cast aside crushed and lifeless. He loses no time in quarrelling with Sir Rupert, shoots him, and by a chain of false evidence implicates Laurance, who is thought to be guilty by the coroner's jury, and placed on his trial for murder. The detective, Smart, believing Pietro to be the murderer of both Letty's father and Sir Rupert, has an interview with Olga in the Red Room, during which the unfortunate woman admits her knowledge of the murderer, and though she will not speak his name, agrees to write it. The detective retires whilst she does so, but before her hand can pen the fatal words she is startled by a horrible wail, and, looking up, beholds the uncanny sight of a coffin, shrouded in black drapery, noiselessly floating through the air. The apparition vanishes, and she falls senseless to the ground. Danelli, by whom the trick was worked, and who has overheard the conversation between the pair, calmly walks into the room and writes on the prepared slip of paper the name "Laurance Hastings," and returns whence he came. The detective hurries back for the promised information, and, not noticing the recumbent figure of the woman, takes up the note and reads with the utmost astonishment the name of Laurance Hastings. Then he, too, hears the awful wail and sees the ghostly coffin, but he, stronger-minded than the woman, attempts to shoot. His pistols, having been tampered with by Danelli, fail him, and he is overcome in the ensuing struggle and killed. This murder is attributed by Danelli to Paul, the half-witted, who arrives on the scene too late to be of service to the detective. The villain next attempts to get Letty into his power by sending her a note, purporting to come from Laurance, asking her to come to him that night at the Treharne Arms, which has been vacated by its landlady. She, thinking her lover has escaped from prison, goes to him, and is just about to be overcome by Danelli, when she is rescued by Paul, who, throughout the play, acts as her guardian. The leaf from the pocket-book of Sir Rupert, with the numbers of the notes given by him to Laurence, is discovered, and the book itself is found by Paul, and the two together prove the innocence of the accused curate, who is thereupon released. Pietro Danelli, finding the game up, is intent on flight, when he is confronted by Olga, who is determined to bring about his arrest. A very realistic fight takes place between them, ending in the defeat of the man, who dies, stabbed to the heart by the hand of his injured wife, and the curtain falls.

Mr Arthur Hinton gives to his impersonation of the black-souled schemer, Pietro Danelli, a skilful touch of mysticism, which makes his performance a most powerful one, Mr Neville Graham (who, by the way, is to be complimented, as stage-manager, on the evident attention paid to details) plays the curate, Lawrence Hastings, with refinement, and Mr Ploens Gains, in a very natural make up, is an admirable Sir Rupert. A very clever study is that of Mr Ronald Ray, who, as the half-witted Paul, gets into touch with his hearers, and excites them alternately to tears and to laughter; Mr Charles Cameron ably portrays the astute detective, Smart; Mr Alfred Kenny is good as Sergeant Wiggins, and the Peter Pimple of Mr Tom Taylor is quaintly humorous, meeting with hearty approbation. Miss Lilian Earle makes a charming Letty, speaking her lines with commendable distinctness, Miss Marie E. Robinson is an alluring Dolly Dimple, and Miss Bernice Fielding's conception of the woman with a past, Olga Gwynne, is a picture of vivid realism which creates a lasting impression on the mind. The play should have a successful run.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Musical Comedy entitled "THE CHERRY GIRL."

Among the many selected plays promised by Mr Peter Davey, the popular manager, this season one of the first and most welcome is The Cherry Girl, running here this week. Mr C. Lubbock's talented company and chorus, scenic embellishments, and costumes are excellent, and consequently the audiences here are of a size to be found later in the season, when Kingston is supposed to be "at home." The Cherry Girl is a story of the Girl Queen (Miss Elsie Molloy) who changes places with one of her own subjects, Pansy, a cherry seller (Miss Katie May), with its attending amusing adventures and complications. These parts are exceptionally well filled. Miss Dorothy Frostick dances splendidly and is repeatedly applauded; and dainty little Miss Decima Brooke is very pleasing as Dimples. Miss Lottie Stone's pretty dancers display excellent taste, and the songs of the Avondale Quartet cause roars of laughter. Mr H. Herbert ably sustains the prominent parts of Moonshine and Happy Joe, and Mr H. W. Hewlett as Starlight and the Squire is very good.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON, on his flying visit to the Isle of Man last week end, wrote a courteous letter to Mr Charles Dare, proprietor of the popular minstrel troupe which performs on Douglas Head. Sir Thomas, knowing that no visit to the Island is complete without seeing these minstrels, informed Mr Dare in his letter that he had to leave hurriedly, but he trusted for "better luck" next time, and hoped to witness a performance by the troupe later on.

THE attraction at the West London Theatre this week is The Golden Ladder, which we fully noticed last week at Ealing.

THE AMERICAN STAGE.

"The Stage at the Present Moment" is an article by David Belasco in the Smart Set for September. He says:—"I wish it were in my power to write as enthusiastically of the American stage as I should like to do, but it would take an optimist indeed, and a base prevaricator at that, to throw a roseate hue over the theatrical situation in America as it stands at the present time.

"No better illustration of the despondent situation of the stage to-day could be given than the state of mingled panic and pandemonium which actors and managers alike are in at the present time—the eve of a new season which contains a Presidential election, a period which has always proved disastrous to theatricals. The managers, with ten theatres on their hands where they had one formerly, are panic-stricken at the paucity of attractions, and the actors who formerly were accustomed to sign their contracts early in June for the new season find themselves at large in shoals, with little prospect of any engagement until after the Presidential contest is over and the country has settled down again to the even tenor of its theatre-going way. One of the most prominent managers in this country, who has been in the habit of sending out from twenty to thirty companies every season, recently announced that for the future he intends to engage actors for the run of a play only. To the actors this means a tremendous difference, of course, but even that seems by comparison a detail to the crucial situation which stares the manager in the face. The goose that laid the golden egg is at its last gasp.

"The foreign play-market for the past two years has proved an almost total failure. Some years ago, in an attempt to corner the foreign play market, an American manager made the fatal mistake of putting nearly all the foreign playwrights under contract. Worse than that, he paid liberal sums in advance for the option on all their dramatic output. Now anyone who knows anything about writers in general knows that they are proverbially lazy. With their extravagant advance fees safely tucked away in the bank, these playwrights have suddenly lost their enthusiasm for work. Those of them who have continued to work have turned out plays far below their standard. Some of these plays, on the strength of their authors' reputations, have enjoyed short runs, but the bitter experiences of last winter have made the American managers chary of producing plays which have not made enduring successes abroad. And the real hits of the past season in London and Paris could easily be counted on the fingers of one hand. Besides, on the other hand, the day has gone by when America will applaud or flock to see a play simply because Paris has lauded it or London has raved about it.

"To my mind the most hopeful feature of the theatrical situation in America is the great spirit of independence and discrimination which the public has shown lately with regard to theatrical attractions. For the managers, to be sure, it has been a bitter experience, but it has taught them, I think, a much needed lesson. They realise that the public is no longer to be taken in by 'flubdub;' the bitter truth has been borne in on many of us that the dear old public will no longer swallow buncombe whole. For four or five years the country enjoyed a period of exceptional prosperity. The people were more or less theatre mad. Plays good, bad, and indifferent attracted large audiences, their managers made money hand over fist. But with last season the tide turned.

"The first victim, and the one that most richly deserved its fate, was the badly dramatised novel. The public absolutely refused to swallow any more of these crude and inchoate concoctions dramatised overnight, and literally chucked upon the stage after a couple of weeks' rehearsals.

"The next in line to suffer was the made-to order star—the man or woman who, after one or two successes in leading rôles, suddenly blossomed out as a would-be arc-light in the theatrical firmament.

"If the past disastrous season has done nothing else it has at least reduced these two theatrical impositions to their proper level. And I make this statement in all kindness, too, for no one knows better than I of the ceaseless toil, the unselfish devotion, the indomitable perseverance, and the heart-breaking setbacks which many actresses and some few actors are experiencing in their sincere struggles to reach the top of the ladder and to maintain their position there. After an experience of thirty years in theatrical matters—an experience which has covered all the ground from call-boy to actor and from prompter to playwright—I can lay my hand on my heart and say that, leaving genius aside, after all it is work and perseverance alone which tell in the most erratic of professions. No woman can become a great actress who has not drunk deeply and often of life's waters of marah, and no playwright can achieve permanent distinction who is not an indefatigable student of human nature. What tears and heartache do for the actress the ups and downs of everyday life ought to do for the playwright.

"The other day I heard a man of position in theatricals gravely assert that the day of the temperamental actor was gone. The public no longer wanted emotion, but preferred lay figures who could counterfeit the emotions with which the playwright had imbued them in a fitting but quite mechanical manner.

"Unconsciously, perhaps, that man put his finger on one of the most fatal mistakes which stage managers are making on our stage to-day. When temperament dies out and mechanism steps in we may as well star marionettes in our theatres at once. Kill temperament and you kill the public interest in the theatre. A charming personality will carry a marionette far, but without temperament to back it up it will leave the man or woman just on the wrong side of permanent success. I would not pay fifteen dollars a-week for the services of an actor or actress who would guarantee to give exactly the same performance for a hundred nights. The one great point which I always strive to impress on the actors in my companies is to assert their own individuality in their performances. I am perfectly free to confess that some of the finest bits of business I have ever had in my plays have been suggested by some chance gesture or speech which one of my actors has made at rehearsal. Actors, after all, are in many senses grown-up children. You can't drive them; they must be humoured. And that is one reason why I say that I would give as little for an untemperamental actor as I would for a stage-manager who had not a streak of diplomacy and a strong sense of humour.

"Stage-management, as a matter of fact, is an art in itself. To achieve success as a stage-manager a man must have a wider range of knowledge and acquirements than in any other profession that I know. The low level of the acting on our stages to-day is due to the fact that we as a theatrical nation are absolutely poverty-stricken in the matter of stage-managers. In America the business-manager, longing for more artistic laurels than the box-office receipts afford him, has usurped the seat of the stage-director. It is to this fact that I think the appalling ignorance and crudity displayed in many performances are due. The poor actors, badgered and frowned down until every shred of confidence or individuality has left them, not daring to call their souls their own, speak and move entirely as this man dictates. Every speech is studied, every gesture rehearsed until it has lost all trace of spontaneity, and then the poor actor wakes up in the morning after the first performance to read that the critics consider him a wooden and mechanical actor. This description is true not of one or two performances but of at least fifty productions which are brought out in New York in the course of a season.

"NAPOLEON THE GREAT."

A Romantic Drama, in Four Acts, by Frank M. Thorne. Produced at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Preston, on Monday, Aug. 29.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The above play opens with Napoleon's victorious return from Austria. He halts at a wayside inn at Villeneuve. A Polish fanatic, Paul Laczinska, hearing that Bonaparte is at the inn, attempts to assassinate him, but the Pole's wife, Marie Walewska—who is enamoured of Napoleon—warns him of the intended crime, which is frustrated, and the fanatic, Laczinska, arrested. Colonel Lavronnes, who belongs to a secret society called the White Cockade, whose members are adherents of the Bourbons, is a party to this plot.

In the second act Napoleon is at Fontainebleau. The Pole, Laczinska, with the assistance of Lavarennes, has escaped from his guard, and is in hiding on the outskirts of the forest of Fontainebleau. A disabled soldier, who is passing that place, is murdered and his clothes stolen to enable Laczinska to reach the coast. The Pole meets his wife passing through Fontainebleau, and she recognises him by a ring he wears, which he has forgotten to remove. Lavronnes has received a compromising letter from the Pole, which he causes to be found on Colonel Mouron, of whom he is jealous. Mouron is arrested and condemned to death, but he effects his escape from prison, and enters the house of Marie Walewska, not knowing that she resides there. Hearing people approach, he hides behind the window curtains. Laczinska is in hiding in a secret passage of the house, and Marie (his wife) has promised to obtain a passport and disguise to enable him to escape to England. In return he has promised never to come back to France or to attempt to overthrow the Napoleonic dynasty. Napoleon here visits Marie, and Laczinska, hearing his voice again, tries to murder him, but Marie interferes and saves Napoleon's life. Napoleon, finding Mouron in the house, demands an explanation of his presence, and Mouron confesses that he has escaped. The soldiers who have been pursuing Mouron enter the house. Napoleon informs them of the attempt upon his life, and orders them to search for Laczinska. Explanations ensue, and Napoleon finds that Lavronnes and not Mouron is really the guilty party. Thereupon Lavronnes is arrested. Laczinska is chased into the room by the soldiers, and finding himself cornered, without a means of escape, stabs himself. Napoleon restores Colonel Mouron to his position in the army.

Mr Hugh Montgomery's embodiment of Napoleon is thoroughly successful, his acting throughout being consistent and convincing, whilst in appearance he perfectly realises the popular impression of the great Emperor. Mr Henry Ellesmere gives a most effective delineation of the plotting Colonel Lavronnes. Mr Charles Halling is an excellent representative of Colonel Jules Mouron. As Paul Laczinska, a Pole, Mr M. Morley Carroll makes a typical villain. In the character of Pierre Pombonnet, an armourer, Mr Frank Thorne is amusing. Mr C. W. Spencer as Sergeant Choupin contributes a good share of the fun, and Mr C. Milton Curtis commendably depicts Marshal Bessieres. Miss Chrissie Dunbar looks and acts well in the trying part of Marie Walewska. Mdlle. Leonie Marbeuf is pleasingly impersonated by Miss Maud Russell; Miss Marie Harcourt is a lively exponent of Marcelle Choupin, a vivandière; and Miss Florence Thorne humorously portrays Mère Doumont. Other parts are capably sustained by Messrs E. R. Jones, Louis Edmond, Wilson Brown, W. G. Clements, D. Anderson, and Miss Adelaide Cromer. Judging from the enthusiastic reception accorded to the play its career is likely to be prosperous.

SYDNEY, JULY 12.—Mr Ernest Knight's new English company opened at the Criterion Theatre here recently in His Majesty the King, an adaptation of Marion Crawford's "In the Palace of the King." The story was fairly followed, with the addition of a visit by King Philip to Dolores in her own apartments and his declaration of love for her. The most pronounced success was scored by Miss Roland Watts Phillips as the Princess of Eboli. This accomplished actress has of late been engaged in meretricious farce comedy, and she is now welcomed back to more serious rôles. Miss Nellie Ferguson was the best of the "new" company, and her Doña Dolores had considerable merit. Mr Frank Harcourt, a sterling actor, gave a good account of General Mendoza, and Miss Nellie Farrant combined Spanish dancing and high kicking most attractively. The court jester, Adonis, by Mr J. Douglas Henry was difficult to play, but the actor did good work. Miss Mary Millward was Inez, and Miss Myra De Lissa a queenly consort of Philip. Mr Harry Taylor conducted, Mr W. Walters's Cathedral Male Quartette Party sang, and Mr G. F. Salas was business manager.

"TAPU" will run at Her Majesty's Theatre until Friday, and on the 30th Mr J. C. Williamson will commence his London Gaiety season with Kitty Grey. This coming season will introduce to Sydney playgoers a fine comedian in the person of Mr G. P. Huntley, and other well-known names are in the cast.

THE ENGLISH COMEDY COMPANY, headed by Miss Florence Hamer and Mr Wilfred Draycott, left for New Zealand during the week. The Maoriland tour is directed by Mr H. H. Vincent, who will complete his term of four years with Mr Williamson despite the new partnership.

"THE STRUGGLE OF LIFE" is Mr Walter Sanford's new production at the Lyceum. It is an infinitely better play than The Power of Gold, and much better acted by the company. The scenery is good, and the accessories are complete. Mr Walter Sanford is the hero, Edward Brocton, and Miss Adelaide Boothby the heroine, Nellie Duncan. The varied experiences of Madge Wilton are undertaken by Miss Laura Wall, and Mr Johnson Weir is the villain, John Lorley. Sam Bizzle is well portrayed by Mr Jean De Lacey, and his accomplice, Skinks, by Mr George Kimkel. The singularly unromantic character of the names in the cast is worthy of note. Mr Allan Hamilton is business manager.

"THE UNION JACK" introduces all the elements which attract Mr Bland Holt's patrons to the Theatre Royal, and the astute manager leaves nothing undone or unsaid to make the representation complete and as probable as the author will permit. "From Easter to Easter" is Mr Holt's season here as in Melbourne. The Prodigal Daughter will be staged next.

MR FRANK WILSON'S Marriage of Kitty company has been playing to record houses at the Theatre Royal, Margate, this week. On Wednesday night the house was filled at early doors, and every seat booked, which speaks well for the popularity of the play and the excellent company under Mr Wilson's management. Miss Vera Fordyce as Kitty had a most enthusiastic reception, and was called before the curtain at the end of each act.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

IT is practically settled that Mr Walter Gibbons will acquire the Grand, Clapham, though the arrangements await the confirmation of the shareholders. The matter will be finally decided at a meeting to be held on Monday. Mr Clifford King, of the Duchess, Balham, is spoken of as Mr Gibbons's resident manager.

MRS TOM BARRASFORD was taken suddenly ill on Saturday last, and this untoward event has prevented her popular husband's departure for Paris on Thursday to be present at the reopening of the Alhambra—the only English music hall in la ville lumière. At the moment of going to press we are glad to state that Mrs Barrasford is reported to be slightly better. With many of our readers, we hope to hear of her complete recovery shortly.

MISS VICTORIA MONKS, the charming burlesque actress, who recently returned from a successful South African engagement to renew her triumphs at the Palace Theatre, was married to Mr Karl Hooper (of the Hoopers) on Aug. 10 at Dundee, Scotland. Many of our readers will wish them much happiness.

MR CHARLES MORTON'S biography was one of the last tasks undertaken by the late Clement Scott. In consequence of his lamented death the work will now be completed by Henry Chance Newton—of the dramatic firm of Richard Henry, authors of Monte Cristo—and Mr William H. Morton, who is the youngest and only surviving brother of the father of the halls. The hale and vigorous veteran has two golden rules for those who would live long—hard work, and plain and wholesome fare. He attributes his excellent constitution to his mother, for whom he began to work when a little over nine years of age. This early start in life might have seriously affected his education; but he became one of the most constant and earnest students at a night school, for which he paid a small sum weekly out of his wages.

DATAS, the man of memory, has sold his head for £2,000. After his first performance in America he received a letter from two doctors, who said they would like to examine his brain. He called on them, they felt his bumps, and ended by saying they would like to purchase his head. "Rather a curious offer to make," said Datas. "Should be pleased to oblige, but don't quite see how." "We want to weigh your brain. Cuvier's weighed 64½oz., and we think yours must weigh 70oz. Will you sell your head for $10,000?" "After my death—yes," was the reply. The doctors agreed that they couldn't expect to get it before, so the deal was made, and Datas is now under contract to deliver his head to them immediately after his death. In the meantime he has deposited the £2,000 draft with his bankers in London, and has promised to report himself weekly to the proprietors of his head until he dies.

MR ALBERT GILMER has been to Llandrindod Wells for his holiday, and has now returned to his duties at the Oxford looking exceedingly fit. He has not yet been persuaded to study the language of the bards, but has a fine appreciation of Welsh scenery.

THE church of St. Michael and All Angels, Walthamstow, was crowded to its utmost capacity to witness a very pretty wedding on Saturday last, when Miss Rosa Barclay, youngest daughter of Mr Arthur J. Barclay, manager of the Walthamstow Palace, was united to Mr Percy Lines, son of Mr Richard Lines, the well-known estate agent of Kensington. The bride, looking very sweet as she was led up the aisle by her father, who gave her away, was beautifully dressed in ivory crêpe de chine over silk, trimmed with embroidered chiffon, with a handsome lace veil surmounted by orange blossoms. The bridesmaids were Miss Marjory Edney, Miss Phyllis Edney, Miss Nora Eyre, nieces of the bride, and Miss Elsie Pain, niece of the bridegroom. A numerous gathering of the friends of both families was present in the handsomely-decorated church, while outside, the staff of the Palace assembled in force to give a hearty "send off" and "God-speed" to the young couple.

AFTER the ceremony Mr and Mrs Arthur J. Barclay entertained a large company at their beautiful house on The Drive, amongst those present being Mr George F. Slatter, acting manager of the Palace, and Mrs Slatter, Mr H. Petersen (musical director) and Mrs Peterson, Miss Stroud Wilson, Mr Albert E. Hill, and many others. The presents were numerous and of a valuable character. The company enjoyed a thoroughly "good time," thanks to the genial hospitality of Mr and Mrs Barclay, and late in the afternoon Mr and Mrs Percy Lines bade adieux to their friends, leaving for Shanklin, Isle of Wight, where the honeymoon will be spent.

MR WILKIE BARD'S success in town is reflected in the fact that he remains at the Oxford and Tivoli until November. His song, "O, Capital O!" is a wonderful hit, but its great popularity is largely due to the extremely funny methods of the singer. Mr Bard is a resourceful pantomime laughter-maker, and he would have been surely secured for a London production this Christmas were it not for a lucrative engagement at Bristol. His continued stay in town is due to the courtesy of Mr Frank Allen, who has postponed some of his dates.

MR HERMANN FINCK, the clever and popular musical director of the Palace Theatre, with his wife and family, is spending his vacation at Margate, the merriest and most invigorating of holiday resorts. He returns to-night to his duties, which, during his absence, have been ably carried out by Mr Howick.

MR JOHN LENO, the eldest son of the popular Dan, has established a motor and cycle business in Balham, the works being named after his famous father. Young Leno has always been an enthusiastic bicyclist, and the business is thoroughly congenial to his tastes. He will have the good wishes of a large circle of friends and not an inconsiderable section of the public.

MR H. WOODFORD, the popular and courteous assistant-manager of the Alhambra, has returned to his duties after a most pleasant holiday. By the way, the new ballet at that house is one of the most beautiful that has been seen for years, and should recommend itself to the most enthusiastic members of the Peace Preservation Society, for it mirrors in the most fascinating and jovial manner a future of international amity that may be expected about the time of the millennium.

THE new Alhambra ballet has no soloist in short gauzy skirts, and the days of the première danseuse of the Taglioni school, whose costume was distinct from those worn by the rest of the ballet, seem to be gone. Mr George Edwardes has done more than anyone else to popularise dancing in long skirts, and the new development at the Alhambra is not likely to cause the same indignation that the management of the Gaîté in Paris roused when they requested Mdlle. Sarey to appear in a long skirt and high boots.

MR EDWIN BARWICK, who so good-naturedly burlesques Sir Henry Irving, is one of that popular actor's greatest admirers. He has just returned from the Moss circuit, and is now taking a well-[illegible]ed holiday with his family at Margate. He has [illegible]pleted a budget of new songs, and will present [illegible] of them to a London audience on Oct. 10.

MR JOHNNY THORNBOROW has resumed his duties at the Empire, Middlesbrough. Although hardly himself as yet, the popular little manager appears to have benefited very considerably by his holiday.

ON Saturday evening a large number of friends and employees of Mr E. H. Bostock, late of the Zoo and Hippodrome, Glasgow, met to do honour to Mr Joseph Arbuckle, late secretary to Mr Bostock, in the Cambridge Halls, Glasgow. Mr Arbuckle was presented with a handsome gold watch of beautiful design and workmanship, suitably inscribed, on the occasion of his leaving Glasgow to take up, we understand, the duties of manager at Mr Bostock's establishment, the Hippodrome, Norwich. Mr Gus Bostock was present, and, with other gentlemen, made a few remarks appropriate to the occasion. Mr Arbuckle made a suitable reply, and thanked all the subscribers for their kindness. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

THE Hippodrome, Ton-y-Pandy, having been acquired by Messrs Carlton and Duckworth, has been redecorated and improved by the addition of private boxes and an extension of the gallery during the vacation. It is to be reopened on Monday next, Sept. 5, for which event an excellent combination of stars has been engaged.

A SLIGHT alarm of fire, but which might have attained considerable dimensions but for the splendid promptitude of the staff, was raised at the Birmingham Gaiety on Monday last through the igniting of some films in the operator's box whilst the pictures were on view. The alarm was quickly allayed, and nothing untoward resulted, save one or two instances of bruised limbs.

MR LEONARD VIDAL, the courteous acting-manager of Mr Oswald Stoll's Leicester Palace Theatre, who has had a vast experience in matters professional, has arranged that the pit and the stalls, as well as the grand circle, can now be booked in advance. The booking for Dan Leno this week has been phenomenal, but under the watchful eye and guidance of Mr Vidal not a single hitch has occurred. Enormous audiences have been cleared from the first house and the second has been got in with a promptitude which speaks volumes for Mr Stoll's Leicester manager.

MR FRANK MACNAGHTEN'S Leicester Pavilion staff had their annual "wayzgoose" on Sunday, the rendezvous selected being one of the most charming spots in Leicestershire, namely Forest Rock, situated in the centre of the forest. The weather was gloriously fine, and when the party, numbering about fifty, lined up at 9.30 at the hall in Belgrave-gate with smiling faces a start was immediately made, the route taken being through Groby, Markfield, and Bardon-hill to the Forest Rock Hotel, which was reached at twelve o'clock. A most substantial dinner was served by Host Pollard at one o'clock, after which a commendably brief toast list was gone through.

MR JOE LAWRENCE, the stage-manager, in proposing "The health of Mr Frank Macnaghten and success to the Macnaghten Circuit," eulogised that gentleman's many good qualities. Mr Walter Lapworth, the acting-manager, in a few well-chosen words, also alluded to the many graceful acts of Mr Macnaghten. After dinner a move was made for a visit to the Mount St. Bernard Monastery, which is occupied by the Cistercian monks, and is situated on the south side of an immense rock near Whitwick. The return journey was commenced at 6.30, a different route being selected, and the happy party reached the hall at nine. Among those who accompanied them were Mr and Mrs Walter Lapworth (the acting-manager), Mr and Mrs Joe Lawrence (the stage-manager), Mr and Mrs Shipley, Miss Louie Reynolds, and Miss Edith James.

AT the Kursaal, Southend-on-Sea, on Wednesday next will be held the second grand confetti fête and fancy dress carnival, and on this, as on the occasion of the first fête, an extension till one o'clock in the morning has been granted. The management is making strenuous efforts to assure an enjoyable night's festival, and anticipate huge crowds. Many prizes will be awarded to ladies and gentlemen wearing the most handsome, the best topical, the best pierrot and pierrette, and the best advertisement costumes. Special prizes will be also given to winners of the various competitions, which include a cake-walk for adults, a musical bicycle ride, a barn dance, and a skirt dance. The ball room is to be beautifully decorated, and Mr Willie Clarkson is the costumier-in-chief for the occasion. The organisation and management of the carnival are again entrusted to Mr Chas. A. Barnett, who has just returned from Ireland.

THE annual outing of the staff of the People's Palace, Bristol, took place on Sunday. The party, which numbered about fifty-six, proceeded by drag and brakes to Cheddar, where a very enjoyable day was spent.

MESSRS BEANLAND AND BATH, the quaint comedians and cartoonists, have dissolved partnership, by mutual consent. Mr Joe Bath intends to shortly retire from the profession. Mr Charles Beanland will then work "on his own," and has secured some new songs, which he will introduce at the halls during the autumn. Messrs Beanland, Bath, and Danton have secured for next year a renewal of the lesseeship of the Summer Gardens at Bridlington, that popular East Yorkshire pleasure resort, where they have been such a great attraction with their pierrot company for a number of years.

MR CHARLES EVANS, the popular and courteous manager of the Hall-by-the-Sea, Margate, will take his annual benefit next Wednesday, when there is no doubt his numerous friends among the residents and visitors will rally round and support him. He promises an even more special programme than in previous years.

MR CHARLES MILNER, manager Pleasure Gardens, Withernsea, who took his annual benefit on Thursday, the 25th ult., was presented with a beautiful travelling trunk from the company, and also with a splendid cabinet from Mr Fred Lake, comedian. The benefit was a huge success, and Mr Milner has been re-engaged by Mr Will Catlin to manage next season, 1905.

DARE'S Minstrels continue to attract large crowds twice a day at Douglas, Isle of Man. Mr Dare has gathered together a host of artistes conspicuous in the profession. Mr Robert Dredge, male soprano, possesses a voice which, for sweetness, volume, and feminine qualities, it would be hard to beat. Mr Louis Murray is a success in all the latest baritone songs, and Mr Alec Sinclair has a rich bass voice. The accomplished comedians include Mr Fred Walton, who keeps the audience in roars of laughter with his funny eccentricities as stump orator; Dan O'Connor, with a fine budget of comic songs; and Messrs Blarney and Kennard, who provoke roars of laughter in their eccentric business. Will Cars, Charlie Moore, and Billy Hubbard also add to the merriment. Mr T. W. Royal gives daily an exhibition of clog dancing, his performance being a great draw. The waltzing dog (Messrs Blarney and Kennard) is an attractive item, and Mr Dare is a host in himself. He can crack a joke and sing a comic song with telling effect.

AT a recent circus performance in Londonderry the boys in the gallery, dissatisfied with the entertainment, clambered over the heads of shilling and two shilling seat-holders, and cut the guy ropes, broke the cinématograph, and pulled down the tent. The clown was roughly handled.

MISS NELLIE WALLACE returns on Monday to the Tivoli, having just completed a most successful tour of the Moss circuit. Miss Wallace, by her doctor's advice, has given up her engagement at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, this Christmas, where she was re-engaged to appear as the Dame.

MISS LIL HAWTHORNE has just finished a most successful starring tour of twelve weeks on the Moss Empires. After playing Plymouth and Bristol, she returns to London for eight weeks, following with the Stoll tour, which takes her up to rehearsal time for pantomime at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol. "The Boy in Blue," "Lucy Loo," "The Gal of Tennessee," "Nellie M'Gee," and "Tessie" have been Miss Hawthorne's big song successes this season.

MISS KATE LAWRENCE'S newest song is one calculated to rivet the attention of audiences on account of its graphic though totally improbable story and its stirring march-time chorus. It is tentatively entitled "The Red Sea Pirates: a Tale of the P. and O." It details how a British cruiser comes across a liner, the captain of which tells how they have been molested by a foreign war vessel, and of a bitter insult to the flag. The chorus embodies the naval commander's stern reply and resolve, and the two remaining verses deal with the disguising of the cruiser as a liner, the meeting with the foreigner, and what befell thereupon.

BRINN, who is the newest strong man to appeal to Palace patrons, gives a very remarkable exhibition of muscular power and skill in his act, which he terms "Sports on a Battleship." His juggling with heavy shells is certainly wonderful, and audiences at the Palace palpitate with excitement when, after balancing a gun and its carriage on his chin, he fires it. Brinn has for some years been associated with what is called a strong act, and he made his first bid for popularity in London under the name of Milo. He was born in Milan, and first came to England about fourteen years since. His present performance shows considerable ingenuity, and in the cannon feat he is greatly daring.

MESSRS FRANCIS, DAY, AND HUNTER, with their usual enterprise, are about to issue the first of their "Twopenny Pops." This will be "All the Little Ja-pansy Faces," Mr Mark Sheridan's laughable parody of "Pansy Faces," written by that sterling writer for the variety stage Harry Castling. The new venture is well printed on good paper in clear type, and consists of four pages somewhat smaller than full music size, giving the air in the old notation without the accompaniment.

THE will of Mr Isaac Fineberg, late proprietor of the Star Liverpool, has been proved by Mr Joseph Fineberg, Mr Harris Fineberg, and Mr James Francis Harrison, the executors of the testator. The estate has been sworn for probate at £19,514.

MR OSCAR BARRETT, managing-director of the Prince's, Manchester, has secured a fine cast for his Christmas production of Cinderella. Miss Millie Lindon, who played the part in 1902-3 at the King's, Hammersmith, will be the Prince, and Miss Ida Rene will appear as the cinderwench heroine. Miss Lindon has such an excellent répertoire of songs, and is so earnest and—if we may say so—"manly" in her acting that she makes an ideal principal boy, and Miss Ida Rene—a mistress of stage coquetry—should invest the heroine of the hearth with both freshness and charm.

PROFESSORS of necromancy and legerdemain in these twentieth-century days keep on piling up tricks that not only puzzle the uninitiated but are not easily fathomed even by those cognisant of up-to-date "experiments"—to use the word honoured by Messrs Maskelyne and Cooke. The Ten-Ichi Troupe of Japanese—who, by the way, were interviewed by representatives of at least three managements after their acceptance of an engagement at the Alhambra—are responsible for a pretty fountain trick; but it will be left to Mr Ralph Dean, an American illusionist, to produce blocks of ice at will. He will introduce on Monday week (Sept. 12) to Palace audiences his "magic kettle," and will upset all preconceived notions of the effects of heat on water. It is said that he defies detection. He has fulfilled a very successful engagement in New York, and in securing his services for the popular house in Shaftesbury-avenue the management will be able to present a very remarkable novelty. The magic kettle should become the talk of London.

MISS ARABELLA ALLEN, who is delineating characters from Dickens at the London Pavilion, has been a lover of Dickens' books ever since she was old enough to read them, and made her début two years ago in several of the principal characters in the famous novels, including Uriah Heep—her favourite impersonation—Little Nell's Grandfather, and Quilp. She has always preferred playing the men, although Mrs Gamp and Rosa Dartle are two of her best attempts. Miss Allen is very musical, having passed from the study of the piano to the mandolin, and from the mandolin to the violin. One of her most exciting experiences was an engagement at the City Hall, Glasgow, at the time when Lord Rosebery unveiled the statue of Gladstone in St. George's-square. He had promised to speak the large audience in the City Hall after the entertainment, and Miss Allen received so many encores that Lord Rosebery paid her the compliment of saying, at the beginning of his speech, that he had really been afraid they would not have time to listen to him at all "because of the popularity of our young friend."

MISS ALLEN follows Dickens' delineations as closely as possible. She practises four or five hours every day, and takes the greatest trouble over the smallest detail. In the old men's parts she blackens her teeth out, and in her present répertoire of sixteen characters she hopes to include Pecksniff, Peggotty, Mrs Gummidge, and Fagin. Miss Allen has a mass of soft brown hair, a most expressive face, and is still in her teens. Mr Dickens, K.C., has complimented her on her impersonations, and has presented her with a magnificent set of drawings illustrating his father's works. She has signed a contract with Mr Frank Glenister to play a season every year for the next three years at the London Pavilion.

IT is a curious fact that Mr Charles Hector, who has been now duly installed as manager of the London, Shoreditch, was nearly chosen for its first manager. He was at Hammersmith and Collins's, and his many friends have offered him hearty congratulations on the attainment of his new position.

MR PAUL MARTINETTI, like Mr Frank Glenister, is a most appreciative up-river resident during the summer. Paul is an enthusiastic fisherman, and may be seen plying the gentle craft in the neighbourhood of Staines.

MR CHARLES CLIFFORD, the vocalist and harpist, is in his fifth week at the Aquarium, Rothesay, an excellent testimonial to his ability.—Billy Ross and company, who are successfully deputising this week at the Queen's, Poplar, sail for America shortly.—Professor J. H. Maccann is fulfilling a successful series of engagements with Professor Wood at the sacred concerts given at the Grand Theatre, Douglas.—Carl and Carr, who will now take two weeks' rest at their Bristol home, are booked with Mr Arthur Carlton to play Chinese policemen in his Christmas production of Aladdin, at the Ealing Theatre.

LITTLE TICH, who has lately been suffering from slight illness, made his reappearance at the Tivoli at the latter end of last week. An important addition to this week's programme is Joe Elvin and company, in the laughable farce Riding to Orders.

THE Metropole, Camberwell, will reopen on Monday next under the management of Mr Jack De Frece as the Metropole Theatre of Varieties with a programme that will be presented twice nightly. Mr De Frece comes of a family that has long been associated with variety enterprise of every kind, and he is a brother of Mr Walter De Frece, the genial husband of the popular Vesta Tilley. His experience, too, as director and manager of the entertainments at Collins's and the London, Shoreditch, should stand him in good stead in his new position. The company Mr De Frece has engaged ought to ensure the success of his bold venture, and among the many clever artists in it are the Sisters Vincent; Percival, trick pianist; John Hallane, the Four Andys, Frank Cunningham, Jacob Rickaby, Syd Whitaker, the Cerito Troupe of dancers, and Walter Summers's company of comedians in a laughable sketch.

MR LANDON RONALD, who has been again very successful in his musical setting of an Alhambra ballet, is the son of the late Henry Russell, and though but a little over thirty has written over 100 songs. He was educated at St. Marylebone and All Souls' Grammar School and the High School, Margate (now Margate College). Part of his musical education was given him in Germany, and he married a German lady, Fraulein Mimi Ettlinger, of Frankfort-on-Maine, in August, 1897. He was first associated with a London theatre as solo pianist in the successful play without words, L'Enfant Prodigue, produced at the Prince of Wales's, and was engaged by Sir Agustus Harris as maestro at piano and conductor at Covent-garden in 1891. After conducting grand opera there in 1894, he went as musical director with Madame Melba to America. He had the honour of twice appearing before Queen Victoria at Windsor in 1897 and at Balmoral in 1898.

DURING the latter year he became conductor of the Lyric. He wrote additional numbers to Little Miss Nobody, L'Amour Mouillé (in which Miss Evie Greene made her first London hit), Florodora, and The Silver Slipper. His song-cycle, "Summer Time," was produced by the London Philharmonic Society, and his first work for the Alhambra was the musical setting of the Coronation ballet of 1902 entitled Britannia's Realm. Mr Landon Ronald is the musical editor of a weekly contemporary, and writes of the art he loves in the magazines.

MR SID MAY'S funny skit on the champion wrestler Hackenschmidt has caused so much hearty laughter at the Empire that Mr Harry Hitchens has lengthened his exclusive engagement there. This has been accomplished through the courtesy of Mr George Harrop, who has been kind enough to cancel Mr May's next week's engagement at Blackpool.

A FRENCH gentleman staying in town was, during the week, expressing his admiration of the system in vogue here of affixing medallions to houses where poets, painters, and authors of note have dwelt, and was gravely assured by a well-known writer for the music hall stage (who is an inveterate wag) that an even better mark of esteem was shown to present-day music hall scribes, it being the usual thing nowadays when a "star" got a good song for him or her to buy with a portion of the week's salary a London street, to name it after the song-writer, and then to present that individual with the freehold of the houses in it. The intelligent foreigner, in proof thereof, was taken and shown Wincott-street, Harrington-square, Wells-street, and Bateman's-buildings, Soho.

MISS FANNY ROBINA, who opens on Monday at the Battersea Palace with her song entitled "Claude Duval," wears a very picturesque costume. With her white knee-breeches, white waistcoat, and white lace cravat, green coat with three capes attached, three-cornered black felt hat, high boots, pistol, belt, and hunting crop, she gives a very good presentment of a highwayman. The lime-lights thrown on the stage in the different colours of amber, red, and white show up the green and white of the costume, and help to make it a very effective stage picture.

THE 370th meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Harry Blake presiding. Mr Ernest Hillyard, of the Posada, Union-street, Plymouth, was appointed as agent in that town. The secretary reported that fourteen new members had joined during the past week, making a total number enrolled since the commencement of 10,451.

MR AND MRS F. EVANS-FLORADOR (Miss Beattie Trixie) have lost their baby girl, who passed away on Saturday last at Gravesend, the cause of death being pneumonia and inflammation of the lungs. Much sympathy has been shown the bereaved parents, and the little coffin was covered with crosses and wreaths of white flowers, sent by Mrs Mears, Miss Harris, Mr G. Chatterton, Mr and Mrs J. Cheek, Miss Emma Don, Mrs Egmont, Miss Annie Chittenburg, the parents, the stepbrothers Freddy and Joey Florador, and Mrs Brown (nurse). The funeral took place at Northfleet on Tuesday.

MR LEO DRYDEN, whose "An Actor and a Man" has been received with marked favour, will shortly produce another song-poem, by H. Burrows-Smith, author of "Sleep, Comrade, Sleep," entitled "Misunderstood."

"SATURDAY TO MONDAY," which has been played as a musical piece at the theatres in South London, will return to the Canterbury on Monday as a sketch, or, rather, an episode. Mr Fred Karno's company will be again responsible for the production, and Mr Fred Kitchen will once more elicit roars of laughter as the bridegroom Jaggs.

MR WILL NEWMAN'S vaudeville company from the Happy Valley, Westcliff-on-Sea, and his troupe of pierrots from Pawley's Green, had their first annual outing on Sunday last, and a most enjoyable day was spent, the weather being perfect. The party started from the Alexandra Hotel at three o'clock by coach (four-in-hand), and drove to the Castle at Wickford, where a capital tea awaited them, to which they all did full justice. Amongst the guests were Mr and Mrs Minerva Brown and Mr and Mrs A. Middleton Buxton, and Mr and Mrs Will Newman honoured the gathering with their company. Mr Alexander Klockenbush could not get away, so gave a donation and two baskets of fruit. The arrangements were in the hands of Messrs Henry Nation, Sam Dalton, and Charles Clarke, who acted as stewards.

ON Friday night, Aug. 26, towards the end of the performance at the Rotunda Hippodrome, Dublin, a regrettable accident occurred to Madame Ella Zulla, who was engaged in crossing a tight-wire while mounted on a bicycle. She used a balancing pole, and when near the end of the hazardous trip the pole touched an electric lamp, with the result that Madame Zulla lost her equilibrium and fell to the ground, a distance of about 20ft. She appeared to be stunned, and was at once removed to her dressing-room. Two doctors were soon in attendance, and the ambulance was summoned, but the lady declined to go to an hospital. Several ladies amongst the audience fainted, and, amid a scene of excitement, were carried out by their friends. The manager of the Hippodrome took prompt and effective measures to prevent anything like a panic, and, after a short interval, announced that Madame Zulla was not seriously injured.

SUBSCRIPTIONS to the Mrs Jean Stanley Fund since last list have been sent to Mr Richard Warner by Mr H. E. Moss, £1 1s.; Mr Frank Allen, 10s.; and Sir Robert Cranston (Edinburgh), 10s.

DR. WALFORD BODIE finishes to-night at the Canterbury and Paragon one of the most successful engagements of the year. Both these large halls have been packed nightly to overflowing, the holding capacity being taxed to its utmost. Last week the Doctor finished at Collins's and Camberwell Palace, where he has broken all records, hundreds having to be turned away nightly. On Saturday night Mr Jesse Sparrow came on the stage and publicly presented Dr. Bodie with a handsome and costly present, consisting of two large claret jugs in case mounted on gold, beautifully chased and engraved with the Scottish lion rampant, with shield, on the lids. The gifts were presented on behalf of the directors of the Camberwell Palace, to commemorate the doctor's fulfilment of the most successful engagement since the hall was built. Dr. Bodie replied, and the audience rose and cheered again and again. Dr. Bodie has been rebooked for other three dates. He will open on Monday his Scotch tour at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, and returns again to London at Christmas.

AT the Marlborough-street Police-court, on Saturday, Mr Hedderwick, solicitor, on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association, applied to Mr Kennedy for a summons against the Oxford Music Hall in respect of The Belle of the Orient, produced at that place of amusement, which was alleged to be a stage play. Mr Kennedy—Have we got to go on with this kind of thing again? I had hopes we had finished and that they had shaken hands. Mr Hedderwick—The piece has seven or eight "parts" and three scenes. We say it is a complete musical play. Mr Kennedy—I must have some evidence. These are important cases. Mr Hedderwick said he had evidence, and produced some programmes in support of his contention, but the magistrate was not satisfied, and said that he must have full information showing all the facts before he could grant a summons.

MR CHARLES URBAN is sending an expedition, under the direction of Mr Martin Duncan, of Micro-Bioscope fame, to South America for the purpose of getting pictures of places which have not so far received attention at the hands of Cinématographers. The expedition will go up the Amazon river to Buenos Ayres, visiting Mexico and California, and thence into Central America. Photographs of the building of the Panama Canal will be taken.

THE Urban company have also obtained permission to, and made arrangements for, getting views of the interior of Kaiser Wilhelm II., which, it may be remembered, holds the record for the journey from England to America across the Atlantic. A special dynamo is to be placed in the engine-room of the vessel in order to supply the motive power for the arc lamps which will give the necessary light for photographing purposes. This will be the first time that moving pictures of the inner workings of a great ocean-going liner have been taken.

MR CHARLES URBAN'S representative in Russia recently received some fine photographs of military scenes. These are being held over until the fall of Port Arthur, or until a great decisive battle has been fought out. It may be mentioned that it will not be possible to obtain further Russian pictures, on account of the fact that an order has been promulgated by the authorities at St. Petersburg to the effect that no more snapshotting will be allowed. As a matter of fact, we are informed that no less than 2,000 Kodaks have been taken from Russian officers and others, and confiscated by the Government.

THE Gibson Girls, a couple of talented American duettists, made their first appearance in England at the Palace Theatre on Monday. One of their songs described the wants and ambitions of the Gibson Girls, made famous by Mr Charles Dana Gibson. This is the first attempt that has yet been made to copy the Gibson young ladies on the stage, and their dresses were as representative and characteristic as their songs. The two artistes were attired in tightly-fitting "Princess" gowns, the decoltage being cut low and edged with pale pink tulle, with long sprays of gold flowers hanging in front. The lower part of the dress flows out widely at the bottom, embroidered round with true-lovers' knots. There are no sleeves to the dress. The ladies on their second appearance wear large pink picture hats trimmed with plumes, and carry fluffy parasols.

THE Gibson Girls will remain for a further period of five weeks at the Palace, after which they go to Paris and other Continental cities and later on to Russia. They have created a most favourable impression at the Shaftesbury-avenue house.

THE latest additions to the brotherhood of Terriers are Dr. Walford Bodie, Mr Norman Mills, comedian and manager to Dr. Bodie; and Mr L. A. Smith, of Smith and Johnson, vocal duettists.

MR JOHNNY JOHNSTON is taking two weeks' holiday with his friend, Herbert Clark (Clark and Hamilton), prior to opening on Sept. 12 at the London Pavilion, where he has been secured for three years by Frank Glenister, through the agency of George Barclay, in whose hands he has now entirely placed his business.

THE prettiest girls in the great factories in the neighbourhood of Shoreditch, Aldgate, and Bow, have entered for a beauty competition at the Cambridge. Up to Tuesday afternoon there were over forty entries, and it is expected that about eighty damsels (who must be over sixteen) will submit their charms to the discriminating eyes of the committee, which will be composed of tradesmen in the district. The prizes to be awarded are sufficiently tempting, being a sewing machine, a costume, and a winter coat or mantle. Three consolation prizes will also be given.

DURING Mr George F. Slatter's absence on his holidays, Mr Arthur J. Barclay is ably assisted in the acting-management of the Walthamstow Palace by Mr Albert E. Hill, who, since the opening of that establishment, has presided over the box-office.

AT North London Police-court, on Monday, Mr J. Christie, acting-manager at the Hackney Empire, asked for a licence to enable two children to perform an acrobatic act at that house for the week. In reply to the magistrate, the applicant said the children were Germans, and were engaged for an eight weeks' tour. Mr Dickinson—Where is their father? A lady who was with the children said he was in Germany. Mr Dickinson—And I suppose these children support the family? The lady—Yes, that is their living. Mr Dickinson—Is it a dangerous performance? Mr Christie—It is a trapeze, about four feet from the stage, and there is a net beneath it. Mr Dickinson—How long are these children on the stage? Mr Christie—About eight minutes at each of the two houses. Mr Dickinson—Who looks after them? Police-inspector Lee—The mother is with them. Mr Dickinson—Have they been certified as medically fit? Police-Inspector Lee produced the certificate.

MR DICKINSON—Both these children—a boy and a girl—are under the age of eleven years, and the Act says that there shall be an interval of four hours between each performance. When do the children go on? Mr Christie—At a quarter-past eight and half-past nine; but they could go on first in the first house and last in the second house. Mr Dickinson—That will not do. Inspector Lee—They have already performed at Shepherd's-bush. Mr Dickinson—I think it is desirable that the regulations should be carried out; and, therefore, I can only licence these children for one performance—and that in the first house

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

THE ROYAL.

Under the energetic government of the enterprising Mr Walter Gibbons, business at the old-established Holborn music hall appears to be flourishing, and the programme presented twice nightly is both varied and entertaining. A welcome of much cordiality is that extended to Mr Harry Pleon, a comedian and mimic whose entertainment can always be relied upon to amuse. In "It's the same old song" the resourceful little humourist has a number that evokes laughter, and his imitations of Sir Henry Irving, Mr Martin Harvey, Dan Leno, Joe Elvin, John Lawson, Gus Elen, and other prominent theatrical and music hall people are as faithful as ever. The dialogue he uses in his mimicry is always diverting, and his entire turn is keenly enjoyed and loudly acclaimed at its termination. The paper-tearing act of the Vernons is expert and novel, the lady executing a pretty and intricate design with her eyes covered with a handkerchief and her wrists tied behind her, the gentleman also exhibiting much cleverness at the work, the couple being loudly cheered at the conclusion of their unique turn. Brien and Lawrence, variety entertainers, present an amusing little trifle, embracing some humorous conversation and pleasing singing and dancing. The male of the duo is an expert siffleur, and gives some realistic imitations of a gramaphone, a small dog evidently in pain, and various other familiar noises. Janette, a smart little vocalist and dancer, gives a tuneful song, "If you must love, love me," also contributing a neat and skilful step dance; and the Sisters Oswald, a couple of clever and decidedly attractive speciality dancers, score unmistakably in their refined turn. "Kiss me good-night and go" is the vocal item of one of these divinely tall young ladies, her fair companion giving a dance of much grace and expertness, and the pair are also heard and seen with pleasure in a smart duet and dance. Lieut. Albini, the well-known and gifted illusionist, introduces "The Mysterious Lady in Black," a clever piece of deception that evokes much wonderment and appreciation. The success of his show is greatly enhanced by his easy manner and his many humorous remarks at the expense of the couple of members of the audience who go on the stage in the vain endeavour to discover "how it's done;" and the cleanness, finish, and quickness of the illusion is something to marvel at. Another turn that creates much wonderment is that of Ahrensmeyer, "the wizard of the plains," a hypnotist who, apparently, is capable of doing almost anything with those who place themselves under his control. On Tuesday evening, at the first house, his initial achievement was to awaken a young lady who had been in a cataleptic sleep since 12 30 midday. It was stated that she had calmly reposed in the lobby of the theatre for some considerable time, and that a number of doctors and surgeons had unsuccessfully endeavoured to arouse her. A few passes from Ahrensmeyer, however, quickly brought her to her senses, and the amazement of the audience found expression in loud cheering. A number of the galleryites, and at least one lady from the more select portion of the house, next ventured on the stage, and, under the influence of the "wizard," speedily indulged in song and dance and many grotesque antics, two male subjects sitting on the boards and taking off their boots, and altogether behaving in a most ludicrous manner. Ahrensmeyer also introduced Miss Rhoda Cecil, "the original dancing Trilby," and his performance concluded with the hypnotism of a young lady who, when quite rigid, is laid across the backs of two chairs, an immense stone placed on her chest being severed with a blow from a huge hammer. It is claimed that Ahrensmeyer can accomplish many other startling results, and his entertainment certainly seemed to impress Tuesday's audience. Other interesting items in the excellent programme are given by the Picquays, wonderful balancers; the Sisters Williams, vocalists; and the Brothers Ashley, who are responsible for a laughable boxing sketch. Mr H. Ketteman is Mr Gibbons's courteous and capable first lieutenant here.

THE MIDDLESEX.

Fun is the chief ingredient of the entertainment at the popular Drury-lane hall, for J. L. Graydon, fully aware that his patrons have an insatiable appetite for merriment, sees that it is never absent from his bill. A prolific source of hilarity is the act of Mr Harry Ray and Miss Lily Calden, who on Monday introduced a new comedy scene which they call An Artist's Ambition. An easel and a picture form the only excuse for the title, and for the introduction of a lady artist and a multi-millionaire, who has original methods of painting. The behaviour of the gentleman, who announces himself in a comic song, savours throughout of eccentricity which makes a direct appeal to the sense of humour possessed by the popular ear, and the constant laughter of the audience is the natural sequence. A duet of "Rag-time street" follows, the characteristic dance being distinguished by a number of clever somersaults—a department of his art at which Mr Ray is an adept, and for which he is heartily and deservedly applauded. The spirit of mirth is first awakened by Kyoto, from whose "mysterious Japanese box" is produced a series of fradulent tricks which he himself exposes; but his claims to approval rest chiefly upon his feats of contortion, into which his whole body, from the crown of his head to the soles of his feet, are impressed. Kyoto, who is assisted by a pretty little fox terrier, is the object of manifest approval. Roze and Calvert prove irresistibly funny in their skit Captain Scuttle, and the success of their interlude is aided in no small measure by the smart appearance and the sweet singing of the lady performer. The comic character of the entertainment is fully maintained by Mr Cliff Ryland, whose sparks of wit fly to all parts of the house, the laughter being accordingly abundant throughout his anecdotal essay. Miss May Geraldine sings a pretty ballad expressively and does a neat dance, and little Queenie May brings out the realities of a juvenile winkle vendor, besides delivering some scathing but tuneful criticisms on those responsible for the Act that debars children from fetching beer. The clever little comedienne sings with marvellous distinctness, and works with such a will as to gain the most cordial applause. A hearty demonstration is reserved for Miss Vesta Victoria whose appearance as an "Artist's Model," dressed in a flowing toga and armed with a lyre is comical in the extreme. She is mistress of the art of grotesquery, which is especially evident in her impersonation of a "romp" in "Never had a father or a mother," a song which elicits rousing cheers. The peculiarities of Dusty Rhodes are many and varied, and his burlesques of songs and singers are productive of mirth. That he has a pleasing baritone voice is shown in some snatches of song, his imitation of Mr George Lashwood being also admirable. The Vernon Troupe find a sure road to favour in the playing of their giant xylophones, for which they are more than once recalled, and Mr Mark Leslie gains the greatest admiration for his elegant copper-coloured coons, with their smart dances. Mr Herbert La Martine's style of singing is admirably suited to his song "In the sweet bye-and-bye," and in a coon ballad with the refrain of "Oh, what a shame!" which takes the ear of the audience, compelling the exercise of their vocal abilities. His dancing, too, is remarkable for its activity and varied contortions, while preserving its rhythmic quality and fanciful movements. The pictures on the New Bioscope are amusing and thrilling by turns, the film entitled "A Lover's Crime," showing the exciting chase of a murderer by flood and field, being very engrossing. Mr Harry Champion and Mr Pat Rafferty are also in the programme. Mirth flows riotously during the progress of Mr Claude Ginnett's Rejected Remounts; and one of the finest entertainments to be seen is brought to a conclusion by the merry pranks of the Six Brothers Luck in The Demon of the Cellar. Mr Charles G. Rembges, who has been taking charge of the Empire, Middlesbrough, for the past two months, has returned to his post in front, and has a welcome from numerous friends.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

A step in the right direction has apparently been made by Mr Russell Wallett, an actor who has won fame in the theatres, and who appeared at the Hammersmith Palace on Monday with such success as to justify the experiment. Mr Wallett came on the stage as a giddy damsel attired in a fashionable décolleté gown, and, until he spoke, it was evident that the majority of the audience mistook him for one of the weaker sex, so realistic was his impersonation. In his very amusing interlude "People I've met" he quickly gave evidence of his versatility as an entertainer, contributing a humorous serenade, a mock pathetic recitation—"The mother and the child were there"—with appropriate music, and a laughing Negro song, in all of which he accompanied himself on a grand piano. In response to a unanimous demand for more, Mr Wallett gave an imitation of the popular comedienne, Miss Fannie Leslie, singing "She always dressed in black," concluding with a dance. Some amusing remarks were also included in Mr Wallett's varied and entertaining turn, and the clever comedian's reception was of the most cordial description. In Mr J. C. Coe's alluring programme at his well-governed and popular hall no turn excites more enthusiasm than that given by Parke's Eton Boys, a troupe of youthful vocalists whose entertainment is always acceptable. The smartly trained youngsters gave "Drinking," "Oh, Genevieve," "There's music in the air," and "Rosie," each number being excellently rendered, and such was the warmth of their reception that their principal—who largely adds to the success of the show by his admirable accompaniments—came on the stage at the conclusion and claimed the indulgence of the audience for a youth whose vocal abilities had previously been confined to singing in the streets. The lad gave a most acceptable rendering of "Will you be true to eyes of blue," an effort for which he was loudly acclaimed. Early in the programme Mr Fred Walker, comedian, gave a laughable impersonation of an inebriated individual who finds himself in the wrong house after an evenings merry-making; and the San Remo Trio, three little girls in blue, gave a decidedly attractive and skilful dancing turn. The facial act of Swan and Stanley was novel and artistic, the clever pair giving some faithful and interesting portraits of Grace Darling and an old sailor, Napoleon and Wellington, a wounded soldier and Tommy Atkins convalescent—nursing the nurse, and many other popular subjects. The female impersonation of Mr Harry Conlin was his funniest contribution, the lady's experiences causing shrieks of merriment; and the couple of humorous ditties given by Mr Chas. Lilburn were smartly rendered and favourably received. There was decidedly more cleverness than comicality in the turn of Gusto, comedy cyclist, his execution of many difficult feats calling forth loud approval; and the funny interlude of Mr Bert Gilbert, "My Birthday," was responsible for some of the loudest laughter heard during the evening, the finished comedian scoring with another well-rendered selection. Howard and Collinson extracted a deal of mirth from their smartly played little trifle, "The Porter and the Parcel," the young lady who impersonates the mechanical doll being a clever high-kicker and dancer, and imitating the jerky movements of the clockwork figure with much expertness. The porter is a smart tumbler and acrobat, and the pair were cordially applauded at the conclusion of their novel turn. The dramatic sketch of the bill, Black-eyed Susan, was excellently enacted by Mr Adderley Howard and his capable company, including Miss Dolly Elsworthy, who gave a pathetic portrayal of the distressed Susan, the acting of the two principals in the scene of Susan's farewell to William being particularly impressive. The gentleman who played Jacob was frequently the cause of merriment by his many funny antics and remarks, and the other characters were all carefully and capably undertaken. In the bill also are that favourite comedienne, Miss Vesta Victoria, with her amusing songs and smart dancing; Ginnett's Rejectd Remounts, an equestrian sketch that never fails to arouse the loudest of laughter; and the Edisonograph with all the latest films. The courteous and able manager here is Mr Lewis Vincent; the excellent band being carefully controlled by Mr J. H. Cleve.

BARNARD'S, GREENWICH.

Large and appreciative audiences nightly assemble in this favourite hall to enjoy the excellent entertainment, which contains many novel features, provided by the energetic management. After a well played overture the curtain rises on the turn of Miss Katie Beaumont, vocalist and danseuse, whose rendering of "A la Fransaise" is well received. This lady is followed by an amusing sketch entitled To Make Her Jealous, which trifle is well acted by Miss Rose D'Evelyn and company. Next comes Louis Seymour, whose patter is very funny and whose singing of "Love Birds" and "Faces" is warmly appreciated. Messrs Harrigan and Holt provide an excellent turn in the form of two well-sung patter songs, which are greeted with loud laughter and applause. Ruffel's Imperial Bioscope exhibits some interesting pictures, chief among which is a series entitled The Coiners' Den. Miss Mildred Harcourt delights all present with her singing of "She read the London papers every day" and "The Spider and the Fly." The O'Reilly Brothers give a remarkably clever and effective statue dance, and for their second item contribute a smartly executed clog dance. Miss Cissie Reece is a great favourite, and her songs "Kiss me, Georgie!" "Thursday Afternoon," and "Cupid," are deservedly applauded. Messrs Bradley and Warwick present an amusing comedy sketch by E. C. Matthews, entitled The Advent of Venus. This is really well acted, and provoked roars of laughter. Primrose gives a specimen of his wonderful buck dancing, and also contributes "I'll be your honey in the springtime." Clever Miss Tiny Reiff comes next, and is rapturously applauded in her songs entitled "The Picnic," "Frills Brigade," and "A Nice Time." Miss Tiny Reiff is a very attractive artiste, and is most popular here. The evening's entertainment concludes with a splendid specimen of banjo playing, contributed by Stanley and Greenop.

ROZA'S HIPPODROME

AT THE GRAND, GRAVESEND.

A programme far beyond the usual excellence is this week being presented at the local music hall. It would be very difficult to find at a provincial hall a performance exceeding in merit the turn for which Mdlle. Roza is responsible, for to few is it given the same undoubted success in the training of dogs that she has attained with her large assortment of the canine species. We are in no way exaggerating the capabilities of her pets when we say that they appear able to do everything possible to men with the exception of talking, and towards the exercise of that they make a considerable stride. These wonderful little dogs are nightly to be seen taking part in such feats as skipping, dancing, somersault-turning, footballing, steeplechasing, and like antics. The whole of this turn is done smartly, and the enthusiastic applause of the crowded "houses" are unmistakable testimony to the public's appreciation.—Reporter, Saturday, Aug. 27, 1904.

SCHACK SEIBOLD is at present in Scotland, where he meets with very flattering receptions for his artistic playing on his musical instruments. He will return to town in November.

A CHAT WITH MISS FANNY ROBINA.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER)

Miss Fanny Robina, the well-known music hall artiste, whose recent singing of "Claude Duval" has created something like a sensation, hardly needs any introduction at this day to the amusement-loving public. "My first recollection of going before the footlights," she tells us, "was with my mother and father, who went by the name of Newman and Mortimer, the Australian duettists, and in whose sketch entitled John Bull and the Yankee Girl I played the part of Little John Bull. I was then hardly more than a baby, and my mother was known as the Australian nightingale. Later on I appeared with my parents in a sketch called After Dark, which was a compressed version of the play of that name."

After the death of her father Miss Robina used to sing duets with her mother, touring through England and the Continent. One of Miss Robina's earliest successes in the way of songs was "Hail! Victoria," which became very popular with the Dutch people, and which she was the first to sing in Holland. Upon the death of her mother, Miss Robina was taken care of by "Auntie" Anderson, and became a member of the original Robina Quartet, who made a name for themselves both in England and the Continent. Two of their best-liked songs were "The Gypsies" and the operatic "Happy sisters all together," written by the late Fred Solomon. With the Sisters Robina she was engaged by Mr Oscar Barrett for a couple of pantomimes at Drury-lane. The first was Robinson Crusoe, in which at the commencement she played a small part and understudied the principal lady. When, a month after the night of production, the latter left the cast, Miss Robina played her part until the end of the run. Mr Oscar Barrett was the musical conductor at that time, and the principal comedians were Messrs Arthur Roberts, James Fawn, and Harry Nicholls, Sir Augustus Harris was so pleased with her work that he re-engaged her to appear as principal girl in the following pantomime of Sinbad the Sailor, in which Miss Nellie Power played title-rôle. In the ensuing autumn Mr John Hollingshead secured Miss Robina's services for the playing of soubrette parts at the old Gaiety Theatre in such pieces as Our Helen, Ariel, and High Life Below Stairs. At the Gaiety she remained three years, and Mr Hollingshead sent her for two Christmas seasons to the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, to take part in pantomime at night, while she played Miss Fanny Leslie's part in the afternoon at matinees.

Miss Robina was next engaged by Messrs Brough and Boucicault to play principal characters in the Gaiety burlesques in Australia. During a two years' tour throughout that colony and New Zealand she appeared in Silver Gilt, Jack Sheppard, The Forty Thieves; as Dick, in the opera of Dick; as Belinda, in the comedy of Our Boys; and as the chambermaid, in the comedy of Our Wives. It was hard work, the interviewee assures us, for the piece was changed every month. So successful was the presentation of Jack Sheppard that the school-children in Melbourne, Sydney, and other Australian towns were allowed to witness it, where they would not have been permitted to see any other play. Miss Robina thinks that Australia is a delightful country, and she found the people there most charming and hospitable. Returning to London, she was at once called upon by Mr George Edwardes to play Faust in the burlesque of Faust Up to Date at the old Gaiety, where she remained for twelve months during the entire run of the production. Then Mr Oscar Barrett, who had had previous experience of her abilities and her fine vocal talents, secured her for the part of Aladdin in the pantomime of that name at the Theatre Royal, Manchester. The following year she was principal boy to Miss Minnie Palmer's Cinderella at Her (now His) Majesty's Theatre, London. At the finish of the pantomime she started upon a long tour through the United Kingdom in the character of Jack Sheppard in the burlesque of Little Jack Sheppard, appearing at Christmas as Boy Blue in the pantomime of Little Bo-Peep at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow. The next festive season saw her as principal boy in Blue Beard at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool; and the last pantomime in which she was seen was that of Mother Goose at the Eden Theatre, Brighton, where she enacted the rôle of Captain Fearless with singular success for fourteen weeks. Since then she has been, and still is, working the music halls, having been twice over the Moss and Stoll circuits and re-engaged for the same for three years. It is worth mentioning Miss Robina sang at the Alhambra Theatre, Leicester-square, for a period of sixteen weeks, the songs she gave being "Love Light," "Two Little Hearts make One," "All the Boys in our Choir," and "King of the Boys." She opens at the Battersea Empire on Monday next with her songs entitled "Claude Duval" and "My Little Baby Boy."

"I have only a few vacant dates for the next two years," remarks Miss Robina, "and I hope to fill these in very soon. I may tell you that I like my work, study my business carefully, and do what I can to oblige proprietors and managers and to please the public. By this means I hope to still further succeed, and that is my ambition. As to hobbies well, I am intensely fond of animals, flowers and music," and the charming lady fondled the pert little toy terrier which had received no small amount of attention during the course of the interview as it nestled in her lap.

UNDER the auspices of the London International Commercial Association, one hundred athletic delegates, representing France, Germany, Russia, America, Australia, Denmark, Sweden, Italy, and South Africa, will on Tuesday evening next, Sept. 6, be present at the Alhambra to witness the new ballet The Entente Cordiale. During the day the delegates will pay visits to the Lord Mayor and to Buckingham Palace.

"L'ENTENTE CORDIALE" BALLET.

Shakespeare foreshadowed the entente cordiale between England and France that was ratified but three weeks ago when he wrote "Here are the articles of contracted peace between our Sovereign and the French King Charles." The subject is an alluring one, and gives scope for the fancy and invention of the resourceful stage-manager, and easily commends itself to the cultured musician. At the Alhambra the former is Mr Charles Wilson, who has sustained his high reputation in the arrangement of his scenario, and the latter Mr Landon Ronald, who has surpassed himself in melodious invention and masterly orchestration. The synopsis surveys the scheme of the ballet as a whole; but the spectator will be too absorbed by the beauty of the various groupings, processions, and dances to pay much attention to prosaic details. The prologue takes place in the Grove of Concordia, painted by Mr Philip Howden, the palatial and richly ornamented home of the goddess of Progress, who is attended by Science and Industry. Progress naturally has for her handmaiden Peace, who welcomes the nations of Europe, each of them being represented by a knight and standard bearer. The doctrines of international amity are plaintively urged by Peace upon the assembled powers, and Russia sets the example by laying down her arms. The other nations follow in the wake of Progress, but the Demon of War stirs up strife, and the powers snatch up their arms and depart. Truth then shows the horrors of war. We see Russia stricken down, but France helps her, and persuades her to shake hands with Japan. Peace, thus foreshadowed, once more reigns in the temple built in her honour, and the generous impulses of international friendship are reflected in a dazzling and brilliant spectacle. The revelry of the nations starts with a Cossack dance, given with the true Slavonic vivacity by the ballerine, and this is followed by a Japanese march and drill—one of the most exhilarating and inspiriting numbers in the whole production. The small army manœuvres very smartly, and is led by a tiny representative of a Jap general. An Italian group with Bersaglieri hats then enter and plant flags on an imaginary frontier, causing some offence to Austria. Germany, however, steps in, and the Triple Alliance is cleverly suggested by a whirl of movement and colour. It is quite in accordance with the fitness of things that France should coquet with Russia, but a more popular flirtation is that between a British naval officer, represented by Miss Edie Slack, and a French girl, to whom Miss Josephine Casaboni does full justice. There is a touch of true international friendship in the intermingling of the Legion d'Honneur and the Order of the Garter, and the grand valse and mazurka des rubans are delightful spectacles, the rich colours of which are well shown up by the delicate silvery harmonies of A. Menessier's Temple of Peace. The effect of the ribbon dance, in which the coryphées hold the ends of coloured silk bands interlaced above their heads, is really exquisite. Mr E. H. Ryan's Apotheosis of Peace realises the realms of stage fairyland, and the picture is one of bewildering beauty with its electrical fairy lights and its wonderful sheen. After the curtain had fallen on Monday evening the hearty applause brought on Mr Alfred Moul, who was accompanied by the composer, Mr Landon Ronald, who personally conducted, and both were very heartily congratulated. Signor Alfred Curti's dances are most ingeniously and artistically arranged, and the production by Mr Charles Wilson was without a flaw. Such charming pictures as the Grove of Concordia, the Temple of Peace, and the Apotheosis of Peace are rarely seen even on the stage of the Alhambra, and M. Menessier, Mr Philip Howden, and Mr E. H. Ryan have never done better brush work. The ballet, unfortunately, gives but little prominence to any of the principals, but those who generally distinguish themselves are Misses Edie Slack, Josephine Casaboni, Rosie Dean, Nellie Hill, Belle Davis, Julie Reeves, Susie Raymond, Ada Taylor, Stewart, Marjorie Skelley, and Signor Rosi. The costumes defy description. They have been most appropriately designed by Comelli, and those designs have been carried out most successfully by Alias. The directorate is to be heartily congratulated on the good taste, the novelty, and the great beauty of L'Entente Cordiale, which should run for many months.

"THE BAZAAR GIRL."

Operetta, in One Scene,
Produced at the London Music Hall, Shoreditch,
on Monday, Aug. 29.

Theophilus Jorkins ..... Mr J. J DALLAS
Mrs Jorkins ..... Miss BESSIE ALLAYNE

Recruits from the theatres to the halls have been numerous of late, but none more welcome than Mr J. J. Dallas, who comes laden with the laurels of an active career in musical comedy, and Miss Bessie Allayne, who bears similar credentials. They have signalised their arrival by the production of a musical sketch of that light and frivolous character which has a special place in a variety hall, graceful music being allied to a plenitude of humour, for which the scene of a charity bazaar affords every scope. A visitor to the fancy sale is found in Theophilus Jorkins, who comes less in the interests of charity than in the pursuit of a fair vendor who is taking the rôle of a gipsy. Theophilus is fleeced right and left, but is presently rewarded by a sight of the fascinating gipsy, who offers to tell his fortune. She displays such a knowledge of his affairs that Theo grows suspicious, and the young lady is led to confess that she is his wife. There are recriminations and denunciations, but all is eventually ended satisfactorily, and a wholesome moral drawn. The effect of the little piece depends mainly on the drollery of Mr Dallas as Theophilus Jorkins, who has an abundance of funny lines, out of which he extracts the fullest meaning. His song "In his mind" is delivered with all the comedian's well-known power of expression, and every sentence that he utters is productive of laughter. Miss Bessie Allayne gives loyal support in the part of the gipsy girl, wearing a pretty costume and acting vivaciously throughout. She has a melodious love song, which she renders charmingly, her voice being particularly strong and clear in the higher notes. The Londoners gave evidence in laughter and cheers of their enjoyment of the sketch, which must be credited with the possession of all the elements of success.

THE secretary of the M.H.A.R.A., Mr Douglas Stuart, left on Wednesday for his annual fortnight's holiday, which he will spend this year at Mundesley, near Cromer. The committee meetings will be held as usual at 1 0 o'clock on Tuesday.

EDNA CRAGGE has secured from Messrs J. F. Lambe and W. H. Thurburne a song, the air of which is likely to be whistled all over London, entitled "My Dear old Pal," It will shortly be published by Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter. After working Sandgate and Dover Miss Cragge is having a week in the South of France.

MR WHIT CUNLIFFE has secured from George Arthurs and Gordon Stamford a new and up-to-date version of that old tune "In the Strand," which he has been singing now for the last four months with great success. The song is decidedly topical.

A LION-TAMER was severely mauled at St. Etienne on Saturday during his performance. A leopard and a lion confined in a cage attacked him at the same time, the animals knocking him down and tearing him with their teeth. The spectators, panic-stricken, fled from the show, trampling each other under foot, and many were injured. Three attendants with red-hot irons succeeded in driving the two animals into a corner of the cage, and the tamer, who had fainted from loss of blood, was removed to the infirmary.

MISS DAPHNE DE ROHAN AT RAMSGATE.

PROVINCIAL PRESS OPINIONS ONLY.

Miss Daphne De Rohan, the beautiful actress, whose triumphs are recorded throughout England and the Continent, is presenting her high-class entertainment at Ramsgate this week. If, perchance, we long for the songs of Italia's shore—"Tosti's glowing melody sublime"—or a sensuous serenade from the land of old Castile, Miss De Rohan, with her mandoline, can waft us in fancy to those romantic lands by the invocation of the spirits of melody; or, if we wish to renew our acquaintance with Lady Teazle, Miss De Rohan, charmingly attired in the costume of that renowned patrician, will delight us with her impersonation of one of the most delightful and well-known characters ever evolved by the great playwright. Should we wish to laugh—as all civilised persons should desire, especially with an African temperature like the present—we can see Miss De Rohan, who is also a dramatist, in her delightful comedietta Oh, My Wife! which would cause "Prophet" Dowie himself to alter his opinions. There is little more to add to the list of this talented lady's accomplishments, except that she sings Tosti's songs divinely, can warble an English ballad like the proverbial oiseau d'été, and is a guitarist of ability and taste. —Brighton Standard, Aug 4.

AT THE GRANVILLE.

Miss Daphne De Rohan, with a small but capable band of artists, opened at the Granville Theatre, Ramsgate, on Monday evening Those who were fortunate enough to be present were charmed by her versatility and charm. In the quarrel scenes from The School for Scandal Miss De Rohan was superb; and in the scenes adapted from She Stoops to Conquer she proves her right to be regarded as a true artist of uncommon talent. We think that when the fact is recognised that Miss De Rohan remains at the Granville for some time, there will be great audiences, including all the more discriminating members of the public. The entertainment is far superior to the majority of those offered to Ramsgate audiences, and deserves substantial support.—East Kent Times, Aug. 3.

One of the attractions of the present season at Ramsgate is the entertainment being given in the Granville Hall. In this Miss Daphne De Rohan is prominent, whether she is charmingly depicting a character in some interesting sketch, beguiling her auditors of their laughter or their tears in recitations, or delighting the ear with artistically rendered mandoline solos.—Licensed Victuallers' Mirror Aug. 5.

Miss Daphne De Rohan has been appearing at the Granville Hall this week, and has given some excellent programmes of a varied character. Miss De Rohan is an entertainer of marked versatility, and cleverly she contributes mandoline solos, items from well-known plays, songs and musical sketches. She also displayed a great deal of ability in her adaptation of various incidents to dramatic form A new interlude, entitled Le Rêve d'un Vieillard, by Miss De Rohan, is described as an extremely effective item.—Thanet Advertiser, Aug. 6.

THE GRANVILLE HALL.

Miss Daphne De Rohan has taken this hall for a few weeks' season, and opened on Monday with a musical and dramatic entertainment, in which she was supported by a small but able company. Miss De Rohan is the principal personage in the entertainment, and shows considerable versatility and resource. Her recitals are also admirably given, her elocution being excellent. This artiste is also a capable musician, her instruments being the mandoline and guitar, and she proves herself a past master of both.—Pullen's Kent Argus, Aug. 6.

Miss De Rohan's performance on the guitar is a finished piece of work, and her mandoline solos are also well received. On Thursday night there was a large audience, and the various items in the programme met with the most cordial approval. The series of entertainments will terminate on Aug. 20. A new musical interlude, An Old Man's Dream of the Past (her own creation), is a charming little spectacle, introducing a gavotte composed by herself, and danced by Mr W. J. and Miss N. Walton (of Margate) Another very effective spectacular scene is Court Martial, which Miss De Rohan recites charmingly, and which introduces a vision of a court martial.—Pullen's Kent Argus, Aug. 13.

AT THE GRANVILDE HALL, RAMSGATE.

Miss Daphne De Rohan's recitals will be continued for four nights longer. There was a very appreciative audience on Thursday, Miss De Rohan being enthusiastically encored for her singing and for her mandoline solos. The performance was versatile as well as artistic. Miss Rohan's capabilities are well summarised by the Referee, which competent journal recently said of her:—Miss Daphne De Rohan gave her popular miscellaneous entertainment at St. George's Hall. As is her wont, the charming lady weighed in with all sorts and conditions of contributions. Now she acted Helen in scenes from The Hunchback (and they are the best scenes); anon she recited our Mr Dagonet's touching poem, "A Lancashire Lad" (which takes a bit of doing); then Miss De Rohan performed with considerable sweetness several solos on the mandoline, one of the many instruments which she plays like an angel. Subsequently she acted the heroine in Drifted Apart, and played Lady Teazle—and played it cleverly, too—in selections from The School for Scandal. The Granville Hall should be well attended for the remainder of the week.—East Kent Times, Aug. 17.

AT THE GRANVILLE HALL, RAMSGATE

Miss Daphne De Rohan, the accomplished lady entertainer, has been giving further proof of her versatility in a répertoire of musical and dramatic recitals, sketches, and other items. A feature of the programme has been the effective little item, Le Rêve d'un Vieillard, invented and composed by Miss De Rohan, who combines the skill of the playwright with the ability of the actress in a marked degree. The mandoline solos, the Neapolitan songs, &c., have been greatly appreciated, as has also the sketch, Oh, My Wife! which, we understand, will shortly be produced in London. Miss Daphne De Rohan has, at the instance of Baron L De Santa Maria (the senior Delegate-General for the United Kingdom of the French and Belgian Life-Saving Societies) been awarded, as a "14th July honour," and on account of certain meritorious services rendered by her, the diploma of honour and badge of the first class of the French Marine Ambulance Society. This honour was also accorded to Mr Norman Bennett (Miss De Rohan's manager) last year, together with the title of Chevalier of the Ordre de Devoir, which is one of some distinction with our neighbours across the Straits, among whom both Miss De Rohan and Mr Bennett are well known.—Thanet Advertiser, Aug 20.

Miss De Rohan's versatility is remarkable, and the thorough and complete manner in which she identifies herself with widely differing characters denotes high artistic and histrionic ability. The programme this week has included a new musical interlude, An Old Man's Dream of the Past, which is one of Miss De Rohan's own creations, and in which a gavotte composed by herself was introduced and danced by Mr W. J. and Miss N. Walton, of Margate. The Court Martial was an effective spectacular scene, in which is represented a vision of a court-martial. Miss De Rohan's performances on the guitar and mandoline have also given much pleasure.—Pullen's Kent Argus, Aug. 20.

MISS ROSE NEWPORT'S most recent collection at The White Lion, James-street, Covent-garden, amounts to £1 3s 2d., which that lady has forwarded to the secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

The fair at Dumbarton, N.B, opened on Aug. 19, and continued until the 27th. The weather was fine, and business was brisk. Here we had the following attractions:—Messrs H. and R. M'Indoe's Mona railway on the figure eight track, Messrs John Wilmot and Sons' Royal Caledonian hunters, M'Indoe's Venetian realisations, Mrs C. Howard's steam twin tugs, Mr J. Wingate's safety bikes, and Mr J. Freeman's three-abreast horses. There was a full complement of first-class shows, amongst which were Sedgwick's grand hippodrome, M Indoe's (Mr Arthur Henderson's) electric ghost illusion, Mrs Johnson and Sons' variety circus, Chipperfield's French menagerie, Sahib Leo's Egyptian Hall, Mrs Harris and Sons' cinematograph, Henry Chapman's feathered artists, Mr Alf Haydn's esoteric demonstrations, Horatio's giant equine. The shooting saloons and morris tubes of Messrs S. J. Rostron, T. Wright, J. Wright, J. M'Indoe, W. Harris, H. Strand, and the Kayes Family. The minor fun of the fair was contributed by Messrs W. Slater, T. Stringfellow, H. Irvin, W. Hiscoe, W. Talbot, J. Codona, A. Testo, W. Salvoni, J. Knight, A. Cook, H. Strand, J. Matchett, J. Henshaw, and F. C. Hume.

At Poynton, a residential village outside the Stockport boundaries, the annual wakes were upheld last week by a combination of fair ground attractions, headed by Messrs Hibbert's steam horses. Mr Joseph Barker, with his photographic booth, was in attendance.

Halton Feast, or, to give it the more modern term, York-road Feast, Leeds, was held in beautiful weather on Saturday and Monday last. Situated in the centre of the working population, crowds of the labouring classes availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy themselves. Foremost on the ground stood William Murphy, the lessee's, magnificently decorated Venetian gondolas, Hamilton's four-a-breast gallopers, Tuby's flying cockerels, Waddington's yachts, Morley and Burgin's steam swings, "The Ocean Wave," by Captain Dobson, Collins's miniature horses, Kaye's juvenile horses, John Stuart, with his boxers; Manders' menagerie, Testo's Cinémato, Rhodes Yorkshire theatre, Hodgini's circus, Blakey, the juggler; the shooting saloon of Jameson and Dobson, and the fairground concerns of Baines, Steward, Doubtfire, Wilson, J. T. Cooper, Ashcroft, Peters, Burgin, Forsyth, and Stockwell.

At Pudsey Feast were Marshall's three concerns—the gondolas, switchback, jumping horses; Collins' (Limited) gigantic cockerells, Ralph and Pedley's New Century exhibition, with current events of the world; Kemp's electric theatre, Baker's circus, White, the legless man; Ralph, with his gigantic rats; the midget horse, the mirthful mirrors, and the fair ground concerns of Bentley, Burgess, and Ratliffe.

Long Eaton wakes have been a great success this year. Saturday was a busy day, and Mr. Martin and his confrères were kept "at it" till late in the beginning of the week. An effort was made to abolish this fixture for August Bank Holiday week, but these old customs die hard, and the feast goes on as merrily as ever. Mr Martin gave the proceeds for a time to a friendly society benevolent fund.

At Ullenhall Wakes were Herberts' roundabouts, park swings, shooting saloons, bottle shooters, stalls, and other numerous attractions.

At Ledbury Horse Show were Mr H. Strickland's steam galloping horses, swing boats, African jungle, and Mollies.

At Jennings's Alexandra Theatre, Evesham, this week the following plays have been performed:—Jane Shore, The Shaughraun, Jealousy, In Deadly Peril, Man and Wife, and The Slave Hunt.

At Mrs Sinclair's Victoria Theatre, Pershore, A Gipsy's Oath, The Sign of the Cross, Jane Shore, The Shaughraun, The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes, and A Bird in the Hand is worth Two in the Bush have been given.

Messrs Crecraft's Bioscope and lion show are on a three days' visit at Aberavon. Some interesting views are shown, the latest addition being the King and Queen's visit to Swansea. The annual fair will be on Sept. 5, but most amusements were advertised to open on Thursday, the 1st.

Cardiff amusements are still well patronised. Mdlle. D'Arc's having many additions. Stoll's Panopticon is well up to date, many new features being added. The Bioscope is still a great draw.

Mr Haggar, with a fine collection of films, has visited Briton Ferry, and Wadbrook's fine exhibition has paid its usual successful visit to Llanelly.

Excitement was occasioned at the Bradford Exhibition on Tuesday night by an outbreak of fire, which was speedily extinguished, in the Somali Village. The natives huddled together in great terror.

Mr Herbert Consterdine, of 42, Goda-street, Kennington, S.E., mechanical and marine engineer, has constructed an apparatus for the purpose of performing mimic acrobatic feats suitable for a marionette entertainment. The number of feats gone through by a Lilliputian figure is extraordinary. The apparatus can be adapted to other subjects. Anyone interested in the novel effects for marionette shows should put themselves in communication with Mr Consterdine, who would be pleased to show his invention.

The amount realised as the result of the fête organised recently by Mr Henry Studt, the well-known South Wales amusement caterer, for the benefit of the Carmarthen Infirmary—of which institution he is this year's president—will total about £200. Mr Studt deserves to be highly complimented for his kindness. The Infirmary Committee (especially Mr P. J. Weldon, the hon. treasurer, and Mr D. E. Williams, Ivy Bush Hotel), and the secretary ably supported the efforts of Mr Studt, and the result of their combined labours proved most satisfactory.

INFORMATION relating to Shows and Fairs, suitable for this column, should be addressed to THE EDITOR, "The Showman World."

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

A promenade smoking concert took place in the Central Hall on Saturday evening last. The Anglo-Viennese Band, under the conductorship of Mr Howard Aynstey, gave some excellent selections from the popular musical pieces of the day. Mr Herbert Tracy, who was responsible for "The Veteran's Song" and "A Soldier's Song," was received with much heartiness, his interpretation being in each case artistic. Madame Minnie Shatel, possessing a strong, rich, and powerful mezzo-soprano voice, won golden opinions for her rendering of "For All Eternity," "Angus Macdonald," and "Annie Laurie." The concert was well attended, the manager, Mr Edwin Goodship, and the two entertainment trustees, Messrs Treasure and Sloper, earning complimentary notice for acceding to the wishes of the habitués regarding these Bohemian gatherings.

MR ARTHUR ROBERTS was on the 26th ult. at the Jubilee Hall, Weymouth, specially engaged with his company by the local Corporation to entertain the officers and sailors of the Home Fleet. This they very successfully did, over 2 000 sailors being present. Where's the Count? and Mr Roberts's songs "Topsy Turvy" and "Viens Poupoule" were much enjoyed, Admiral Wilson being among the distinguished guests.

MISS DOROTHY WHYATT, the charming society comedienne, is now on tour with her own company, The Runaway Students. She is exceedingly bright and attractive, and is scoring heavily with Alfred Saker's songs. Her latest success is entitled "Fluttering in the breeze."

A CHAT WITH MR. BILLIE BINT.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

It has been the complaint of some critics who are not overloaded with experience of theatrical people and theatrical affairs that the average comedian becomes dispossessed of all sense of humour when off the stage. That certainly has not been our experience with the many professional ladies and gentlemen whose acquaintance we have from time to time made. For instance, there is Mr Billie Bint, a popular and well-esteemed variety artist, whose mannerisms are as delightful and refreshing when he meets you in private life as when he is before the footlights. And it is of Mr Bint that we now wish to speak.

"I was born," begins that gentleman, "in one of the prettiest and most secluded villages in Hertfordshire. As a boy I was very fond of singing at penny readings, amateur concerts, &c., and if I could get hold of a song book or a piece of music bearing the photographs of George Leybourne, Vance, or Fred Coyne I was supremely happy. Leybourne was my ideal, and I never thought that in after years I should be a personal friend of his and be engaged with him. I recall belonging to an amateur Christy Minstrel show, playing the tambourine one night, bones the next, and the straight man the next—this, mind you, in three different towns on three consecutive nights. Later on I went to Weymouth, where I met a friend of the late Mr Syers of the Oxford Music Hall, at a large agricultural dinner, where I sang 'Here he goes and there he goes,' one of the most successful songs of Jimmy Stead, the 'cure.' I was asked why I didn't join the profession, and replied that I thought opportunity was a great thing. The gentleman I have just referred to took me to London and introduced me to Mr Syers, who gave me a three months' engagement. But when I had finished at the Oxford then came the tug of war. I did not jump in the profession, like some of our present-day performers, without a hard struggle. Twenty-five shillings a week with good old Harry Hart was my salary at the Raglan and at the old Winchester under the management of Mrs Preece."

Among the songs written and composed by Mr Bint may be mentioned the following:—"There's another jolly row downstairs," which was his first; "Where's the cat?" and "I bought her a sealskin jacket and a diamond ring," both of which were sold to and sung by Fred Coyne; "I tell them my father's a marquis," which he wrote in an Amsterdam café; "A whistling song," sung by Edward Terry and Nellie Farren in a Gaiety burlesque; "I'll tell your mother what you've done," sung by James Fawn and Nellie Farren; "Tit-Bits," for the singing and writing of which he was presented with a diamond ring by Sir George Newnes; "Chuck 'em out," and "Where are those girls?" Mr Bint got his idea for the song of "Tit-Bits" while on a shopping expedition one day with his landlady at Manchester. He noticed she got oddments wherever she went. Among other songs sung by Mr Bint were "Brown upside down," "So was mine," and

MR. BILLIE BINT.

"Where are those boys?" written by Mr Walter Hastings. Many of his own songs were rendered by the late Nellie Farren, E. Terry, E. Royce, Kate Vaughan, and Connie Gilchrist at the old Gaiety Theatre, and were published by Messrs Francis and Day and Hopwood and Crew.

"By having good songs," continues Mr Bint, "I was able to get on in the profession, working five halls each evening and doing five songs at each hall I sang 300 nights in one year at the Trocadero. I shall never forget an evening there. Vance had just been reviving his old song entitled 'Walking in the Zoo.' I had to follow him, and I said, 'Ladies and gentlemen, I will not sing you "Old Dog Tray,"' at which there was a loud outburst of laughter. As a matter of fact, I remember that I gave them 'I tell them my father's a marquis' and 'Where are those boys?' Vance was very angry with me when I came off, but I told him it was only a bit of fun, and we settled the quarrel over a glass of port. Little did I think that I should never see him again. That night he dropped dead on the stage of the old Sun Music Hall about 10 0 o'clock, and I had been conversing with him only an hour previously."

Mr Bint made a great hit in Amsterdam with the song of "Tit Bits," the tune of which is very much like that of "John Peel." On one night Mr James Gordon Bennett, the well-known American journalist, waited upon him and inquired if he knew the song of "John Peel." Mr Bint replied in the affirmative, whereupon he was asked to lunch on board Mr Bennett's yacht, the Namouma. While there he was introduced to Mr Longfellow, the son of the great poet, Mr Alfred Rothschild, the famous banker, and a French marquis. The company were greatly amused when Mr Bint sang the lines—

I know not and care not what trouble may be;
I know I'm in d——d good company.

"What am I doing now?" asks Mr Bint. "Well, I am trying to do what I did ten years ago—going to the front again and topping the bills. I think I can do it, and it shall not be my fault if I don't. Mr Broadhead has booked me for his tour, and I have just signed return engagements with Mr L. J. Livermore, who I consider to be a thorough gentleman and a first-rate business man. I open my tour with Mr George Weldon in October at the Hippodrome, Dewsbury."

Mr Bint has a suggestion to make, and while it is one that has not been unheard of before, we willingly give it prominence again. He urges that every proprietor and manager of music halls in the United Kingdom should give a matinée once a-year in aid of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund. Then, he thinks, there would be no need for begging, as has been done so often in the past and is being done at the present time. "And if," continues Mr Bint, "any manager does not care to follow out this suggestion as it stands, then I think the Fund should pay him the working expenses of his hall for one afternoon, so that he need not lose by the benefit performance. There are many 'pro's.' who, rather than give a guinea, would give a show, and their services, of course, would be obtained free of cost." We believe this scheme has already been considered by the committee of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, but it is well worthy of further attention. Mr Bint is "great" on outdoor sports. He is perfectly at home in the saddle, and is considered a first-class marksman with the rifle, while football is another favourite pastime of his.

NEW-CROSS EMPIRE.

Every source of amusement is drawn upon by the management of the Moss and Stoll Empires for the delectation of the patrons of their palatial halls, the programme at the New-cross hall this week seeming to exceed in excellence and variety the liberality for which the enterprising firm is famous. The quality of the entertainment is assured by the inclusion in the bill of the Bandurria Quintet whose manifestations of music appeal to the earnest student quite as much as to the popular appreciation. From the little band of gaily attired Spanish troubadours, armed with mandoline and guitar, flows forth a volume of insinuating melody that stimulates the sense of hearing, rising and falling softly in a classical excerpt or catching the ear with a well-known refrain. They begin with the famous "Estudiantina Waltz," which is exquisitely rendered, the balance of tone being artistically preserved. A diversion is created by a medley of popular airs, ranging from "Bedelia" to "Eyes of Blue," even the inevitable "Bill Bailey" gaining freshness from the dainty rendering of the accomplished musicians. The audience becomes engrossed in the ravishing strains, evidence of their thorough enjoyment being supplied by the persistent recalls lavished on an interlude that is all too brief. The strength of the programme also lies with Mr Bransby Williams, whose episode '87; or, the Colonel's Birthday, puts his dramatic aptitude to a severe test. Pathos and humour enter in equal proportions into his impersonation of the old soldier whose birthday is commemorated by messages from celebrated military heroes, which bring up memories of his past services in the Crimea and at Afghanistan, a special message also arriving from the King. The old man warmly resents any reference to his infirmities, insisting that his vigour is unimpaired, but he shows unmistakable signs of decay, a glass of wine so working upon him that he springs to his feet, despite the warning of his faithful servant, and re-enacts the scene of his winning of the Victoria Cross. The excitement proves too much for his feeble strength, and the old warrior, clasping the King's token to his breast, sinks lifeless into his chair. Mr Williams' impersonation is a perfect picture of senility, blended with the fire and energy that remain to the veteran soldier from his military days, and his performance is impressive from first to last. Mr Williams has creditable support from Mr F. Morland as the upright and alert manservant. Miss Marguerite Broadfoote exercises her vocal charm in humorous paraphrases of nursery rhymes, the point of which loses nothing from the delicacy of the singer, while "Sammy" serves as a further employment of her fascinations, to the utter confusion of a youth who sits in a private box. Miss Broadfoote ingratiates herself with all, her winning style, her vivacity, and her excellent vocal abilities assuring her a high position in favour. An interesting exhibition is presented by Miss Belle Braham in "Popular Singers and their Songs," coloured portraits of living stage favourites, including Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr Gus Elen, Mr Joe Elvin, and other stars, being thrown on a screen while Miss Braham sings the refrains of the songs associated with their names. A sentimental ballad, called "Day by Day," is also thus illustrated and well applauded. Laughter unchecked comes of the burlesque bull-fight of the Brothers Cavallini, who utilise the services of some well-trained dogs to represent the savage bovine, the result being excruciatingly funny. Mr Harry Ford is overwhelmed with applause, having to sing three songs, the refrains, "It's a shame!" and "Is it necessary?" quite indicating their purport, while his ballad of a fictitious fortune is as mirth-moving as ever. Hill and Whitaker are expert on the banjo, but chief appreciation is devoted to the lady, who turns her deep contralto to the purposes of humour in an impersonation of a Negro preacher inviting the congregation to sing "Hallelujah." Mr Albert Whelan gives much pleasure in his double-note whistling, and imitations of Gus Elen, Hamilton Hill, Frank Lawton, and Chirgwin are well done. Die Schutzenlieserl'n Quartet sing superbly in their own dialect and in English, and the feats of Barrere and Jules on the horizontal bars are very clever. Mr Henry Raymond is the competent acting-manager, and has an able assistant in Mr H. Burdette.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

THE Mayor and Corporation of Brighton have invited the Mayor and Municipality of Dieppe to visit Brighton on Friday, upon which occasion two concerts will be given by the orchestra of the Casino of Dieppe, under the leadership of M. Gabriel Marie, the first concert in the afternoon at the Royal Pavilion, and the evening concert in the Dome. Madame Lise Landouzy, of the Opera Comique, Paris, will sing at the evening concert. The Brighton Railway Company announce that, for the convenience of intending visitors from London on this occasion, a special fast train will leave Victoria Station at 12 25 p.m., and return from Brighton at 10'45 p.m., for which the return fare of 5s. first class and 3s. 6d. third class will be charged; also that cheap tickets will be issued by ordinary trains from nearly all stations on the company's system.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In a report last week of the Grand, Sheffield, in The Era my name appeared. I was not in Sheffield last week.—Yours faithfully, WILL HARVEY. 16, Horsedge-street, Oldham, Aug. 31.

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. E. H. BOSTOCK.

The City Hall, Glasgow, was crowded to overflowing on Thursday evening last week, when the many friends of the above-named lady and gentleman met to do them honour on the occasion of their retirement from the Scottish Zoo and the Glasgow Hippodrome.

Bailie WM. FINLAY occupied the chair, and was supported by Mr and Mrs Bostock, the company including Mr E. H. Bostock, jun., Councillor Mr and Mrs Martin, and Dr. W. Cullen.

Apologies for absence were received from the Lord Provost, Bailies Alexander, Blisland, Miller, Russell, and Watson, Provost M'Millan (Kinning-park), Chief Constable J. V. Stevenson (Glasgow), and several clergymen and other friends, including Mr J. Walmsley, the Tower, Blackpool. Congratulatory telegrams were received, among others, from Mr H. E. Moss, Managing-Director Moss's Empires, Limited, and Mr W. F. Frame, who both regretted their inability to be present.

The following telegrams were received:—

Norwich, Aug. 25, 1904.—Bailie W. Finlay, City Hall, Glasgow.—Kindly convey to your audience Councillor Frederick Fitt is instructed by members of the Corporation of the city of Norwich and Mr Bostock's numerous Norwich friends to express their delight and appreciation of your kind thought and feelings towards their friends, Mr and Mrs E H. Bostock

Norwich, Aug. 25th, 1904.—Bostock, City Hall, Glasgow.—Congratulations and best wishes from Fred, Fannie Thompson, Fox, Ashley, Brothers Fasshauer, Verne, Travers, Hannan Amstell, Lule Murray, Seymour, Martine, and all the staff of Bostock's Norwich Hippodrome.

Thornhill, Aug. 25, 1904.—Bostock City Hall, Glasgow.—Though absent in frame, present in spirit. Good wishes. Hooch aye.—From W. F. Frame.

The entertainment took the form of a concert, when a very enjoyable programme was contributed to by Miss Katie Cohen, and Messrs Chung Ling Soo, Albert Christian, and the Brothers Edgar, by kind permission of Moss' Empires, Limited, while Messrs Colquhoun and Armstrong sent the following artistes from the Queen's and Tivoli Theatres:—Miss Belle Davis, the Sisters Aindow, and Jack Lorimer. Among the other artistes who took part in the programme were the College Male Voice Quartet, Miss Clara Brooke, Mr J. C. Lawrance, Miss Marie Jarvis, Mr Stuart Moncur, the Roberts Troupe, and Miss Annetta Hayward and Mr W. Gray, Misses Grace and May Gilby, Mr J. C. Middleton, Miss Kate Gourlay, Mr J. Montgomery, Miss Florence Hayward, Mr T. C. Bourne, Miss Florence Lambeth and Mr Robertson, Mr Angus Brown, Miss Marie C. Thomson, the Ross combination, Mr C. H. Sherry, and the Malvernes. Much assistance was given by the pianists, Messrs Charles R. Baptie, Thomas Freer, and D. Flint.

Halfway through the programme Bailie FINLAY presented Mr Bostock with a very handsome illuminated address, in which the sentiments of the subscribers were expressed as follows:—

TO E. H. BOSTOCK, ESQ.

We, the undersigned, on behalf of your many friends and well-wishers in the city of Glasgow, beg to take this opportunity of expressing to you our heartfelt regret that you are about to sever your connection with the Scottish Zoo and the Glasgow Hippodrome, with which your name has been so long and so honourably associated. During the eight years you have been resident amongst us you have so endeared yourself by your kind and gentle disposition, your sterling and upright character, and your ready and generous support to everything which tended to promote the welfare of your fellow-citizens, that your name has become a household word in our midst. We do not forget that in all your labours you have had the inestimable advantage of the loyal co-operation of a loving wife and a devoted family. You have at all times proved yourself a kind and indulgent master, a true and faithful friend, and a valued citizen. In your quiet and unostentatious way you have contributed largely to the many charitable institutions of this city, and to all and sundry who solicited your aid, your heart, and your purse were ever open. By indomitable energy and careful attention, combined with an affable and courteous manner, you have succeeded in establishing a business second to none of its kind in the kingdom, and it is with unfeigned regret we learn that you are not to participate in its further development. Whatever your future may be you carry with you the respect and esteem of your fellow-citizens, and our earnest desire and prayer is that you and Mrs Bostock—your amiable partner—and your family may long be spared in the enjoyment of good health and prosperity.

The above address was signed by John Ure Primrose, Lord Provost; William Finlay, magistrate; Alex. Brown, magistrate; A. M. Dunlop, magistrate; Richard Browne, magistrate; William Martin, councillor; William Russell, councillor; John Dallas, councillor; Walter Freer, Corporation Halls' curator; William Paterson, fire-master; A. F. Mennie, superintendent of police; William Cullen, M.D.; John Wilson, William Dalglish; Robert Gilmour, station-master; William Rennie, W. F. Frame; David Black, treasurer; and J. Arbuckle, secretary.

The address was written by that well-known firm, Messrs Maclure, Macdonald, and Co., and was enclosed in a gold frame of very chaste design and workmanship.

In another interval in the performance Mrs Bostock was the recipient of a handsome silver tea service and tray, the latter being suitably inscribed and having reference to the address to her husband.

DR. CULLEN made the presentation in a very happy speech, and referred with excellent taste to Mrs Bostock's unfailing courtesy, and the large assistance she had given to her husband in the conduct of his business.

On rising to accept the gifts Mrs Bostock received quite an ovation and on her behalf Mr BOSTOCK, Jun., made a graceful reply, and thanked all present for the high honour conferred on his mother.

Councillor WILLIAM MARTIN referred to the excellence of the programme and the capabilities of the several performers in a few well-chosen sentences, and on his call a very hearty vote of thanks was accorded the artistes. On the motion of Councillor DALLAS a similar compliment was paid to the chairman, and the proceedings terminated with a hearty rendering of "Auld Lang Syne" by all present.

Mr and Mrs Bostock at the close were much congratulated on the well-deserved compliment paid to them by the citizens of Glasgow.

Mr Joseph Arbuckle acted as secretary to the committee, and was ably assisted by Mr Walter Black in carrying out the arrangements, while Mr Walter Freer (City Halls, Glasgow) was responsible for the presence of many of the leading artistes who appeared.

First and Second Elevens, one goal; Weston-Super-Mare Ramblers, three goals. A. Norman, F. Rowe (two), and T. Elliott scored the goals for their respective sides.

IF there are any devotees of Terpsichore who are in want of stylish coverings for their pedal extremities, they would do well to quickly hie to Rayne's emporium in the Waterloo-road, where they will find new and large stocks of shoes with the Louis heel a speciality. They will also find satin dancing shoes in all colours.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your report for last week of the Palace, Sunderland, you failed to mention us, although we made one of the biggest hits of the entertainment.—Yours faithfully, HARRY CLIO and ROSE ROCHELLE. 1, Regent-street, Castle-road, Scarborough, Aug. 30.

A SHOWMAN'S LIFE.

In Pierce Egan's "Life of an Actor," published in 1824, the great showman, Richardson, gives the following account of his career:—

"It was in the year 1782 that I first engaged in the theatrical line. At that period I was living in Shadwell, near Wapping, when Mrs Penley and her family of children came to perform in the club-room at the sign of the Paviour's Arms, near New Gravel-lane. Since that time the family of the Penleys have distinguished themselves in the history of the stage. I joined Mrs Penley. The pieces we got up on that occasion were Chrononhotonthologos and Midas, in order to comply with the taste of the town, the above burlettas being then in great repute at the Theatre Royal. Numerous actors were required for Chrononhotonthologos; but we contrived to perform it with two men and two women. Our receipts were generally from four shillings and sixpence to five shillings per night. You may therefore expect that our meals were very scanty on the distribution of our shares of the receipts. Irish stew, once a week, was considered a luxury, in addition to the run of the tap-room, obtained by amusing the company now and then with a song. But a more cheerful prospect presenting itself, we abandoned Shadwell, and were all engaged by Mr Timothy Moore, then playing at Brompton, near Chatham. It was a most laughable sight to have seen us move off with our wardrobes on our backs, some with bundles, and others with scenes under their arms, going to the Gravesend boat. We arrived at Brompton, and opened there with success in the club-room of a public house, in opposition to the great Mrs Baker, whose company were then acting in a stable at Rochester.

"I left the stage for a short period, and commenced, in a small way, a broker in London. My shop turned out lucky, and by my industry I accumulated money enough to take the Harlequin in 1796, near the stage-door of Drury-lane Theatre. The Harlequin was frequented by theatrical people, and amongst the number old Mr Greenwood, the scene painter, Mr Banks, old Mr Russell, the facetious Tony Le Brun, and Grosette. I became tired of keeping a public house. I was determined to let the Harlequin, and go into the travelling line, and attend the fairs. On making my resolution known to Le Brun and Grosette, they not only approved of it, but set about engaging a company for me. I also set a carpenter to work without delay. Mr Davis, a dressmaker, was employed to decorate my company; and my first set of scenery was painted by young Tom Greenwood and Mr Thomas Banks. To catch a new manager performers offered themselves from all quarters, and amongst them the Two Southbys, since which period they have been justly celebrated as clowns at the large theatres. Also Mr Thwaites, who is now an actor in America, playing the first line of business; likewise Mr Vaughan, a man of acknowledged talent, and who made his appearance at Drury-lane Theatre with success. Vaughan left England with the great George Frederick Cooke; and the last information I had of him, he was a first-rate performer in America. To complete my company I engaged a Miss Sims, from Astley's Theatre, a very pretty singer; Mrs Hicks, also an excellent actress; and a very old woman, Mrs Monk, but well known in the theatrical world.

"I commenced manager at Bartholomew Fair; but you must understand, Mr Proteus, that in those days the exhibitions were generally up the inn yards, or in the upstairs of public-houses; but by way of explanation the following list will suffice:—Old Jobson, the great puppet show man in one yard; Jones and Penley, in the George yard; the celebrated Mrs Baker at the Greyhound, in a room up one pair of stairs; O'Brian, the Irish giant, in the King's Head, also in a one pair of stairs room; and myself with my company. My platform was built out of the one pair of stairs window, forming an arch over the gingerbread stalls, with a long pair of steps leading down into the fair. My band I selected out of the streets, which consisted of three blind Scotchmen, but noted as clarionet players. I had a great run of business; in fact, we were compelled to perform twenty-one times in the day, so numerous were the visitors. I cannot say much in favour of the pieces, as each audience did not fail to abuse us as they left the house: poor old Mrs Monk usually got upon the garret stairs to cool herself, and as the spectators had to pass her in going out, she was generally saluted with many execrations. Mrs Monk was a good-natured creature, and her only reply was, 'What can you expect, gentlemen, at a fair?' Upon the whole our performances passed off tolerably quietly.

"From Bartholomew we went to Edmonton Fair. It was the last in the season, when the company separated; but in consequence of the great success I had met with at both of these fairs, I was induced in the winter to have caravans built for travelling over the country to extend my circuit. However, that speculation turned out deceitful. I not only lost all my money, but I became involved in difficulties. During my circuit in the summer I engaged Tom Jefferies, a clown from Astley's; in his line he had no competitor, and was allowed by the best judges of fools to be without a rival in the kingdom as an out-door clown. He had a lingo of his own; and his tricks and conversation were so irresistibly comic that he 'pulled' them in better than any man I have ever met with since my management. His wife, Mrs Jefferies, was likewise above mediocrity as a singer; she was an apprentice of Mr Hughes, who first opened the Royal Circus, in St. George's Fields, now called the Surrey Theatre.

"In the course of the same year Mrs Carey applied to me, with her family, for an engagement. She had two sons, Edmund and Henry, and also a daughter. They were in my company the whole of the summer; and finding that Edmund and Henry were considered clever boys, and favourites with the audience, I got up Tom Thumb. The hero of the piece was personified by Edmund, and his brother also performed a character in the burletta. Queen Dollalolla was acted by Mrs Carey. Windsor Fair was my next route, and between Slough and Windsor, my horses being very old and weak and the roads almost impassable, we stuck fast in the mud, our luggage was so heavy. The Eton boys, on perceiving our unpleasant situation, swore they would draw us into the town without horses; but my company was so badly dressed, that I was ashamed to let them out of the caravan, and who were almost without shoes or stockings to their feet, that I preferred hiring of two more horses to extricate us from our difficulties than expose the distressed situation of my actors. This circumstance enraged the Eton boys to such a pitch of anger against us, that they assailed the caravan with a volley of stones as we passed the college. What a different story, Mr Proteus, to the one in general circulation respecting the greatest actor of the day. Edmund, instead of receiving his education at Eton College, which has been asserted, was pelted by the scholars in my caravan, in his passage over that classic spot of ground."

AT the Empire Music Hall, Wrexham, this week, the attractions have been Mr George Wyres, the quaint comedian; the Dewars (Fred and Jessie), comedy and character duettists and sketch artistes; Mr Alex. Fox, ventriloquist; the Sisters Poole, vocalists and dancers; Miss Marguerita Chappelle, comedienne; and Miss Letta Starr, coon vocalist and dancer.

SALFORD.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—Gipsy Jack is well presented this week before good houses by Mr Henry Bedford, whose clever impersonation of the title-rôle is much enjoyed. Villainy represented by the Skinners (father and son) is well placed in the hands of Mr T. Arthur Plummer and Mr Alec Alexander. Miss Gertrude Gilbert as Dorothy Dexter and Miss Bessie Bedford as May Harvey act with charming grace; Miss Enid Trench as Nan does well; and Mr Sid Bedford as Joe Banks, Mr J. H. Damer as Charley Bates, and Miss Jennie Risley as Jennie Huggins keep the audience fully amused. There are several pretty scenes. Mafeking; a Romance of the Siege, was announced for Friday night.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Licensee, Mr James M. Hardie; Secretary and Manager, Mr C. Shayler.—George Fuller Golden's witty speeches keep the house in roars. Selina Braatz in her clever juggling performance; the Cullane Trio in The Dude's Dilemma; the Three Dagmars, clever acrobats; Tray and Rich, black and white comedy artists; the Three Brothers Huxter, expert tumblers, jumpers, &c.; Marie Gibson, soprano vocalist; and D. W. Watson, vocalist and cornet soloist, also give good turns.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead.—Large houses are attracted this week by the excellent programme, which includes the wonderful cycling act by the Proveani Family of six ladies. A most interesting and novel exhibition of lightning changes is given by Blanche; the Donatos, one-legged acrobats and jumpers, give an amusing performance; and the other turns are also well received, viz., Charles Summers, quaint comedian; Amy Allnutt, comedy queen; the St. Johns, in a musical act; R. W. Bentley, quaint comedian; Wal Robins, black and white musical comedian; Dora Lyric, comedienne; the Parez Trio, musical act; and Fred Dice, patterer and quaint dancer.

L. AND N.W. PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietress, Mrs S. A. Higham; Manager, Mr Sam Higham.—The good programme provided here this week includes Frank Royle, comedian, whistler, and dancer; Hilda De Grey, ballad and descriptive vocalist; T. W. Lenner, eccentric comedian; and Florrie Wright, dainty comedienne.

SHEERNESS.

VICTORIA PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr T. Dorling.—The attraction here for this week is furnished by Mr and Mrs Calvert Routledge's company in the American farcical comedy A Night Off. The company includes a number of well-known artistes, and the performances have been most enthusiastically received.

TRANSFIELD'S HIPPODROME. — Sole Proprietor, Mr T. G. Transfield; Secretary and Manager, Mr Chas. Melvin.—The Royal Household in Uproar pleases immensely here; Captain Devereux and his troupe of dogs are a great attraction; Ranco and Mason appear with success in a musical duologue, The Wrong Parcel; Mr Alf Passmore and Miss Amy Forest sing some capital songs; and the Olympian Quartet of coloured glee singers are good.

SHEFFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr F. W. Purcell; Acting-Manager, Mr T. S. Carter.—There was a large house here on Monday, when the delightful play Sunday was acted, under the direction of Mr Louis Calvert, by arrangement with Mr Fred Terry and Miss Julia Neilson. The delicate charm of Miss Nina Faydon's Sunday could hardly be surpassed, and, seemingly without effort, she kept the interest of the audience riveted all through the four acts. Miss Elizabeth Watson was a handsome and sympathetic Mrs Knaresby, and Miss Olive Adair was good as the Nun. Mr Charles B. Vaughan made a smart and agreeable Arthur Brinthorpe, and the character of the Colonel was well limned by Mr J. Edward Pearce. The Tom Oxley of Mr E. A. Douglas, the Towser of Mr Frederick Powell, the Davy of Mr John H. Manley, and the Jacky of Mr Whitford Kane were all fine character studies, and Mr F. Harrison's Abbot was a life-like sketch.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—The mirthful and exhilarating Negro musical comedy, In Dahomey, is paying a welcome return visit this week to the Lyceum. In place of Messrs Williams and Brown now appear those clever transatlantic drolls, Messrs Dan Avery and Charles Hart, who meet with a flattering reception. The songs, dances, and marches are applauded to the echo.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—The exciting drama, The Life that Kills, is again being played to well-pleased audiences by Messrs Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls' capable company. Mr Nicholls is a great and deserved favourite at the Alexandra, and he is, as usual, the recipient of cordial applause as the Rev. Theodore Rodney. Miss Mabel Kessler repeats her admirable impersonations of Dick, the drummer-boy, and Johanna, and brings down the house with her musical solos. Well-played characters are the Laura Linden of Miss Vyvian Montgomery, the Valentine Telford of Mr Morris Maud, and the Hector Rodney of Mr Hugh Metcalf.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—The following talented artistes appeared to delighted audiences on Monday:—Alec Hurley in his amusing impersonation of "Thick-ear'd Jim" in The Costa's Friendly Lead, a sketch full of genuine fun and drollery; the two Graces, duettists and dancers; Lew Wells, musical comedy entertainer; Vi Holmes, comedienne and danseuse; J. W. Rickaby, comedian; Spry and Austin, quaint duettists and dancers; the Hartley Wonders in their great display of jumping; Tambo and Tambo, the experts in the art of tambourine spinning; Berner, "the king of marionettes;" and Messrs Walter Groves and company in a laughable farcical sketch.

GRAND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr W. C. Burns.—The company this week includes the Zerbinis, Lillie Lassah, Henriot and Sauvion, the Jalvans, the celebrated Leotards, Starr and Jerome in a novel act, Florrie Smith, the Three American Idols, and Mr Burns' latest discovery, Queta.

SHREWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr W. C. Dornton.—Plenty of sensational incidents characterise the drama Judy, played here this week with considerable spirit and success by Mr George Kirk's and Miss Mary Neil's company. Mr George Kirk was a clever and dexterous detective as Grip; Mr Carlton Wallace as Duburg worked very hard, and earned the execrations of the audience. Mr William Vane played the part of Sterling, a banker, with ability; Mr Will Brereton was a typical and amusing cockney Coster as Jim; Mr Fred May made a capital showman; Mr Henry Rayburne merited praise as Trovitch, a Russian; Mr W. Rose made a good Landlord Parkins; Mr J. Stoner as Mike aided and abetted Duburg in a manner that left nothing wanting; Mr Frank Lyndon as Dick acted creditably; Mr H. Martin was a picturesque Hogan; Mr James Nuttall was satisfactory as a policeman; Miss Mary Neil had plenty of arduous work in the dual-rôle of Alice and Polly, and acquitted herself excellently; Miss Muriel Thompson looked well and acted with spirit in the part of Blake; Miss Ethel Holdsworth was a capable maid, Becky; and Miss Florrie Groves acted with vigour and success as Judy.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. C. Harrison.—The Brand of Shame was staged here on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, the company being Mr Fred Cooke's. The comicalities of Mr Cooke in his impersonation of Barney O'Moore were greatly appreciated. Sir Adam Fairfax was skilfully played by Mr J. O. Stephenson; the villainous Kane Fairfax was powerfully drawn by Mr Dan Farrough; Mr H. Edwards Cecil was a satisfactory Abel Fairfax; Look Logan was given in good style by Mr Bert W. Pearson; Zanetta Zola was artistically drawn by Miss Gladys Gilchrist. Miss Davidge Hender as Constance, Miss Nellie Kinnaird as Molly, and Miss Ada Frank as Nat gave admirable interpretations. The Diver's Luck was billed for the remaining three nights.

SOUTHAMPTON.

GRAND.—Mr Beerbohm Tree's company, in The Darling of the Gods, is attracting highly interested crowds here. The staging forms one uninterrupted series of scenic triumphs. The acting also is of a high order. Mr G. W. Anson's Zakkuri is wonderfully real and convincing; Miss Lilian Stafford gives a bright and charming impersonation of Yo-San, the darling of the gods; and Mr Gerald Kay Souper makes a tall, handsome Kara, his acting being most impressive. The numerous other parts are all in excellent hands, and the orchestra, under the skilful direction of Mr A Spittle, renders efficient aid. The stage-manager, Mr Stanley Wade, deserves a special word of praise, and the general manager of the company is Mr Walter D. Nicoll.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Mr Frank Bertram's company is presenting The Convict's Daughter, a capital drama, which is well played and excellently staged. Mr Bertram himself appears in the principal part, that of a convict, Michael Graham, and his acting throughout is impressive. As Edith Miss Edith M. Savery gives an effective portrayal, playing with tenderness and feeling; Mr J. N. Walton is a most convincing Frederick Neville; and Mr G. Moreton Williams is successful as Jasper Thorn. Miss Maude Osmond scores a huge success as Marion Thorn, and other efficient assistance is given by Miss Julia Alexander, Mr T. W. Hirst, and Mr Alf. Terriss, the latter being a clever comedian.

THE PALACE.—Charles Morritt tops the list here and wins applause for his wonderful illusions and smart sleigh-of-hand tricks. May Belfort with her piccaninnies scores in her scena, Missie Daisy. Athas and Collins, old favourites here, go well; and Maud Wilton proves herself a capital mimic. Other excellent items are submitted by Marie Wilton, Marie Robins, Mr and Mrs Paul Knox, and Joe Mac.

PIER PAVILION.—Madame Stockham's Grecian Band of harps has been appearing here during the week in a novel and refined entertainment. In addition to the beautiful harp solos by Madame Stockham the band has given several selections in fine style. The Misses Della and Gladys Stockham and Mr Stockham render useful aid in the instrumental department, and others who assist are Mr Sidney Stoddart, an accomplished baritone; Miss Mary Marsden, reciter; Mr Frank Crawford, a versatile entertainer; and Mr J. H. Adams, organist and accompanist. The entertainments have been particularly enjoyable, and the performers have received unstinted applause.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. Marlow; Manager, Mr W. Marlow, jun. — Mr Charles Macdona's company is here this week playing Three Little Maids. Good acting, beautiful songs and music, and charming dresses make a delightful entertainment. Miss Adeline Yohle, Miss Gertrude Melville, and Miss Nora Grey as Ada, Hilda, and Edna Branscomb respectively are winsome and pretty, and make the best of the parts allotted to them. Majestic and commanding, Miss Kate Forster is an ideal Lady Mallory, and Miss Laura Wright as Gretchen assumes an accent and deportment which are truly refreshing. Mr Arthur Langley makes a droll and humorous Lord Cheyne, and Mr Gus Oxley as Cupid, the caddie, is irresistibly funny. The choruses are nicely sung and the parts well balanced.

PIER PAVILION. — Sole Lessee, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr Mouillot's chief company, in the celebrated Japanese opera entitled The Geisha was here on Monday. Miss Aimée De Lesca gives praiseworthy prominence to O Mimosa San; O Juliette Diamante is effectively presented by Miss Violet Kenyon; Miss Florrie Saunders is admirably suited to the rôle of Molly Seymour; and Miss Aubrey Ashton gives a capital portrayal of Lady Constance. Mr Arthur Cartwright makes a good naval officer of Reginald Fairfax, and is ably supported by Miss Blanche Browne as Midshipman Tom Stanley. Mr Edward Carlton scores as Wun-Hi, and is as versatile as he is funny. Mr Lionel Braham gives satisfaction as the Marquis Imari. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday A Greek Slave was presented.

KURSAAL. — General Manager, Mr Sydney J. Childs.—A very large number of holiday-makers find their way to the Kursaal, where amusements are continuous from 1·0 p.m. till night. In the variety theatre are Juma's Octoroons, the miniature Christy Minstrels, whose songs and choruses are delightful; Alice Digby is a pleasing comedienne; Leonard and White are good vocalists and dancers; Hill and Fane, juveniles, give much promise by their instrumental selections; Alvantee, the wire king, has been re-engaged; and John Macauley is re-demanded for his fine tenor songs. In the Café Chantant are the Kursaal Pierrots, Miss Nellie Castling, Messrs Alf J. Lawrence, Harry Gifford, Alfred Hales, and Bert Atherton. The Powell Family, Rozelle, the Boxing Horses, Clown Leo, and other artists continue to attract at the circus.

SOUTHPORT.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Opera House and Winter Gardens Company, Limited; General Manager, Mr Alf. Hemming; Secretary, Mr W. L. Whitaker.—A Chinese Honeymoon has been an undoubted attraction at the Opera House this week. Mr Frank A. Wood is seen to advantage as the Emperor; Mr Harry Brayne as Mr Pineapple is very successful, and enhances his reputation as a clever comedian; Miss Marie Adair makes a charming Soo-Soo; and Mr Leonard May as Hi-Lung and Mr Allerton Turner as Chippi-Chop are very capable. Miss M. Sadie makes a hit as Fi-Fi.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—Mr E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is appearing here in the Russian drama, The Assassin, a piece full of stirring incidents, and the company responsible for its interpretation is in every respect adequate. Mr E. Hill-Mitchelson gives the requisite polish and bearing to the cowardly and villainous Prince Demetri; Mr J. C. Carlyle creditably enacts Ivan Spanoff; Mr Theo. Balfour looks every inch a gentleman as the ill-fated Duke Carl; Mr Arthur M'Cullock does good work as the bluff General Nichol; the idiosyncrasies of Baron Alphonse are ably hit off by Mr Edward Swinton, who has a capital second in Mr Fred Yarnald as Peter; and Mr Fred Wilberforce as Capt. O'Neil submits a distinctly amusing delineation. Miss Ruth Shepherd displays histrionic ability. The slight intrigues and petty worries of the fair American, Connie Jonathan, are naively depicted by Miss Alice Barber; Miss Grace Aimers is a charmingly sorrowful Nita; and the flighty Katrina has a good exponent in Miss Katherine Vere.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—Clark and Hamilton, comedy artistes, merit their position as principal turn, their excruciatingly funny business being rewarded by roars of laughter. The Haytors in an amusing sketch entitled A Hot Time, score heavily by their clever legmania dancing; Tatten Hall, eccentric comedian, and Rita and Roma, vaudeville entertainers, come in for a large share of applause; Arthur Reece, vocal comedian, furnishes an excellent entertainment; Stave appears in his Indian electrical speciality with great success; Amy Sullivan, comedienne; sings sweetly; and Georgina Leonard is a charming burlesque artiste.

SPENNYMOOR.

CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Harding Thomas; Resident Manager, Mr Herbert Vere.—Messrs Fred Darcy and Fred J. Little's company is appearing here in The Executioner's Daughter. Mr Edward M. Hamilton ably sustains the rôle of Mons. Roche, the executioner; Mr George Beverley supplies an excellent piece of villainy as Felix Marius; Mr Wilson Howard portrays Paul Rovel in a clever manner; Mr W. H. Sharpe must be commended for his rendering of Kretch; Mr E. W. Avery is exceedingly humorous as Tom Holmes, receiving great assistance from Miss May Rosine as Sally King; Miss Dorothy Riddell in the title-rôle gives an excellent performance; and Miss Carlotta Anson submits a powerful reading of Felic. Mr Sinclair Holden is characteristic as Vivian Ormonde, and a charming and clever Christina is found in Miss Beattie Moore.

STALYBRIDGE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident Manager, Mr J. Leighton Rooke.—Messrs Fred. Sinclair and Willie Burnell's False Lights company is here. Capt. Arthur Talbot has an able exponent in Mr E. S. Petley. Villainy is well depicted by Mr David Hamilton, Mr Gerald Munro, and Mr Lincoln Calthorp, and Miss Alice Inman is an interesting heroine. Mr Fred Ramsdale is efficient in the character of Jimmy Holly, and as Susan Miss Connie Meadows is keenly appreciated. Messrs Herbert De Ville, Ernest Bowen, Chas. Bentot, Chas. Lonsdale, George Kay, Harry M'Culloch, and Miss Eva St. Vincent add much to the success by their clever characterisation.

ST. HELENS.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED — General Manager, Mr M'Leod Loader.—The week's attraction is Dare-Devil Dorothy, performed by Mr Henry Swinerd's company, under the direction of Mr J. W. Cordiner. Miss Marjorie Cecil plays cleverly in the title-part, and the Silas Crump of Mr Arthur Verne is amusing. Miss Nellie Harcourt is successful as Judith, and is rapturously applauded for her dancing. Miss Kathleen Garnon, in the rôle of Ruth Montrose, displays ability. Captain Fielding has a safe exponent in Mr W. F. Green, and Mr Henry C. Ward scores as Captain Dudley. The musical director is Mr Arthur Lester, who performs his duties most satisfactorily.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident Manager, Mr A. V. Parnell.—The following artistes contribute to an entertaining programme here:—The Harmony Four, vocalists, instrumentalists, and comedians; Mr Joe Hennessy, club manipulator; Young Igo, clog-dancer; Victoria Troupe of dancers; the Countees, vocalists; Belrose and D'Velin, operatic duettists; Vandinoff, lightning painter; and Jeoffreys and Benson, duologue artistes.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—Mr Fred Karno's company in His Majesty's Guests has been a genuine attraction here this week, Mr Revill's handsome theatre being well filled in every part despite the sultry weather. Sergeant Lightning is impersonated by that clever comedian Mr Harry Roxbury in his usual amusing style. Mr Frank Morton as Lord Easem is thoroughly effective, and Mr Miffin has a capable representative in Mr George Claremont; whilst Mr Gus Le Clerq is really funny as Mr Minks. Miss Jessamine Newcombe as Lady Easem is admirable; Miss Edith Ager makes a charming Dolly; and Miss Julie Renals is very pleasing as Miss Manley.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—The attraction here is Mr J. Wilton Richards's company in The Broad Arrow. Mr Harold Ford's John Medwin is effective, and Mr J. W. Richards' Ikey Shaw is ably enacted. As Bob Bartram Mr Walter Wilby is good; Mr Fred Owen's Varges and Mr Dobson Clyde's Cory Crampton are capably presented; Miss Nellie Nevarro's Maud Shaw is carefully conceived; and Miss Rose Mervin's Grace Melrose has much natural charm.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—This company is headed by those vigorous knockabouts the Brothers Lang, whose comic antics are much relished; Bouverie Pleydell is a charming dancer and vocalist; Haig and Novel give a smart acrobatic show; the Bros Durant create mirth by their trapeze work and comic airship; Little Dando is decidedly quaint; Payne's Bioscope shows fresh films; the Andreassons are clever equilibrists; and the Bros. Lloyd do some difficult feats upon the double cords.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—Woolford's animal circus heads a capital bill here this week. The entertainment consists of trained ponies, donkey, and dogs, and the performance is much appreciated. Another fine turn is that presented by Permane's bears, in a truly wonderful act. Arthur Albert is an actor-vocalist of much ability; Venie Clements, in her sketch Last Night's Party, shows much ability; Downes and Langford are a pair of comedians of exceptional merit; the Sisters Urma are gymnasts extraordinary; the singing pit lad, Percy Farrimond, has a good voice; and the Rozells, on the horizontal bar, are both amusing and clever.

STOURBRIDGE.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mr Gus C. Livesey and company are paying us a visit with a drama entitled The Crimson Club. Mr Gus C. Livesey as Richard Fenton proves an able exponent of the character; Mr Lionel Thompson as Sir Philip Garside plays with force and ability; Mr Percy Shaw as Reginald Garside is a versatile and clever comedian, and his whistling solos were much appreciated; Miss Elsie Mesnerd as Muriel Lockwood was an able representative of the part; and Miss Lily Day did well as Soponisba Garside. Miss Kate Cameron as Esther Craddock played her part successfully, and others who contributed to a high-class performance were Messrs Herbert Belmore, Charles Nugent, J. E. Reed, and J. Wyes.

SUNDERLAND.

AVENUE, LIMITED — Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Mr William Greet's company, in The Sign of the Cross, occupies the boards here this week. Mr F. B. Woulfe as Marcus Superbus is admirable; as Mercia Miss Evelyn D'Alroy does extremely well; exceedingly good is the rendering of Nero by Mr A Bernhardt Turner; and as Stephanus Miss Ivy Millais is very prominent. The parts of Poppæa, Berenice, and Dacia find capable exponents in Miss Ethel Land, Miss Alma Bolton, and Miss Cissie Carlton. Mr Chas. Aldred and Mr J. Weatherall do well as Tigellinus and Lucinius, and other parts are in good hands.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr Fred C. Somerfield's company is here this week in A Life's Revenge. Mr Fred C. Somerfield gives a masterly interpretation of Prince Boris; Miss Marie Dagmar as Princess Vanda Ivyala is very fascinating and effective; and Mr Walter Roberts as Orloff, Mr John F Traynor as Paul Starovitch, Mr Martin Bingham as Lieut. Mikhaloff, Miss Katherine Eckhart as Marcia, and Miss May Davis as Daphne Dashaway are all successful.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr George V. Wybrow; Treasurer, Mr Alfred Browne.—An excellent programme here this week includes Melot Hermann, conjuror; Rachel Lowe, singer of novelty songs; Ted Cowan, comedian; Madame Emmy and her pets; Payne's Little Vagabonds; A. W. Asra, juggler; and Vernon's Animated Pictures.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce.—On Monday Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow's company opened a week's engagement here with A Sailor's Sweetheart. Mr Alfred Goddard made an excellent Lieut. Clive; Miss Adah Barton gave an admirable portrayal of Grace Mayland; and Mr Charles Stafford as Admiral Sephton, Mr William Stoneham as Captain Mayland, Mr C. A. Johnstone as Rev. Robert Clive, and Mr Robert Faulkner as Philip Pemberton rendered adequate support. The play is admirably staged and mounted.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr Robert Ayrton's company has been under engagement here during the week, and on Monday appeared in the realistic drama The Price of Pleasure, which is repeated to-night (Saturday). Tuesday and Wednesday Under Two Flags was put on, Thursday The Shadow of the Cross, and Friday the evergreen East Lynne.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—An excellent programme is provided here this week, and full houses have been the result. The particular star this week is the popular Eugene Stratton, in his melodious ideal songs of coon life; Peppo's monkeys are excellently trained; J. E. Coyle is a quaint and clever comedian; Lily Langtry, a bright and sparkling comedienne; the Three Ramoniers, in their trapeze act, win great applause; the Fleury Trio are graceful and clever Parisian dancers; and Heeley and Meeley a pair of quaint and clever American comedy acrobats. Elsie Clare is a charming soprano, and Fred Russell, ventriloquist, is responsible for a clever and enjoyable turn.

SWINDON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr Alfred Manners; Assistant Manager, Mr W. B. Astin.—Shadows of a Great City has been staged many times in this town, and has always proved a capital attraction. Mr Harry Foxwell's company, again under that gentleman's personal direction, have been giving good performances of the drama. The dual-rôle of Annie and Nellie Standish was excellently undertaken by Miss Shelia Walsh, and Miss Mollie Monaghan gave a pleasing portrayal of Biddy Roonan, marked by much earnestness. As Tom Cooper Mr Howell Travis greatly distinguished himself, his clever work with Miss Walsh being thoroughly effective. Mr Newton Pearce submitted a true study of the sneak-thief, Jim Farren; Mr Charles Vivian as the scheming George Benson did well, and Mr Basil Mitchell made the most of the part of Arkwright, the detective. Abe Nathan is still successfully played by Mr Harry Foxwell, who was well received.

TON-Y-PANDY.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Counsell.—Quite a packed house greeted Mr Alfred B. Cross and company on Monday, when he opened here with The Manxman. The production in the capable charge of Mr Cross is so well and widely known that it is only necessary to add that a high standard of efficiency is attained by Mr Cross and his capable company.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs F. Mouillot and Milton Dale; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Edgar Manato.—The week-end visit of Edward Terry proved a great success, there being big houses notwithstanding the hot weather. The greatest enthusiasm was elicited over his latest production The House of Burnside. On Monday the Ben Greet company in La Poupée occupied the boards. Miss Cissie Wade gave a clever impersonation of the doll; Mr Bert Davison was a most humorous Hilarius; and Mr Algernon Lee an excellent Launcelot. Mr J. Brull was seen to advantage as Father Maxime. For the week-end The Girl from Chicago is the attraction.

TYNEMOUTH.

PALACE AND WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Graham; Musical-Director and Assistant-Manager, Mr A. Blomé.—There is an entire change of programme here this week. Ashton's Italian Orchestra, under the direction of Chevalier Bocchi and Signor Fossati, please with their various well-rendered selections. The Gaieties, concert party, including Edith Thew, soprano; Maggie Godsmark, pianist; Ruby Wilson, light comedy vocalist; Charles Conyers, entertainer; and Wilson James, humourist, are received with great enthusiasm. Mdlle. Klöe, in her new and original Continental spectacle, entitled, Panneaux des Arts Electriques, showing scenes from The Sign of the Cross, &c., is accorded a flattering reception. The Haldyne Duo, in their comedy act, and the Three De Veres, comedy acrobats, cause considerable amusement.

WAKEFIELD.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr Henry Johnston's company, in The Houp-La Girl, is here. Mr Thomas Wyndham is seen to advantage as the Prince of Felsenberg; Mr Jack Durant gives a capital portrayal of Frank Saville; the characters of Lieut. Archibald Lambton and Major Daffney Devenport are successfully and humorously filled by Messrs Launcelot Usher and Eric Dalvere; Miss Margaret Wilson supplies a smart representation as La Belle Rosiere, the Houp-la Girl; Miss Bella Fossette is admirable as Miss Matilda Birkins; and the part of Olga is creditably filled by Miss Harland. The Rosie Rice Troupe contribute some clever acrobatic dances. The piece is well mounted.

WALLSEND.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Owners, the Wallsend Theatre Company; Manager, Mr T. Richardson.—Postmistress of the Czar is the attraction here this week. Mr C. Burnette gives a manly impersonation of Prince Michael Ivanoff, and as Sergius Danevitch Mr Gerald Bryne leaves little to be desired. Miss N. Glover is a pleasing Sophie Ivanoff, and as Princess Olga Miss Granston is excellent. Mr W. Cliffe gives a capital rendering of General Alexander Ivanoff; and Mr S. Harvey is most amusing as John Livesey.

WALSALL.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—The Osmond Tearle Shakespearian and classical répertoire company opened here on Monday with Othello, playing Hamlet on Wednesday. Mr Alexander Marsh gave a powerful rendering of Hamlet; Mr John Burton made an excellent Claudius; and Miss Carrie Baillie was a charming Ophelia. David Garrick was billed for Thursday, The Merchant of Venice for Friday, and Richard III. for Saturday. The company includes Mr William Lowe, Mr Cyril Grier, Mr Godfrey Tearle, Mr George Tearle, Mr Malcolm Tearle, Mr Llewellyn Evans, Miss F. Chamberlain, Miss Kathleen Magee, Miss Molly Malone, and Mrs William Lowe.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Company, Limited; General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Mr Edward Marris's company is here this week with As Midnight Chimes. Mr Melville Bickford as Luke Dezzard plays excellently; Mr Frank E Petley is most successful as Dave Stannard; Witty Wattie Walton is all that can be desired in the part of Tat Spavvin; Miss Minnie Ethel makes a charming Davy Stannard; Miss Annie Megson does well as Suzette; Miss Gertrude Price plays with pathos as Mary Stannard; and Miss Ethel M. Ward is very good in the trying part of Zamora.

WALTHAMSTOW.

PALACE.—Managing Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slatter.—Laughter, both loud and deep, greets the appearance of Fred Karno's company in that amusing extravaganza, The Dandy Thieves, which is the great attraction of the present week's programme at the Palace. Major Moss and Son present an agreeable sketch, in which their singing is admirable; Angeline is an adroit lady juggler; Mr Fred Carey a most amusing comedian; and in Mr Harry Alaska's comedy act he is assisted by a handsome lady no less clever than himself. Ford and Hanson work wonders as "American musical millionaires;" and another capital turn is provided by Allan and Hart, very clever duettists and dancers. Miss Sable Fern sings, in her own dainty style, a couple of catchy songs, of which, perhaps, "The Lily of the Valley" is the more popular.

KING'S THEATRE.—The evergreen favourite, The Shaughraun, is drawing capital houses here this week. With picturesque scenery, the best mounting, and good dresses, the efforts of a capital working company are seen to the best advantage.

WARRINGTON.

ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Mr T. Edward Ward's company in the stirring play, Her Fatal Past, is the attraction here this week. Mr Jackson Hayes scores a success as Mark Desmond, a remark which applies with equal force to Mr T. C. Glenville as Leonard Fernside. Mr Wilson Coleman as Gilbert Fernside imparts all the remorselessness that the part requires, and there is a touch of original humour in the character of Jonathan Bobbs by Mr T. Edward Ward which makes it a complete success. Miss Ward acts charmingly as Honor Symes, and Miss Helen Ingelow in the dual part of Ruth Fernside and Bella De Lara, Miss Marie Ault as Kittie Springfield, and Miss Grace Newman as Sal Jenkins complete a good cast.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Willmott.—The Steens head the bill here this week, and their mystic act is again responsible for crowded houses. The Two Wills supply an acceptable turn as comedy acrobats, and Ethel Loftus is a charming young actress and vocalist. J. P. Dane is a comedian of the first water; and Frew and Frew, eccentric comedians; and the O'Malleys, Irish comedians, together with the beautiful pictures displayed by the Royal Bioscope, complete an excellent programme.

WEDNESBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Harry Battersby Acting-Manager, Mr J. Cranston.—Messrs Marston and Buckstone's company, in The Silver Cross, is here this week. The rôle of Ben Adams is characteristically portrayed by Mr F. A. Marston, and as Philip Frewin Mr Harry Glenny gives an able embodiment. The valuable assistance rendered by Miss Maud Western adds greatly to the success of the visit. The Sisters Veli introduce some smart songs, and the Rose Walmsley's Yankee Trio contribute some excellent dances.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

GRAND.—General Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Fred Conneaux.—Mr Fred Bulmer presents his company in Sentenced for Life, which has on a previous occasion been played to a West Hartlepool audience. The play is remarkably well staged. Mr Harry Lloyd sustains the character of Lieut. Roy Stillwell in good style, and energy is shown by Mr Ernest Vaughan as Captain Paul Derrick. Mr Charles Whitlock as Rev. Martin Orris and Mr E. D. Allen as the Rev. Percy M'Gentle prove themselves equally excellent in their respective rôles. Comedy of the convict type is ably represented by Mr A. Marchant as Bill Sharkey and Mr E Findlay as Toby. A skilful representation of Adele Gray is given by Miss Georgina V. France, and Kate Rendel has a capable representative in Miss Madge Douglas.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—Miss Florrie Forde holds the premier position on this week's bill, and is such a popular favourite that even after singing five and six songs the audience is reluctant to part with her. This may also be said of George Brooks, who takes the house by storm nightly. Gintaro, juggler, gives a neat exhibition of his skill, aided by a clever lady assistant. Conan and Doyle, comedians, and Martino, the man frog, are old favourites here, and are this week increasing their popularity, and acceptable turns are provided by Lizzie Daniels, comedienne; Arthur Gilbert, vocalist; J. P. Devine, Negro comedian; and Clarice Netta, balladist.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—The King's Musketeers opened here on Monday to a large and enthusiastic audience. Mr Reginald Groome (Athos) sang "Drink to me only" most artistically, and gained loud applause. Equally successful was Mr W. A. Peterkin (Porthos) with his song "Long ago in Alcala" Mr Robert Grice (Aramis) sang "King Henry's Song" with expression. Mr Hugh Wright (D'Artagnan) created much laughter with his humorous song, "I'm not well." Mr Charles Wolseley (De Treville) delighted his hearers with his excellent pianforte solo, "La Fileuse," and Mr Astley Weaver's humorous recitals were much appreciated.

KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Payne.—This week the English Opera Singers are paying a return visit, and on Monday proved as popular as hitherto. Miss Edith Serpell sang with great effect "I wait for thee." "A Maid of Japan" was exceedingly well rendered by Miss Lily Pritchard. Mr Claude Anderson's rich and powerful voice was heard to advantage in "The Sweetest Flower that Blows." Mr Frederick Dale's humorous recitals and songs kept the house convulsed with laughter. It is a pleasure to record this artist's success, as Mr Dale is a native of Weston. Mr H. Collman's pianoforte solo, "Le Ruisseau," gained a decided encore.

VICTORIA HALL.—Manager, Mr E. W. Sully.—On Monday Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's company opened here in the successful comedy Saturday to Monday. Mr Charles Howitt's interpretation of Lord Culvert proved him a talented comedian; Miss Frances Vine gave an excellent portrayal of Mrs Wendower; Mr Donald Maclean, a sound artist, did extremely well as Probyn Dyke; the Rev. Toop found an able exponent in Mr Edwin Ling; and Miss Haidee Hemsley made a charming Angela. Miss Maimee Murray was most effective as Miss Ursula Toop; and Mr Jack Hampton did well as Stanley Pidding.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Manager, Mr N. Fortt.—Mr J. A. Hybert's Uncle Tom's Cabin company commenced a lengthy tour here on Monday to a crowded house. Mr J. A. Hybert gave a masterly impersonation of Simon Legree; Mr Western Beecher was a faultless Lawyer Marks; Little Eva was delightfully played by little Aline Don; the Uncle Tom of Mr C. Price merited praise; and Miss Annie Watson caused much merriment as Topsy; Mr R. Oliver (George Harris), Mr O. Richards (Augustine St. Clair), and Mr A. Hybert (Phineas Fletcher) made the most of their respective parts.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr E. H. Bull and Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Percival.—This week Mr Bert Coote's company is here in The Fatal Wedding. The part of Howard Wilson is capably portrayed by Mr Ernest Owttrim; Mr Wallace Stranack is an efficient Robert Curtis; Miss Ellen Russell plays effectively as Mabel Wilson; and Miss Doris Gilliam does well as Cora Williams. Jessie is admirably and charmingly depicted by little Miss Maidie Andrews; and other parts are well filled by Mr Edward Morgan, Mr John Wheatman, Miss Marie Hassell, and Master Gilbert Royce.

WHITBY.

SPA THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr Henry Walker.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company opened here on Monday for three nights with A Country Mouse and attracted good houses. Mr Sidney Stirling as the Hon. Archibald Vyse secured a distinct success. As John Bowlby, M.P., Mr Charles Harley was responsible for an effective rendering; Mr Arnold Lucy was a capable exponent of the rôle of the Duke of St. Kitts; and Mr Wilson Lumley was excellent as Lord Robert Wykeham. A highly pleasing and effective portrayal of Angela was submitted by Miss Dido Drake; Miss Dorothy Drake ably filled the rôle of Sylvia Bowlby, and Miss Eve Erskine gave a finished representation of Violet Aynsley. Miss Emily Levettez as Mrs Cropper was amusing.

WIGAN.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr John Worswick.—Mr W. W. Kelly's strong company has presented the popular drama A Royal Divorce this week at the Court Theatre before appreciative audiences. Mr George W. Cockburn and Miss Amy M'Neill represent the principal characters of Napoleon and the Empress Josephine. Mr Cockburn brings to bear great histrionic ability in the portrayal of the emperor, and the faithfulness and loving disposition of the Empress are set forth with intense emotion by Miss M'Neill. Mr W. Dexter as Talleyrand is admirable, and these are supported by a long list of capable artists.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—The Three Binns in comedy and music are a great feature of the programme this week, and Alcide Capitaine is a most graceful and accomplished gymnast. Marie Winsome, male impersonator; Bob Stephenson, a Tipperary boy; Spry and Monti, in a combination of wit and humour; and the Four Andys, Risley acrobats, are all very popular. Hill, Barry, and Lang, knockabouts, are extremely smart; and Tom Stuart, vocalist and mimic; Mary M'Glenn, soprano; Winnie Scott, soubrette; and the Hippodrome Bioscope form the complement of an excellent programme.

WINDSOR.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Governing Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry E. Rickitt.—Entering upon a third week at this theatre, Mr Coleman Davies placed upon the boards on Monday The Streets of London. Mr Coleman Davies again played, and with as great power and effect as ever, the character of Badger; Gideon Bloodgood is most skilfully impersonated by Mr Vincent W. Carlyle; and in the double part of Captain Fairweather and Paul Fairweather Mr Archer Terry displays versatility and strength. Mr Meehan does well as Mark Livingstone; the Puffy of Mr E. Meehan is excellent; Miss Evelyn Clare renders in admirable and natural manner Alida Bloodgood, the banker's daughter; Lucy Fairweather is very ably delineated by Miss Eunice Udall; and Miss May Neilson achieves success as Dan, her songs and sprightly acting being warmly applauded.

WORCESTER.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager Mr Arthur Carlton; General Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—Local lovers of the lyric drama have had a great treat provided for them in the performance of the O'Osly Carte principal répertoire company, under the management of Mr H. E. Bellamy, with Mr Fred A. Leon as stage-manager and Mr T. Silver as musical director. It is gratifying to announce that the initial performance of The Mikado on Monday attracted a crowded house, and that the audience was most enthusiastic. With such talented principals as Miss Norah Maguire (Yum-Yum), Miss Theresa Rassam (Katisha), Misses Jessie Rose and Mabel Burnege (Pitti-Sing and Peep-Bo), Messrs Fred Billington (Pooh-Bah), Pacie Ripple (Nanki-Poo), Albert Kavanagh (Mikado), C. H. Workman (Ko-Ko), and Fred Drawater (Pish-Tush), it need scarcely be said that every character named was most adequately impersonated, while band, chorus, and stage, and scenic accessories all contributed to a very fine representation. The artists named also took part in the other productions of the week, comprising Iolanthe, Patience, The Gondoliers, Princess Ida, and The Yeoman of the Guard.

WORKINGTON.

QUEEN'S OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr C. F. Porter.—Mr T. Arthur Jones's company in Life's Sweetest Sins opened to a good house on Monday night. As Marston Mr Jones played with vigour and secured sympathy as the hero. Mr A. B. Garth was picturesque as the villain; and Mr H. C. Momber was lively in his comedy, being well partnered by Miss S. Dudley. Miss M. Morley was forcible and charming as Doreen. The play was artistically staged.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Helsby Wright.—Mr C. Phelps is here with One Woman's Wickedness. As Jem Craggs he was heartily received as an old Workington favourite. Mr L. Brien was good as Beaufort. Mr H. Ward was capital as Limpy Harry. Miss Augusta Tullock gave a fine rendering as Janet Raymond. Miss Louie Davis was graceful and sympathetic as Lillian. Especially satisfactory was Miss F. M. Daly as Aunt Crasy. Miss E. Asbury was excellent as Jenny. The singing was effective.

WORTHING.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. B. Dixon.—Mr Chas. Macdona's company opened here on Monday in the musical comedy A Country Girl. Mr Guy Williams as Geoffrey Chaloner gives an excellent impersonation; Mr W. O Billington is distinctly good as Douglas Verity; Mr Bernard Vaughan is a highly dignified Rajah; Mr Richard Telford creates roars of laughter in his highly amusing representation of Barry; Mr Aubrey Carr is very good as Lord Grasmere; Mr Harry Playfair does well as Granfer Mummery; and Mr W. Besley Beltran as Douglas Verity and Mr F. Womack as Rube give effective aid. The Nan of Miss Florence Burdett is a thoroughly talented performance; Miss Florence Hallam is quite a favourite as Marjorie Joy; and Miss Lucie Lever as the Princess and Miss Sadie Neville as Madame Sophie are also thoroughly successful. On Thursday In Sunny Ceylon was presented by Mr Lawrence Brough and company.

YORK.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—The Duchess of Dantzic is certainly a charming musical play, bristling with tuneful numbers and witty dialogue. On Monday a large audience assembled. Miss Rita Presano is particularly suited to the title-rôle, her free, natural, and breezy treatment of the part being a leading feature of the production. Mr Albert Chapman as Lefebvre sings with excellent taste and expression, and Mr Fredk. Moyes gives a vividly striking sketch of Napoleon, showing histrionic ability of a high order. Miss Alice Coverick makes a sweet, dainty, and fascinating Renee, investing the part with much natural charm, and Mr Colin Mackay has never appeared to greater advantage than on the present occasion. Papillon in the hands of this clever comedian is a most amusing personage. The mounting and dresses are capital.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooke.—The Three Geraldos head the bill, their wonderful manipulation of Indian clubs being most dexterous; Haidee Lee and Wallace Kingston introduce some neat business in "Practical Joking," which is well received; Mabel La Blanche sings sweetly; Lily Sharplin is a good mimic; Fyne and Hurley amuse in their peculiar line; and Dion Wade, Charles Paver, and the Jagos complete the able company

NEW CLARENDON FILMS.

THE BURGLAR & THE GIRLS.

THRILLS OF EXCITEMENT AND SHOUTS OF LAUGHTER. REAL SCENERY AND CLEVER TRICKS.

Scene 1.—STORIES BY FIRELIGHT. A pretty scene—three girls brushing their hair en deshabille. (The light from the fire shines on their faces.)

Scene 2.—THE YOUNG LADY'S ROOM. Good-night! She is left alone.

Scene 3.—AT MIDNIGHT (with black sky and shining moon). The burglar mounts the ladder and breaks open her window.

Scene 4.—INSIDE THE ROOM. The girl in bed—the burglar at the window—the revolver—"Hands up"—the girl's terror—the burglar enters—binds and gags her. Intensely exciting and well played Scene 5.—IN THE GARDEN BELOW. Two policemen over the wall—they spot the ladder and come in—searching round—the rays from the lantern (a cleverly arranged trick, the policeman shines his lantern around and the rays show up brightly and in contrast to the rest of the picture). The constables think it over, and, taking a drink, they fall asleep.

Scene 6.—THE BEDROOM AGAIN. The burglar returning from below stairs, drunk—he drinks the lady's health—the sisters to the rescue—snatching the revolver—losing the captive—the intruder forced from the window with his own weapon—the girls throwing water from a bath. Full of life.

Scene 7.—AT THE FOOT OF THE LADDER. The bobbies asleep—down comes the water—the bedclothes—the burglar, and they just manage to recover in time to secure the villain—all are drenched.

Scene 8.—THE GIRLS AT THE WINDOW. Laughing and waving.

A REGULAR SCREAMER.

No. 103. Length, 300ft. Price, £7 10s. 0d.

THE CONVICT AND THE CURATE.

BEAUTIFUL ENGLISH SCENERY. BRILLIANT QUALITY. EXCITING AND LAUGHABLE.

Scene 1.—A PARTY OF CONVICTS AT WORK IN THE QUARRY. The quarrel—felled to the ground with a spade—the warder arrives—two convicts rush to escape—the warder shoots—one man shot dead—falls twenty feet to the ground—rush of convicts to the dead body—one convict clean away—chased by two warders.

Scene 2.—A GATE IN A LANE. The chase—the warder misled—the convict doubles.

Scene 3.—A CURATE'S BEDROOM. The convict entering at the window—the curate sleeps—a change of clothing—"a wolf in sheep's skin"—the sleeper awakened—no clothes but the convict's—the curate dons the convict suit—after the thief.

Scene 4.—IN A LANE. The miscreant reading the curate's love letters—the owner appears—the convict hides—the warder on the track—sees the broad arrow and fires—the curate hit, and captured as a convict—the rogue's delight.

Scene 5.—A FARMYARD. The hunted scoundrel in the curate's dress rushing for shelter to a haystack—the warder closely follows—the capture of the real convict.

Scene 6.—THE GOVERNOR'S OFFICE. The wolf face to face with the sheep.

STARTLING NEW COMIC.

THE TRAMP AND THE BATHER; OR, STOP THIEF!

The scene is taken in Eynsham Weir Pool, where a man is seen disrobing and plunging into the turbulent waters. Shortly afterwards a tramp comes along and effects a change of clothes. The swimmer quickly lands, and, putting on the tramp's "scarecrow" suit, runs off in pursuit, the hue and cry is raised, and a number of people join in a mad chase over fences, ditches, and bridges; the thief being eventually run to earth and summarily punished.

Absolutely steady. Beautiful scenery. Will cause roars of laughter.

MORE COMICS WITH POINTS.

We wish to particularly call the attention of exhibitors to the very fine selection of new pictures which we now have at their disposal.

Many of the films which we are now issuing will, we feel confident, MAKE HISTORY, and it therefore behoves those who wish to keep "at the top of the profession" to see these pictures without delay. Those who see will purchase.

Our August Elgé List will be ready on Monday next, and will contain full particulars of all our latest pictures.

No. 198. THE BABY SHOW.

Fat babies, lean babies, black babies, white babies—in fact, all kinds of kiddies, some cheery and others surly. They do not all obtain first prize, but they all deserve it. That, at any rate, is their "mummies'" opinion.

No. 200. THE FATAL WIG.

A maiden fair, past the first bloom of youth, resorts to artifice in the hopes of renewing her charms. But, youth will be served, and while the damsel is making a hit with her Sunday boy, some children on the other side of the garden wall procure their pa's fishing-rod, and hook a wig at a moment when the infatuated pair are locked in each other's arms.

Length, 118ft. Price, £2 19s.

No. 203. THREE LITTLE MAIDS.

Illustrating the adventures of three pretty little tomboys, who play truant for the day, and get up to all sorts of mischief. One of the funniest, and certainly the daintiest picture ever taken.

Length, 215ft. Price, £5 12s. 6d.

No. 222. STEWED MISSIONARY.

The adventures of the Rev. Mr. Dogood in the Cannibal Islands.

Length, 165ft. Price, £4 2s. 6d.

No. 649.

THE LOVER'S CRIME.

A scene of jealousy and sudden rage. A violent act bitterly repented when too late, and a hurried flight from justice, ending, after many exciting adventures, in the capture of the criminal.

The first scene is laid in a pretty country lane where a young lady is keeping an appointment with her jealous and passionate lover. He upbraids her with inconstancy, and she gets angry and tears up a letter which he has written to her, and flings the pieces in his face. Then she pulls the engagement ring from her finger and throws it on the ground, and tells her jealous lover that she will have nothing more to do with him. Enraged past all bearing, the lover suddenly pulls a revolver from his pocket and shoots his sweetheart dead. He repents his hasty action all too late, but he quickly sees that nothing can be done but hide, if possible, the traces of his crime and endeavour to escape the consequences. He takes the lifeless girl up in his arms and seeks round for a place to hide her. At the foot of a haystack near at hand he lays her gently down and covers her with loose hay. But already the sound of the shot has attracted a couple of policemen to the place, and the guilty lover has only just time to climb a ladder on to the top of the stack before a policeman arrives hot-footed on the scene.

The hasty concealment of the body has been badly done and is quickly discovered. The policeman runs up the ladder and accidentally knocks it over behind him. And then commences a chase which waxes both hot and furious before the murderer is finally run to earth. There is a terrible struggle on the top of the haystack and a wild leap for life by the criminal. The policeman tumbles from the top, but recovering himself he pulls himself together, and joined by another constable rushes off after the escaping man. Through copse and thicket, over stony roads, he runs with the policemen in full pursuit. At one quiet spot he doubles suddenly on his immediate pursuer, and flinging him to the ground gains a fresh start. Soon he comes to a high brick wall, which in his exhausted state is almost too much for him, but he manages to scale it just before the policemen arrive. He is hard pressed now and he finds himself at the banks of the river. He crosses the weir over the rushing, boiling water, his pursuers close at his heels, and then as a last resource he takes to the water.

One of his pursuers, however, is an expert swimmer, and he dashes in after the fugitive. After an exciting struggle in mid-stream, a severe ducking for the murderer proves too much for his plucky resistance, and, half-drowned, he is dragged ashore, handcuffed, and marched to justice.

Length, 300ft. Price, £6 5s.

PEREMPTORY SALE

OF THE ONLY PROMENADE PIER
in this the most Famous and Beautiful Watering Place in the North of England.

In the High Court of Justice, Chancery Division. Mr Justice Farwell—1904 S., No. 1,161. Hudson and Others v. the Scarborough Promenade Pier Company, Limited.

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION

by Messrs HOLLIS and WEBB,
at the Queen Hotel, North Side, Scarborough, on Wednesday, Sept. 21, 1904, at 3·0 o'clock in the afternoon precisely, subject to conditions of Sale,

THE PROMENADE PIER ESTATE,
situate on the North Side of Scarborough, and extending seawards to a total length of about 1,000ft., the entrance being from the centre of the Albert Drive and Clarence Gardens.

The freehold land comprises an area of one acre beyond low-water mark; also an area of freehold land on the shore measuring from east to west 20ft., and north to south 80ft.

There are also two adjoining plots of land lying respectively to the right and left of the entrance to the Pier, held on yearly tenancy from the Scarborough Corporation at the rent of £7 10s. per annum. The Pier, which is built of iron with wood decking and seating, was constructed under Statutory Powers.

THE ENTRANCE ARCADE comprises five lock-up shops, ladies' lavatory, two public shelters, and a spacious café, with frontages to the interior of the Arcade and the Royal Albert Drive. There are also Pier Master's workshop, toll office, and useful basement storage space. At the Pier Head is a about 130ft. in length, which contains a well-fitted refreshment bar, with six days' licence, a grand saloon capable of seating over 400 persons, with music, singing, dancing, and dramatic licences, fitted with inner and open-air stages, two dressing-rooms, boxroom, footlights, headlights, curtains, and silent turnstile. At the extreme end of the Pier are two Kiosks, which may be let off for a variety of purposes. The increasing popularity of the North Shore has of late years become strikingly evident. This is due in part to the overcrowding of the South Sands, but more to civic enterprise in forming the Clarence Gardens and in improving the approaches to the shore, thus adding to the attraction of a part of Scarborough which has always been pronounced equal, if not superior, to the South Shore in salubrity of climate and picturesque beauty of coast line. That this popularity will still further increase when North and South are connected by the Castle Hill Drive (now nearly completed) there can be no doubt. The electric trams will convey thousands of visitors from the South Sands along this the most beautiful and romantic marine drive in the North of England, direct to the entrance to the Pier, which will continue to be the most attractive centre for refreshment and popular entertainment on the North Shore front.

Plans, particulars, and conditions of sale may be had on application to the Auctioneers, 26, Park-row, Leeds; to the Receiver, Mr S. C. Platts, Chartered Accountant, York-chambers, Scarborough (of the firm of S. C. Platts and Son, Leeds and Scarborough); to Messrs Scatcherd, Hopkins, and Middlebrooks, Solicitors, Leeds; Messrs Helder, Roberts and Co., Solicitors, 3 and 4, Clement's-inn, Strand, London, W.C.; or to Messrs Simpson and Co., Solicitors, Leeds.

PANTOMIME ARRANGEMENTS FOR 1904-5.

We are prepared to abide by Last Year's Exceptionally Low Offer for Cleaning Pantomime Costumes in Quantities, being determined not to be beaten either in Price or Quality of Work.

XMAS PANTOMIMES.

WE ARE NOW GETTING BUSY CLEANING DRESSES FOR THE ABOVE,
but have plenty of room, and, like Oliver Twist,
WE ASK FOR MORE.

We are still Cleaning and Renovating Tableaux Curtains and Draperies from London and Country Theatres and Music Halls.

We continue to hold the field as Cleaners and Dyers to the Theatrical and Music Hall Professions. This fact is clearly proved by the unsolicited testimonials we are continually receiving.

Professional Work takes Precedence over all other orders.

By Special Arrangement,

TOURING MANAGERS

can have their Wardrobes Cleaned between Shows, when in or near London.

(SPECIAL TO THE ERA.)

EARLY on Saturday afternoon last an accident occurred to a man named Hawkins, one of the flymen employed at the Norwich Grand Opera House. About dinner time Hawkins was ascending a ladder, and at the same time essayed to carry a basket in his hand. Upon reaching the centre of the ladder he lost his hold and fell to the stage. It is conjectured that he was trying to get hold of the stave above him, and, having only one hand free, he fell. He was at once removed to the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital in a cab, where he was detained, and it is understood he now lies in a precarious condition, his injuries being of a far more serious nature than was at first supposed.

THE working staff of the Grand Theatre, Douglas, had their annual outing last week. A most enjoyable day was spent in the valleys of "Hall Caine Land." Mr J. F. Rylance, mine host of the Shakespeare Hotel, the theatrical house of call, proposed the toast of "The King;" Mr J. Lawrence Killip, the mechanist of the Grand Theatre, the vote of thanks to the Press. Mr Alfred Hemming was unfortunately detained by his professional duties in Southport, but a cordial vote of thanks was passed to him for his courteous and sincere recognition of the excellence of his employees, his ready sympathy in time of stress, and his desire to do all he could for everyone connected with the theatre.

NOTICES and reports of meetings, &c., are invited from the various societies with which stage employees are connected.

ADVERTISERS and SUBSCRIBERS who are moving about, and who have their Copy of "THE ERA" sent direct from this Office, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, are requested to forward the Addresses for their Papers not later than the Tuesday in each Week.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.

NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Z. Andrews.—Greed of Gold is the attraction here this week. Mr Carthage Caldcleugh gives a powerful impersonation of the rascally Jack Wood; Arthur Errol receives capable treatment from Mr Wilson Summers; and Mr Walter H. Cameron deals with the rôle of Cul Snig in a natural and amusing manner. Mr T. G. Warry is earnest and painstaking as the barrister; Mr Hyland Shea as Conn Creamer evokes roars of laughter, and is ably assisted by Miss Kate Leaver, who gives an excellent account of herself; Mr B. Fox supplies a fine embodiment of Tom Wellstead, the dumb man, his clever acting fairly bringing down the house; in the difficult part of the wronged heroine, Dora Wellstead, genuine sympathy is excited by the acting of Miss Edith Wallis; and little Florrie Woods plays Cecil in a charming manner.

ABERTILLERY.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. W. Ventom.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week we were favoured with a visit from Miss Gladys Sylvester and Mr Fletcher Sansome's company in Cissy. Mr Fletcher Sansome as Victor Carlton is pleasing and manly and sings capitally. As Gilbert Temple Mr Geo. Butt is cool and collected; and the rôle of Olive Temple as played by Miss Roma Dramaundy is equally effective. The Dossy Bowers of Mr Frank Heller deserves much praise. Very prominent is the rôle of Titus Thomas, B.A., and in the safe hands of Mr Dan Clifford it loses nothing of its importance. Miss Nellie V. Warden is also funny as Mary Mopps. In the triple rôle of Cissy Vere, Florine, and Mike Miss Florence Barnes looks sweetly pretty and sings delightfully. A musical speciality in act two by Miss Clarice Mignon adds considerably to the evening's enjoyment.

ACCRINGTON.

PRINCE'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr J. E. Barnes.—Wep-Ton-No-Mah is presented here by Go-Won-Go Mohawk and her company. The title-rôle is admirably played by Go-Won-Go Mohawk. Mr Geo. Thorne well represents Manuel Lopez; Mr C. W. Charles successfully depicts Colonel Stockton; Mr Geo. Courtney does well as Captain Franklin; Mr Guy D. Hackney capitally represents Sam White; and Mr Dan Ryan proves a most capable Garry Cullen. The part of Nellie Stockton is well looked after by Miss Minnie Goepel, while Miss Jessie Hart makes the most of Matilda.

ALDERSHOT.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr George E. Williams.—Despite the fact that Aldershot is only partly populated owing to the Army manœuvres, large audiences are welcoming The Eternal City, a hearty reception being given to Mr Ben Greet's company. Some eighteen months ago The Eternal City was first presented here, but few of the company are with it now, Mr Leonard Grey being the only one we recognise. Mr D. Lewin Mannering's is a powerful portrayal of the important rôle of Baron Bonelli; he is indeed a clever actor, whilst as David Rossi Mr Henry Deas is excellent throughout. Mr Leonard Grey's talented conception of Pope Pius XI. is even more successful than ever, and his efforts are highly appreciated. Miss Edita Anton Laing works hard as Donna Roma. Mr P. L. Julian gives a clever presentment of Bruno; and Mr Edward Clowes as Father Pifferi is a success. Mr E. Sharp's Angelielli is a commendable performance, Mr L. St. G. Lowther as Minghelli is good, and Mr A. E. Edwards (Thomasso), Mr Russel Thorndyke (Felice), Mr Duncan Yarrow (Murelli), Mr Cronin Wilson (Secretary) also do well. Others who help materially are Misses Millicent Granville, Edith Rubardt, Renée De L'Estrange, Alice Maud; Messrs F. R. Moor, W. Roberts, W. Meadows, Geoffrey Carlisle, Shaw-Phillips. Miss Harriet Greet is business manageress of the company.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Fairbairn.—Mr Fred Karno's company of comedians is here again with the popular musical farce, His Majesty's Guests, a piece designed simply to amuse. Those who find in farcical absurdity something to divert and drive away "dull care" may profitably spend a couple of hours at the theatre this week. The central figure in the piece is a comic policeman, played by Mr Harry Roxbury, who introduces "business" of his own which is extremely comical and ludicrous. He is well supported by the company, prominent characters being especially well sustained by Miss Jessamine Newcombe, Miss Edith Ager, Miss Julie Renals, Messrs F. Morton, G. Claremont, L. Sterling, Victor Thomas, Gus Le Clerq, Harry Evans, and others.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmot.—One of the latest novelties introduced at this variety house is W. Permane's Siberian educated bears, who go through a remarkable performance. The Lorrisons, comedy artistes, sing and dance themselves into favour, and the Brothers Llodge as the silver chain acrobats and athletes claim attention with their expertness. Other artistes whose specialities attract notice are the Irish comedians and dancers the O'Malleys, funny in song and patter and smart at repartee; Professor Stark, the eccentric magician; and Baby M'Farlane, the wonderful child vocalist. The Hippo. Bioscope projects some startling films.

BACUP.

NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr Richard Nightingale.—Messrs Fred Sinclair and Willie Burnett's company opened a week's engagement here on Monday with the drama False Lights. Mr E. S. Petley portrays Captain Arthur Talbot, his fine acting and military bearing being noticeable throughout the play. Mr Lincoln Calthorpe may be commended for a striking performance of Denbigh Lennox, an adventurer. Mr David Hamilton has many responsibilities as Seth Kaye, a moneylender, whose mission is to create laughter as well as contempt. Dr. Plympton has an excellent representative in Mr Gerald Munro, and is seen to advantage in the Asylum scene. Miss Eva St. Vincent as Mrs Forrester gives a sufficiently dignified rendering of the part, and Miss Alice Inman as Ethel Forrester submits a sympathetic embodiment of the rôle. Mr Fred Ramsdale as Jimmy Holly, a groom, causes much amusement. In the humorous element, he is ably assisted by Miss Connie Meadows as Susan Hawthorne, who contributes some good singing and graceful dancing.

BARNSLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. C. Mitchell.—Mr Tom H. Taylor's company in The Female Swindler occupies the boards here. Miss Violet Elliott interprets the part of Lu Valroy with rare skill, and Mr W. S. Hartford's Jack Coulson calls for great praise. Mr Rule Pyott is excellent as Abraham Mikestein; Mr Luke Forster is seen to advantage in his quadruple rôle; Harold Travers is made the most of by Mr George Unwin; Mr Weldon Atherstone is a capable Geoffrey Warden, alias Captain Stanton; May Andrews is well played by Miss Florrie Kelsey; and Miss Ada Maud wins favour as Mary Ann Mee.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr Jasper Redfern.—The Dainez Circus tops the bill here; the Royal Victoria Trio of international dancers do well; the Coopers introduce a clever show with coach horns; Mike Cray and his dog Dooley merit applause; Joe Henessey is responsible for Indian club manipulation; the Morrison Girls are good as duettists and dancers. Herbert Biggin, comedian, and the animated photographs make up a successful show.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. Stone.—Messrs Geo. Edwardes and Chas. Frohman's company in Are You a Mason? is here this week. Mr Anthony Fawcett makes an excellent George Fisher, while the part of Amos Bloodgood is irresistibly humorous in the hands of Mr Harry Ashford, and Mr Stephen Wentworth is a genial Frank Perry. Messrs Tom Mowbray, John Halton; Frank Ridley, Hamilton Travers; Valentine O'Connor, Ernest Morrison; are all exceptionally skilful in their respective parts. The Mrs Caroline Bloodgood is a fine study, and the sweetness and grace of the acting of Miss Violet Graham, Eva; Miss Lily Beagle, Annie; Miss Isla Glynn, Lulu; is especially noticeable, and Miss Lucy Edwin is a great success as Lottie. As a curtain-raiser Hushed Up, a comedietta, is finely done.

TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr Tom Whiting.—Miss Lily Marney, the top of the bill, is a great favourite, and Jimson's animals exhibit some wondrous training. Hurman is an exceptionally clever juggler. Tate and Tate are quite original as comedy acrobats, and are also exceedingly clever. Katawela's act on various cycles is very clever and entertaining. The dancing of the Sisters Morgan is greatly appreciated, and Drum and Major's return visit is well received, their patter and acrobatic dancing being quite out of the ordinary.

BATH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr Lewis A. Long.—Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company is fulfilling an interesting engagement this week in the quaint old-time comedy Quality-Street, which has met with unstinted approval from good audiences. Mr George A. Brandram is seen to rare advantage as the dashing Valentine Brown, his fine elocution being a treat to listen to. Miss Florence Jackson quickly captures all hearts by her delightful impersonation of Phœbe Throssell, and as the piece progresses the talented young actress is accorded louder and louder applause for her clever acting. Her elder sister, Susan Throssell, is admirably hit off by that experienced artiste Miss Grace Edwin, the many scenes between the above trio creating immense pleasure and amusement. Miss Gwynneth Galton gives a truly humorous portrayal as the devoted but outspoken maid Patty. Miss Isabel Merton and Miss Marie Dennett are quite satisfactory as the Misses Willoughby, and have able companions in Miss Frances Leslie (Miss Turnbull) and Miss Lillian Rogers (Miss Parratt). Mr Arthur C. F. Lyons is duly stupid as Ensign Blades, while Lieut. Spicer is carefully played by Mr Herbert Chown. Praise is due to Mr Dan Dyer who makes the most of his one chance as the Recruiting Sergeant. The school children in the second act enter into the action of the piece with evident enjoyment. The business manager of the company is Mr Roy H. Fry.

PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Trussell.—A specially strong bill is provided by the management for the Horse Show Week, headed by the celebrated comic opera comedienne, Miss May Yohe, who appeared on Monday evening, but has been out of the bill since. Bicknelle, announced as the model baker, moulds numerous faces with wonderful skill and withal in a truly humorous fashion. The well-known comedian Johnnie Danvers has some capital songs, and he has become a great favourite. Vivania is paying a welcome return visit, her various styles of dancing being executed with a bewitching charm that always commands admiration. Lily Black is a dainty comedienne who wins many hearts. Star and Jerome, buck and sand dancers, provide an agreeable turn. J. Mansfield, dialect vocalist, is well received. On Tuesday the Johnny Holland company had plenty to do, as in addition to their advertised sketch, My Friend the Boots, they also provided a shorter interlude entitled The Millionaire, in place of Miss Yohe's turn; but on Wednesday Holles, Goldman, and company began a special engagement in the comedy act, The Little Charwoman. Last night was the first anniversary night under Mr Macnaghten's sway, when a special programme was announced.

BEDFORD.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter R. Wilson.—Gymnastics ruled the programme here on Monday. Val and Goodman, speciality artistes and dancers, opened, and then Jocko followed with a novel performance on the aerial Norwegian spar. Oma and Calderon, funny acrobats and tumblers, and Almero, equilibrist, did some graceful feats; Hector gave a clever tight-wire and hoop-rolling exhibition; and Luis Hardt, the boy Samson, was responsible for interesting feats of strength. Some excellent scenes of Rome and Venice on the Bioscope concluded the evening's entertainment, to which Miss Ella Rose, soprano; Ferris and Farnley, comedians; and Pat Carey, a really humorous Irish comedian, also contributed.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Messrs H. and F. Poole's Mythorama is responsible for some most interesting pictures, and the variety turns include the Mitsuta Japanese Troupe; a Chinese magician, George French's Troupe, in a clever cycling acrobatic performance; and the Snow Family of expert skaters.

BELFAST.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr James M'Cann.—La Poupée is the attraction here this week. The visit is announced as a "farewell" one of the piece, and it is with regret one observes the fact. It is performed by Mr E. Lockwood's company, and the cast is much the same as on previous visits. The bright, tuneful, and catchy music is done full justice to under the leadership of Mr H. H. Shaw. Mr T. A. Shale undertakes the rôle of Lancelot, and the naive manner in which he does so adds largely to his success. His fine tenor voice is also heard to much advantage. Miss Midge Clarke is the Alesia of the piece, and the part could not be in better hands. Laughter loud and long greets Mr Arthur Reynolds as Hilarius. The parts of Father Maxime and Balthazer are well looked after by Messrs Eliot Skinner and Walter H. Page. The former receives a hearty encore for his admirable singing of the popular "A jovial monk am I." Mr Fred Walsh is a capital Baron, while the Loremois of Mr Chas. M'Lagan is capital. The Misses Lillie Leigh and Florence Shaw in the respective parts of Madame Hilarius and Henri are to be congratulated on the manner with which they undertake these rôles.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr John P. Beardmore.—There is a first-rate bill here this week, headed by the Original Celtics (the Comedy Four), Messrs Lyndon, Leslie, Allen, and Wilrowe. The Edgar Forrest comedy sketch company creates much fun with a smart little sketch entitled My Friend the Enemy. Hanvarr and Anna Lee, in a comedy juggling act, are much appreciated. The singing of Nellie Farrell is heartily encored. Les Aubyns are sensational acrobatic dancers. The Jagos, Mezetti and Mora, Helen Charles, Jack Lane, Kisbey, and George D'Albert also appear.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brock.—The Poluskis (Will and Sam), eccentric comedians, are top of the bill, and create a lot of fun. The Sisters Govell are charming duettists and dancers. Rezene and Robini, grotesque gymnasts, are both clever and amusing. The work of Howard and St. Clair, the American comedy artists, is up-to-date in every way. Josh Dixon, C. F. Best, Frank Lynne, and Jas. Grant, four comedians, all share in the general honours of the evening.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr Henry J. Downs.—The programmes submitted each week by Mr Downs at this Hall leave nothing to be desired. Bobby and Blank, a Continental musical act new to Belfast, is the top turn. An up-to-date extravaganza, Aunt Martha, submitted by James Marks and Kate Marks, meets with a hearty reception. Willie Turnbull, the Scotch athlete, performs a number of clever feats to the satisfaction of all. The New York Quartet of lady vocalists and dancers is very good. Lieut. Chard's dog circus is sensational in every way. Others appearing are Adey Spencer, Fred Keeton, Ailsa Douglas, and Fred Horsfall.

BILSTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—A good company is located here for the representation of The Crimson Club. Mr Gus C. Livesey gives a good reading of Richard Fenton; Mr Lionel Belmore energetically portrays the desperate Sir Philip Garside; equally powerful is the impersonation of Julia Marsden by Miss Bertha Cousins; the small part of Esther Craddock is nicely acted by Miss Katie Cameron; Mr Percy Shaw in many ways distinguishes himself as Reginald Adolphus Garside; and in the part of the Hon. Herbert Selby Mr Herbert Belmore shows much promise. On Thursday and Friday The Dumb Man of Manchester was underlined for revival, preceded by A Day Well Spent at Belle Vue.

BIRKENHEAD.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—The New Century Animated Photograph Company is fulfilling a short season, and meets with considerable success.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—Mr Harry Esden's company is here in Rogues and Vagabonds, Mr Bert Morley is a manly representative of the hero Harry Stamford; the evil deeds of Fernand Delair are graphically illustrated by Mr Ellerslie Pyne; and Police-constable Clegg is humorously played by Mr Frank Howard. Miss Lizzie Wells gives a telling performance of Hilda Jefferies; Vera Laverne is well played by Miss Billy Doyle; and a competent cast includes Mr John Cullen, Mr Harry Creamer, and Miss Marjory Armstrong. The scenic effects are on a liberal scale.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke.—Fred Karno's comedians, in the amusing travestie, Mumming Birds, are a leading feature here. Miss Lelia Rose, the accomplished and fascinating comedienne, is continuing a highly successful engagement, and Mr Mark Sheridan, an excellent comedian, is highly popular. The M'Connell Trio of vocalists, in their medley sketch 4 a m, are universal favourites, and other capital turns include those of Mr Harry Leybourne, character comedian; Miss Dora Lyric, comedienne; Mr Harry Taft, siffleur, &c.; Miss Ely Adair, serio; and Mr Frank Leslie, descriptive vocalist.

BIRMINGHAM.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr Henry Johnston.—The Duchess of Dantzic has been attended by big receptions, and Miss Evie Greene in this exacting rôle has with her wondrous versatility, illimitable vivacity, and melodious singing, created a furore in our midst. Miss Adrienne Augarde affords much enjoyment by her pretty acting and singing as Renee. Mr Holbrook Blinn plays the Napoleonic rôle with rare art and discretion. Mr Courtice Pounds as Papillon makes a huge success in the three-fold capacity of singer, dancer, and comedian. Mr Herbert Clayton endows the part of Lefebvre with capital acting and singing; Mr Leonard Mackay, who is successful in a double rôle, sings "Noblesse Oblige" to several encores; and Miss Billie Burke scores as Lizette.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr V. Turner.—Her Forbidden Marriage has attracted vast crowds here. The hero-inventor, George Madison, is presented in a manly and fluent style by Mr Horace Hunter, who derives adequate support from, amongst others, Miss Isla Garnet Vayne as the persecuted heroine; Mr Clarence Hague as the scoundrel, Charles Devereux; Miss Doris Brookes as Lady Lucretia; and Miss Emily Hughes as the Mother Superior. Mr Harry Elliston shines in the comic part of Timothy Tuttutt, and the Misses Marie Kildare, F. Straker, Little Alice, and Messrs J. Ansdell Wilson, Chas. Carte, Edgar L. Hocking, and others, contribute to the success.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—The Still Alarm has furnished another success to the untarnished record here, full houses nightly testifying to the abounding merit of this vivid story of real New York life. Mr Mathew H. Glenville as Jack Manley is for his excellent acting greatly applauded; Miss Mary Lovett plays the heroine's part in a most engaging manner; Mr Paul Lovett is successful as John Bird; and Mr Lewis Gordon as Franklyn Fordham, Mr Tom Beasley as Willie Manley, Mr Fred Osmond as Doc Wilber, Miss Mabel Veriton as Mrs Manley, and Miss Hettie Zillwood as Carrie Wilber each contribute towards the success. The "equine actors" in this production are also much admired for their good points, and the fire scene arouses intense enthusiasm.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Hindle Taylor.—The Mockery of Marriage has been emphasised here by Miss Olga Audré's company in the well-known play of that name. Miss Florence Zillwood is seen to special advantage as Alva Kenyon, and Mr Arthur Winpenny makes much of the rôle of Dick Kenyon. Mr Harry Stebbing is popular as Jack Stanley; Mr Frank Dalton establishes himself a favourite as Seth Pearce; Miss Lydia Audrey figures attractively as Rose Vernham; and Mr Talbot Hindley is highly esteemed as Pete. The comedy rôles are cleverly enacted by Mr Will Skelton as Toby and Mrs Sydney Halling as Mary Ann. The Four Aces figure in the last act with much success.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—The Lady Slavey, installed here on Monday, had a hearty reception. Mr William Greet's company is responsible, and Miss Addie Lennard in the title-rôle is made a great favourite. Mr Frank Sherlock as the sheriff's officer shines with a wealth of comicality. Miss Millicent Marsden as Flo Honeydew makes an agreeable flirt. Mr Walter T. Hybert is successful as Lord Lavender; Mr Allan Morris wins general approval by his excellent rendering of the millionaire's rôle, and Mr Harry Walsh, Mr Jno. Yates, Miss Jean Van Dalle, and Miss Ethel Ashton lend valuable support.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr Dan Barnard.—A Victim of Vallainy met with a most sympathetic reception on its presentation here on Monday by Messrs Atkin and Howe's company. Mr Magill Martyn as the hero victim, Frank Manton, was much applauded for his telling impersonation. Mr Walter Howe as Stephen Cavanagh proved a consummate stage villain. Miss Zoe Davis as the wife, Mary Manton, prepossessed the audience completely with her sympathetic acting, and Miss Helena Walbran as Alice Cavanagh acted meritoriously. Mr Arthur Staples as Tom Leckie contributed cleverly to the brighter side of the play, aided by Miss Marjorie Carroll as Jane, and Miss Nita Barton as Vera Diamond, "the music hall artiste."

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr A. W. Matcham.—The Boissetts, with their troupe of pantomimists, remain another week, presenting their absurdity, The Dock Strike. Paul Conchas gives a clever exhibition of juggling with Krupp shells. The xylophone entertainment of Baker and Balfe is well applauded, as also is Leo Tell for his instrumental and animal imitations. Professor Bernar is responsible for a clever marionette show. The Kreegers, in their musical extravaganza; Pattie Bella and Vi Holmes, comediennes; Spry and Austin, vaudeville artistes; Foreman and Fannon, comedians; and Charles Baron, with his burlesque lions and trained cats, make up an excellent programme.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Albert Bushell.—"Spot," the "enchanting coon," is thoroughly reviving the cake-walk here, and we expect Birmingham will be cake-walk mad for a week or so. The Revell Troupe in their pantomime act, "Mischief," are well received. Some clever impersonations of birds is presented by Chas. Mildare. Katie Butler is a comedienne of much merit, while the musical abilities of the Phydoras are loudly applauded. The Royare Bolleros Troupe have a smart acrobatic three bar act. Will Letters, Barney Stuart, and the Three American Idols all work with much success.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford.—This popular house is attracting large audiences, the principal item being an extremely clever juggling act presented by the Zanettos. Getting Even is the title of the sketch, thoroughly well played by Sinclair and Whiteford; Chas. R. Whittle is a popular comedian; Johnny Alexander's pantomime company, with Our Lodger, are highly amusing; Felton and Manley, in their athletic scena, are clever; and some excellent ballads are rendered by Lily Lonsdale. The Bros. Wragge, gymnasts; Avon and Crest, comedy artistes; Ernie Myers, comedian; and the Durvals, in their horizontal bar act, are in the bill.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident Manager, Mr Edw. Foster.—The Caledonian Boys' Orchestra renders some long selections; Henry Kaiser presents his juggling act with his usual success; Ryan and Hall, acrobatic grotesques, are well applauded; as also is George Brooks for his eccentricities. Some clever balancing feats are performed by the Brothers Parros; Pete and Juno, in their sketch Dancing to Win, are entertaining. Other excellent turns are Lizzie Daniels, vocalist; Mueller and Coyne, entertainers; Thelma, clay modeller; and Marconis, with a display of electrical and fire experiments.

BLACKBURN.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. H. Page.—From Scotland Yard, a drama full of exciteme nt, pathos, and humour, is here on a return visit this week. In the rôle of Detective Jack Dale Mr C. Finch-Hatton proves himself an actor of rare merit, playing the part with power and verve; Mr C. H. Matthews gives a capital portrayal of the cool, calculating villain, Dean Fordyce; Messrs Dan Agar and James F. Firth, a pair of clever comedians, supply the humorous element and keep the audience in one continuous roar of laughter with their eccentricities as Weary Marsden and Joe Staggers; Mr Jack Armitage presents a vigorous conception of Richard Drake; and Mr Will Harradine is a satisfactory Jim Mullins. Mr John Williams as Hawkins Bliss and Mr A. Kitson as Policeman Steele are both commendable; Miss Renee Glendower as Mad Marie is a distinct success, her acting in the more exciting and poignant scenes eliciting well-deserved applause; Mabel is sustained in a careful manner by Miss Marion Forrester; and Miss Annie Agar is very good as Sybil Dare, while Miss Nelly Hook is full of vivacity as Dolly Beetles.

BLACKPOOL.

HIS MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—Messrs A. and S. Gatti and Charles Frohman's company is here this week with Quality Street. Such a delicate play requires to be handled very carefully, and the characters need to be fitted to a nicety, otherwise its charm is quite lost. Miss Grace Armytage Noble appears with success as Phœbe Throssell, and Miss May Whitby lends capable support as Susan Throssell. Mr David Glassford is the Valentine Brown, Mr A. Carlar Grand the Ensign Blades, and Mr Arthur H. Hill plays Lieutenant Spicer. Misses Lizzie Scoble, Rollo Deas, Bertha Woolcote, Eveleen Mills, Alma Reeves Smith, Daisy Lee, and Mabel Wynne are also included in the cast.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr T. Sergenson.—Mrs Langtry and company are here this week in what is described as a comedy entitled Mrs Dering's Divorce. A good house assembled on Monday. Mrs Langtry plays effectively the part of Mrs Dering, and she is supported by Mr Edward O'Neil as Captain Dering, Mr Ernest Stern as Bertie Foster, Mr Charles Esdale as Lord Granpier, Miss Dora Heritage as Lady Granpier, and Miss Lydia Busch as Miss Verner.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Signor Pepi and Co.; Manager, Mr T. P. Duignan.—It is satisfactory to note that the management here is reaping the reward of its enterprise. A capital programme is provided this week. Joko and Koko appear in an equestrian performance; Laffan B. Jolly is a comedian who justifies his name; Will Anthy gives a smart wire act; Ray Tacoma is a clever impersonator; the Paragon Trio are refined vocalists; Vincent is a clever acrobat; Lily Sharplin scores as vocalist and mimic; Jack and Evelyn take well as duettists and dancers; the Lundgreens give a revolving ladder act; T. B. Fame, comedian, retains his great popularity; Adams and Ward are amusing comedy acrobats; and the Sisters Wingrove are pleasing duettists.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Waller.—The luminous one here this week is Tom Grave, in his marvellous feat of "Whizzing the Wheel." Harry Grey, comedy vocalist, also contributes a good turn, and his "Sketches from Life" take exceedingly well. The Seven Savonas are still retained, and their popularity increases. Kitty Rayburn, comedienne; Lydia and Albino, gymnasts; Brothers Artois, bar performers; Bastow Brothers, the muscular gladiators; and Marie Gibson, vocalist, are also in the bill.

THE Winter Gardens and the Tower Circus continue their respective programmes unchanged.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Fred Cooke; Manageress, Miss Gladys Gilchrist.—On Monday this house was reopened with Mr Henry Swinerd's No. 1 company, under the direction of Mr J. W. Cordiner, with that dramatic musical comedy novelty Dare-Devil Dorothy. General Carston is ably played by Mr Walter Boyce. Mr W. F. Green sings and acts in good style as Captain Fielding. Captain Edward Dudley finds an able exponent in Mr Henry C. Ward. Mr A. Stretton as Hawkins is excellent. Mr Arthur Verne is admirable in his humorous rendering of Silas Crump. Smith, the footman, is embodied by Mr W. G. Hearson, and Mr Frank Oliver is responsible for the part of Featherstone Haugh. Miss Kathleen Garnon (Ruth Montrose) and Miss Marjorie Cecil (Dorothy Montrose) play gracefully. Misses Mabel and Lillie Blake are specially good as Rosy Ann and Polly respectively, and Miss Nellie Harcourt is a pleasing Judith. A word of praise is due to Mr J. W. Cordiner for the excellent manner in which he looks after the comfort of his numerous patrons.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.

NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Waller.—Messrs Armadale and Warren's company is appearing here for the week with The Face at the Window. Chief honours must be given to Mr E. Hoggan-Armadale, who as Le Loup, the Wolf, gives a masterly depiction of repulsive villainy. Mr T. W. Dunscombe materially assists and shows ability as Paul Goffet; Mr George Pythian (Henry De Brisson) and Mr Alfred Richards (Lucian Cortier) play with considerable dramatic force. A pleasing and finished impersonation is that of Miss Marie Florence as Marie De Brisson, the heroine of the piece. In the comic element Mr Bob Anderson as Peter Pottlebury and Miss Lizzie Chambers as Babette are responsible for much laughter. Other parts are well sustained by Miss J. nale D. mpster, Mr C. Alan Hineson, and Mr R. L. Ward.

BLYTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr George E. Good.—Mr Fred Karno's clever comedians have paid a successful return visit with the humorous pantomimical farce entitled His Majesty's Guests. Mr William Rokeby gives an amusing rendition of Sergeant Lightning; the Lord Easem of Mr George Hudson is a capital performance; Miss Maud Fenton appears with success as Letty; Lady Maud Easem has a good exponent in Miss Jessamine Newcombe; and during the evening Miss Effie Northern appears in some speciality dances.

BOLTON.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director. Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Hermann.—On Monday Mr Louis Calvert's principal London company made its first appearance here with the successful play, Sunday. Miss Nita Faydon proved herself an able and effective actress by her strong and earnest embodiment of the title-character, which was the chief factor of the success. She was very ably supported by a good company. Mr J. Edward Pearce was polished and manly in the part of Colonel Brinthorpe, Mr Chas. B. Vaughan deserves praise for his rendering of Arthur Brinthorpe, Mr Ernest A. Douglas played Tom Oxley with much ease, Mr Frederick Powell was excellent as Towser; and the rest of "the boys"—Davy, Lively, and Jacky—were adequately represented by Mr John H. Manley, Mr T. Norman Walter, and Mr Whitford Kane. Miss Elizabeth Watson was natural and pleasing as Mrs Naresby; and praise is due to Miss Olive Adair for her quiet, but expressive rendering of the Nun.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Kenyon.—Appearing here are the Ernestine Trio in a screaming absurdity The Yorkshire Lad in London; Larry Lewis, eccentric comedian; Miss Winnie Scott, Parisian soubrette and dancer; J. P. Carroll, tambourinist; the Five Foys in their comedy speciality sketch The Excursion Dépôt; George Bendon, the white coon; Marie Winsome, male impersonator; Harry Zetter, comedian and grotesque dancer; Wood and Bates, comical musical comedians, and the Imperial Bioscope.

BRADFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Richardson.—We cannot remember a more genuine outburst of enthusiasm than that which greeted Miss Julia Neilson in the play Sunday on Monday evening, when she gave her remarkable performance of the title-rôle, supported by that excellent actor Mr Fred Terry as Colonel Brinthorpe, and a clever company whose individual efforts carried conviction with them. The earnest simplicity and freshness of Miss Neilson's impersonation in the earlier scenes of the play quite fascinated her audience, and she literally held them spellbound at times by her great power as an intensely emotional actress. It was an unerring performance of much sweetness and charm, contrasted very dramatically by phases of intense emotion and despair; and in response to the plaudits the curtain was raised no less than seven times. Mr Terry's acting was quietly subdued, manly, and thoroughly finished. Mr Malcolm Cherry was very forcible and earnest in the little he had to do as the erring Arthur Brinthorpe. The good-hearted Tom Oxley found an exponent in Mr J. D. Beveridge. With rugged heartiness Mr Rothbury Evans played the miner Towzer, and that excellent actor, Mr J. Carter-Edwards was picturesque and very convincing as his "pard," Davy. Mr Alfred Kendrick's Jacky was a fine effort, brimful of genuine earnestness and intensity, and the other miner, Lively, quaintly played by Mr Horace Hodges, was a striking and highly diverting contrast. Mrs Naresby had a genial motherly representative in Miss Bella Pateman, and the play was staged with an attention to detail quite beyond reproach.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Francis Laidler.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's No. 1 company commenced a return visit here on Monday evening with Messrs Wybrow and Thorne's striking drama A Beautiful Fiend. There was a large audience, and the unfolding of the interesting plot was followed with keen interest. Miss Sydney Crowe gives a clever and captivating performance of the title-rôle, and Mr Beaudyn again repeats his fine portrayal of the part of the Russian police-sergeant, Ivan Paulovitch. Sergius Strogoff is well taken by Mr A. F. Dudley, and in convincing style Miss Irene Munroe plays his sister, the heroine of the play, Nadine Karateff. As the villain, Count Fedor Karateff, Mr A. G. Polson Turner is distinctly effective, and the vein of comedy is well sustained by Miss Annie Clann as Patty Woodlands, Mr Robertson Foulis as Malachi, and Mr C. Kean as Christopher Crackles. The drama is finely staged.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Crawford Swann.—Those smart American comedy artistes Clark and Hamilton again provide an enjoyable turn here this week, and are, as usual, well received. Harry Bickley, comedian, contributes a diverting turn; and Edie King is an entertaining comedienne and clever dancer. There is a grotesque element and ability in the turn given by Abel and Welsh, and the Two Graces are seen to advantage as duettists and dancers. Newhouse and Ward, comedy trick cyclists, go through a clever and delightfully entertaining performance; and in a pretty scene, "Cupid's Garden," Gertrella, dancer and gymnast, gives an interesting display. In their smart sketch A Hotel Boots the Mannings Troupe create much hilarity with their clever acrobatic work. Milner Verren is an excellent tenor vocalist; some clever acrobatic work and hand balancing is gone through by the De Kock Brothers; and Florrie Forde, the dashing and favourite comedienne, is paying a welcome return visit with her accustomed success.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr E. Harrison.—No finer exhibition of feats of strength and muscular development has been seen here, we venture to say, than that given by the herculean Saxon Trio this week to great applause. J. P. Devine, a real Negro comedian, gives a capital turn, and so do the Four Trees, comediennes and dancers. Jack Lorimer, comedian, contributes acceptably, and as a ballad singer Clarice Netta is very charming. Harrigan and Holt's "patter" and dancing do not fail to entertain, and they are original. Bogg and Bogg, in their comic exposition of juggling, are very funny; and Marx Langslow, who on a high wire does some intrepid and wonderful shooting, does not fail to earn loud and well-merited applause for his clever feats.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—Manager, Mr S. H. Carter.—The New Century animated pictures, which are more and more up to date, still continue to form a big attraction here.

BUXTON.

OPERA HOUSE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Arthur Willoughby.—For the first three nights this week Mr George Dance's company, in A Country Girl, has been playing to good houses. The company is excellent in every detail. Mr Johnnie Osborne plays the part of the mirth-provoking Barry with much success; Mr George, jun., scores as Sir Joseph Verity; and Mr Tom Sheridan is good as Granfer Mummey. Mr J. Bruce sings his songs with taste as the Rajah, and is enthusiastically encored for "The Rajah of Bhong" and "Peace." Miss Maud Harvey is a delightful and piquant Majory Joy; Miss Annie Roberts is distinctly good as the Princess; Miss May Glen sings and acts with telling effect as Nan; and Mr Cyril Thompson shows taste and ability in the rendering of his tuneful numbers. For the end of the week we have Mr Charles Frohman and Arthur Chudleigh's Duke of Killiecrankie.

BOSCOMBE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Poole's Myriorama is the attraction here this week. An excellent series of pictures, of which Mr Frank Freeland proves himself a capable guide and cicerone, is interspersed with variety items of considerable merit, including Victor Howlett's Royal Marionettes; Zelda, instrumentalist; Henry Clinton, eccentric comedian; Wal Owen, a burlesque juggler; Sulli and Saroni, vaudeville duettists; and the Magnet sketch party, with their successful sketch entitled In a Looking-Glass.

BRIDLINGTON.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Chas. Palmer.—Miss Emma Hutchison's company has been appearing here in Mr Arthur Law's charming little comedy A Country Mouse, in which Miss Dido Drake as Angela acted with charming grace and simplicity; Miss Dorothy Drake gave a capital representation of Lady Sylvia; and Miss Ena Erskine was at home in the part of Violet Aynsley. Mr Sydney Stirling as the Hon. Archie Vyse, Mr Charles Harley as Bowlby, Mr Arnold Lucy as the Duke, and Mr Wilson Lumley as Lord Robert were all capable exponents of the characters, and so was Mr J. E. Watson as the Butler.

SPA THEATRE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Hy. Hague.—Mr Charles Macdona's company opened here on Monday with A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr Lester Carey is a most amusing Hang-Chow; the Lord Chancellor of Mr Percy Stephens is well done; and Mr Tom Birch is suitably placed as Hi-Lung. Mr G. P. Ascot as Mr Pineapple and Miss Dorothy Payne as Mrs Pineapple are seen to advantage; and Mr E. K. Favell is a good Tom Hatherton. Miss Cissie Schofield as Fi-Fi shows remarkable talent.

ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr Charles Palmer.—The vocalist at Herr Winternitz's promenade concerts this week is Miss Ethelle Vibert, a contralto with a good range of voice. Tuesday on the parade was set apart for a gala night, when, in addition to the Flockton-Foster entertainers, the orchestra gave a special programme, and the grounds were illuminated by Messrs Pain and Sons.

NEW SPA.—Manager, Mr Henry Hague.—One of the greatest events of the season at this fashionable resort is the manager's benefit, and this took place on Saturday, when a crowded audience testified their appreciation of Mr Hague's efforts as an amusement caterer. There was a monster programme, and every item was redemanded. The artistes included Madame Conlay, the charming Australian soprano; Mr John Dunn, the renowned English violinist; Mr Charles Knowles and Mr Dan Billington, baritone vocalists; Miss Margaret Cooper, soprano; the versatile London Pierrot team, who gave an amusing sketch, The Other Man; Miss Kate Erl's ladies' orchestra; and the Spa Company's English orchestra, under Dr. Churchill Sibley. The orchestra also played a new orchestral suite, "Cinderella," composed by Mr G. T. Patman, which was conducted by the composer, and which was most favourably received, the music being very pleasing. Mr Charles Knowles is the vocalist at the promenade concerts this week.

PEOPLE'S PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr William Morgan.—The variety turns this week include Linton, a clever acrobatic tight-rope artiste; Ariel and Astarte in their smart trapeze and horizontal bar act; Kavados, a neat cannon-ball juggler; Jack Pleasants, a quaint comedian; Miss Flo Everette, with well-trained performing dogs; Pastor Bros., musical comiques; and Will and Tim, a couple of funny tumbling tramps. Miss Kate Kildare's orchestra and concert party continue to give some capital programmes, and Henderson's Bio-scena have a succession of changes of living pictures.

SUMMER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs Beanland, Bath, and Danton.—The pierrot team continue to attract good audiences, and this week the company appears in a laughable burlesque, Madame Sanina's Orchestra.

BRIGHOUSE.

ALBERT THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr T. Morton Powell; Manager, Mr Manley.—The Rich and the Poor of London is the drama which is delighting the public this week in this borough. Messrs Preston and Doherty's company, under the direction of Messrs Sidney C. Cranston and Sidney Dench, is an excellent one. Miss Dora Dench as a hospital nurse is a most charming actress; Mr Cranston, in his original part of Gussy Lamb, is amusing; and one of the most comical and laughter-making artists is Mr Jay Laurier, who takes the important part of Spider Jack. Mark Stanley is well played by Mr Andrew Money.

BRIGHTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harcourt M. Beryl.—My Lady Molly proves very attractive here this week. Miss Edmee Dreux makes a delightful Lady Molly; Miss Zoe Gilfillan is a charming Alice Coverdale; Mr Stephen Fitzgerald gives a very humorous impersonation of Micky O'Dowd; Mr Leicester Tunks is highly successful as Captain Romney; Mr Harold F. Payne acquits himself admirably as Lionel Bland; and Mr H. Godwin Hunt's Sir Miles Coverdale, Miss Mabel Carr's Hester; and Miss Ebba Darcier's Mdlle. Mirabeau are well played. The full chorus and augmented orchestra are effective, the duties of conductor being in the able hands of Mr Leonard Leslie.

GRAND THEATRE.—Under the control of Mr Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr W. F. Crowe.—Messrs Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company opened here on Monday with The Village Blacksmith, and attracted a crowded audience. Mr Sam Livesey gave a masterly representation of John Strong, the village blacksmith, whose wife, Kate, was portrayed with great feeling and personal charm by Miss Ethel Kay. The villainous Captain Leo found a highly effective exponent in Mr Joseph Carter, Mr Frank Harrison made an admirable Lucas Marler, Mr Thomas E. Marshall's Jeremiah Parkins and Mrs T. C. Livesey's Sal Parkins were well played, Miss Maggie Edwards was a pleasing Ruth Parkins, Mr George V. Campbell's drolleries as Billy Twig evoked hearty laughter, Little Christobel acted intelligently as the child Harry Strong, and Mr George Wilton was well suited as the music hall manager. The drama was admirably mounted.

AQUARIUM.—Manager, Mr W. J. Hardy; Secretary, Mr S. H. Andrews.—The I. D. K. Minstrels are giving excellent entertainments here this week. The programmes, comprising ballads, coon, and comic songs, choruses, and comic and musical acts, are sustained by Harry Scotch, Warren Lawson, Arthur Withers, Percy Newport, W. Gartelle, Sid Gartelle, Herbert Norton, Willy Humphreys, and W. W. Whitlock. The various items are warmly appreciated by large audiences.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The following are here this week:—Miss Minni Letta's sporting girls, in a series of walking competitions; Mac Ture, comedy juggler; Bellrose and De Velin, operatic and speciality duettists; Dave Marlon, American comedian; Dorothy L. Clark, comedienne; Tom Lloyd, eccentric comedian; Simms and Simms, musical comedians; the Bob Hanlon Troupe, in their flying trapeze act; R. H. Douglass, monologue artist; and animated pictures.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr C. Thompson Ford; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—Mrs Bandmann-Palmer and company opened here on Monday with Mary, Queen of Scots. Mrs Bandmann-Palmer gave an artistic and convincing portrayal of the title-character; Mr F. Skein was well suited as the Earl of Leicester; Mr William Trant made an admirable Sir Edward Mortimer; and Miss Katherine Herbert was distinctly successful as Queen Elizabeth. Other parts were ably sustained by Mr Boyd Pearson, Mr Sydney Bland, Mr G. Munro, Mr C. Kingsley, and Mr A. Harvey.

WEST PIER PAVILION.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr A. D. Norman.—Messrs Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux's company is here this week with Joseph Entangled. Mr H. B. Warner gives an admirable impersonation of Sir Joseph Lacy; Mr Lawrence Grant achieves great success as Jermyn Pyecroft; Miss Mona K. Oram is a charming Lady Verona Mayne; Miss Shelley Calton makes a pleasing Mrs Henry Tavener; while Mr Stanley W. Ashworth as Hardolph Mayne, Mr Horace Lane as Harry Tavener, and Mr Cecil Brooking's Professor Tofield also merit commendation.

BRISTOL.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Macready Chute.—Mr George Dance's company is here with A Country Girl. Miss Maud Boyd was very successful as Marjory Joy, obtaining much applause for the "Coo" song and "When a maiden loves." Miss Daisy Le Hay scored as Nan, being both vivacious and amusing. Miss Ethel Negretti presented a graceful and dramatic exposition of Princess Melaneh. She sings well, and was justly encored for her fine rendering of "Under the Deodar." Miss Maud Prenton was pleasing as Madame Sophie, her songs and dances taking. Mr Charles R. Walenn was a capital Barry; Mr Robert Michaellis was successful as Geoffrey Challoner; Mr Joe Nightingale was sufficiently humorous as Sir Joseph Verity; and Mr St. John Hammond was highly satisfactory as Mr Raikes. The comic opera was excellently staged, the dresses being rich and tasteful, while the scenery was all that could be expected. The chorus did good work, as also did the augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr Sydney Shaw.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Ernest Carpenter.—The Fatal Wedding is capitally staged here and satisfactorily played by Mr Bert Coote's company. The final scene, Interior of the Fifth-avenue Church, New York, is especially realistic. Mr Ernest Owttrim plays with considerable dignity as Howard Wilson; Mr J. C. Sanderson is successful in the heavy part of Robert Curtis; Miss Helen Russell is sufficiently sympathetic as Mabel Wilson; Miss Doris Gilham is effective as Cora Williams; and Miss Maidie Andrews, a juvenile young lady, displays considerable ability as Jessie, being also successful with some pretty songs. The comic parts of Bridget and Toto are taken with much humour by Miss Maud Locker and Mr W. R. Chewd. A pleasing variety entertainment of song and dance is provided by a number of well-trained children in the third act, and in the church scene several boys, "the choir," sing remarkably well.

PALACE.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Resident Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr Welchman.—There is a good company here, including Austin Rudd, an amusing comedian; Melot Hermann, a conjuror of considerable ability; Salva and Manza, clever equilibrists and contortionists; Harry Anderson, a comedian with effective songs; Will and May Groves, pleasing comedy artistes; Alf Davis, an actor vocalist of merit; Les Voces, operatic duettists, who sing really well; the Two Bells, pleasing duettists and expert dancers; Kopski, a pianist of considerable ability; and Miss Winnie Derson, a successful comedienne. The performance concludes with Vernon's animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Captain Woodward's performing seals and sea lions provide an excellent leading turn, which pleases all parts of the house. Mirzah is a clever performer on the banjo, and he also juggles with four of these instruments, at the same time keeping the melody going. Tray and Rich, comedians, please; the Brothers Pim are smart eccentric gymnasts; Miss Raffin does an excellent act with her trained monkeys; Will Godwin, dramatic vocal actor, does a good turn; R. Hughman is successful as a mimic; Ben Nevis, comedian and dancer, obtains applause; Miss Vera Patey, character comedienne, is successful; and Walter Bellonini does a good juggling act with all his accustomed skill. The performance concludes with a new set of animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.

VICTORIA THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr C. Smith-Wilkes.—This week's programme is headed by Mdlle. Pilar Morin in a short Japanese play, O Mats' San, the title-rôle of which she ably sustains. She has good support from Mr James A. Cook as the Hon. Basil Tollerton, Miss Ethel Bret Harte as Tonpachi, Miss Howard as O Koto, and Miss M. Rose as O Saku. A very laughable turn is given by Rexford and Hunt (Ethel and Gerald), including an Indian love scene. Other turns are given by Hess and Lisbon, grotesque roller skaters; Wyotti, a witty juggler; Rose Newport, character comedienne; George Victor, descriptive vocalist; Blanche Gerard, comedienne and dancer; Gladys Archbutt, comedienne and speciality dancer; Archie Glen, boy comedian; and Harry Phydora, vocal comedian.

BURY (LANCS.)

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—A Woman's Pluck is being played here by Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company. The drama is sensational and the scenery good. Mr James Willard makes an excellent villain as Dick Darrell; Mr Edward E. Ashby plays Winston Dale in approved fashion; Miss Jessie Yatman is good as Jessie Pope; and Miss East Robertson is deserving of special mention as Grace Daremont.

CARLISLE.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, the Trustees of Mr R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr Stanley Rogers.—Mr Julian Malvern's company is here for the week in the sensational drama I Defy the World. Mr Lewis Gilbert, who appears in the leading part, gives a sound, robust performance which meets with hearty approval; Mr Joseph W. Worley is quite successful in portraying the villainies of Count De Beaulieu; and Mr W. Denning gives creditable support. Miss Guinevere Shilton makes the heroine a sympathetic and popular character, and Miss Lina Nazeby is also seen to considerable advantage. The comedy parts are well filled by Mr Charles M. Julian and Miss Maud Lillian, who have some very droll dialogue and business. The smaller parts are in good hands, and the drama is dressed and staged with taste and effect.

COATBRIDGE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Mary Watson; Manager, Mr C. B. Fountaine.—Mr W. H. Hallatt and company are appearing here this week on a first visit with Two Little Sailor Boys. Mr Hallatt ably sustains the rôle of Commander Tregarthen; Mr Leonard Booker is thoroughly effective as Lieut. Richard Redstone; Mr Edward Warden scores heavily as Capt. Tom Yorke, and Jack Jolly has a safe exponent in Mr Oscar Power. Miss May Day as Cyril Grey and Miss Ethel Frances as Tom Yorke, the two little sailor boys, receive rounds of applause for their clever acting; Miss Blanche Steele acquits herself well as Lola Grey; Miss Marie Daventry is a clever Mildred Grey; Miss Hilda Taylor makes a charming Lucy Wilson; and Miss Dorothy Lennox is a successful Mary Primrose.

CARDIFF.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Redford.—Mr Tree's company with The Darling of the Gods is paying a visit here this week. The play is causing much excitement, and its success during the visit has been quite phenomenal. Mr G. W. Anson gives an exceptionally fine and powerful study of Zakkuri. Mr Gerald Kay Souper as Kara, the outlawed prince, is all that can be desired, and is exactly suited to the part. Yo-San has a faithful exponent in Miss Lilian Stafford, whose acting certainly deserves high commendation, and Miss Augusta Haviland as Rosy Sky is good. Mr A. P. Kaye gives a capital delineation of Saigon, and the representation of Inu by Mr Cecil Tresilian could scarcely be improved upon. There are numerous minor parts, which are all unusually well portrayed. The piece is admirably staged.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Bateman; General-Manager, Mr Robert Sawin.—A drama of exceptional interest is The Triumph of Truth, presented at the King's this week by Mrs Henry Mayhew and Mr Charles Herrick's company. Miss Marie Auckland's rendering of the twin sisters quite sustains her popularity. Miss Rosabel Dodd is another actress of ability, her rendering of Blanche Le Croix being exceedingly fine. Mr T. Renaud Lockwood is the villain to perfection, and a manly hero is found in Mr Edward R. Louis.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Lea.—The bill, headed by the Donaldson Brothers and Ardel and company in their original pantomime A Zoological Comedy, includes the Manhattan Comedy Four, in an excellent combination of fun and vocalism; May Henderson, the vivacious and humorous coon singer and dancer; Brown and Robinson, The Bricklayer and His Labourer; the Mascotte Trio, in a marvellous gymnastic act; Flo Burris, a taking comedienne; Johnny Dwyer, the favourite comedian; Norah Emerald, a dainty song and dance artiste; and the American Bioscope with a series of animated pictures entitled "Off for the Holidays."

CASTLEFORD.

ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr Chas. Gadsby; Business Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman.—Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr J. Leicester Jackson's company, under the direction of Mr Chas. L. Lambert, forms the attraction here. Her One Great Sin was the play selected for the first three nights, and The Penalty of Crime for the remainder of the week. On Monday the piece met with a hearty reception from a large audience. As Rueben Warhurst Mr Sam Arthur made a conspicuous success; Mr C. L. Lambert worked hard and successfully as Dan Hundle; while Mr Frank Breen did justice to the part of Jack Hundle. Mr Frederick Loyd scored as Arthur Thornhill; Miss Florence Creagh was sincere, and showed a command of pathos as Grace Warhurst; Miss Louie Walton was thoroughly at home in the rôle of Bet Hundle; Miss Nellie Lambert as Nancy played with care, and met with applause for her work. In the hands of Mr Fred Hodson the character of Jerry Jumble was not wanting in liveliness; Miss Phyllis Damian presented an acceptable portrayal of Charlie; while a capital impersonation of Gracie was supplied by Miss Marie Lambert. Mr Cyril Robertson acted well as Mr Benton.

CHATHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr Geo. G. Ridley.—The Royal's patrons are provided with a treat this week in the shape of a visit of Mr Leon M. Lion's company in Margaret Young's drama The Edge of the Storm. Mr Henry Renouf is specially engaged for the rôle of Jim Poulett, and proves powerful and popular. Miss Jean Sterling M'Kinlay creates the most favourable impression. Other characters are admirably portrayed.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr L. B. Barnard.—One of Barnard's favourites is here this week—Sam Mayo, who is scoring every time. Cruikshank sings, plays, and patters to everyone's pleasure and satisfaction. The remainder of the company includes Nora Noble, comedienne; Sisters Brenton, duettists and dancers; Lacey's Erascope with new pictures; Downes and Langford, eccentric comedians; Madame Alencon, illusionist and conjuror; and Fred Southern and company in The Demon Postillion.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr Frank J. Donne.—Marie Lloyd is the glittering star here, and needless to say is attracting bumper houses with her clever rendering of "Eh?—what, what?" "Something on his mind," "It's the skirt that tells the tale," "The Coster's Wedding March," and others. The Daunton Shaw Troupe of cyclists display skill and daring; and Elna May, serio; Eugene and Willie, musical acrobats; Frank Cass, vocalist; Sisters Tinsley, serios; Emma Don and company in Scenes of London Life; and our old friend, Slade Murray, complete the company.

CHELTENHAM.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Cheltenham Opera House Company, Limited; Manager, Mr O. Redford.—Kitty Grey is the attraction here this week, with Miss Hilda Guiver in the title-rôle. Miss Guiver possesses a voice of remarkable power and is heard to advantage; Miss Emily Helene makes an acceptable Lady Binfield; Miss Emily Stevens as Mrs Bright is a big success; the Sir John Binfield of Mr Robert Selby is fresh and pleasing; Mr Leslie Harris as Lord Plantagenet is a typical dude; and Mr Robert Whyte, jun., makes an excellent King of Illyria. Miss Constance Hamilton contributes a smart rendering of Sadie. The minor parts are well filled, particularly that of the waiter at Duplay's, played by Mr Russell.

CHESTERFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr Holbery Hardy.—Mr S. F. Cody's company opened here on Monday with The Klondyke Nugget. Mr Edward Leroy gives a capital representation of Sam; Mr Vivian Cody is a clever Joe Smith; Mr Leon Cody well portrays the part of Waco; Mr Bob Thorpe makes a satisfactory Bill Sykes; Miss Edith B. Mumford acts well as Rosie Lee; and Miss Lillie Kerr as Nellie makes every use of her opportunities.

MEMORIAL HALL.—Lessee, Mr S. L. Urwick.—Mr Frank Nelson's company commenced a six nights' engagement here on Monday with the farcical comedy Trooper Hunt's Widow. Mr Howard Cridland as Trooper Hunt acts with great vivacity; Mr Henry Osmond causes much laughter as the eccentric little "sport," Ryder; Mr Edgar Kent is smart as the solicitor, Henry Fraser; Mr Cecil Fowler gives a comical impersonation of Nathaniel Lapp; Mr Roy Milton does well as Richard Hunt; and Mr George M'Closkie is good as Newman. Miss Ella Kitson gives a clever representation of Mrs Jane Watson, the wardrobe dealer; Miss Amy Edmunds is a pretty and entertaining Frances; and Miss Susie Oak is a pleasing Bessie Wood.

CROOK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Wallace Davidson.—This week we have a return visit of Mr Sanderson Moffat's company in A Woman Adrift. As a special feature in this week's performance Mr Wallace Davidson appears in the heavy lead—a dual-rôle. As Sir John Ingleby Mr Leslie Beaufort gives a finished performance, and Miss Phyllis Hamilton submits a pathetic and impassioned portrayal of Cora Leigh. The energetic comicalities of Miss Maud Merrick (Molly), Mr W. A. Mackersey (Roderick), and Mr Watson Hume

CHORLEY (LANCS).

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr G. T. Santé.—Mr Garrett Todd is presenting A Daughter's Crime here. Mr D. W. Cleugh is well cast for the rôle of Sir Charles Tremaine; Mr William Vaughan gives a clever rendering of Rupert Thorne; Miss Joan Pereira as Ivra Blight plays her part in a most inspiriting manner; and Hilda Dundonald is capably acted by Miss Grey Allison. Mr H. Talbot infuses into the part of Jacob Single some excellent humour. The minor parts are well sustained by Miss Richardson, Miss Emery, and Messrs A. Alexander, F. Emery, and E. Norman.

CLYDEBANK.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Wilson.—The attraction here this week is Muldoon's Picnic, presented by Mr John Cassidy's company. Mr Edwin Garth is very amusing and works hard as Michael Mulcahy; Mr G. Wesley is good as Dennis Muldoon; and Miss Madge Cassidy is a vivacious Kitty Muldoon. This trio, together with the rest of a clever company, manage to keep the audience in good humour throughout the entertainment.

COLNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Gerald Harding.—Quasimodo, played by Mr Roy Jackson's company, was the attraction here for three nights this week. As Quasimodo Mr Roy Jackson sustains the part in capital style. Mr George Lambton does remarkably well as Frollo, the priest. The part of Pierre Gringoire, poet and showman, is played by Mr Percy Braithwaite, who causes roars of laughter. The way in which Esmeralda is played by Miss Kittie Douglas reflects great credit on that talented young artiste. As the portrayer of Captain Phœbus De Chateaupers Mr Gwen Richardson deserves a word of praise, and in the rôle of Fleur De Lys Miss E. Townsend shines remarkably well. Other parts are creditably played by Mr T. Ellis, Mr Neil Smith, Mr R. Stone, Mr E. Davis, and Miss Grace Harlington. For the remaining three nights The Hand of Iron was billed.

CONSETT.

NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr Lloyd Clarence. — This week we are having a welcome return visit of Mr Chas. March and company with the powerful spectacular play The Priest of the Temple. Mr Chas. March in the part of Valerius is excellent, and as Decus Fronto Mr Ronald Bayne is very good. Mr Henry Moxon is well suited to the part of Applus Herdonius, and Mr Stanley May gives a careful representation of the part of Hermanus. Miss Evelyn Pope in the rôle of Polita does full justice to the rôle, whilst as Praestantia Miss Marie North renders efficient aid.

CORK.

OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr John Horgan.—My Lady Molly was played here on Monday to a crowded house. Miss Decima Moore as Alice Coverdale sang delightfully and acted with grace; Miss Beatrice Edwards as Lady Molly was excellent; Miss Kitty Upton was delightful as Hester; and Miss Amy Cooper as Madeline Mirabeau was efficient. Mr J. T. M'Cullum as Mickey O'Dowd made an eccentric Irish servant; Mr Harry T. Davies was an effective Captain Harry Romney; Mr Ernest Mozer a capital Lionel Bland; and Mr Augustus Cramer a good Sir Miles Coverdale.

COVENTRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—The great melodrama The Bells of Haslemere, by Henry Pettitt and Sidney Grundy, is being played at this house by a capable company under the direction of Mr Chas. A. Chandler. Frank Beresford, the Squire, is excellently impersonated by Mr Leonard Yorke; John Silkstone, a financier, is in the hands of Mr Montague Turner; while Mr Chas. A. Chandler is responsible for some clever acting as Captain Vere. Joseph Thorndyke is well rendered by Mr Fred Allen; Reuben Armstrong is impersonated by Mr Chas. Cecil; Mr Douglas Hamilton is successful as Matthew Brookfield; Miss Mary Hardacre shows great ability as Evelyn Brookfield; while Miss Stafford Smith is good as Mary Northcote.

CREWE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry Taylor.—Mr Henry Hare's company have paid their first visit to Crewe with the musical farcical comedy, entitled The Girl from Chicago, and have met with a good reception. Miss Lily Beverley enacts the title-role very satisfactorily, and her songs are greatly appreciated. Judge Ananias Hussel is well represented by Mr Buckston Claire, and his clerk, Billy M'Guffin, is humorously played by Mr Edwin Dodds, his eccentric dancing causing great hilarity. Mr Henry Hare makes a sufficiently irate General Boomer, and adds much to the general amusement. The character of Montmorency, a dude, is characteristically portrayed by Mr D. Vigors. Mr C. Ibbotson displays much quaint and original humour as Obadiah Cackles, his facial expression evoking repeated laughter. Mrs Sweetlove is represented by Miss L. Beaumont very naturally, and her singing greatly enhances the performance. Miss Nelly Vicott as Lucretia Flatfoot is really funny, her grotesque manners and dancing fetching the house. The Three Daffodils are responsible for some clever dancing.

CROYDON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr Reginald Lawrence.—Mr Harry Paulton and company are appearing here in Niobe, and meeting with cordial greetings. Miss Kate Connaught is an enchanting and admirable Niobe; Miss Grace Massey is a spirited Madeline Milton; Miss Agnes Paulton is a coquettish Hattie Griffin; and Misses Ida Heron, Dorothy Rowe, Lucy Verrier, and Annie Marrian are efficient as Caroline Dunn, Helen Griffin, Beatrice Sillocks, and Mary. Mr Harry Paulton's humour as Peter Amos Dunn is most exhilarating; Mr Harry Paulton, jun., is great as Cornelius Griffin; Mr Ernest E. Norris gives a sound performance as Philip Innings; Mr Jo Monkhouse renders valuable aid as Hamilton Tomkins; and Mr Tom G. Lawrence completes the cast as Parker G. Sillocks. The curtain-raiser is Delicate Ground, in which Mr Ernest E. Norris, Mr Jo Monkhouse, and Miss Dorothy Rowe appear.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr H. D. Lyle.—Uncle Tom's Cabin is proving a safe card to play here. Mr Edward Aldworth is sincere as George Harris; Mr Kora Deanrajah is a sympathetic Uncle Tom; Mr W. H. Cecil Pierpoint is commendable as Phineas Fletcher; Mr St. Vincent Beechey is responsible for considerable mirth as Marks; Mr Fred G. Kay submits a forcible rendering of Legree; Miss Alice Lewis is well placed as Emmeline; Miss Florence Venimore is a suitable Eliza Harris; Miss Marie Lyndon deserves a word of praise as Ophelia; Miss Kitty Wood is a nimble and lively Topsy; Little Marie is satisfactory as Eva; and the remaining parts are adequately enacted.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Resident General Manager, Mr Eustace H. Jay.—The amusements here are varied and entertaining. The Watson Family are excellent in vocal, musical act; Kitty Bell, comedienne, is applauded for her dancing; Kloof and Ramsay are capital musical drolls; Wertz and Judge work hard as eccentric acrobats; Les De Breans, sciographic and Jap entertainers, make a big hit; James Fawn, comedian, is always witty; Wal Pink and company repeat a former triumph in sketch, Peggy; and good turns are given by Amy Height, comedienne; W. Wallis, comedienne; Patty Yole, serio and dancer; Charles Ashdown, comedience; Lillie Lawrence, serio; the Wedburns, comedians; and Nelson and Thomas, on the "Ra Ta."

DARWEN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. L. Ormsby.—The attraction here this week is a stirring drama entitled Vice and Virtue, admirably played by Mr R. S. Gresham's company. The story is one dealing with the life of Lancashire's cotton operatives, and although the play abounds in dialect dialogue, the artistes proved equal to the task. Mr R. S. Gresham gives an earnest rendering of the inventor, John Carford, and Mr John Power as Robert Hicton plays the heavy part admirably. Miss Ana Corri sustains the part of Edith Wheatley very creditably, and as the sister of Hicton Miss Rita Millman fills her rôle exceedingly well. An excellent foil to the serious situations is provided by Miss Nell Ingram and Mr Horace Buckley, whose acting and singing attain a high level and their fun-making much appreciated.

DERBY.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr Chas. Denley.—Messrs John Hart and H. Armitage's company is this week producing the late Wilson Barrett's drama The Never-Never Land. Mr Edmund F. Kennedy plays Jack Mowbray with distinction, and the part of Nat Rudder is successfully accounted for by Mr Edward Rochelle. Miss Caroline Barrett gives a charming and sympathetic presentment of Sybil, and Miss Marion Fawcett is eminently deserving of praise as Lady Walgrave. Miss Julie Kennard is to be complimented upon her rendering of Sal Berker. Mr Benson North does well as Wolff, and Mr Cecil Elgar is highly satisfactory as Lord Thorland. Particularly good is Miss Margaret Parker as Smudgee; Mr Arthur Bolton gives a careful and conscientious depiction of Tom Hewley; and Mr George M'Kenzie plays exceedingly well as Jack Lansdale. Wong, a Chinese servant, has an excellent exponent in Mr Sydney Bancroft; and Miss Blanchette Grand is thoroughly capable as Lorna Mannerley. The scenery is exceptionally fine, and every care seems to have been exercised in the artistic mounting of the play.

PALACE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr T. A. Edwardes.—At the head of the bill here this week is Arthur Albert, actor-vocalist, whose songs, which are all rendered in fine style, are received with approbation. Madame Collard makes a hit with her highly trained dogs in an act, "Robinson Crusoe and his Favourites." Matt Wilkinson's comedy company are very diverting in their absurdity The Registry Office. The Ladderites prove themselves expert ladder performers; the Tatlers are an entertaining comedy pair; the Three Zaracs, in an amusing sketch, submit a creditable triple horizontal bar performance; Emmie Ames appears with success in her latest scene, "'Neath the Shadow of Great Big Ben;" and Tom Berrick, described as the "black tit-bit," is an acceptable dancer and comedian.

DEWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Resident-Manager, Mr J. Herbert Asquith.—An excellently staged drama in Napoleon the Great is here this week under the management of Messrs Carson and Granville. It is written by Mr Frank Thorne, who also takes an active part in the piece. In the title-rôle Mr Hugh Montgomery achieves special success, and his delineation at all times is powerful and convincing. No less prominent is the performance of Mr Henry Earlesmere as Colonel Laverennes and that of Colonel Meuron by Mr Charles Howitt. As Sergeant Choupin Mr C. W. Spencer is the bluff veteran to the life, and Mr Thorne as Pierre, has many telling situations. Miss Chrissie Dunbar portrays Marie with feeling and emotion, and Miss Maud Russell as Leonie is also good.

HIPPODROME AND VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr G. Weldon.—The programme here this week includes Atlas and Vulcana, in a remarkable athletic show; Wirson, on a return visit, in his equilibristic act; Henry Carlton's comedy combination, and the Sisters Hula, in a commendable performance. Sadie Seymour is a pleasing vocalist, and others of note are Paddy, Levarni, Dale and O'Malley, and the Rozellas. The Vernon Bioscope is also an attractive turn.

DONCASTER.

NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Councillor J. W. Chapman.—The management has provided an excellent variety entertainment here. Maggie Duggan, burlesque and character comedienne, is a huge success; Stylo, the hoop manipulator, causes a furore; Mark Anthony, story-teller, vocalist, and mimic, is distinctly clever; much merriment is evoked by the Du Gross Trio, in their comic gymnastics; Quinton Gibson, lady impersonator, is vociferously applauded; a pleasing turn is submitted by Effie White, kaleidoscopic dancer; and Hill, Barry, and Lang, of pleasant recollections, are more popular than ever. Vera Mayne, comedienne, charms with popular melodies, and Harry Sellars is a success. The Achmed Ibrahim Arab Troupe concludes the entertainments.

DOUGLAS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr T. R. Wood. — Mr George Dance's principal company presented a new version of the musical comedy Madame Sherry at this theatre on Monday evening. It was capitally acted. Mr Fred Walton as Joseph played with the artistic reticence which comes from knowledge. He was excruciatingly funny, but he was ever within the picture. Mr J. Robert Hale was excellent as Andrew M'Sherry; Mr Ivan Berlyn rendered valuable assistance as Gustave; Miss Georgina Delmar has a picturesque and impressive appearance, she looked the fiery woman who comes from "Kidars Jents," and she sang with force; Miss Mabel Sealby did well as Mistigretti. Miss Nellie Dade as Maud possesses the quality so often denied to the comedienne in petticoats—she was funny. Miss Lily Elsie as Barbara made quite a hit. Mr F. W. Forde was an imposing Colonel M'Sherry. The scenery was adequate, the dresses bright, and the music tuneful.

GAIETY THEATRE, LIMITED. — Secretary and Manager, Mr Charles Fox; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Brittain. — The Girl from Kay's is the attraction here this week. Miss Simeta Marsden as Winnie Harborough was delightful. She has humour, and she can act, sing, and dance. Miss Alice Russon made Norah Chalmers the interesting character the author intended. Miss Maisie North was clever as Ellen, her maid. Miss Ada Crossley did all that was required as Mrs Chalmers. Mr Charles Hanbury was the Harry Gordon, and did his allotted work with sincerity. Mr Fred Rolph presented a clever little study as the hall-porter. The Hoggenheimer of Mr H. C. Barry was a really striking performance. Mr H. C. Barry is an artist The other characters were ably played and the chorus was large.

PALACE. — Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Limited; Secretary and Manager, Mr Charles Fox, Jun.—The season may in Douglas be drawing to a close, but the attendance at the Palace continues to exceed managerial expectation. The programme pleases all and sundry. Mr Alfred Gibson presents a quaint and amusing interlude. His songs are quite funny, his methods excellent. Vasco, the mad musician, plays a dozen instruments in about the same number of minutes, and his execution on all of them is worthy. Miss Alexander Edwin sings sentimental ballads, Mr James Dunn handles the banjo cleverly. Chinko and his sister juggle with effect. The star turn is De Dio in her startling sketch Terpsichore's Dream. This attracts and interests. There is also the Bio-Mutograph, which illustrates the chief events of the passing show, and, of course, dancing in the Grand Ballroom. Of other attractions there are many, including Mr George Burton's Bohemian Serenaders. On Thursday a complimentary benefit was tendered to Mr Harry Wood, the popular chef d'orchestre.

DERBY CASTLE, LIMITED.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr Alfred Kelly.—Visitors have a real affection for this place of amusement. Mr Horace Wheatley's methods suit them—his patter, his songs, and his neat dancing are appreciated. In the Bijou Theatre, an entertainment, original and varied, is given by Mr J. P. Wyman, clever conjuror, illusionist, and shadowgraphist; by Vox, the ventriloquist; the Allisons, comedy duettists and dancers; also the Three Missouris, comedy acrobats, in a sketch Captain Kettle and his Mates, which is very clever. A new series of animated pictures, and dancing to a capital orchestra, under the direction of Mr A. J. Graham, complete the attractions.

HIPPODROME.—Directors, Mr C. H. Powell and Mr F. J. Connor.—This always popular place of amusement has been packed nightly. The clever managers have secured a startling attraction in Professor Inman Hocking, hypnotist and scientist. The other part of the programme is quite up to the standard the public expect from these clever entrepreneurs.

MR FRED BUXTON'S PIERROTS AND VILLAGE still continue to attract large audiences.

MR GEORGE BURTON'S PIERROTS continue the even tenor of their way, and secure much attention.

MR CHARLES DARE'S MINSTRELS, if possible, increase their popularity. A complimentary benefit was on Wednesday tendered to the popular manager, and Douglas Head was crowded.

DOVER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr Charles V. France's company, in Whitewashing Julia, met with a favourable reception on Monday. Miss Ruth Maitland as Julia acted with grace and tenderness, her fascinating personality as well as her capability for comedy making her a general favourite. The prominent part of Lady Pinkney lost nothing of its dignity in the hands of Miss Kate Bishop, for she played the rôle with a stateliness and charm which were most effective. The virtuous grandeur of the Bishop's daughter was most impressively shown by the clever acting of Miss Gladys Erskine; and Miss Mary O'Neill as Mrs Chaytor and Miss Mary Conway as Miss Fewings made the most of their small but important parts. A charming rendering of the rôle of Trixie Blenkinsop was given by Miss Marie Lohr, who deserves unstinted praise for her bright and vivacious portrayal. Miss Kate Osborne as Mrs Benbow utilised to the full her qualifications for comedy. Rosie was played naturally and well by Miss Lillian Brennard. Mr H. Asheton Tonge's impersonation of Mr William Stillingfleet was clever and consistent. The characteristics of Mr Samways were well presented by Mr Archibald M'Lean. Mr H. Carter Bligh as the priggish Bevis Pinkney made excellent use of his opportunities, and Mr Willox Cadogan scored a decided success as Teddy.

DUBLIN.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr Charles Hyland.—The boards are occupied here this week by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company in Saturday to Monday. The principal character, Lord Culvert of Alcester, is successfully impersonated by Mr Stuart Champion, who displays considerable skill and ability throughout the play. As the fascinating widow, Mrs Wendover, Miss Moyna Creegan gives an exceedingly clever portrayal, and Miss Madeline L'Estrange is most effective in the rôle of Lady Diana Porchester, whose daughter, Angela, is admirably represented by Miss Nancy Beresford. The acting of Mr Dallas Welford, in the part of Stanley Pidding, is very good, and a capital embodiment of Probyn Duke is given by Mr Thomas A. Braidon. Miss Josephine Kaye submits a clever reading of Miss Ursula Toop, and the part of Miss Skeet is amusingly portrayed by Miss Ida Laurie. Mr Thomas Sidney is also particularly good as the Rev. Lemuel Toop. Miss Olive L. Leyton does well as Thompson, and Mr Augustus Davenport is successful as Jarvis. Judged by Appearances, an amusing one-act farce, preceded, and was well received.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing - Director, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr Arthur Armstrong.—Mr George Dance's company is appearing here this week with the musical comedy, A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr Martin Adeson, in the character of Mr Pineapple, is as popular as ever, and Miss Eva Bevington is seen to advantage as Mrs Pineapple. Miss Vera Vere adequately sustains the rôle of Fi-Fi, her songs being well rendered; and as the Emperor Hang-Chow Mr Philip Hayden is all that can be desired. As the Princess Soo-Soo Miss Madge Temple is most effective, and sings her songs with great taste. Lord Chancellor Chipple-Chop has an able exponent in Mr Ernest Laws, and the part of Lord High Admiral is capitally played by Mr F. Payne. Mr Frank Crimp is good as Tom Atherton, and Miss Holford Beringer is admirable as the mother-in-law, Mrs Brown. The choruses are well rendered, and the orchestra is cleverly conducted by Mr A. Romilli.

QUEEN'S ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr Kennedy Miller.—Mr Kennedy Miller's company entered on their third week here on Monday night, when J. W. Whitbread's romantic Irish drama, The Insurgent Chief, was presented to an excellent house. The rôle of Michael Dwyer is played in an able manner by Mr Fred Lloyd, and Mr Ion Ireland is a successful Captain Airley. Mr James O'Brien gives a clever delineation of Hughey Byrne, and Miss Monica Kelly is most effective as Anne Devlin Mr Dane Clarke gives a capital impersonation of Captain Carr and as Mrs Airley Miss Helene Forrest is admirable. Mr Harry Richardson is acceptable as Doctor Armstrong, and as Mary Doyle Miss Annie Hylton is creditable.

EMPIRE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. S. Figgis.—The chief attraction here is R. A. Roberts, protean actor, who displays much ability in his several characters, and is warmly applauded. Phillips and Terry are highly amusing in their sketch The Revolt of Man; or, A Hundred Years Hence, and Katie Cohen is a vivacious comedienne. The vocal selections of Albert Christian are nightly encored, and the Brothers Edgar are a clever pair of comedians. The droll songs of George Formby are much enjoyed, and Florence Gwynne is a successful comedienne. Brett and Orford in their vaudeville Two Love Birds make a decided hit, and the Empire pictures are up to the usual standard.

TIVOLI.—General Manager, Mr Chas. M. Jones; Secretary, Mr H. A. Murphy.—Topping the bill are the Eight Lancashire Lads, whose vocal and terpsichorean entertainment is well received. Another interesting item is Charles Matthews, the human kangaroo, whose jumping powers are well appreciated. Wal Robbins, musical comedian, scores a success, as does also the Wallys, comedy jugglers. Two Stars are excellent comediennes and dancers, and Harry Wright, extempore vocalist, has caught on. Nellie Gannon, character comedienne, has many admirers, and Fyne and Hurley, "The Coster and the Dude," meet with success. George Bernard is a good actor-vocalist, and the Bioscope is showing up-to-date pictures.

ROUND ROOM, ROTUNDA.—Proprietor, Mr Chas. W. Poole; Manager, Mr J. R. Poole.—Poole's Myriorama commenced a short season here on Saturday. The programme is an attractive one, including some new and interesting items. The pictures are interspersed by an excellent variety show given by the following artistes:—Kitty Woodford's canine circus and orchestra; Harry Stewart, American Protean change artiste; Little Doretta, acrobatic coon song and dance artiste; Mons. Henri, equilibrist and gymnast; Kitty Woodford, with American illustrated songs; Leonard and Mac, eccentric comedians; and William Stewart, guide, vocalist, and eventographist.

WORLD'S FAIR.—Proprietor, Mr Chas. James.—The company engaged here this week includes C. H. Burns, vocalist and instrumentalist; Miss Emilie Stephenson, ballad vocalist; Bob Ebony, Negro comedian and dancer; and Witty Will Pearce, vocalist and humourist.

DUMFRIES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. E. Potts.—Mr Edward A. Coventry and Mr J. R. Collins with a special London company are here for the first three nights of this week with the sporting farcical comedy Thoroughbred. Mr R. Cowley Polhill made a first-class Lord Sandacre; Mr Percy Bell was very amusing as the Mayor of Upcomb; Mr Edward A. Coventry as the Hon. Bjenkinsop Carlingham was well received; Mr John W. Bradbury as Jebb Tosh was very clever; Mr Allan Cunard was well placed as A. M. Decker; Miss Hilda Stewart as Wilhelmina Carlingham was sweetly natural; and Miss Mary Smith as Mrs Rimple and Miss Katherine Parry as Beatrice Egerton were well placed.

EASTBOURNE.

DEVONSHIRE-PARK THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr A. Standen Trigg.—Mr C. P. Levilly's company is appearing here in the opera Amorelle. Miss Empsie Bowman is a light, bright, and dainty Amorelle, and a sweet, pleasing voice is excellently used in her pretty numbers. Miss Belle M'Kenzie acts prettily as Lesbia, and she makes the most of her fine vocal powers; and Miss Von Bargen gives a capital sketch of the love-sick Marina. Most of the comedy work falls to the lot of Mr Leon Simkin as Doctor Crow, and he works hard and well to provide much merriment. Mr Arthur Cozens possesses an excellent voice, and he is altogether a satisfactory Jules; and Mr Horace Manger is an efficient François. Mr Arthur Elwyn and Mr George Paulton are in their respective parts of the Count and Boissey very commendable exponents. Mr Fred Carrington is an admirable Father Dotard, and his song is one of the successes of the evening Mr J. Redmond is a handsome and attractive Lupin, and Mr Langford Reed is a very appropriate Kamfersdam.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company is appearing here in Alone in London. Miss Madge Devereux plays the trying part of Annie Meadows with great skill, and she is a distinct success; Miss Ada Tilley gives a most sympathetic rendering of the part of waif Tom; Miss Ada Elliston is a bright and sprightly Liz; and Mrs C. Wood is an admirable Mrs Maloney. Little Paul is prettily played by little Ella Gillette, and Miss Lily Lewis is a satisfactory Ruth Clinton. Mr Stephen Ewart has much to do as Richard Redcliffe, and he makes very able use of his opportunities; and in his evil doings as the villain he is ably assisted by Mr J. W. Elliston as Jenkinson; while Mr Henry George is a manly, earnest Biddlecombe. Mr Hugh Brady as Spriggins and Mr Lonnen Meadows as Charlie capably supply the merriment needed; Mr Stafford Smith is a dignified Mr Barnaby, and Mr Herbert Light as Walter suitably completes the cast.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr George Hayes.—The Geisha, performed by Mr Mouillot's chief company, is proving a great attraction here. Miss Aimee de Leska is both pretty and clever, and with the aid of a fine voice she proves a most fascinating O Mimosa San. Miss Florrie Saunders, too, is a very dainty and attractive Molly Seymour, and she sings with skill and taste. Miss Violet Kenyon is a gay and sprightly Juliette, Miss Aubrey Ashton is an animated and imposing Lady Constance, and Miss Blanche Browne is an amusing Tom. Mr E. Carlton as Wun-Hi contributes materially to the fun of the evening by his lively, energetic work. In a distinct and able performance Mr Lionel Braham, as the Marquis Imari, is responsible for a great deal of laughter; Mr Arthur Cartwright sings and acts well as Fairfax; Mr J. Hornby excellently sustains the part of Katana; and Mr Harry Reynolds is a perfectly satisfactory Takemine. Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr Charles V. France's company appeared here in Whitewashing Julia during the latter half of this week.

TOWN HALL.—Manager, Mr W. Kennard.—On Thursday evening Mr George Grossmith appeared in his well-known entertainment, which included "A Musical Comedy" and "Miserable Moments."

ECCLES.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Hague; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr P. Ryan-Smith. — Large audiences are assembling nightly to witness The New Mephisto, by Mr W. H. Kirby's company. Mr Kirby as Dick Pilgrim is a host in himself, and keeps the ball rolling the whole time he is on the stage. Mr Fred Lyne is extremely clever in the title-rôle, and helps materially towards the success. These two gentlemen are well supported by Messrs H. P. Carr, Herbert St. John, and Willie H. Vernon, who are excellent in their respective rôles. Miss Lily Gullick sings and dances with pleasing vivacity in the part of Dolly; Misses Dorothy Cecil, Leah Howard, and Marion Keeley are three fascinating, goey widows; and too much praise cannot be bestowed on Miss Marion Armitage for her clever and amusing portrayal of Becky Pilgrim.

EDINBURGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Hollister.—There has been another sporting piece here this week, The Money Makers, played by Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's company. It was effectively staged and nicely acted, and the performance afforded the audience much satisfaction. Mr Frank Lacy made a spirited Captain Fitzgerald, and Mr Allen Thomas, an old favourite, had a kindly reception in the genial character of Matthew M'Dougall. Miss Muriel Ashwynne was seen to advantage in her original character of Dot, and Miss Lorna Lawrence kept the fun going merrily as Mabel. Miss Mary Griffiths, another member of the original cast, appeared as Mrs Bannerman, and Miss Frances Davie, who worked indefatigably all through, was a bright and vivacious Bella. Numerous other parts were ably filled. Mr Edward Sidney causing lots of laughter in the congenial rôle of Fred. Two in a Trap preceded.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General-Manager, Mr G. T. Minshull.—After some years absence Mr E. S. Willard made a welcome reappearance in Edinburgh at this theatre on Monday evening. The opening play was The Cardinal, by Louis N. Parker, and a large and enthusiastic audience followed the various scenes with rapt attention. The character of Giovanni De Medici was one that suited Mr Willard admirably, and his picturesque presence, powerful acting, and rich-toned delivery made a great impression. The whole performance was of abounding interest, and the chief actor was heartily recalled at the finish. Adequate support was given by Mr A. S. Homewood, who made a frank and manly Giuliano De Medici, and by Mr William Sauter, a crafty and sinister Andrea Strozzi, while Mr Walter Edmunds looked and acted well as Guido Baglioni. Messrs Ulick Burke and Harry Cane introduced clever character studies as Beppo and Peter Ramsam, and Mr Charles H. Fenton's rendering of the merchant, Chigi, was all that could be desired. Miss Maud Hoffman acted throughout with much tenderness and charm as Filiberta, and infused much emotion and pathos into some intensely dramatic scenes. Clariola De Medici had a stately representative in Mrs Ross Whytal, and Miss Edith H. Tombs made an impressive Honoria. The scenery and mounting were exceptionally beautiful, and formed a brilliant background for the rich and artistic costumes. On Thursday Mr Willard appeared as Cyrus Blenkarn, in The Middleman, before another crowded audience, and on Friday a delightful contrast was given by a performance of The Professor's Love Story, of which a matinée will also be given to-day. This welcome engagement closes with The Middleman to-night.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss.—Mr Harry Randall had a cordial reception at this house on Monday, when his songs and patter were heartily enjoyed. These prime favourites Ben Brown and George Leclerq also appeared in one of their funny sketches and kept the audience highly amused. Miss Nellie Coleman, now well known as a male impersonator, introduced two clever songs, and Miss Georgina Leonard proved herself an excellent vocalist. Mr Tatten Hall was also well received in a capital burlesque turn, and Dome, the comedy clay modeller, was as entertaining as ever. The operatic duets of the Two Romers were admirably rendered, while a specially good word is due to Rafayette's well-trained performing dogs for an interesting show. Mr George Reeves, character comedian, was fairly amusing, and an Indian electric novelty by Stave concluded an attractive bill.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Tom Ellis.—Messrs Fred D'Arcy and Fred J. Little's company appeared here on Monday in a four-act drama entitled On the Stroke of Twelve. The performance was a most enjoyable one, and received with due appreciation by a large audience. Mr Fred Rivers played the hero, Jack Routledge, with spirit and success; and Mr H. Creagh Hunt made a first-rate villain as James Horton. Mr Will Bass as Pat Cahill and Mr Fred Guinness as Jasper supplied the comic element, and Mr Karl Edwards gave able support in the same line as Moses Levi. Misses Bertha St. Ruth, Nellie Moore, and Elma C. Turner appeared in the remaining characters very effectively, and the singing, dancing, and varieties introduced were first-rate and well deserving the applause they received.

EXETER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy M. Dunsford.—Gentleman Joe, the attraction here this week, is presented by Mr Milton Bode's company. As Gentleman Joe Mr Kennedy Allen had a very hearty reception, his business proving an unending source of fun. As Emma Miss Maude Marriott sang and danced excellently, her encores being numerous. Miss Mabel Kerridge was a pleasing Mabel Kavanagh; Lord Donnybrook was capably portrayed by Mr Robert Vincent; Mr Harry A. Gribben was well placed as Mr Pilkington Jones; and Miss Hebe Bliss was highly successful as Mrs Ralli-Carr. As Mr Hughie Jacqueson and Mr Ralli-Carr Messrs G. Wyley and W. H. Moore appeared to advantage. Pleasing features were the introduction of a special dance by the Edingale Trio and the variety business of the Margate Minstrels.

FALKIRK.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr Horace W. Ebbutt.—The patrons of this place of entertainment have this week a delightful bill-of-fare. For the first three nights the boards were occupied by the Ben Greet company in The Fatal Wedding, staged in skilful manner and dressed very prettily. Miss Eva Moss, in the part of the wronged wife Mabel Wilson, displayed remarkable ability, particularly in the emotional passages; Mr G. E. Olive as Howard Wilson was natural in his acting; as Cora Williams, an adventuress, Miss Beatrice Whitney imparted the proper amount of vigour and personality into the character; and she was ably assisted in her machinations by Mr Cecil A. Collins as Robert Curtis. Miss Maisie Richardson as Jessie acted with great charm and much cleverness for a girl of tender years. Miss Carrie Fenton, Mr W. Rushton, Mr L. Shirley, and Mr Shirley Lee may be bracketed as distinct successes in maintaining the delightful humour of the piece. For the remainder of the week the Craggs appeared in the musical absurdity Laughter-Land.

FARNWORTH.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell.—Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company is here this week with The King of Crime, with Mr William Clayton as Ronjarre. Mr Clayton gives a powerful rendering of this rôle, and, with Henriette (Miss Marion Turner) and Clarisse (Miss Kitty Russell), certainly add much to the popularity of the drama. Mr W. H. Porter is worthy of every praise for his study of Simon. Mr Walter Dale and Mr A. D. Anderson came out well respectively as Mick Malony and Gandelu. Features of the representation are the mechanical changes, and due mention should be made of the specialities introduced by Mr Walter Dale and Miss Kitty Russell.

FOLKESTONE.

PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland.—Mr Frederick Thorne's company in Little Miss Nobody was the attraction here for the first part of this week. Mr Percy Clifton as Christopher Potter is versatile and clever; Miss Mabel Archdale in the title-rôle plays well; Mr Dennis Drew is successful as Guy Cheviot; Mr Percy Barrow causes amusement as Gussie Stilton; Mr James J. Gordon is good as Jock Jamieson; Miss Dora Dent as Trixie Triplet is vivacious and effective; and Miss Mabel Dent as Maggie is worthy of the highest praise. For the remainder of the week Mr George Dance's company appeared in A Chinese Honeymoon.

VICTORIA PIER.—Lessees, Messrs Keith Prowse and Co., Limited; General Manager, Mr H. De Manche.—Mr Arthur Roberts and company opened here on Monday for a two days' engagement, and were favourably received. The Dandies, a smart society quartet, are exceedingly clever; Mr Wills Page, the favourite tenor, renders some good songs; Miss Cecile Vicars, contralto, is highly successful in her contributions; and Mr Walter Curtis, humourist, keeps the audience amused.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager, Mr A. Sitter.—Miss Olive Fox, petite comedienne, is staying here another week; Miss Beatrice Cecilia, soprano, sings in good style; Mr Harry Brett, comedian, is well received; the Ladies' Blue Salon Orchestra give selections; and the animated pictures this week are excellent.

GATESHEAD.

METROPOLE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Straughan. — George Lockhart's elephants, introduced by Captain Joe Taylor, head the bill at this variety theatre. Freda Spry and B. S. Monti provide an amusing turn, and the Karno Trio are responsible for a laughable sketch. The other turns are Ada Twibell, burlesque artist; Keen and Walad, in a comedy act; the Josserthos Trio, gladiatorial gymnasts; Ted Young, comedian; Minnie Palmerston, burlesque actress; Sisters Cory, and an interesting display of cinématograph pictures.

GLASGOW.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Humphreys.—Messrs Kelly and Hallard's company, including Miss Nina Boucicault, is here in the play entitled A Man and His Wife. The cast includes Messrs C. Aubrey Smith, C. M. Hallard, E. H. Kelly, and Misses B. Wilmot, and E. S. Brunton, who acquit themselves in a highly creditable manner and are enthusiastically received.

ROYALTY, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Scarlane.—The ever-green and ever-popular comedian Mr Edward Terry is paying his welcome annual visit this week, and on Monday evening appeared in a new addition to his répertoire, The House of Burnside, which found abundant favour at the hands of a large audience. The Richard Burnside of Mr Terry is a very human portrayal, and displays the great versatility of the actor to advantage. Miss Daisy Murch as Marion Burnside, Mr Arthur Cornwell in the quaint character of Robert Parminter, and Mr Allan Pollock as Williams, the solicitor, are excellent, and Messrs Knight and A. Hylton; Misses Beatrice Selwyn and Olga Kay give good support. The children, Margaret and Richard, are cleverly impersonated by Miss Beatrice Terry and Master Roy Lorraine. The Trial scene from Pickwick concluded the entertainment.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Rich Waldon.—A Girl's Cross Roads, written by Walter Melville, and played by his own combination, is the attraction here this week. Mr Edwin J. Wilde is capital as John Meadows. Jack, the hero of the piece, has a fine representative in Mr Wingold Lawrence; Mr H. K. Ayliff is a sufficiently villainous Lumley; and Luke Ramsden is a well-impersonated part by Mr John Brooks. Lightness is imparted to the play by Mr John Hitchins as Toby and Miss Emily Custance as Tilly Vayne. As Nelly Meadows Miss Octavia Noel acts well. Miss Kitty Symons as Constance Cornell is a tenderly emotional schoolmistress. Miss Beatrice Homer gives a lifelike portrayal of Barbara Wade.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Mascard.—This week the management has engaged that mystic and sensational performer Dr. Walford Bodie, who comes here direct from London. Dr. Bodie needs no introduction to Glasgow; his previous visits have taught the public what to expect. His curing of paralysis on the stage is nothing short of wonderful. He is supported by a good variety company, which includes the following artistes:—Little Dolly Robson, whose dancing and singing take the audience by storm; Norman Mills, actor-vocalist, in popular and catchy songs; the Garden Troupe of International dancers; Les Fountaines, in their clever marionette show; La Petete Bella, burlesque actress; Helen Henri, vocalist; and the Sisters Lyle, duettists. Marie Walford proves acceptable at the pianoforte, assisting Dr. Bodie in his ventriloquism.

METROPOLE, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr John Dunbar.—Mr J. Gar Kiddie's company is here this week with the successful burlesque A Little Coquette. Miss Lizzie Payne's impersonation of Celia, the coquette, is a dainty performance, the counterpart of which is Miss Flo Warner's sprightly rendition of the part of Robin Adair. The piece is brimful of bolsterous fun, provided by Mr George Hestor as the village constable, Mr J. W. Groves as Ann Teeke, and Messrs Joe Bell and Jim Clarence as Pipeclay and Sharpshoot. The Gabriel Grabbe of Mr Forsyth Bruce is a study of considerable intensity, while in the part of Captain Nevermind Mr E. H. Bertram sings and acts with taste, good work being also done in several concerted numbers by Miss Nellie Butt as Crowquille and Mr L. J. Headlam as the Landlord.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, J. H. Oakden.—The Biggest Scamp on Earth is being played here this week by Miss Frances Delaval's excellent company. Miss Dorothy Mahomed is successful as Irene May, and Miss Frances Delaval makes an interesting Naomi Belvidere. The part of Derrick Knight is well placed in the hands of Mr Percy Carne Waram; Mr Douglas Hutchings scores as Vivian Wakefield; and Mr Hamilton Urquhart is successful as Sir Aubrey Knight. Mr L. W. Halfpenny makes an able Rufus Liggins, and Napoleon Hawk is ably represented by Mr G. Geddes. Miss Pattie Groves is specially well suited as Mother Hawk. Equally successful are Miss Doris Denman as Bobby, Miss F. Vibart as Molly Sterling, and Mr Bert Goodfellow as Joe Piper.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss's Empires, Limited.—Mr A. C. Lilly's company in Drummed Out is here another week. Mr George Mozart is a comedian of much resource. Mr and Mrs Gene Hughes in their sketch, A Matrimonial Substitute, are most amusing. Hart and Leo's comedy and singing turn and the Lilliputian act of the Mayvilles are items of excellent quality. Sisters Lonnen, duettists and dancers; Rosie Bartlett, comedienne; Onllaw Trio, wire equipoise and great strength; Will Cornish, bell-ringing; Petras, comedy jugglers; and Venola Brothers, gymnasts, also contribute.

TIVOLI, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr Barney M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred C. Ewing.—There is another attractive programme here this week. G. W. Hunter's comic patter is much enjoyed. Robins and Collier, in The Photographer and the Lady, are both clever and amusing. Mr and Mrs Findon are good in their farce, A Desperate Remedy. The performance of the Trapnell Family of acrobats and the dancing of Schilla Barrett are up to the mark. Elsie Roby's musical act is cleverly gone through, and the singing of Jack Charman, the boy vocalist, is much appreciated. Rich and Rich, as usual, have some good comic songs and patter. Prince Bendon's Bioscope shows a well-selected series of pictures.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs Rich Waldon and Thos. Barrasford.—The company here is a good one, and the first appearance in this country of Miss Beatrice Morland, American comedienne, who had a good reception and who took the place of Mr Golden at short notice, in some way atoned for the absence of that gentleman. The Brothers Donar gave a clever equilibristic act, and Miss Madge Grey had a hearty reception in several clever dialect songs. Percy Honri, in song and concertina solos, was well received. A distinctly entertaining and popular turn (American song illustrations) was given by Martine and Son. Another favourite is Nadji, "the Hindoo Marvel," whose hand-balancing and other feats evoked both interest and applause. A first-rate display of comedy juggling was given by Wells and August. Mdlle. Alice Lorette, with her statue dog Ben, added pleasing variety in a series of pretty picture poses. Descriptive songs by Mr George Foyle and the animated pictures completed an enjoyable entertainment.

QUEEN'S, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr T. J. Colquhoun; Acting-Manager, Mr B. M. Armstrong, jun.—At the head of the bill here are the Maples, in a singing and dancing act, "Little Japs at Home;" Mr Harry Tate and company make a big hit in their Motoring sketch; Walter Emerson, who is well-known here, is most successful; and Kate Gourley is a clever dancer. Francis and Melli's musical act "The Brigands;" Little Dando, comedian; Sisters Rais, duettists and dancers; the Brothers Lavelle, comedy acrobats; Arthur St. George, descriptive vocalist; and Prince Bendon's Bioscope complete a strong bill.

GOOLE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John E. Tomlinson.—Mr William Bourne's company is appearing here this week, in Man to Man. Miss Maude Buchanan gives a powerful impersonation of Ethel Maythorne; Miss A. Eden is successful as Miss Lavinia Dove; Miss Lydia Hart is a sprightly Mary; and Miss Amy Vennimore is well placed as Gipsy Madge. Mr A. Moore is a capable Matthew Ellerton; Mr George Gordon is exceedingly well portrayed by Mr Chas. Boult; Mr J. Roydon furnishes a finished portrayal of Richard Ellerton; Mr Frank Liston is a satisfactory Rev. Philip Ormond; Mr Will Clements is delightfully funny as Samuel Plumtree; Mr E. J. Preston is highly amusing as Bill Burkley; and Miss E. Griffiths is a capital Ned Doyle. The military drama, When Darkness Falls, was billed for Thursday.

GUERNSEY.

ST. JULIAN'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr C. Robert Perkins.—This week the boards are in possession of Messrs S Dauncey and C. V. France's company, in Whitewashing Julia. Miss Ruth Maitland is an actress of considerable ability, and her charming impersonation of Julia enhances her reputation; Miss M. Lohr cleverly acts Trixie; Miss Kate Bishop is deserving of the highest praise for her finished performance of Lady Pinkney. Mr H. Asheton Tonge quickly becomes a favourite, his skilful handling of Mr Stillingfleet creating admiration; Mr H. C. Bligh is the Hon. Bevis, and very artistically he handles the part; and Mr A. M'Lean scores as the Hon. Edwin.

GREAT GRIMSBY.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Mr Edward Marris's company has appeared here for the third time, this week, in the amusing musical play The Dandy Doctor. The part of the millionaire, Melchisadek Brown, is now played by Mr James Salter, who misses no opportunity of extracting fun from it. Miss Florence Smithers appears as the eccentric servant, Jane, and her quaint drolleries are productive of much laughter. Miss Lizzie Primmer acts and sings in charming fashion as Ivy Pendred, and Mr Walter Nugent suitably represents Arthur Vandyke. Mr James Danvers introduces some good comedy in a quiet manner as Colonel Pendred, whilst Mr W. N. Gilmore gives an amusing burlesque in the character of Bertie Bolingbroke.

HIPPODROME.—Miss Daisy James has this week repeated her former successes at the Hippodrome. She has contributed a number of charming new songs, together with old favourites. The Three Ferganas have given a novel acrobatic turn, in which a cycle and trailer car form a prominent feature. Some smart dancing and vocal work have been accomplished by the Four Magnets, whilst Bert Woodward, the cycling coon, has performed a number of skilful feats awheel. Mephisto has proved himself a clever contortionist, whilst comedy has been supplied, liberal both in quality and quantity, by Charles Paver, Fred Dunstone, and Nash and Noel.

EMPIRE, CLEETHORPES.—The Three De Veres, society and comedy acrobats, have provided the main attraction here this week. Their equibrillistic feats are very smart, particularly that in which the performer balances himself on one finger on a champagne bottle. The Twin Sisters Edwardes have gained much applause for their pretty dancing. Harry Maynard has been encored nightly for his excellent song. The Haldyne Duo have given an amusing musical sketch, The Curate's Dilemma. Ormonde Penstone has contributed an entertaining display of legerdemain; whilst others who have appeared are Dale and Vale, pedestal dancing specialists; Alma Curzon, comedienne; and Henry Gifford, comedian.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Scott Phipp.—Crowded houses each evening have been delighted with the excellent performance of The School Girl, given by Mr George Dance's company.—Miss Ethel Beech is bright and winsome as Lilian Leigh, and sings effectively; Miss Mildred King is very successful as the Mother Superior; Mamie Rockfeller is vivaciously represented by Miss Molly Walbran, who sings and dances charmingly; Miss Gracie Sinclair is a fascinating Cicely Marchmont; Miss Grace Wixon is a dignified Mrs Marchmont; Mr Lister Morrah is a manly Edgar Verney, and renders his songs expressively; Mr Charles Adeson contributes a droll character study as General Marchmont; Mr Alfred Leslie is amusing as Tubby Bedford; Mr Cameron Carr is a breezy, sharp Peter Overend; Mr Leslie Howard keeps the house in high good humour with his clever depiction of the old roué, Sir Ormesby St. Leger. The choruses go well, and the scenery and costumes are picturesque and handsome.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. W. Nightingale.—A return visit is being paid by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company with A Country Mouse. Mr Sidney Stirling is gay and debonnair as the Hon. Archibald Vyse; Mr Charles Harley is admirable as John Bowlby; the Duke of St. Kitts is a capital character sketch by Mr Arnold Lucy; Mr Wilson Lumley is excellent as Lord Robert of Wykeham; Jephcot is well played by Mr J. E. Watson; Miss Dorothy Drake cleverly depicts the dissatisfied Lady Sylvia; Violet Aynsley is bright and daintily represented by Miss Eve Erskine; Miss Dido Drake is sweet and winsome as Angela. The play is preceded each evening by the amusing farce His Landlady.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr George Gilbert.—The new arrivals this week are Willfred, who well deserves his title of the flexible marvel; Tiny Arnold, who sings and dances charmingly; Rappo and Ella, who contribute a clever turn as equilibrists; Charlene, who juggles in marvellous fashion; the Imperial Russian Troupe, in national songs and dances, which are rewarded with tremendous applause, and the Borghetti Troupe of acrobats whose turn is a wonderful combination of skill and daring.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION.—Managing-Director, Mr J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr Edward Gray.—The Vernon Troupe of vocalists and dancers are wonderfully clever and are well received; Mr Charles Coborn, the eminent comedian, still continues a favourite; Chas. Ulrick astonishes with his feats with the barrel; Mdlle. Lucretia sings well and dances gracefully and nimbly; Miss Beatrice Vernon sings effectively; the Two Weirs entertain with their duets and peculiar dances; Percy Hannan pleases as an actor-vocalist; Madame Angless's Ladies' Band contribute choice selections in first-class style, and fresh pictures are shown by the American Biograph.

WELLINGTON PIER PAVILION.—Proprietors, Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr Harry Tunbridge.—A capital programme is well received by full houses. Annie Laurie pleases as a comedienne; Leo Stirling wins favour in his musical turn; My Fancy contributes a clever sand dance; Hal Chapter gains applause for his amusing songs; the Katos give a humorous show in their automatic theatre; Frank Sylvo juggles in comical fashion; the Wonderful Blind Man performs bewildering lightning calculations; Miss Jeannie Grieve sings sweetly; Charles Morritt astonishes as an illusionist; Miss Zette Handel's ladies' orchestra contributes well-played selections.

GORLESTON PAVILION.—This is the last week of Mr D'Arcy Clayton's engagement, and he and his gipsies, with their jester, have given special programmes each evening, and have been heartily applauded for their very successful efforts to amuse and entertain their patrons. Mr Bertram Knight's invariable courtesy as acting-manager has been much appreciated during his stay here.

GREENOCK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Executors of the late Mr Alexander Wright; Managers Messrs A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Mr Eugene C. Stafford's company is playing The Private Secretary to good audiences here this week. Mr Donald Price-Evans submits a highly diverting piece of acting as the Rev. Robert Spalding, his simulation of that meek and innocent parson being particularly amusing. Mr W. Hargreaves acts Mr Cattermole in a most enjoyable manner, and Mr Wilfrid Compton presents an effective study of Sydney Gibson. Mr Raymond Chester impersonates Mr Marsland successfully; Mr Vivian Gilbert fills the rôle of Harry Marsland with ability; and Mr Fred Inwood plays the part of Douglas Cattermole in a way that leaves nothing to be desired. Mrs Alfred Davis gives a good interpretation of Miss Ashford, and Miss Cissie Wade shows comic ability of a high order as Mrs Stead. Miss Mary E. Deverell is a charming exponent of Eva Webster, and Miss Dora Grey is a general favourite as Edith Marsland, her sprightly and attractive acting being much admired. The domestic comedy Good for Nothing is played in front.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. L. Skivington.—The Sisters Hindon, musical speciality artists, head the bill, and get a hearty reception. Gus Ryder is engaged for another week, and continues to interest with his whistling imitations; Leslie Murray is a clever magician and card manipulator; Will Candlish, comedy artist, is amusing; John Lorimer, tenor vocalist, uses a good voice with effect; Lanton and Lane, handy-men, give a good turn; Eugene Family, gymnasts, are applauded; and the Electrograph completes the bill.

GLOUCESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Owners, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr W. H. Weller.—Mr F. R. Benson's Shakespearian company is the attraction during Festival week with the following répertoire:—Taming of the Shrew, Romeo and Juliet, Twelfth Night, As You Like It, Merry Wives of Windsor, Merchant of Venice, and Hamlet. On Monday The Taming of the Shrew was presented. Mr F. Owen Chambers gave an expert rendition of Baptista, and a skilful impersonation of Lucentio was submitted by Mr Bernard Limpus. Mr Guy Leigh was excellent as Vincentio, while Petruchio was safely entrusted to Mr Henry Herbert. Gremio and Hortensio were cleverly acted by Mr Arthur Fayne and Mr G. Wallace Johnson respectively. Miss Dorothy Green was admirable as Katherina, and Bianca was effectively played by Miss Christie Laws. Miss Maud Garth as the widow was capital. Other prominent members of the cast include Messrs A. A. Harris, Arthur Phillips, Bertram Forsyth, Ivan Leslie, R. William Senior, E. L. Bevans, D. Elphinstone, Sherard, and Plinge, and Miss May De Launey.

HALIFAX.

GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Acting-Manager, Mr Norman M. Robinson.—Mr C. P. Levilly's company is here in the comic opera Amorelle, which is receiving splendid public support. The dressing and mounting are noticeably attractive, the principals are well up to their work, and the chorus is commendably effective. Mr Eric Thorne, a comedian of infinite resource, is happily placed as Dr. Crow—his work is of the best; Mr Phil Carlton does well as Jules; Mr Fred Seymour in the character part of Dotard gives a clever performance. The title-rôle is taken by Miss Stella Gastelle, whose sprightly acting, effective singing, and dainty dancing leave little to be desired. Miss Madge Avery is good as Marina; and Miss Kitty Cavendish plays Lesbia with winning charm, and sings her numbers with telling effect.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Steuart Cecil.—A Russian troupe of clever acrobats (the Matweef Hugostons) top the bill this week, and give a good performance; Harry Freeman is very popular; Cassie Walmer sings with spirit; Zaro and Arno do a good bar act; Bennett and Martell are a funny couple; Edie Gray and two boys give some good harmonised songs; Adelina does some clever impersonations; and Will Johnson, comedian, and Daisy Martell, comedienne and dancer, are also in the bill.

HANLEY.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone.—The Belle of New York came here on Monday, when there was a capital house. Mr Musgrave's company is one of excellence. Miss Beatrice Lamotte in the title-rôle contributes a most artistic impersonation, her singing and acting being much above the average. Miss Lillian Diggles as Fifi shows ability in the part, scoring most successfully; Mamie Clancy finds a capital exponent in Miss May Angus-Young; Miss Winnie Browne is a good Cora Angelique; Miss Kitty Lindley is well placed as the music hall dancer; Mr Harry A. Meymott's performance as Icabod Bronson shows true histrionic ability, and must be voted excellent. Harry Bronson in the hands of Mr Philip Leslie is well depicted; Mr Max Copland as Von Pumpernick, the lunatic, is most amusing; Mr Frank Lawton, the Blinky Bill, meets with his usual success; Mr Paddy Dupres does well as Mugg; Mr Cecil Burt is a capital Sniffkins; and Messrs Alfred Selby and Albert Sealy as the twin Portuguese are very effective.

GRAND, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr James Wynes.—The bill is headed this week by Johnny Trundley, the Peckham fat boy. John Marx, who contributes feats of strength, astounds his audiences; Gwennie Hasto is a vivacious dancer; Miss Ethel Sargeant and Mr Cyril Melton are seen to advantage in their sketch, Lady Kitty's Mishap; Harry Drew, the Welsh basso, sings admirably; Miss Maud Courteney renders her American songs in admirable style; and Dave Meier and Belle Mora are seen in a capital turn, the former giving a ball-punching exhibition and Miss Mora a smart coon song and dance. The Morton Trio are well received, and the Four Burnells are seen in a smart knockabout sketch.

HARROGATE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr R. Hullah.—Miss Fortescue and her company secured good houses here the first three nights of the week. On Monday evening The School for Scandal was staged. Miss Fortescue took the rôle of Lady Teazle, and played it in a style which becomes an experienced actress. Miss Fortescue is ably supported. Mr George Dance's company appeared, in A Country Girl, on Thursday evening.

KURSAAL.—Manager (for the Corporation), Mr H. J. Dacre.—The Carl Rosa opera company is giving matinée performances each day this week, with an evening performance on Saturday. The variety turns at the evening performances are given by the Japs.

HARTLEPOOL.

EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs Councillor Everton and J. W. Craggs; Manager, Mr Harry Burns.—Crowded houses are nightly testifying to their appreciation of the programme submitted this week. Several old favourites appear, amongst whom are the Sisters Charnley, Marie Blythe, the Danbys, and Billy Ross and company, all of whom meet with gratifying receptions. Payne's Little Vagabonds are awarded a well-merited encore for their excellently rendered songs and whistling solos; Gus Barra's comedy musical motor act is much appreciated; Victor Travers, eccentric comedian, scores perceptibly; Valazzi is exceptionally smart in his athletic juggling with cannon balls, &c.; and some local pictures on Burns's Bioscope are an attraction.

HASTINGS.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr G. H. Gaze.—Mr George Dance's company is appearing here in the musical play A Country Girl. The piece is attracting crowded houses.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr R. Turner; Acting-Manager, Mr Chas. H. Hawker.—The popularity of Ashton's Italian orchestra may by judged from the large audiences which this band of skilled musicians attract. Under the bâton of Signor Comuni, a series of classical selections, overtures, &c., are gone through in a masterly manner. Assisting in the programme are two clever banjoists, Messrs Earle and Earle; Miss Gertrude Macaulay, a vocalist possessing an excellent contralto; and Mr Nelson Jackson, a very amusing humourist.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr Elvey Thomas; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—A troupe of artistes in pierrot costume are holding the boards here this week under the title, the Follies. They give a pleasing and delightful entertainment, the principal part of which is vocal. The conductor is Mr H. G. Pellissier. Miss Marjorie Napier and Mr Dan Everard engage in some tuneful duets. Plantation songs are sung by Miss Ethel Allandale; in a charming manner Miss Lucy Webling recites some amusing American stories; whilst Mr Lewis Sydney, the pianist, gives some excellent burlesque imitations. The Follies are superior singers, and well worth listening to.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Harold Penny.—Mr Charles Ridgwell amuses his audience by impersonating "the fat boy of Peckham." Miss Maudie Ford, comedienne, introduces some very pretty dancing. Mr Neil Kenyon as the Scotchman gives an exceedingly funny sketch. Some charming Highland scenes are shown whilst the Australian songstress Miss Alicia Mayne warbles forth her Scotch ditties. Mr Will Musgrave, comedian, is cordially received. A clever mimic of English artistes is found in Miss Alice Pierce. Messrs Sandford and Lyons, comedians and dancers, keep the audience in good humour. Quite a novelty is the introduction of Otto Schuman's troupe of trained horses and ponies.

CORPORATION FETES.—A double event was arranged in the Alexandra Park on Wednesday by the Local Amusements Association, the inclement weather last week causing the postponement of the fête arranged. In addition to the grand games, tournament of tennis, bowls, and quoits, the child soprano, Miss Carmen Sylva, proved a strong attraction, and delighted a large audience. Among other attractions the Almafi Minstrels gave their clever entertainment. A long dance and battle of confetti also formed part of the amusements provided.

BEACH CONCERT PAVILION.—Manager, Mr G. Blackmore.—At these concerts Miss Edith Blanchard continues to afford much pleasure by her cultured singing; and the fine baritone voice of Mr Edgar Edwards is much appreciated. Messrs Tom Neildon, George Blackmore, and Wallis Arthur have proved themselves to be a capital comedy trio.

HEBBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. A. Jackson.—Mr Fred Bulmer's company in The Missionary is here this week, under the personal direction of Mr Charles Whitlock, who plays the part of the Rev. Leslie Lorne with great success. Mr Harry Lloyd shows ability as Lieut. Robert Podraski, and Mr Edward Finlay in his impersonation of Lieut. Yashma also meets with marked approval. Mr Fred Dalby does well as Rufus Rapon; Mr E. D. Allen makes an impressive Denny O'Hagan; and Pedro is rendered with zeal by Mr Arthur Marchant. Mr R. Bosco as Nakaga, Miss Georgina V. France as Lilian Lorne, and Miss Mary Dalby as Ogandaga, are also worthy of note. Little Gladys gives a clever portrayal of Percy, and Miss Madge Douglas as Elba is excellent.

HUDDERSFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy G. Arthur.—Mr John F. Preston's répertoire company is visiting the above place this week with Jane Shore, Lady Godiva, and Nell Gwynne. Mr John F. Preston once more filled the villainous rôle of Richard, Duke of Gloucester, and played it in his well-known manner. Miss Hilda Shirley was an intensely dramatic Jane Shore, and Mr Alfred D. Adams was capable as Anthony Yeaste.

HYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Joseph W. Maloney.—Mr Fred J. Kirke's company is providing plenty of amusement here this week with The Naval Detective. Mr Arthur Hickman appears to distinct advantage as Lieut. Jack Beresford, R.N., the Rev. Frequent Nipper, and Pat M'Guinness. He possesses a good voice, and is equally at home in sentimental or comic songs. Miss Louie Fountaine makes a charming Phyllis Lucetta, and sings her numbers with taste and expression. The unscrupulous Dr. Schreiner is capitally enacted by Mr Robert Gilbert. The Hon. Bertie Padlox as impersonated by Mr Walter Langford is a most amusing personage who is responsible for a number of comic songs, capitally rendered. Miss Iris Banfield plays the rôle of Lulu Kaufmann in a winning manner, and captivates the audience by her artistic warbling and graceful dancing, whilst Miss Edith Claris is most mirth-provoking as Susan Scrubbs. Deserving of praise also are Misses Mamie Walsh and Elsie Paul, whose acrobatic dances and coon songs and dances are a special feature. The other characters are efficiently portrayed.

HORWICH.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Arthur Sandiford; Acting-Manager, Mr Alfred Holles.—Mr Stanley S. Gordon's company in For the Woman He Loves is the attraction this week. The company includes some old Horwich favourites, who had a very hearty reception. Mr Stanley S. Gordon's Philip Meredith is a very fine, manly impersonation; Mr Wilfrid Protheroe's Silas Bradley is characteristic of a double-dyed villain; Mr Dacre Baldie makes a fine aristocratic old gent; Mr Walter Manfree as the grand old actor Hannibal Cæsar Muggleton receives unstinted applause; and Mr Chas. M. Daly cleverly portrays Jas. Stilton, a footman of a very original and humorous turn, his songs and dances being highly successful. Miss Nina Vaughton gives a most artistic and pathetic impersonation of the injured Mary Vernon; Miss Ida Bell as Tilda Muggleton is decidedly good; Miss Sallie Adelstone as Bessie Bramble is very quaint; Miss Eva Lyndhurst plays Virginie, the adventuress, to perfection; and Miss Marjory Simcox's Evie is an extremely pretty performance.

HULL.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr W. F. Morton.—The ever-popular New Barmaid opened to a very crowded house on Monday, and the audience were amply repaid by the excellence of the entertainment provided. The songs and dances all went with the same merry swing, and now the comedy is written up to date it is needless to say that the topical and local references were keenly appreciated. The chorus is strong and well-balanced, and the show in every respect an admirable one. Miss Madge Merry was a dashing Dora Heather. Mr Harrison Brookbank's fine voice was again heard to full advantage. Mr Jos. B. Montague is a very old favourite in Hull, and his now famed song, "A little bit of sugar," brought numerous recalls. Mr Alex. Loftus extracts considerable fun out of the rôle of Wm. White.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; Local Manager, Mr Wyn Miller.—Mr Douglas Bruce's company is here this week in A Woman's Grip, a play noteworthy for its ultra sensationalism. The play affords Miss Beatrice May an opportunity to figure in a triple rôle, the Princess Zaroff, Mary Langley, and Convict 52.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Sole Owner, Mr W. Morton; General Manager, Mr George Morton.—Ever on the alert for plays that prove popular, Mr Morton has secured such a one this week in Why Men Love Women. It is a play excellently well constructed, with sound, sensible plot combining in itself all the elements that go towards success. Miss A. Saker as Violet Livingstone has a rôle in which she distinguishes herself. Mr A. Paumier as Gerald Fielding has likewise an excellent chance, of which he makes very full use.

PALACE THEATRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Local Manager, Mr A. Graham.—A very capable crowd, which includes "The Coster's Friendly Lead," admirably given by Mr Alec Hurley, who is, of course, a host in himself. Ben Albert is a capital comedian, who keeps well to the front; Walter Grove and company are comedy sketch artists, who do very fair work; Harry Coates, the singing navvy, makes an ever-welcome return visit.

ALHAMBRA.—Resident-Manager, Mr C. J. Bartleet Perry.—Hardeen, the handcuff expert, proves himself smart. The most popular turn is the Three Prestons, in a varied performance, who make a welcome reappearance. Other turns include Madge Daley, a smart burlesque artiste; Harry Thurston, a good impersonator of Harry Lauder; Baker Belphor, Johnny Worman, Harry Walker, and the Three Brothers Huxter.

HYGIENIC NOTES.

OUR TEETH.

Has no one been struck by the fact that in spite of the regular daily cleansing of the teeth with tooth-powders and tooth-pastes, the teeth (and particularly the back teeth) frequently become decayed and hollow? And is not that a convincing proof that tooth-powders and tooth-pastes are completely inadequate means for cleaning the teeth? Our teeth are not so obliging as to decay only in places which can be conveniently reached with tooth-brushes, powders and pastes.

On the contrary, it is just in these localities which are difficult of access, such as the backs of the molar teeth, the interstices of the teeth, hollows and cracks, that causes of destruction of the teeth appear most frequently and are most probable. In consequence, if any one wishes to preserve his teeth intact, that is to say to keep them healthy, this can be effected in one way only, by daily cleansing and rinsing the mouth and teeth with the liquid antiseptic dentifrice Odol. During the process of rinsing this preparation penetrates everywhere, reaching alike the cavities in the teeth, the interstices between them, and the backs of the molars, destroying bacteria wherever generated. This absolutely certain effect which Odol has been scientifically proved to possess is principally due to a peculiar property which causes it to be absorbed by the mucous membrane of the gums so that they become impregnated with it. The immense importance of this entirely new and unique property should be fully grasped; for whilst all other preparations for the cleansing and protection of the teeth are effective only during the moments of application, Odol leaves an antiseptic deposit on the surface of the mucous membrane and in the interstices of the teeth which continues to be effective for hours. In this manner a continuous antiseptic effect is produced, by means of which the whole oral cavity and the minutest recesses which it contains are completely freed from, and protected against, all fermenting processes and injurious bacteria. It follows that everyone who daily and regularly cleanses his mouth and teeth with Odol will practise the most perfect hygiene of the mouth and teeth in accordance with modern scientific principles.

The price of Odol, 1/6 a flask and 2/6 a large bottle, may be considered as very moderate, as it will suffice for use during several months. Procurable from all chemists and perfumers.

ILKESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr L. F. A. Rogers.—Mr Ian Maclaren's company in the spectacular drama A Fatal Crown is paying a welcome visit here this week. The company is an excellent one, including Mr Ian Maclaren as Lord Dudley, Mr Leonard R. Montgomery as Herne the Hunter, Mr Willie Atom as Xit, Miss Maude Anderson as Mary Tudor, and Miss Margaret Saville as Lady Jane Grey. The play is lavishly dressed, and very creditably staged.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr J. Richards.—An interesting turn is that of Joad Heteb, described as the wizard of the Sphinx; Miss Mona May sings some pleasing ballads; and Jack Clayton, vocalist; Selbit, sleight-of-hand artiste; and the Majestics, eccentric comedy artistes, are amongst the favourites.

INVERNESS.

THEATRE ROYAL — Managing Director, Mr Cameron Burgess.—The Ben Greet company, with The Belle of New York and Florodora, is here this week. On Monday the American musical comedy was performed to a crowded house. Mr Edward Chester as Ichabod Bronson was admirable; Mr E. Crosland as Harry Bronson did well; to the part of Pumpernick full justice was done by Mr Jos. R. Tate; Mr Gus Danby as Mugg was most effective; Violet Grey was well played by Miss Cicely O'Nolan; and special mention may be made of Miss Adele Rose as Fricot, Miss Daisy Baldry as Cora Angelique, and Miss Louie Sands as Mamie Clancey. On Tuesday night Florodora was performed to a packed house.

IPSWICH.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. G. Fisk.—The Girl from Kay's is paying a return visit here this week. The cast is a strong one, Mr Johnnie Schofield being a capital representative of Hoggenheimar. He is ably assisted by Mr Tom Shelford as the inane member of the aristocracy. Mr Sam Lysons does full justice to the part of Theodore Quench, and Messrs Charles Goold and Louis Du Cane render effective assistance. Miss Lily Lingard is the charming young lady "from Kay's," and Miss May Martin as the injured wife shows herself to be an accomplished actress.

HIPPODROME.—The building in the Woodbridge-road, formerly known as Tudor's Circus, has been refitted and redecorated, and opened on Monday evening as the Ipswich Hippodrome. Mr Sylvester is the new proprietor, and started his autumn campaign with a strong variety company, giving two performances each evening. The artists include Tom Hughes, character comedian, whose songs are well received; Professor Rennie, whose ventriloquial business is clever; Mdlle. Roma, with her dancing piccaninnies; Mr Fred Terry, a capable comedian; Doody and Wright, a couple of Australian comedy vocalists and dancers; the Brothers O'Brien, horizontal bar performers; and a lively sketch termed A Little Bit of String by Leslie Bell and company. During the evening the programme is varied by some animated pictures by the Hippograph.

JERSEY.

OPERA HOUSE.—The Twin Sister opened on Monday evening, and is being played by F. H. De Quincey and Sime Seruya's company, by arrangement with Mr Charles Frohman. The company does full justice to this admittedly difficult play, premier honours being secured by Miss Dorothy Casey, who, as Guidetta Della Torre, gives a meritorious performance. Another capital performance is given by Mr F. H. De Quincey, whose representation of Count Orlando Della Torre is excellent. Mr Henry Belding gives a really fine performance of Count Andrea Parabosco, the aged profligate, and Miss Sime Seruya acts the part of Lisa with no small degree of success, Mr Baliol Holloway making the most of his limited opportunities in the rôle of Bortolommeo Valla. Little Miss Violet Lucy acquits herself exceedingly well as Sandro. On Friday and Saturday the same company was to appear in Richelieu.

KETTERING.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Payne.—The attraction this week is Shadows of a Great City, admirably presented by Mr Harry Foxwell's company. Mr Howell Travis gives a powerful rendering of the part of the hero Tom Cooper; and Mr Charles Vivian scores a success as the villainous George Benson. Mr Basil Mitchell makes the most of the character of Arkwright. Mr Foxwell submits a fine character impersonation of the pawnbroker Abe Nathan; and Mr Newton Pearce is deserving of hearty praise for his capital acting as Jim Farren. Miss Sheila Walsh sustains the dual character of Annie and Nellie Standish in a charming manner; and Miss Mary Kilpack is exceptionally good as Biddy Roonan, her clever acting being much admired. The smaller characters are well portrayed, and the scenery is excellent.

LANCASTER

ATHENÆUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Hy. Wilkinson.—Messrs Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls' company is here this week with The Life that Kills. Mr Herbert Sidney makes a capital Kendal Croat; Mr E. D. Nicholls gives a fine portrayal of the Rev. Theodore Rodney; Mr Hugh Metcalfe as Hector Rodney and Mr Morris Maud as Valentine Telford are well placed. Miss Cathleen Cavanagh sustains the part of Brenda Croat in an excellent manner; and Miss Mabel Kessler is charming in the dual-rôle of Tom Dicks and Johanna Dicks. She also skilfully plays on the cornet, posthorn, and bugle.

LEAMINGTON.

JEPHSON GARDENS. — The Corporation music season having concluded, Messrs Adeler and Sutton have taken over these gardens for September, and are running entertainments by a series of troupes of their pierrots. This week's troupe comprises Malcolm Scott, the popular comedian, who pays his second visit this season; Jessie Barlee, a pleasing soprano vocalist; Georgie Corlass, a dainty comedienne; Phil Smith, whose songs are very smart and diverting; W. G. Sutton, who sings some popular ditties with effect; and Wm. Neale, an accomplished pianist.

LEEDS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr Fredk. Vincent.—Mr J. Welch and company are filling the theatre this week on the occasion of a return visit with that amusing play The New Clown. Mr Welch's portrayal of the name part elicits unbounded enthusiasm and applause. Mr G. H. Snazelle is the ring-master and circus proprietor Dixon to the very life. Miss Audrey Ford carries off high honours as Rosie, the fair equestrienne. The remaining parts are all in good hands, the cast including the following well-known ladies and gentlemen:—Miss Estelle Winwood, Miss Alexander Christie, Mr Cyril Harcourt, Mr L. Profelt, Mr H. J. Crane and Mr L. Buttress. The curtain-raiser on Monday was Louis Parker's Man in the Street, whilst later in the week Angelina's Lover has served that purpose.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr R. Ernest Liston.—That excellent melodrama Ben-My-Chree is here this week. Mr Arnold Bell and company are presenting the piece, Mr Bell filling the important part of Dan Melrea with distinction. Miss Frances Campbell as Mona does her work in pleasing style; Mr Frank C. Robson is an imposing and effective Deemster; whilst other leading parts are capitally portrayed by Mr Arthur Raynor and Mr H. M. Clifford.

QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General Manager, Mr C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr Chas. Bush.—This is a notable week at the popular Queen's, one of our leading actresses, Mrs Lewis Waller, being seen with her London company in Zaza. Mrs Waller's assumption of the central rôle is an excellent one, and it is perhaps in the emotional periods of this ever-changing character that her fine acting is most admired. Mr Eric Mayne appears in the part of the lover Berhard Dufresne; and Mr Edmund Lea as Cascart and Mr J. Spurling as the Duc De Brissac capably enact their somewhat meagre parts, whilst Miss Minnie Rayner, Miss Alice Langley, and Miss Kate Kearney are well suited to their respective characters.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr T. Gerald Morton.—An attractive programme here is headed by that strong favourite, George Lashwood. Harriett Vernon, a popular comedienne, also secures favourable notice, whilst Florence Esdaile, an accomplished vocalist with a good style, must be placed among the best turns of the night. Messrs Horace Mills and W. H. Rawlings, of musical comedy fame, present a clever little sketch with success, and a second contribution in this line is given by Smythson's sketch company. Marie Reeve is responsible for a "Bill Bailey" song and dance. The Hartley Wonders execute some clever jumping feats; Chas. Chard is a smart eccentric comedian; and Esta Stella, comedienne, is also appearing.

TIVOLI. — Proprietor, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Managers, Mr Edgar O. Waller and Mr Charles Weldon.—The sporting element is again well in evidence in the week's programme, the main attraction being that remarkable Japanese wrestler, Yukio Tani, who is nightly defending his title as champion. At the other end of the bill appear Bonnie Goodwin and her clever piccaninnies in a vocal and dancing turn. The Kimberley Boys are prominent with an amusing comedy act; Onda and Artel do good gymnastic work; and a musical speciality by the Ottawa Trio is well received. The Paulasko Troupe do a sensational speciality act in expert style; and smart comedy entertainment is subscribed by Brown and Harker, Dan Silmer, and Rhoda Paul.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr F. W. Wood; General Manager, Mr J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr S. Jones.—Those sound favourites, Bella and Bijou, have again an entertaining turn to submit, and score their usual success. Charles Serra with his Greek column speciality is also a popular contributor; Gus Harris, a character actor of considerable ability, is a strong turn; the clever young juggler, Wallao, again appears with success; and the bill is completed by the Ralston Boys, vocalists; Grace Compton, comedienne; and H. G. Prosper, a popular comedian.

LEICESTER.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr C. D. Leigh.—Much interest has been evinced locally in the first appearance here of the bright and attractive musical comedy The Orchid, which had a most cordial welcome from a delighted house on Monday. The company, which is Mr George Dance's, is an excellent one, and the dressing and stage accessories leave nothing whatever to be desired. Miss Ethel Bryant makes a charming Lady Violet Anstruther; Miss Madge Lucas is another success as Caroline Vokins; Miss Sylvia De Lacy makes a capital Josephine Zaccary; Mr G. Davy Burnaby is conspicuous throughout with a portrayal of exceptional merit as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour; Mr Bertie Wright, an established favoured here, is seen to considerable advantage as Meakin; Mr Ernest Darrell is prominent with a clever performance as Mr Aubrey Chesterton; and both Mr Edmund Page as Comte Raoul De Cassignat and Mr Arthur P. Helmsley as Zaccary are good. There is a most capable chorus and orchestra, under the direction of Mr Thomas Tunbridge. Mr Albert C. Duncan is business manager for the company.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr John H. Clarke.—The attraction here this week is a return engagement of Messrs Carson and Granville's well-selected company in the domestic drama The Drama of Life, which is presented in good style. Miss Cissie Bellamy makes a big and popular success as Sylvia Beech, and Mr Jerrold Ord is an excellent Harry Beech. Mr John J. Hookes as the evil genius, Walter Beech, is good; Mr Bulwer Pitt does well as Jack Lawton; and the same remark applies to Mr Walter Steele as Richard Brenton. Both Miss Muriel Inglis as Lady Jane Wilde and Mr Owen Remonde as Sir Dobson Wilde cause much hearty laughter, and are very amusing.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal.—At the head of the programme this week is Harry Tate, who is on a return visit, and keeps the audience in a continual roar of laughter with his burlesque sketch Motoring. Charming Millie Hylton is again here, and scores her usual success; Leonard Barry and company prove as popular and amusing as ever in The Moocher's Walk; a novel and cleverly executed item is Rousby's electric review "In Paris," showing in four tableaux interesting features of the French capital. The Wartenberg Brothers are exceptionally clever double foot equilibrists; Jules Keller gives a performance on his hands that astonishes the audience; Charles Vincent is a versatile and popular comedian; and May Evans, character singer, does well. Some entertaining films showing the King's visit to Swansea and the International boat race are projected on the screen.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—The Five Royal Zerbinis, musical speciality artists, are premier turn here, and delight all with their spectacular electrical display "In Fairyland." The other artists appearing are the Clayton Twins, in their original comedy sketches; Grey and Welford, patter comedians and comedy boxers; Henriot and Sauvion, in a new conjuring act; Lilly Lassah, comedienne; Ruby Winstone, comedienne and dancer; Nellie Camp, Scotch comedy artiste; and Marcelle Eirl, burlesque artiste.

LEIGH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Dewhurst.—The bill at this place of amusement is this week headed by the Four Estrellas, who go through a daring gymnastic and acrobatic performance. Le Brun and Irene supply a unique double juggling and gymnastic musical act; Miss Edith Courtney, ballad vocalist, is quite a success; the Redferns are pleasing lady banjoists; Messrs Reed and Lerne in their comedy act submit an excellent turn, introducing electrical novelties; Messrs Baker and Rose, speciality comedians, are well received; and Mr J. Heffron and Mr Tom O'Neil, comedians, are also in the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. H. Dunlop.—A good variety company is here this week, the bill being topped by Mr V. J. De Henau, the armless wonder, who does some clever sketches in oil paint. Miss Lillian Dorie, gymnast, looks charming and gives a most graceful and daring performance on the trapeze. Mr George Hastings, comedian, was well received, and another good turn was that of Mdlle. Bena Aladina, with her performing cockatoos and parrots. Miss Kitty Glover, serio and dancer, was much appreciated for her dancing and quick changes. Mr Syd Herman, comedian, was good, as was also Miss Amy Dormale, vocalist.

LINCOLN.

ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr Frank King.—The Girl from Japan was accorded a flattering reception on Monday, when it was well presented by Mr Frederick E. Philpott's company. The cleverness of the comedians and the charming music at once won complete favour. Mr S. Lockridge was an effective Lord Allenbury; Mr Alfred Ward was amusing as Mulberry Flippington; Miss Nellie Parker Dent did well as Lady Flippington; Mr Percy Baverstock's General Baugh was the funniest impersonation in the piece; and Mr T. E. Sinclair created constant amusement as the many-sided Blinks. Mr Charles L. Ludlow was effective as Bingle; as Polly Perkins Miss Nellie Jackson won complete favour; Miss Madie Scott was excellent as Maud; and the Violet Meadows of Miss Nellie Valentine was praiseworthy; Miss B. Deane as the Countess De La Rue being quite successful.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Sydney Arthur.—A number of old favourites are meeting with great receptions this week, notable Jake Freidman, who gives his one-man opera-bouffé turn with complete success. Violi is a clever lady instrumentalist, and Atroy, a smart juggler. Other turns include the Harry Alaskas, Muir and Bartlett, the Brothers Leotard, and Rosie Elliott. Pallister's Bioscope is much appreciated.

LIVERPOOL.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE — Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Lawrence.—The leading theatre has had a fair measure of public patronage during the week, when Miss Louie Freear, with her West-end company, reappeared after a long absence with Boy Bob. The audiences entered fully into the spirit of the sprightly play, and gave the ambitious little street arab a capital reception, especially at that period of his career when he is attired in full regimentals. The scenery was exceedingly attractive, and shown to the full on the vast stage of which the Court can justly boast. Miss Freear's company comprised artistes of merit. Captain Winton was in the capable hands of Mr Stephen Bond; Mr B. Soane Roby was the pensioned Sergeant Daniels, a skilfully thought-out rôle; Mr J. Russell Bogue presented a dignified Colonel Vincent; Mr A. T. Hendon created a humorous Sergeant Field; a powerful study was that of Miss Lottie Brenton, played by Miss Marie Rignold; and Miss Dora Rignold acquitted herself well as Edith Vincent. Buckstone's comedietta, Good For Nothing, was the curtain-raiser.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LIMITED — Managing-Director, Mr J. M. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Gaffney.—A new comedy entitled Dr. Wake's Patient was produced here on Monday evening, and a full notice of the piece appears in another column.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Licensee, Mr J. G. Howard; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Montgomery, jun.—The Fatal Wedding, a drama which has earned a large amount of popularity, is paying a return visit to the North-end house. During the week there have been good audiences, whose demonstrations of approval have been cordial. The company responsible for the production is that of Mr Bert Coote, and the scenic effects are very appropriate, some of them being exceptionally striking. One pretty feature of the play was the appearance of a specially trained choir of children, whose singing was keenly enjoyed. Among the principal artists are Messrs Stewart Lomath, Oliver Rodgers, E. Fergus, Edward Morgan, E. Whalley, A Montague, and the Misses Violet Lewis, Gertrude Harrison, Marie Hassell, and Rosie Dane.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Coles.—A programme containing much amusement is this week drawing good business. The Andoes, happy little Japs, top the bill, and are accorded a gratifying reception for their daring performance; Palles and Cussick are as amusing as ever; Ella Retford makes a decided hit with her songs and dances; the Moxons are clever acrobats; Miss Kenna Russell has a good song, and dances prettily; J. A. Cassels is well received with his Scotch comic songs; D. W. Watson is a clever and artistic post-horn player; Leo Montague's dances are loudly applauded; a good reception is given to Edmunda's ventriloquial act; and Mdlle. Luba de Sarema gives an exhibition of animal training.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Simmons.—One of the most effective dramas produced at the popular Star for a long time occupies the boards this week. It is entitled A Modern Judas; or, the Serpent's Tooth, and the company submitting it that of Mr John Denton, the author. The crowded audiences that have been present each evening marked their appreciation of the play and players in no unmistakable manner; whilst the striking and picturesque setting was generally approved. Principal in the cast are Mr John Denton as the nervous bachelor, Mr Harry Browne, Mr Frank Beresford, Mr Percy Rhodes, Mr Willie Scott, Miss Violet King, who acts the heroine with effect and power; Miss Kate Walbran, and Miss Dolly Harcourt. The play contains a large element of comedy.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr Fred Granville.—A powerful drama, The Temptress, is here this week with Messrs Gordon and Gelling's company. The work comprises many stirring situations, which are followed with deep attention by large audiences. The scenery and the dresses are of a high standard. Included in the capable cast are Mr Fred B. Davies, who assumes the rôle of Denbigh, the adventurer and forger, a well-finished character; Miss Elaine Verner as the Temptress, an actress of high merit; Mr Henry W. Hatchman, Mr George Daiper, and Mr Arthur Curley. The new Queen's still enjoys a large amount of public support.

EMPIRE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss; Acting-Manager, Mr T. A. Cook.—A very strong bill is presented here this week, with the result that packed houses have been the rule. At the top we have the wizard Goldin, whose marvellous feats of legerdemain have been followed with breathless interest. "How is it done?" is heard on all sides. To Miss Winifred Hare is accorded a hearty greeting, her delightful singing earning for her several encores. Bard and O'Brien keep the house in roars of laughter with their comedy wire act; immense fun is also provoked by the Tribune Trio with the sketch The Cheerful Idiot, and Edwin Boyd and Jack Camp introduce some amusing "business" and patter in their own particular style. Cullen and Carthy are clever vocalists and dancers, and introduce Cluly, described as the smallest comedian in the world; the Werner-Amoros Troupe present a diverting pantomime sketch An Artist's Studio. Dan Crawley is an eccentric comedian of ability, and others on the programme are Lilian Bishop, male impersonation, Lew Wells, musical comedian, and Harry Sheldon, tenor.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Miss Annie Purcell is a sweet singer of good songs, and as principal in the bill here this week received a hearty welcome. Miss Rosina Casselli and her Chihuahua dogs of Mexico provide a capital turn which is much appreciated; the Sisters Geretti are clever gymnasts and perform on the double trapeze; the Ward Bros. are a couple of eccentric comedians; daring cycle acts are gone through by the Valdares; Radford and Valentine are amusing comedy jugglers; Reed and Glenny provoke great fun with their farcical duologue, Married or Photographed; and the lengthy programme is contributed to by Little Barney, comedian; Harry Meir, American eccentric; and Alfred Hurley, vocalist.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES — Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr F. O'Toole.—An exceptionally good programme is submitted this week. An exceedingly funny pantomime sketch, entitled A Quiet Night, is given by Will Onda and company, who make their first appearance in this city; Goliath and Walford provide an able athletic act; Arnold performs some wonderful tricks with cards; Fred Dice is a quaint comedian and dancer; the acrobatic and hand-balancing work of Bob Padley is commendable; Bob Stephenson gives a good turn as a comedian and dancer; and others in the list are Miss Mabel Comely, burlesque actress, and Amy Allnutt, comedy queen.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr Edwin W. Smith.—A good all-round entertainment is provided here this week. At the top we have the marvellous Steens, whose mystifying work is watched with wonder. An acceptable turn is that given by the Bodina Trio, whose vocal and musical speciality is warmly applauded. Chummie La Mara is a comedienne with a neat style, Herbert Maden has proved himself a vocalist of ability, and others in the bill include Katie More, comedienne; Will Sergeant, vocal comique, with his scena, A Little Bit Knocked About; and Capita, living marionette.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr J. Kiernan.—The patrons of this place of amusement have had a very satisfactory bill of fare placed before them this week. Principal in the list are Smith and Johnson, coloured duettists, with their latest hit "The Indian and the Coon," a very humorous act. An acceptable turn is given by A. G. Spry, a comedian of talent; the Padleys (Violet and Harry) give a clever exhibition as comedy acrobats and dancers in the sketch A Private Lesson; Dan Swift and his educated roosters prove interesting; and others in the list are Chris Masters, character vocalist; and Satsuma, wonder worker. The Bioscope is a feature of the evening's entertainment.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr M. Montgomery.—The popular Breton Troupe are foremost here this week with a capital sketch, The Tramp's Picnic, which is well performed and well staged. Messrs Curtis and Vanity, comedy duo and cake-walkers, provide great amusement; Norah St. Albans possesses a sweet contralto voice; Jack Chump and Alice Chant are a couple of smart comedy artistes; and others include J. H. Williams, prize tenor vocalist; Lily Turner, vocalist; and Ted Cowan, comedian. The cake-walk competitions continue to be very popular.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr James Kiernan.—A good turn is at the head of the bill here this week in the person of Mdlle. Haydee with her magical electric mannikin theatre. Les Laurens provide a novel statuary act, including Mill May, a quick-change artiste; the Albano Troupe provide a really clever musical speciality act; a hearty reception is given to Billy Richardson, the famous stump orator, who for many years was with Sam Hague's minstrels; the Three Sisters Adrienne meet with a cordial reception for their sand dancing and whistling; Tell and Tell are able comedy acrobats and tumblers; and Frank Tyrrell proves himself a good comedian.

LLANDUDNO.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr R. Bellis; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Payne.—Mr Laurence Brough, supported by an excellent company, is here this week with The Lady of Ostend. Mr Harry Hampson is seen to advantage as Dick Whortles. Mr Percy Marshall does well as Joseph Carbury. Mr Lawrence Brough as Baron De Longueville is excellent. Miss Bessie Harrison gives a capital impersonation of Matilda Carbury, Dick's mother-in-law, whilst Miss Kate Milford is a charming Dorothy Whortles.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr C. A Hutton.—We have here this week with Mr and Mrs Kendal and their company in a répertoire of plays. On Monday night A Scrap of Paper was given. Mr Kendal supplies a manly impersonation of Colonel Blake. Mr Bassett Roe scores as Sir John Ingram. Mr R. Sheldrick as Dr. Penguin is very good. Miss Mary Jerrold is well placed as Lucy Francklyn. Whilst Mrs Kendal is as vivacious as ever in the part of Susan Hartley.

LLANELLY.

ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr John Tully.—A great attraction this week is Miss Adria Hill and Mr Robert Ayrton's répertoire company in The Price of Pleasure, Under Two Flags, The Shadow of the Cross, and East Lynne. In the first-named play, given on Monday, Mr Ayrton greatly distinguished himself as Gilbert D'Armand, a young Australian, Miss Hill being also most successful as Alice Rivers, alias Madame La Reine. Miss Mary Ainslie as Lilian Mordaunt and Miss Edith Tempest as Claire Rivers were both excellent. Mr Oswald Douglas as Sir James Featherstone and Mr Ian Lloyd Mackensie as John Hawksley were both most capable; Mr Hylton Ward made a capital Tatters; Miss Florrie Ingram as Biddy Flannaghan showed cleverness, as also did Miss Ivy Osborne as Polly Wilson.

LONDONDERRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr W. Payne Seddon.—Mr W. Payne Seddon has now acquired the Opera House at Londonderry, and it reopened this week under new management. Mr Stanley Cooke's company presented The New Clown, and crowded houses were the rule on the three nights of the engagement. In the title-rôle Mr Stanley Cooke was capital, and kept the audience delighted with his quaint drolleries. Mr H. Greville made an excellent Dixon, and as Baker Mr Fred Lake was good. Miss Katie Yates impersonated Rosie Platt very well, and as Maud and Winnie Chesterton Miss Evelyn Maxwell and Miss Violet Greville were good.

LONG EATON.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—We have a visit this week from Miss Marie Menzies' company in A Rogue's Daughter, with Mr Richard Ferris as Colonel Foster, Mr Newton Buckland as Sir George Mynard, Mr Wilfred Blair as Frank Tyler, Mr Chas. Stimson as Isaac, Miss Wynlard as Lady Mynard, and Miss Marie Menzies as Lettie Grey. Mr Will Wilson and Miss Milly Doris keep things lively; while Miss Mabel Hall, as Dicky, a waif, figures and sings well. There is a beauty competition with a good entry, but the result will not be known until the week end.

MACCLESFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr W. K. Gatley.—The welcome production When London Sleeps has been given here this week by a company belonging to Mr C. Finch-Hatton. On Monday the house was full, and the popular drama was received with great heartiness. Miss Mildred Grey as Queenie Carruthers excelled herself, her realistic impersonation being warmly applauded. Mr Tom Ronald as David Engleheart was very good; Mr R. S. Trelawney made a good Captain Rodney Haynes; Mr D'Arcy Kelway as Sammy Blyth gave a good character study; Miss Grace Baring's Hilda Carode was a clever performance; Miss Daisy Clifford delighted everyone with her rendering of the part of Maudie De Friere; Miss Hilda Young as Carrie Jones was very successful; and Miss Josephine Lee made a satisfactory exponent of the part of Signoria Roberto Jonesio.

MAIDSTONE.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Manager, Mr Beslee.—An enthusiastic audience gave Mr George Grossmith a hearty welcome here on Monday, when he appeared in several of his well-known musical sketches, including Miserable Moments and A Modern Musical Comedy.

MANCHESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr Edmondstone Shirra.—A very enjoyable performance of Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner was given here on Monday by Mr Lewis Waller's capable company. The prominent part of Miss Elizabeth was played by Miss Gertrude Burnett in irreproachable style, her rendering being full of fire and determination, yet imbued throughout with womanly grace and charm. Mr Thomas Kingston was an excellent Capt. Harry Peyton (first the prisoner and then the lover), the part being exceedingly well suited to his abilities. As Major John Colden Mr Hilliard Vox also played with distinction. The lighter rôles of Mr Valentine and Mistress Williams were brought out capitally by Mr George Mallett and Miss Alys Rees; and others worthy of note in minor parts were Miss Edith Elton and Mr J. Attfield.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr George Lee.—Mr George Edwardes's latest success, The Cingalee, was seen here for the first time in Manchester on Monday night. Exceptional brilliance characterises the show; music, dresses, and scenery combine to produce a positively dazzling effect. Much of the comedy is supplied by Mr Frank Danby as Chambhuddy Ram, a part which teems with the most amusing eccentricities of speech and action; and considerable amusement is caused also by the peculiar methods of Mr Leedham Bantock as Boobhamba. Miss Florence Smithson plays Nanoya very charmingly; and other ladies who especially distinguish themselves in the cast are Miss Eva Sandford as Peggy and Miss Lydia Nervil as Lady Patricia, the latter having an uncommonly good singing voice. Mr Harold Thorley sings and acts well as Harry Vereker; Mr W. J. Manning is entertaining as Sir Peter Loftus; and Mr Jack Cannot does well as Bobby Warren.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Thorburn.—Mr E. St. Alban's opera company is here this week in Les Cloches de Corneville. This tuneful and dramatic piece has still the power to draw a good house, as was evidenced on Monday night. The company is a very good one, and is strengthened by a really capital chorus. Miss Lucy Fitzroy is very bright and engaging as Serpolette; Mr George Delaforce makes an excellently comic Baillie, assisted by Mr Fowler Thatcher as Gobo, his clerk; and Mr E. St. Alban gives a powerful interpretation of Gaspard, the miser. Other notable parts are well played by Mr George A. Fox, Miss K. Farrell, Mr Lawrence Wensley, and Miss Norman.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Mr Walter Melville's drama A Disgrace to Her Sex is the attraction here this week. The play is a worthy successor to other well-known melodramas by the same hand, and lacks nothing in the way of interesting and exciting situations. Mr Phil Harper as Jack Dawes and Miss Nellie Lucas as Mildred Carrington fill the heroic parts with credit, Miss Grace Heywood being seen to great advantage in the title-rôle. Mr Augustine Knight as Jules Delarnet is a most amusing villain; Mr Arthur Byron and Miss Madge Yates supply the comic element satisfactorily; and other good parts are well played by Mr David G. Noble, Miss Daisy Norman, Miss Winnie Tempest, and Mr Eugene Santley.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A good programme, as usual, is submitted here this week, about the most successful turns being the St. Johns, accomplished musicians, dancers, singers, and patterers; the Floradora Girls, comediennes and dancers; and Blanche, electrical and mechanical quick-change artist. These are most agreeably supplemented by Astley's American Circus, a very amusing show; Barton Howard, farmyard mimic; Condon and Preston, speciality dancers and comedians; Charles Denton, eccentric comedian; Sandy and Carl, laughter-makers; Beno, hand-balancer; Walker and Lake, patterers; Gilbey, the fireman on the ladder; and a series of animated pictures.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs Carson and Granville's latest success, A Modern Adventuress, by Lingford Carson, is the attraction here this week. The story is a good one, developed in an interesting and dramatic style throughout, and the company is in every way capable of doing it the amplest justice. Mr Leonard Ardale as Donelli, a sculptor, is particularly successful; as also is Miss Beatrice M. Anderson as the Adventuress. Mr Geo. D. Knight, Mr Charles Stirling, Mr W. R. Wirning, and Miss Alice Defoe are also prominent in the argument, while some good fun is forthcoming from Mr Frank Hill and Miss Mimi Fisher.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Richard Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Berry.—An old favourite drama, It's Never too Late to Mend, is staged here this week, the company including Mr John Wainwright in the part of Tom Robinson. Mr Wainwright gives a very vigorous and telling interpretation of this interesting character, and deserved the emphatic applause of Monday's audience, which extended also to Mr Hornby Warburton as the Rev. Francis Eden and to Mr Fred Owen as Jackey, the Australian aboriginal. Prominent also are Mr Henry Lee as the lawyer Crawley, Mr Alfred E. Calver as George Fielding, Miss Kittie Carew as Susan Merton, Miss Millie Milton as Josephs, and Mr W. R Weldon as Uncle Merton. The scenery is very pleasing.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—The chief attraction here this week is Charles Majilton and company in a very amusing absurdity entitled She Would be a Widow. The piece is full of funny situations, and the interest is never allowed to flag. Praise should be accorded to Mr Charles Majilton, Mr Dickie Clare, and Miss Madge Browne for their excellent performance. Bee Williams, the popular Australian comedian, also provides a capital turn, his parodies on well-known songs being particularly good. Other turns above the average are Abdil Kader, an excellent lightning picture painter; the Brothers Brooks, who score in songs and patter; Sisters Brand, comediennes and dancers; Maud Vera, comedienne; and Andy Fagan, Irish comedian. A series of animated pictures—"Joan of Arc"—are shown.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—The star turns here this week are Ada Fawn, comedienne, whose songs and character sketches give evident satisfaction, and the Lynchs, in their exhibition of skilful rifle shooting. The Donatos, clever one-legged acrobats, and Slippere, the blind pianist, show what can be done despite natural drawbacks. Much laughter greets the quaint songs of Charles Summers, the comic contortions of Verin, and the boisterous humour of Harry Weldon; whilst great interest is aroused by Carne Curre and his very clever dog, and also by the feats of strength and agility of the Itrams. Other successful items are Cliff and Kean, comedians and dancers; Lily Foy, comedienne; and the animated pictures.

TIVOLI. — Managing Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr Arthur B. Wilkes.—Miss Rachel Lowe, a clever comedienne, heads the bill here this week, and meets with a flattering reception, her latest successes being much appreciated. Another really excellent turn is that of Florence and Lillian, in their delightful, clever, and refined musical performance—an artistic treat. Charles Deane is a first-rate comedian; Fred Herbert is successful as a topical vocalist; Myra Stansfield is a pleasing comedienne; and Mdlle. Ada Marjutti is a very graceful contortionist. Enjoyable items also are the Ashers, in their well-known act "The Dude and the Soubrette; Charles J. Lever, tramp comedian and juggler; and the Sisters Adelaide, duettists and dancers.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.—A clever performance is given here this week by the well-trained dogs of Charles Prelle. Excellent turns also are Joe Almasio, the "jumping juggler," with his funny servant; the Three Sisters Silcott, charming vocalists and dancers; the Boston Twins, comedians and dancers; and Hilton and Hilton, comedy and expert bar performers. Other enjoyable turns are those of Dot Stanley, vocalist and dancer; Will Lytton, eccentric comedian; the Jansons, in their gymnastic novelty act; Brindall and Cooper, comedians and dancers; and their animated pictures.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—A most enjoyable programme is provided here this week, headed by Norman French, a capital eccentric comedian and a remarkably clever rag-time dancer; Tom Stuart is successful as a character-actor and mimic; Larola, equilibrist and burlesque acrobat, gives a fine exhibition in balancing; Jessie Merrilees sings well; and Charles J. Johnson, "the Black Diamond," is a good eccentric dancer. Capital turns also are Fred Poplar, comedian; Frank Seeley, comedian; Nellie Loomis and company, in a pretty dancing mélange; Maxwell and Frances, vocalists and dancers; Kitty Wager, comedienne; and Rose Cabani, comedienne and dancer. From last week remain the celebrated Kaufmanns' Troupe of lady trick cyclists; and the programme is completed by an orchestral selection and an interesting series of animated pictures.

ARDWICK EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Will Collins.—The popularity of this house has been phenomenal, but it seems to have reached its height this week, judging by the huge crowds which have besieged the place to get a sight of George Robey, the famous eccentric comedian, who has convulsed the house with laughter at every performance. The erection of so fine a music hall in Ardwick, offering as it does the opportunities to see the best of talent each week, is a compliment which the residents are not slow to recognise and appreciate to the full. Miss Ethel Haydon is also here, rendering vocal selections in her usual refined style. Chas. S. Kitts and Rhoda Windrum are seen in a satirical sketch; May Edouin and Fred Edwards give their crisp little playlet, A Bachelor's Dream; and a pleasing variety of entertainment is supplied also by Lizzie Valrose, vocalist; Benson and Geoffreys, duologue artistes; Tennyson and Wallis, comedians; James Stewart, the tramp pianist; Arthur Melrose, the word-whistling comedian; and the Stavordale Quintet of instrumentalists.

MARGATE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. Macknight; Business-Manager, Mr Charles E. Hardy.—Mr Frank Lindo and his excellent company with the domestic drama Home, Sweet Home, have met with a cordial reception here this week, where they have been paying a return visit. Miss Marion Wakeford, in the rôle of Joan, strikes all the fine chords of happiness, and the deeper ones of remorse, keeping her audience deeply interested in the delineation of a character which requires considerable artistic treatment and resource. Mr George F. Black, as the wronged and deceived husband, Stephen Armitage, gives a finished performance full of manly dignity, earnestness, and power. Mr Frank Lindo is good as David Armitage and Mr Arthur Rodney takes full advantage of the dramatic opportunities presented in the rôle of Lucas Lyle, the villain, playing the part with marked ability. Mr Collins Rolfe, as the Duke of Ancaster, does well; and Mr W. J. Anson, as the Hon. Percy Ashfield creates amusement by his many eccentricities. Miss Fanny Thorne, as Sybil Fay, the music hall artiste, makes herself a favourite, and Miss Ivy Rochefort is a winning Dora.

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr C. F. Bawtree.—On Monday and the two following evenings a large audience gave a cordial welcome to the re-appearance in the town of A Chinese Honeymoon, presented by Mr George Dance's company with all the go and vivacity which have characterised the previous interpretation of this very successful musical play at this house. Miss Queenie Harcourt's is a clever impersonation of the little Cockney waitress FiFi, her presence on the stage being the signal for an outburst of hearty merriment, which is almost continuous the whole time she is before the audience. The manner in which her songs are redemanded is ample proof of the appreciation she inspires. Miss Nellie Wigley charmingly portrays Soo-Soo, and her artistic rendering of the numbers allotted to her meet with a full measure of approval. Miss Elsie Carew makes up capitally and acts with a due amount of austerity on the part of the much-dreaded but amorous "official mother-in-law," Mrs Brown Miss Dot Stephens makes a dainty little Mrs Pineapple, a rôle she sustains with grace and piquancy. Mr Gus Wheatman puts plenty of life into and makes the most of the part of Mr Pineapple. Mr Heller Le Maistre makes a commanding Hang-Chow, the Emperor, and is heard to advantage in more than one occasion in the numbers falling to his share for interpretation. Mr Rudolph Kloss does well as Chippie Chop, and Mr Lennox Barry is successful as the Lord High Admiral. Mr Clifford Morgan presents a capital impersonation of Tom Hatherton, and in conjunction with Soo-Soo scores in some melodious duets. The Misses Florrie Leigh, Iris Grosvenor, Russell Reid, and Dorothy Leslie make bewitching bridesmaids; the Misses May Curtis and K. Pennington are charming maids-of-honour to Soo-Soo; and there is a strong and musical chorus which adds to the success of the production. For the remainder of the week a return visit of My Lady Molly was billed.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Will Smithson.—A Fight for Millions is being played here this week by Mr Robert Perris's company. Mr Perris as Tom Manley presents a careful study, and is successful in his embodiment. Mr J. Newton Cowling does well as Hudson Rivers; Mr W. S. Stevenson is effective as Richard Dudley; and Mr Larry Clements as Willie Neverwork and Mr Fred Acton as Moses provide abundant humour. Miss Eva Purcell gives a pleasing impersonation of Nevil Rivers; Miss Fannie Williams is dignified as Mrs Rivers; Miss Evelyn Robson admirably fills the part of Helen Dudley; Miss Winnie Acton is praiseworthy as Little Madge; and Miss Gertie Douglas is a capital Betty.

MEXBOROUGH.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. H. Melton.—Mr J. Gar Kiddie's company is playing here this week, in A Chinese Idyll. Mr Fred Danvers is a capital comedian and scores heavily as the Viceroy; he is ably seconded by Mr Dawson Dewick, who invests the character of Tang-a-Lang with rich humour; as Ching-Foo Mr J. G. Maine displays high dramatic power and merits the approval he receives; Mr F. H. Dundas sings and acts well as Lieut. West; Miss Mabel Mainwaring displays rare vocal ability as Pitti Pat; Miss Marie Rainbird cleverly fills the rôle of the Piccadilly tea girl, Belle Brighton; Miss Emma Milsted is full of verve and "go" as the Princess Stephanie. The Henriques, Chinese acrobats, give a smart turn.

MIDDLETON.

PARDOE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr William Pardoe.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company is this week appearing in The Plucky Nipper, a well-balanced and exciting melodrama. Miss Carlton is quite herself in the double rôle of boy and girl—better, if anything, when a boy. Mr Edward Surrey is a distinguished success in the low comedy part, and has a keen appreciation of what an audience wants to amuse it. Mr W. Anderson makes a good detective, and Miss Esther Lamonte plays the difficult rôle of a blind girl most effectively.

MOTHERWELL.

NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr W. Gillespy.—This week we are favoured with Mr Walter Melville's company, in Her Second Time on Earth. Miss Hilda Beverly appears as the unscrupulous Dora Grey, and her powerful acting receives the applause it merits. Mr J. W. Selby gives a vivid delineation of the part of the unfortunate organ-grinder, Beppo, and in strong contrast is the old sea captain, Captain Norman, a part which is most capably portrayed by Mr Charles Nanmor. Mr C. A. Melton is very good as the hero, Jack Carlton, and Miss Francis Leamington could scarcely be excelled as Laura Norman. Mr St. John Stuart is clever as Tom Norman, and Guy Brand, the villain, is well played by Mr Charles Girdlestone. Miss Polly Marsh in the part of Elizabeth Burke is well received. The comic element of the piece is kept up by Miss Nana Flensberg as Kitty Rosebud and Mr Fred Ingram as Teddy Butterfly.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, SEPT. 8.—It is the storm after the calm. After a dead season of unusual length—owing to the abnormally hot summer—we are thrown into the whirl of a new season with one stroke. All our theatres have re-opened—excepting, of course, the Royal Schauspiel-Haus, where comprehensive alterations are going on—and several of the most important have changed hands. Added to this, two new houses will open shortly, and a third before very long. The most important theatrical event is the opening of the Lessing, under the management of Dr. Brahm, for many years lessee and manager of the Deutsches. It will be some time before we shall accustom ourselves to the change, so long have we been used to associate our ideas of faultless acting with the Deutsches Theatre. Dr. Brahm, has, however, made a change for the better, the Lessing being the larger house, and the incomparable company—the acknowledged best in all Germany—remains the same.

The opening night was a record one, and will not readily be forgotten by either director or audience. Dr. Brahm's company is at its very best with Ibsen, and never has Die Frau Vom Meere been done to such perfection here as it was on Thursday evening. It is a work too little known, being considered by the critics one of Ibsen's masterpieces. The Royal Schauspiel Haus produced it a dozen or more years ago, and since that time it has been seldom performed. It was a judicious step of Dr. Brahm to open his new house with this play. Its reception was an enthusiastic one, thanks in a great measure to the magnificent acting. Herr Sauer, Fräulein Triesch, Herr Bassermann were foremost in a cast which was above all praise. The mounting was in the usual excellent taste, and Dr. Brahm was "called," and compelled to make a speech in response to deafening applause. The popular manager thanked the audience in a few well-chosen words for the interest they had displayed in the work set before them. Fräulein Triesch and Herr Sauer were then called before the curtain and tumultuously applauded.

The Lessing Theatre has been considerably improved in readiness for the new régime. One of the most important additions is that of a revolving stage, of a similar construction to that in the Burg Theatre at Vienna. The interior of the house has been entirely repainted and decorated, the chief tone being a delicate blue-grey. Emergency exits are plentiful, in fact, everything has been done that is possible for the comfort of the public.

THE reopening of the Theatre des Westens last week was one of the most successful nights under the capable management of Herr Prasch. This theatre—the opera house of the west-end—is making strides every season, and will bear comparison with any theatre of the kind with equanimity. The work chosen for the initial performance was Der Freyschütz, and I have seldom seen a better or more rounded rendering. Great pains had been expended upon both cast and mounting. Fräuleins Roxy King and Lina Doninger are not only charming singers but good actresses, and they excelled in the rôles of Agathe and Aennchen. Herr Von Haxthausen's sympathetic voice was heard to best advantage in the part of Max, and Herr Stammer gave an excellent account of Caspar. A word of commendation must not be omitted for Herr Koenig's good rendering of Kuno, the forester, while, perhaps, the lion's share of praise is due to Kapellmeister Pfitzner, who conducted in a masterly manner. The large house was crowded with a most appreciative audience, and Intendant Prasch may be congratulated upon the opening of the season.

AN old favourite has been revived at the Royal Opera successfully, Boieldieu's Weisse Dame. The cast comprised Herr Naval, as George Brown—a less satisfactory rendering than the others—Fräulein Dietrich, Frau Herzog, Herren Philipp and Moedlinger, and other well-known artists.

AN ambitious experiment was made at the reopening of the Luisen Theatre—no less than the performance of Julius Cæsar. It was more successful than might have been imagined, the part of Mark Anthony being excellently given by Herr Hacker, a "guest" from the provinces. The rôle of Brutus was well played by Herr Boehm,

THE Trianon opened on Saturday with a three-act farce from the French of MM. Sylvane and Froyez. The piece in its German adaptation is entitled Ihr Zweiter Mann, and being amusing and brightly played, the reception was a cordial one. Herr Max Schönan is the translator, and he has done his work—as he usually does—exceedingly well. Fräulein Fehdmer gave the most important female rôle, that of Adrienne, with much discretion; it was an all-round admirable rendering. Herr Hans Junckermann was also very praiseworthy, and deserved all the applause he received. The piece will run very probably for some weeks.

DIE DEUTSCHE VOLKSBUHNE is now the name of the whilom Carl Weiss Theatre, and it is certainly a more euphonious one than that of Bürgerliches Schauspielhaus, which it bore for a brief season. Herr Von Wildenbruch wrote a prologue specially for the opening night, the fine lines being delivered with great expression by Fräulein Mary Werner. The performance selected was Schiller's drama Die Rauber, and it was highly satisfactory.

THE Central Theatre has been subjected during the holidays to a beautifying process—not before it was needed, by-the-way—and it dawned in all its glory upon a well-filled house on Thursday. The well-known Tannhauser parody, by Nestroy and Binder, opened the new season. It contains a number of laughable scenes and some vivacious music, so that its production may be written down a success. Tannhauser is holding the boards all this week, with the exception of a single performance of Der Vogelhandler, which had a long run last season.

HERR HUGO LUBLINER—one of our most prolific comedy writers—has just completed another work of the same type. Ein Kritischer Tag, as it is called, has been accepted for performance by the management of the Royal Schauspiel-Haus, where it is to be produced soon after the reopening of that theatre.

"THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR." Nicolai's pretty little opera, is announced for revival at the Royal Opera next week. The work is receiving special attention. There will be new scenery, and the part of Falstaff is to be entrusted to Herr Knüpfer, a singer of much merit.

HERR PIERRE DE MEYER, the first tenor of the Zurich Stadt Theatre, has been engaged by Intendant Prasch for the Theatre des Westens. I hear excellent things of the new actor's voice.

A NEW opera, by Eugen Von Volborth, which made a very favourable impression at the Court Theatre, Wiesbaden, recently, is to be heard here shortly. The writer of the book is Herr Axel Delmar, who has supplied with success the libretto to a number of other operas, and the title is Marienburg. It is, perhaps, not necessary to add that the story deals with patriotic episodes in the history of the ancient fortress of that name.

SIGNOR LEONCAVALLO'S much-discussed Roland Von Berlin is to form the first novelty at the Royal Opera. It will be produced towards the end of October, but the exact date will depend upon the pleasure of the Emperor, who hopes to be present. The composer will attend the rehearsals, but prefers to leave the conducting on the opening night to Dr. Muck.

CHAT WITH MR. DREW MACKINTOSH.

The prologue. Scene, The Palace Pier, Brighton. Time, Sunday, 10 a.m. Persons present on rising of curtain, Mr Drew Mackintosh, the able and courteous young entertainment manager of the Palace Pier, and the writer of this article. Enter a tall, elegant, daintily confectioned lady, a charming little four-year-old replica of her charming self, and—a dog. Mutual introductions, and then Mr Mackintosh—"My dear, our friend will join us at dinner." Gracious expression of pleasure (undeserved, I fear) from the lady, vigorous demands from the sweet little "replica" for the immediate supply of "cakies," a disposition on the part of the dog Gyp of an intense desire for dinner, home, &c., and exeunt omnes. Curtain. End of prologue. The play. Scene, the Mackintosh dining-room. A cleared table; properties, sundry potables, and the usual smoking apparatus. Persons present, interviewee and interviewer.

"I was born," said Mr Mackintosh, "just thirty-three years ago. My father, Joseph Mackintosh, of the firm of J. Mackintosh and Sons, Colonial brokers, Mincing-lane, was one of the oldest brokers in the City, having been in business in Great Tower-street before the widening of that old thoroughfare. I may here mention, by-the-way, that I am myself on the Livery of the Grocers' Company, one of the most ancient of the City Guilds. However, the attempt to make a commercial man of me failed miserably, for at nineteen years of age, in 1891, I made my début as an actor with Willie Edouin at the Theatre Royal, Gloucester. The day after my initial performance I visited the cathedral, in which, long ago, Cromwell stabled the horses of his Ironsides. I was, of course, enormously inflated, and looked around me with a pride you can more easily imagine, perhaps than I can describe. My career was from that moment one of hard work, many parts, and, I think I may say, of fair success. Take a list of some of the pieces I have played in—Jedbury, Junior, Charley's Aunt (Jack Chesney), Pair of Spectacles (Dick), Lady of Texas, touring in it with its charming and talented authoress, Mrs T. P. O'Connor. I then produced Cousin Kate for its original tour for Emma Hutchison, remaining and playing with the company for over two years. For thirty-six consecutive weeks I toured with Jane, Diplomacy, Bunch of Violets (Marchant, Beerbohm Tree's part), Man's Shadow (Luversan and Laroque), Case of Rebellious Susan (Sir Richard Kato), Bauble Shop, Oh! Susannah! Niobe (frequently), The Magistrate, Sweet Lavender, Dandy Dick, and The Manxman (Philip). Once, in the latter play, a rather amusing thing occurred. Just before the final curtain a dove flies in at the window of Kate's bedroom; Philip makes a quiet exit. On this particular occasion, as I was in the act of doing this 'business,' there came in a loud, raucous voice from the gallery, 'All right, cocky! good night! get off! we've done with yer!' You can picture my feelings at this summary dismissal as the curtain fell to shouts of laughter. Yes, my experience of pier management dates back fourteen years, as many indeed as I am professionally old. All that time I have been connected with the St. Leonards Pier, for which I still provide the entertainments, in addition to the Brighton Palace Pier. It was at St. Leonards that I had the 'diving' experience which, I fancy, warrants me in claiming to be the only actor who has explored the 'submarine depths.' Snelling, the great diving expert, who made the famous but abortive attempt to raise the ill-fated Elbe, was in charge of the pier-building operations, and under his direction I assisted at driving the last piles—a somewhat unique record, I venture to think. With regard to Brighton, I was invited by an influential individual to assume the reins of management of the Palace Pier entertainments. I am proud and pleased to say that my efforts have been wonderfully successful in putting matters upon a different footing. Some of my bookings will show the lines I work on, and at what I aim—Arthur Roberts and company, Gay Parisienne, If I Were King, Mrs Bandmann-Palmer, Gilbert's operas, Glittering Gloria, New Boy, John Le Hay, the Craggs, &c."

I quite agreed with Mr Mackintosh that his record entitled him to all the credit he has received, in Brighton especially, where both he and his charming wife have made hosts of friends, and where his efforts to add to the gaiety of the queen of seaside resorts is appreciated to the full.

"IT'S NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—My attention has been called by several professional friends to the announcement contained in your issue of the 3rd inst, under the heading "Gossip," to the effect that Mr George D'Albert would shortly exploit at a London hall a new dramatic scena entitled Its Never Too Late to Mend, and that Mr D'Albert would appear as a prison chaplain

I do not know what authority you have for making the announcement, nor do I know the possibilities of such a production; but it does occur to me, and it has occurred to my numerous friends, that such a scena that Mr D'Albert contemplates putting before the public will seriously infringe my rights as the sole owner of the drama It's Never Too Late to Mend, as you will recollect that in the second act there is a prison scene in which the prison chaplain plays a prominent part.

I shall be glad if you will kindly insert this letter in your valuable paper, so that the profession may know that I am the owner, and intend to protect my interests in the above-named drama.

Yours faithfully, JOHN WAINWRIGHT.

KING'S THEATRE, GLASGOW.

The city of Glasgow, which already possesses many fine buildings of architectural merit, has had their numbers increased by the handsome theatre which has been erected at the corner of Bath-street and Elmbank-street. The projectors of this enterprise are the well-known firm of Howard and Wyndham, Limited, Mr F. W. Wyndham being the managing-director. The exterior is of classic design, carried out in a warm red stone. The bold lines of the building with its fine façade form an imposing adjunct to the wide thoroughfare in which it is situated. The frontage towards Bath-street contains the principal entrances. Two rusticated piers on each side of the entry doors are carried up to the height of the façade, which is crowned by a bold cornice and frieze supporting a pediment, and from this large consoles recede back to the main building, which is finished by balustrading surmounted by life-size emblematical figures. The other end of the building is similarly treated, and in the centre the façade is furnished with handsome bay windows, which light the managerial offices and other important parts of the building. Over this is a distinctive feature, being practically an enclosed roof garden, with glass doors opening on to outer balconies. The roof is a circular and domical one, a great portion being of glass, giving the effect (which has been aimed at) of providing the King's Theatre with something novel in the shape of a grand saloon, for which this apartment is intended. The main building, consisting of the auditorium and stage, is set back from the front of the building already described, and forms a good background for the varied outlines and levels which have been adopted, and creates a very interesting sky line. The elevation to Elmbank-street is similarly treated. An additional feature to that containing the entrances in Bath-street is obtained, and between these a circular corner is designed, which is kept low and surmounted by a copper dome, forming a satisfactory architectural feature. The remainder of the frontage is carried up to the whole height of the main building, and with its pilasters, recessed balconies, and moulded cornices and pediments completes certainly a handsome addition to the numbers of fine buildings in the city of Glasgow. The other elevations are of less pretensions, but go to complete the whole design. Handsome iron and glass shelters are to be erected over the pavements in Bath-street to shield early comers from inclement weather, and these will have coloured glass signs, and will be illuminated by electric light. A special feature is obtained over the principal entrance, the verandah being carried up with a skeleton iron dome surmounted by a crown, thus carrying out the idea which suggested the title—the King's Theatre. The principal façades are fitted with arc lamps in the most prominent positions, so that the whole building at night has a very brilliant and effective appearance. The site is one selected out of several by the company's architect, Mr Frank Matcham, of London, who has designed the whole building and personally supervised its erection. It was chosen on account of its important position, and more particularly for its adaptability and for the opportunities which it afforded for the erection of a safe and up-to-date theatre. The site enables the building to be practically isolated, with frontages to three roads and to a private way at the rear, which constitutes the entrances and exits to the stage portion of the building. From no floors or divided part of a floor are provided less than two distinct and separate exits; in fact, the pit, which is a large one, is provided with three exits. The principal entrance, as already mentioned, is in Bath-street. Pairs of handsome polished mahogany doors open into a large and lofty vestibule, the walls of which are lined with white and coloured marbles, and the floor is of marble in white and black squares. In the corners of this vestibule are handsomely designed pay offices and telephone rooms, and to the right a pair of doors give access to a wide corridor (similarly treated with marble walls and polished mahogany woodwork) leading by a short flight of easy steps to the stalls. Off one side of this corridor are retiring and cloak rooms with every convenience; on the opposite side are the manager's suites of offices, and approached from a private lobby at the end is the stars' room, a comfortably fitted-up apartment. This lobby communicates both with the auditorium and the stage, for the convenience of the management. The vestibule is of attractive design and good proportion. The marble walls are surmounted by a decorative frieze, from which springs a boldly panelled domed ceiling. An arched opening opposite the entry doors leads to the foot of the fine marble staircase, and off the first landing, divided by marble columns and arches, is the space allowed for access to and from the dress-circle cloak-rooms. On the other side the staircase is continued to a crush-room, having a painted figure ceiling; the walls are tastefully decorated and the floor laid with mosaic. This room is comfortably furnished with settees and a rich Turkey carpet. From this room a short flight of steps leads to the foyer, an artistically designed apartment in the form of a half circle. The walls are panelled and filled with rich silk brocade. The ceiling is oval in shape and artistically decorated, and the whole is carpetted and furnished in a most luxurious manner. At one side of this foyer are entered the ladies' retiring rooms, which are daintily appointed and fitted up with every convenience for their comfort. The foyer is separated from the auditorium by a handsome glass screen with swing doors, which open into the dress circle. Through this screen a fine view of the magnificent auditorium is obtained. The upper circle has its entrance adjoining that of the dress circle, and the same pay office serves the two, but, of course, divided. A wide carpetted staircase leads direct to the back of the upper circle through the crush room, from which the gentlemen's and ladies' retiring rooms are approached. The pit and gallery are approached through wide entrances from Elmbank-street, and here, by an ingenious arrangement, the people are led singly to the pay offices without barriers of any description, through separate entry doors; thus the exits are always clear and uninterrupted. Additional entrances are obtained—and these form extra exits—for early doors to these parts of the house. The interior of the house is fitted up with comfort, combined with artistic taste, to such an extent as is seldom achieved in buildings of this description. Every little detail has been studied, and the result is most creditable to those concerned. The gallery contains fifteen rows of seats, and these all face the stage. There are no side seats, and the architect has utilised the spaces obtained by the omission by introducing classic columns, from which spring arches filled in with coves of shell design. Between these columns on the upper circle level a balustrading is formed, behind which are promenades, from which a fine view of the stage is gained. A large saloon and retiring rooms are obtained in the most desirable positions in connection with this part of the house. The upper circle contains seven rows of velvet upholstered seats, with a fine promenade at the back. In the rear of this is a large and decorative saloon, carpetted and furnished with every comfort. The dress-circle is fitted with luxurious tip-up chairs, and the broad sweep of the eight rows (uninterrupted as the view is by any columns) affords such a view of the stage that every inch of its floor is seen from even the very end seats; in fact, this perfect view is obtained from every part of the auditorium, the occupants of the gallery having a view of the whole of the stage equal to that from in the stalls or dress-circle. This is in consequence of the galleries being constructed on a special cantilever principle by girders built in from wall to wall, curved to the shape of the fronts. The raking bearers from the walls projecting beyond these curved girders are all plated and jointed together and encased in concrete, the whole forming a mass of rigid fireproof construction. The dress-circle is luxuriously furnished, the floors being covered with a rich velvet pile carpet. The walls are covered with flock paper, and the ceilings are formed of raised plaster work finished cream colour. At the corners of the dress-circle are raised floors, the fronts of which have bold balustrading, divided by columns and arches.

The grand saloon is 43ft. long and 20ft. wide, and is beautifully furnished and decorated with raised plaster work, the walls being divided out by pilasters and surmounted by a moulded cornice and frieze, from which springs a panelled and coved ceiling, with a large glass roof in the centre. The ends of this room over the frieze are very artistically treated with small balconies and ornamental work. The walls are covered with green lustrette, and the curtains are of blue ground, figured with gold and terra-cotta. The combination, although rather daring, is most successful. The floor is of mosaic, covered with Turkey mats, and, with the lounges, tables, comfortable chairs, palms, and flowers, the effect is charming. At one end of this room is placed a counter and fittings, finished in white and gold, which accords very nicely with the general surroundings. This saloon is also available for the stalls, a staircase leading direct to the same, which also serves as a box staircase, giving access from the dress-circle to the three private boxes on one side, the exit staircase from dress-circle to Bath-lane serving as entrances to the three private boxes opposite. The stalls floor is covered with velvet pile carpet, and contains six rows of seats similar to those in the dress-circle, and are approached either from the corridor from the grand vestibule or by the above described staircases each side of the dress-circle. These staircases open on each side of stalls through colonnades of handsome alabaster columns with ornamental caps and bases. The walls at the back of the same are panelled and filled in with silk tapestries, and the openings are artistically draped. The pit is divided from the stalls by a barrier, and the floor, which is of wood blocks, is fitted with eighteen rows of automatic tip-up seats, so that each person will have his allotted space, and thus affording comfort and preventing confusion and crushing. The walls of the pit are lined with tiles, and over this tiling is a rose-red paper, carried up to a lofty, domed ceiling, which is an unusual feature in this part of a theatre, and gives a large and valuable amount of air space. The pit saloon is approached from the entrance and exit passages. This saloon is a large and lofty apartment, having a mosaic floor and decorative ceiling, the walls being covered with ornamental tile work. The counter and fittings correspond with the general design. The saloon is very comfortably furnished with settees, &c.

The theatre is heated throughout with a special system of coils, radiators, &c. The fresh air is forced into the auditorium through chambers containing hot water pipes and is drawn out through flues, &c., so that a continual stream of fresh warm air is obtained through the winter and cool air in the summer. The stage is divided from the auditorium by an asbestos fireproof curtain and hydrants, fully equipped, are placed in the most desirable positions, both in front and behind the curtain, and as the whole building is lighted by electricity and constructed of fireproof material the risk of danger from fire is reduced to a minimum.

The decoration of the auditorium is from the architect's designs, and has been carried out in fibrous plaster. The result is one of the most artistic theatres in the provinces. The whole is in Italian Renaissance design, the ceiling being divided into twelve panels containing figure paintings. The box façades are very novel and refined in character. The proscenium has a Scagliola marble border surrounded with a frame of modelled columns, &c., surmounted with a large scroll pediment with figures holding aloft a crown in the centre. The whole is enclosed by a groundwork of gold mosaic. The fronts contain electric light brackets, into which are introduced the lion rampant and thistle; in fact, this idea has been carried throughout the whole of the electric fittings.

The tone of colour in the decorations is kept in very quiet shades of cream with white and gold, and the effect is greatly enhanced by one shade of Rose du Barri being adopted throughout, the carpets, chairs, and even the wall paper all being of this lovely shade, and the effect of the whole when illuminated by the electric light being charming. The stage is a large one, being 70ft. wide, excluding the scenery dock, and 50ft. deep. It is fitted up with the usual traps and bridges, and all requirements for modern pieces The height of the grid is sufficient to raise the scenery out of sight without rolling it. Carpenter's shops, property rooms, and storage rooms are all provided in the most convenient positions. The dressing room is a fireproof block cut off entirely from the other parts of the building. These are controlled by a porter's lodge, and access to the rooms is obtained by fireproof corridors and staircases. They are comfortably furnished and heated by hot water, are lighted by electricity, and are furnished with retiring-rooms and complete means of exit; the safety and comfort of the artistes being considered in every way. The theatre will be opened on Monday by Mr Willard and his company.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

The promenade smoking concert in the Central Hall on Saturday evening was a success towards which the engagement of the London Prize Band greatly tended. The fact of the band having won no less than twenty-five prizes, including the most coveted in the kingdom, answers for the meritorious execution of the popular selections which were submitted. The conductor, Mr S. Cope, who may be complimented on the high state of the band's efficiency, may also be commended for his excellent performance with Mr W. Venner in the cornet duo, "Ida and Dot." The vocal items were also deserving of praise. A charming young lady Miss E. J. E. Ambrose, R.A.M., with a sweet soprano voice, made her first appearance at these concerts, and her rendering of "Daffodils a' blowing," "I hid my love," &c., were enthusiastically applauded, and she responded with the Irish refrain, "Killarney." Praise must be accorded to Mr Henry Norfolk for his songs, "The old Brigade" and "Bedouin's Love Song," both of which were artistically treated. The fourth annual exhibition of the North Middlesex Dahlia and Horticultural Society on Wednesday and Thursday is adding to the attractions of the Palace this week.

PADEREWSKI recently met with an accident whilst playing at Melbourne. In executing a rapid passage the little finger of his right hand caught in the keys, and the flesh was torn. Although he suffered great pain, and the finger bled, he continued his performance to the close.

MR EDWIN JACOBS has been reappointed musical director of the Theatre Royal, Bristol.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice of the Grand Theatre, on Saturday, I was credited with playing a part I originally performed with Mr Brand at the Imperial, in November, 1898. Yours faithfully, MARION RITTA, Sept. 4, 1904

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of Brown's Bronchial Troches. People troubled with a hacking cough, a slight cold, or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious pulmonary and asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box. Sold by Chemists everywhere, 1s. 1½d. per Box.—[ADVT.]

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Frederick Melville, entitled "BETWEEN TWO WOMEN."

Mr Frederick Melville's company is paying Islington a visit this week, this time introducing to habitués of this theatre another of his dramas. Between Two Women is essentially written for popular audiences, and it adheres with more or less fidelity to the time-honoured traditions of melodrama. As a study of two feminine temperaments, the play undoubtedly commands a little interest, but the limitations that convention places on the construction of the modern drama prevents Mr Melville from entering into anything like a systematic metaphysical study. But Mr Melville having fixed his "motif," places in rapid succession a series of incidents of a sensational nature before the audience, that admirably achieves his intention of sustaining their unflagging attention. This was obviously the case on Monday, a crowded house following with appreciative interest the progress of the play, which undoubtedly made a big impression on them. Mr Melville's company is headed by Mr Albert Ward, a gentleman who is held in affectionate esteem here, his initial entry being warmly welcomed. As the Rev. Philip Carton he gave an admirable reading, and in a part presenting many difficulties he achieved a well merited success. Mr Sidney Price as the Earl of Millard was responsible for another good performance, his acting being dignified, and the later portion of the play very impressive. Mr Harry Marlow was sufficiently boyish as the Earl's son in the early portion of the drama, and played towards the end with obvious sincerity. Mr Fred Morgan as James Darwood spared no pains to make the part as repulsive as possible, and made a big impression. Mr Graham Woods as Major Strangeways was good in a small part. Mr Tubby Edlin as Jack Pringle worked hard to amuse, and succeeded very creditably. Mr J. W. Walters as Jaques Spado acted with some success, though there was a tendency to overdo it, and Mr Charles Stuart as Mr Jorkins was effective in a small part. Miss Morita Valdar as Carmen De Savereux acted with force, and succeeded in depicting the varying emotions of the part with success. Miss Marie Robson as Violet Thornton was distinctly pleasant, and gave a nicely balanced reading. Miss Alice Bowes as the blind boy presented probably one of the most finished performances of the evening, her depiction of the character being in every way most excellent. Miss Sybil Hammersley as Polly Pop was fairly successful with her part. A special word is due to Mr Frederick Sandys for his performance as Dick Burgess, which was very commendable. The drama is mounted in the lavish manner we expect in Messrs Melville's productions.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled "THE WORST WOMAN IN LONDON."

The Shoreditch playgoers are this week again favoured with another visit of Mr Walter Melville's company in the above drama, and the enthusiastic reception the production gained on Monday proved that the play is as popular now as it was when first produced. Nor is this to be wondered at, for the drama is of a particularly exciting and interesting character, full of natural and pathetic incidents, admirably mounted and staged, and has an exceptionally fine interpretation at the hands of a decidedly capable body of players. Much praise is due to Miss Olga Audre, who plays with excellent results as Frances Vere, the worst woman in London. The part is a more than usually arduous one, but Miss Audre displays great ability, and accomplishes her task in a most praiseworthy fashion. Mr A. B. Imeson supplies a careful and painstaking performance as Jack Felton. His declamation and acting are of the highest order, and earn him a high place in public favour. Mr Frank Adair as Vincent Lyle is a thorough master of his part. He quite realises the callous nature of the rôle, and earns, and thoroughly deserves, the complimentary hisses which greet him from the "gods." Mr J. T. Macmillan contributes a pleasing embodiment of James Milford, whilst Mr Max Fellows plays the part of Detective Curzon in a business-like manner. Mr Julian Cross scores all through as Hugh Drayton, playing with his customary skill and discharging his duties in a highly creditable manner. Mr Andrew Emm is an irresistible Bob Goldfinch. Whenever a chance offers itself he makes use of it to the fullest extent, and keeps the house in roars of laughter whenever he is upon the stage. Miss Maude Stewart Drewry acts with much earnestness as Ruth Milford, and Miss Emily Dowton is a humorous Matilda Parker. A better impersonation of Philip Armstrong than that supplied by Mr Frank Lister could not be desired, and too much praise cannot be bestowed upon him for his exceedingly clever and artistic creation of the ruined gambler. The cast is an exceptionally long one, and each of the small parts is adequately represented by other members of the company. The incidental music, composed by Mr Edward Reeves, is very suitable and effective.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Play, in Three Acts, by J. T. Tanner and Herbert Keith, entitled "THE BROKEN MELODY."

Large audiences are being drawn to the Pavilion this week owing to the important engagement for the first time here of M. Auguste Van Biene and company. The Broken Melody still continues to attract, mainly owing to M. Van Biene's combination of actor and musician in his trenchant and artistic impersonation of the refugee Pole and 'cellist, Paul Borinski. The loss of the young wife in the hour of the long-deferred triumph and the quarrel with the Russian general, who is supposed to have led her away, are represented by M. Van Biene with skill and power, while the masterly manner in which he executes the many solos on the 'cello never fails to bring down the house. He has a command of his instrument that is excelled by few, and each solo that he played was listened to with marked attention and pleasure by the audience, and no selection was so greatly appreciated as that of "Home, Sweet Home," to the playing of which the gifted musician imparted so much expression. Miss Lena Burnleigh as the wronged Mabel is extremely good, her fine acting making the part a decided success. Miss Ida Chapman gives a convincing and powerful portrayal of the Duchess De Verviers, and Mr Arthur Bawtree is capital as General Ivanoff. The humours of Mr Dudley Mortimer are amusingly carried out by Mr T. P. Haynes, whilst Mr J. Stewart is well placed as Dr. Magrath. A natural performance of the good-hearted Dickson is given by Mr Charles A Morgan, and Miss Avis Graham is all that can be desired as Mrs Dickson. The Hon. Richard Spinacher finds a capable representative in Mr Henry Edwardes, and Mr John Cummings is worthy of note as Beaujour, whilst Miss Morton is pleasing as the Hon. Mrs Spinacher. The Broken Melody was preceded by a farce, in which Miss Ida Chapman and Mr Arthur Bawtree distinguished themselves. The staging and dressing are up to the usual standard of excellence.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Military Play, in Four Acts, Written by Walter Howard, entitled "UNDER THE RUSSIAN FLAG."

In view of the stirring events now in progress in the Far East, there is something peculiarly fascinating in this powerful and interesting drama of Mr Howard's, and the West Londoners quickly recognised the fact by giving both the play and players a rousing reception. As Captain Demetrius Mr Walter Howard played with that quiet force and reserve that always distinguishes an actor of pronounced abilities, all his points reaching their mark without the semblance of an effort. Mr F. W. Freeman made a vigorous and earnest Ivan Romanoff, delivering his lines with a clear, ringing emphasis; whilst Mr George Arthur as his treacherous brother Michael was so grim and determined in his methods that the susceptible Maryleboners quickly rebelled against his villainies. Mr Fred Harker, excellently made up as the unfortunate Wolf Marischla, proved himself to be an actor of no mean attainments. Mr Alfred Bennett gave an amusing study of the dandified officer Alexis Skopolopki; Mr W. Wilson was a dignified Col. Souvaroff; and Mr Hal Ford was truly delightful as the woebegone, but nevertheless intensely funny, Peter Poluski. The important rôle of Luka Marischla was sustained by Miss Ellen Snow with much power and passion, and unqualified success attended her efforts. As Vera Vassiloff Miss Ada Champion enlisted many sympathisers, by reason of her charming and attractive playing, and Miss Agnes Howard was dainty and piquant as the pretty little opera dancer, Ogarita. All the minor parts were in capable hands, the play being elaborately mounted and beautifully dressed, the military costumes by Morris Angel and Sons calling for special mention. The drama was produced under the personal direction of the author, whilst Mr William Bailey, courteous as ever, looked after his patrons' wants in the front of the house. There is never any uncertainty as to the whereabouts of this Mr Bailey, for he is always to be found smiling at his post.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Sept 5, the American Comedy-Drama, by Messrs C. T. Dazey and Arthur Shirley, "IN OLD KENTUCKY."

Mr J. F. Elliston presents the successful drama, by Messrs C. T. Dazey and Arthur Shirley, entitled In Old Kentucky, to the patrons of this pretty suburban theatre this week, and excellent houses have been attracted by the powerful representation given by the clever artistes engaged. In addition to the strong combination of pathos and comedy of which the drama consists, a galaxy of variety talent in the shape of singing and dancing, instrumental solos, &c., is introduced, and the resultant effect is evidenced by well-packed houses each evening. Mr Frank Strickland plays the hero (Frank Harley) in a forcible and striking manner, and his work is of great value to the production. Colonel Pebly Beauchamp is humorously delineated by Mr Alfred S. Bankes, and Jasper Grafton is truly made a villainous and despicable character by Mr Eric Hudson. Mr Gerald Kennedy gives a manly and vigorous performance of the part of Joe Lorey; and Mr Harry Leander as Neb deserves every commendation for his excellent acting. Mr F. R. Cooney is effective as Ephraim, and Mr Ralph Gibbs is good as Pete. Mr George Harris carefully plays the character of Rastus and Mr J. Shaw Master Peter Francis. Mr J. Stacey and Mr Pete Rintoul as stable lads act praiseworthily. An ingenious piece of acting is that given by Miss Amy F. Herman in the part of Madge Brierley, and her sympathetic and charming impersonation speedily finds favour with the audience. The part is a difficult one, but Miss Herman succeeds in bringing light and shade into the representation in a manner that is marked by refinement and ability of a high order. Mis Beatrice Shirley successfully emphasises the part of Barbara Grafton, and Mrs Van-Astor is quietly and naturally played by Miss Jessie Clitherow. Miss Alice Smith is pleasing as Minnie. A cake-walk competition in act two is provocative of much enthusiasm amongst the onlookers, and in act three Miss Lettie Harris and Messrs Gibbs and Harris unite forces in a cleverly rendered trio, whilst in the same act Mr Jimmy James gives a good banjo solo, and, in addition, an exceptionally skilful solo on the bones. Mr Harry Leander is also responsible for a humorous song of the American-Dutch type. The general mounting of the drama is excellent, and the tour is under the personal direction of Mr Charles Herman.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, by Cecil Raleigh, entitled "THE FLOOD TIDE."

Drama is still being played here, and this week we have the latest Drury-lane production The Flood Tide, which is finding favour with the large audiences who have witnessed it. The production is practically identical with that at Drury-lane, and most of the original scenery is used. The various scenic effects are cleverly worked, and reflect great credit on the stage-management. Mr William Sequin, who plays Jack Champion, gives a manly impersonation of the character, and Mr Alec Flood gives a natural and finished portrait of Dick Champion. Baroness Pitchioli is admirably played by Miss Ella Anderson, who draws a vivid picture of the adventuress. Miss Kathleen Russell is also notably good as Marie; her acting leaves nothing to be desired, and is most convincing. Mr E. W. Maule Cole is to be commended for his really clever acting as M'Naughten—a somewhat trying part. However he is equal to the task. Mr Maitland Marler, an old favourite here, appears as George Wellington Cliff, and he is exceedingly humorous in the character. He is ably assisted by Miss Marie Wright, who makes a vivacious Polly Champion, and scores heavily throughout. Mr Conrad Franklyn makes a mark as the Earl of Sutton; and Mr Graham Wentworth is particularly good as Colonel Corry. O'Grieff finds a capable exponent in Mr Sydney Vautier. Miss Seymour Hodges also does well as Mabel Corry, and the long list of minor characters are well acted. Mr Charles Enever stage-manages and Mr Frank L. Hayter is the business-manager for Mr C. Lubbock, under whose direction the drama is being toured.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, entitled "THE TICKET-OF-LEAVE MAN."

If only to have an opportunity of seeing Mr Henry Neville in the famous play in which he made his reputation, Tom Taylor's Ticket-of-Leave Man was worth revival, and Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison are to be commended for their enterprise. That they were fully justified was shown on Monday evening by the large audience assembled in the theatre, who followed the acting and the well-known sensations with keen interest. Mr Henry Neville's impersonation of Bob Brierley remains as fresh as ever, and one can only wonder at his amazing vitality which enables him to so successfully represent the young Lancashire lad. A successful piece of acting is given by Mr Wm. Devereux as Jem Dalton, "the Tiger." The Detective Hawkshaw is very creditably played by Mr L. Cory Thomas, and Mr T. W. Rawson undertakes Melter Moss with good effect. Mr Wm. Mallalieu depicts Mr Gibson in a praiseworthy manner, and Mr John Mason is a capable Maltby. Miss Adie Boyne, well made up, acts with bright humour as Sam Willoughby, and Mr F. G. Thurstans causes amusement as Green Jones. Miss Evelyn Weeden proves herself to be an actress of considerable ability, for her May Edwards quite holds the audience, and she is rewarded by well-merited applause. Emily St. Evremond is attractively played by Miss Lily Bertram, and the talkativeness of Mrs Willoughby is merrily emphasised by Miss Emma Victor. The scenery and appointments are quite in accord with Mr J. B. Mulholland's liberal ideas of thoroughness.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Comic Opera, in Two Acts, by Oswald Brand, Music by W. T. Gliddon, entitled "THE FISHER GIRL."

The Fisher Girl, by Mr Oswald Brand, has for the foundation of its story the romance of "The Flying Dutchman." It is described as a comic opera, the music, which is lively, tuneful, and bright, having been supplied by Mr Wm. T. Gliddon. The part of Vanderdecken, "The Flying Dutchman," affords Mr J. M. Jones the opportunity of displaying some expressive and clever pantomime. Kasper, the pedlar, a rôle which is undertaken by Mr C. Innes Bowen, is liberally supplied with music; and Messrs Will Raymond and J. G. Forde as the twins, Nickel and Klaus, are very much in evidence. The singing of Mr Charles Fisher, who is the lucky possessor of a sweet tenor voice, and who appears as Hendrick, finds much favour with the audience; and Mr Frank Couch works hard and with some success to render the innkeeper, Jan Stofel, amusing. Miss Marie Rito displays a pleasing voice and makes the most of the opportunities afforded her in the part of Elsbeth; and Miss Maude Desborough infuses brightness and vivacity into her impersonation of the maid Hannah. Mr Walter Champney appears as Baron Finkelstein; and Miss Alma Evelyne does all that is possible with the part of the innkeeper's wife, Frau Stofel. The chorus does not lack quality. Mr Albert Bartlett is responsible for the musical arrangements, the stage and entire production being under the direction of Mr J. M. Jones.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Sept. 5, W. Bailey's and Chas Berte's Drama, "THE CITY OF MILLIONS."

The drama under notice started its tour at Mr Purcell's other handsome theatre, the Alexandra, Stoke Newington, last week, and had an excellent send off. It contains the right ingredients to suit "popular" audiences, there being a full complement of exciting and stirring situations and incidents, interspersed with excellent low comedy business. The story of the two adventurers, Rosa De Valois and Captain Wilfred Dread, and the persecuted hero and heroine, Herbert Stacey and Jessie Townsend, is lucid and easily followed, and the undoubted success of the drama is largely due to its excellent all-round interpretation. The rôle of Rosa De Valois has a handsome and commanding representative in Miss Madge Girdlestone, under whose direction, by-the-bye, the company is touring. The actress is seen to advantage throughout the play, but she is at her best perhaps in the scene where she confronts Captain Dread, and the final struggle between them takes place. The villainous nature of that arch scoundrel Captain Dread, as enacted by Mr Martin Sabine, is so successfully portrayed as to bring down the opprobrium of "ye gods." The acting of Miss Audrey Sutherland, a very clever child, as Jessie Townsend in the first act (which is supposed to take place eight years before the rest of the play) shows the possession of rare histrionic abilities. No less commendable is the acting of Miss Kathleen Coleman, who undertakes the part in the latter portion of the play. The comic relief, of which there is ample, is mainly supplied by Miss Gladys Vernon as Kitty and Messrs C Gaskell and S. Wilkinson as Smudgeley and Bob Westwood. This trio work very hard and always with success in the cause of merriment. Mr Henry Nelson takes full advantage of the few opportunities given him to score in act one as Townsend, and Mr David Denard creates a most favourable impression by his impersonation of the Hon. Benjamin Boodle. Others who deserve mention are Miss Audrey Canning, who does remarkably well in the minor part of Mrs Chesney; Miss Agnes Verity, especially praiseworthy as the waif Timothy; and Miss Elaine Wilson, particularly successful as Juliet, the French maid. The remaining parts are represented by Mr C. Elliott in the part of Goldsworthy, Mr Pickering as the Inspector, Mr Bowman as the Judge, and Mr H. Stanley as a Bandsman, all of whom fill their parts with great success. The scenery comes in for much admiration, especially effective being the Hampstead-heath and Band Stand scene in Regent's-park, and the staging is particularly effective.

PRINCESS OF WALES'S, KENNINGTON.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts, entitled "THREE LITTLE MAIDS."

Audiences at the Kennington Theatre this week have thoroughly enjoyed the performance of this attractive piece, which contains all those elements that make for success in the popular class of play coming under the description of musical comedy. Originally produced at the Apollo Theatre in May, 1902, Three Little Maids was subsequently transferred to the Prince of Wales's, where it was received with renewed favour. Mr Paul Rubens is responsible both for the libretto and the music, and he has done his work extremely well. The dialogue is bright and amusing, and the score is throughout lively and effective. All the principals in Mr Charles Macdona's company have evidently been carefully selected; and the chorus is quite up to its work. Edna Branscombe, the part originally played by Miss Edna May, has a capital representative in Miss Nora Grey, whose vivacity and brightness are prominent features of a wholly successful performance. Her share in the singing honours is also quite a considerable one. Miss Gertrude Melville is a charming Hilda Branscombe. The song, "She was a miller's daughter," is rendered by her with much archness and humour, while every word can be distinctly heard. Miss Adeline Yohle is a winsome and attractive Ada Branscombe, and scores with the ditty "You Men" in the third act. These three young ladies moreover make a decided hit with their lively trio which they sing as the girls engaged to serve the swell patrons of the tea shop. Miss Laura Wright appears as Gretchen, a Dutch girl, a character which has only just been introduced into the piece, and the duel and dance with Mr Gus Oxley (Cupid) in the second act are redemanded again and again. Her humour and high spirits are much appreciated. Miss Kate Forster is a good exponent of Lady St. Mallory; Miss Jennie Edgar, Miss Ethel May and Miss May Lewis are pleasing representatives of Lady St. Mallory's protegees; and Miss Mabel Sarl is well placed as Miss Price, manageress of the tea shop Mr Arthur Longley as Lord Cheyne supplies a most diverting sketch of the dude, and his presence on the stage is always welcome. He is indeed an excellent successor to Mr G. P. Huntley in the part; and the "Algebra" ditty is loudly applauded. Mr Gus Oxley is a comical exponent of Cupid, and causes considerable merriment in the course of the evening. His song, "Girls," is capitally given. Mr Alec Chentrens as the amorous Frenchman, M. De L'Orme, does justice to the character, and sings admirably the pretty love ballads associated with the part. Mr Haddon Cave is a brisk Brian Molyneux, and Mr Charles Leverton carefully represents the Vicar of Market Mallory. The chorus and orchestra is under the direction of Mr Julian Rutt, and the scenery by Messrs Ernest Howard and Francis Bull deserves favourable mention.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Musical Play, in Two Acts, by Seymour Hicks and Ivan Caryll, entitled "THE CHERRY GIRL."

This bright and sparkling pantomime-musical-comedy has been very well received at the Shakespeare Theatre this week. A large quantity of elaborate scenery is carried by the company, which is a large one and well chosen. There are plenty of pretty girls with young voices that give the piece all the "snap" it requires. Miss Elsie Molloy as the Queen who plays the part of Pansy, the Cherry Girl, in act two, sings and dances well, and deserves every praise. Mr H. Herbert in the dual-part of Moonshine and Happy Joe scores with his dancing and singing, gaining many encores. Miss Katie May is pretty and intelligent as Pansy. Miss Dorothy Frostick as a dancer deserves every praise, being, as everyone must be aware, most finished, artistic, and free from the slightest vulgarity. Mr H. W. Hewlett as Starlight and the Squire of Homewood Hall is all that can be desired. Miss Nina Gray as Tip-Toe and Miss Julie Vivers as Millicent deserve praise. Mr Charles Seymour and Mr Fred Delane are humorous as Bow and Scrape. The Avondale Quartet, consisting of Messrs N. Ballard, Ford Robinson, E. Gordon, and F. Bentley, are a distinct success and very welcome to the house. Master J. Saro as the Rose of the Riviera and a tiny little girl dancer, Decima Brooke, as Dimples are clever children. Miss Lottie Stone's Troupe of dancers work hard and gain a due meed of applause.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, by Frederick A. Stanley and A. F. Henderson, entitled "A SAILOR'S SWEETHEART."

Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow's company is appearing with considerable success at the Dalston Theatre this week in the drama bearing the comprehensive title A Sailor's Sweetheart. Mr Alfred Goddard does justice to the part of Lieut. Charles Clive, R.N., who is the hero of the piece. He is well supported by Miss Adah Barton as Grace Mayland, the betrothed of Lieut. Clive, and, therefore, the sailor's sweetheart. Miss Barton rapidly becomes a favourite, and the audience is evidently most anxious that all her wrongs should be put right. Mr Charles Stafford as Admiral Sefton, Mr William Stoneham as Captain Mayland, and Mr C. A. Johnstone as the Rev. Robert Clive each do their share in the development of the story. Much credit is due to Mr Robt. Faulkner for a careful and effective portrayal of the cynical character of Philip Pemberton. In strange contrast to such a plotting villain is the jovial seaman, Tim Kelly, admirably represented by Mr Edwin Millins. Mr C. Douglas Carlile plays Stephen Lucas, a lawyer, to the life, and A. C. Blunt is John James Pinkson. Mrs J. W. Braithwaite as Mrs Penbury, of the Jolly Tars Inn, and Miss Evelyn Shaw as Phœbe Penbury are decided acquisitions to the cast, some of the low comedy of Mrs Braitwaite being worthy of the "palmy days." Others in the cast include Messrs W. Shaw, H. Reed, Gaffney, J. Graham, C. Trevlayen, H. Martin, Dan Shields, T. Miller, R. R. Wyvers, and A. B. Cuncliffe.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH-END.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Comedy, in Three Acts, by Henry J Byron, entitled "OUR BOYS."

On Monday evening was produced here the successful comedy of Our Boys, which has lost none of its popularity. Sir Geoffrey Champneys was artistically handled by Mr Milroy Cooper; Mr Horace Pollock made a diverting Talbot Champneys; Perkin Middlewick, the retired butterman, was most cleverly portrayed by Mr Thomas Thorne; Mr James Gelderd deserves praise for his interpretation of Charles Middlewick; Miss Ethel Verne made a consistent and commendable Violet Melrose; Miss Beatrice Marsden was well placed as Mary Melrose, acting with charming vivacity; Clarissa Champneys had a meritorious exponent in Miss Nellie Clarence; and the lodging-house slavey, Belinda, had humorous treatment at the hands of Miss Edith Hesketh. The play was preceded by the one-act comedietta A Happy Pair.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, entitled "WOMAN AND WINE."

Mr Milton Bode's excellent company is paying a return visit here with this intensely absorbing play, wherein the vicious phases of Continental fast life are so vividly represented. Mr Frank R. Robertson continues his forcible impersonation of the weak-minded spendthrift, Dick Seymour. Mr Fred Mace is good as the blind father, Hugh Seymour. Mr Walter Thornton scores well as Alphonse Beaudet; the Caliban of Mr Herbert Landeck, although treated in a lighter vein than that adopted by his predecessors in the part, is a clever portraiture; Mr Tom Tinlell is amusing as the frivolous Professor Sawter; Mr Percy Dawsone and Miss Muriel Vox contrive to create genuine diversion out of the matrimonial "situations" of Charles Sawter and Janet Sawter; Mr Frank Eaglesfield plays with plenty of grip as Phineas Collins; Mr L. R. Beaumont is excellent as Mark Perkins; Mr Henry Compton is a dignified Duc d'Arnac; Mr Ralph Lynn is a dashing jockey, Bob Tipton; the President of the Court has a worthy representative in Mr Fred Harcourt; Mr A. V. Webster is an attentive Joseph; Mr Tom Kent is emphatic as an advocate; Miss Edith Blande, of fair presence, flings herself with fine abandon into the rôle of the heartless demimondaine, Marcel Rigadout; Miss Ernestine Holker is winning as Mary Andrews; Miss Nellie Lauraine repeats her dramatic embodiment of the passion-blinded La Colombe; Madame Perinet is neatly portrayed by Miss Rose Galloway; Miss Lucy Langley is a capital Suzanne; and some excellent speciality dances are contributed by the Edene Troupe.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Play, in Four Acts, entitled "SAPHO."

The return visit of Miss Olga Nethersole and company, in Clyde Fitch's adaptation of Daudet's "Sapho," proved a potent attraction at the Stratford Borough Theatre on Monday night, and the pecuniary results of the visit should be exceedingly gratifying at the end of the week. The play is superbly mounted and dressed, and receives highly efficient interpretation. Of course, chief interest centres round Miss Nethersole's rendition of the name-part, and her impersonation of Sapho—a part which, by-the-way, makes no inconsiderable tax on the physical resources of the actress—becomes, if anything, more finished and artistic with repetition. Mr Edward Fielding contributes invaluable support as Jean, his performance being entirely praiseworthy. Déchélette is safely entrusted to Mr Titheradge; Mr Harry Dodd's amusing delineation of Uncle Césaire is most acceptable; and Mr Berte Thomas plays Flamant with distinction. Mr Maskill plays Hettéma appropriately, and Mr Slaine Mills appears successfully as Caoudal, besides undertaking the onerous duties of stage-manager with entire credit. Miss Annie Esmond is excellent as Divonne, and Miss Frances Ivor makes the most of her opportunities as Madame Hettéma. Alice Doree has a pleasing exponent in Miss Constance Raymond; Irene is charmingly portrayed by Miss M. Field; and Miss Rosalind Ivan is a satisfactory Françine. The impersonation of the child Joseph is quite a triumph for Miss Irene Wakefield.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Emma Litchfield, entitled "A LONDON ACTRESS."

This piece made a first appearance at the Theatre Royal on Monday night, and scored a highly favourable reception from a well-filled house. The authoress herself plays the important part of Hilda Mannering, who is delineated with all the coolness, audacity, and self-possession so well befitting a woman of the world with lax morality. Mr Stuart Cleveland plays Sergeant-Major Clive Crawford in virile style, and is quickly installed a general favourite. Mr Charles A. Leicester is a buoyant and outspoken Lieutenant Kingston; and Mr John Worth acts with expression and dignity as Captain Mannering. Mr Fred Tenaur contributes a clever sketch of Moses Mendoza, and Mr Sam Wilford is always amusing as Pat Maloney. Phyllis Crawford is charmingly delineated by Miss Elsie Roberts; Miss Louise Millward wins much favour as Biddy Maloney; Miss Adele Wilford is a very acceptable Rosie Blythe; Miss Maud Steeples is admirable as Mrs Skinner, and Miss Maud Saxby does well as Nellie. Minor parts are in capable hands. The drama is mounted and dressed appropriately and well.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, by Theo Kremer, entitled "THE FATAL WEDDING."

The astute and popular managers of Brixton's palatial theatre have provided a potent attraction this week in the above play, which is being presented by Mr Bert Coote's company. So much has been written in praise of The Fatal Wedding that it is unnecessary for us to enlarge on the cleverly conceived story. On the night of our visit an attentive and enthusiastic audience witnessed the performance and showed their appreciation of the play and its interpreters by unstinted applause. Mr Wilfred Payne as Howard Wilson contributes a perfectly natural performance; Mabel Wilson finds a winsome and powerful exponent in Miss Marie Houseley; as the unscrupulous Robert Curtis Mr Leyton Cancellor merits our highest commendation; and he is admirably supported by Miss Beatrix De Burgh as the adventuress Cora Williams. An extremely clever character sketch is submitted by Mr Charles H. Kenney as the French servant Toto. We must also commend Miss Harriet Clifton for her ideal impersonation of Bridget. Mr Fred Dobell makes the most of the rôle of Peter Schwartz, and Mr Arthur Law-Raynor is seen to advantage as the clergyman, the Rev. Dr. Lanceford. As Jessie, "the Little Mother," Miss Ida Valli wins all hearts, her beautiful sympathetic rendering of the part being one that is not easily forgotten. The smaller parts are all well cast, and the whole production reflects considerable credit on all concerned.

GREENWICH THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Violet Sims, entitled "THE BRAND OF CAIN."

Messrs G Sims and C. J. Bannister's company in the sensational drama by Miss Violet Sims, entitled The Brand of Cain, is the attraction here this week. The drama is well written and interesting throughout. Miss Violet Sims as the heroine, Nellie Black, scores a decided success, her voice, appearance, and tasteful dressing all being greatly in her favour. Mr Harry Stuart as John Ryland proves himself a clever and painstaking actor; Mr A. Fellows Bassett gives an excellent interpretation of the character of Silas Dark; Mr Percy Cahill as Solly Banker is responsible for much merriment, caused by his very amusing performance; Mr Arthur Robinson is good as Dr. Gibson; Mr J. Belmont is a capable Bertie; Little Miss Lillie Rosenburg presents a pretty piece of acting as Frank Ryland; Miss Flo Levey is a dramatic Zillah; Miss Marion Medway is good as Mrs Podgers; and Miss Mabel Durham has an excellent conception of Ada L'Estrange. All other parts are in competent hands.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled "THE SILVER KING."

There are some plays of which popular audiences never seem to tire, and The Silver King, which has been presented here this week by Messrs G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company, is one of these. The drama was certainly seen under favourable circumstances, for all the members of this strong company were well up to their work, and managed to excite and sustain from the very first the interest of the audience in the action of the piece. Miss Emelie Polini gave a sympathetic and convincing rendering of Nellie Denver, showing true insight into the character of this stout-hearted woman, and playing with a touching sincerity throughout. As Wilfred Denver Mr Austin Melford had, of course, the lion's share of the work, and right well did he acquit himself. Mr Melford's strong acting, combined with a melodious voice and a clear perception of the artistic possibilities of his part, made him a first favourite with his audience, the genuineness of whose applause was undoubted, notably after Denver's striking description of his dream to Daniel Jakes. The last-named character was admirably handled by Mr C. C. Grattan, who succeeded in portraying to the life this faithful and lovable old retainer. Mr Charles Levey was eminently successful as Captain Herbert Skinner, the inhuman "Spider," whose machinations early aroused the strongly expressed disapprobation of a portion of the house. Miss Phyllis Dailley made the most of the small part of Olive Skinner, and Mr H. H. Rooke contributed a clever study of Elijah Coombe. The principals were supported by a long and efficient cast, too numerous for individual mention, and the mounting and staging were unexceptionable.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, entitled "ONE OF THE BEST."

The great military drama One of the Best is being presented at this popular house by Mr Robert Arthur's company, and is drawing large and fashionable audiences. The piece is of strong emotional interest, but its more sombre scenes are relieved by excellent comedy touches. The great scene of the piece is that in which the hero, Dudley Keppel, a young officer, is drummed out for a military crime committed by the villain. The original Dudley Keppel was the lamented William Terriss, and Mr Harry B. Stanford, who played it on tour, strange to say, followed his predecessor in the part of Faust, in the last revival of that play at the Lyceum. The present Dudley Keppel is Mr Stanley Bedwell, who is a pronounced success; the part of Private Jupp, taken by Mr Herbert Darnley, lends itself to versatility, and that Mr Darnley is versatile is an admitted fact; as Jason Jupp, a gravedigger, Mr Charles Medwin is exceedingly good; Mr H. F. Maltby in the part of Lieut.-General Coventry, in command at Portsmouth, imparts dignity to the character; and as Esther Coventry Miss Helen Haye plays her part with much pathos. The acting of Mr Beckworth as the Rector of Market Ditton is quite effective, and as Mary Miss Jeanette Le Gros is responsible for an attractive rendering. Miss Lilla Norden is a bright and amusing Kitty Spencer; Miss Nellie Gilmore is well placed as Mrs Spencer; Mr Bellenden Clarke scores in the difficult part of Phillip Elsworth; Mr George Hart does well as Sir Archibald M'Gregor, K.C.B.; and Mr Temple Powell as Jules De Grechy makes an excellent impression. The piece is very finely staged, the great military scene alluded to being presented with much elaboration and detail.

PRINCE OF WALES'S, RICHMOND.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Drama, entitled "THE GRIP OF IRON."

Messrs E. H. Knight and George Denham's company, in the popular drama The Grip of Iron, is here this week. Mr Fred Powell as Jagon, alias Simmonet, bears the bulk of the work upon his own shoulders, and gives an extremely clever performance of the two-sided character, showing the one soft spot in a villainous heart with much skill. Mr George Denham is a manly Paul Blanchard, and Mr Charles Grant, a scheming and unscrupulous Lorentz De Ribas, a Spanish adventurer. The two detectives, Coucou and Dodot, are cleverly played by Messrs Agar-Lyons and Brittain, and Mr Andrew Liston gives a most amusing rendering of the part of Loustalot, the Smiler. Miss Georgie De Lara is an attractive Cora Simmonet, and Miss Nellie Grant a capable exponent of the part of Sophie Blanchard. The character of Marie Guerin is ably rendered by Miss Hilda Baynton. The cast is a long one, but without exception the parts are suitably filled and the scenery is extremely effective.

IN Winnie Brooke, Widow, at the Criterion Theatre, there are two admirable scenes. An apartment opening on to a conservatory is particularly dainty and charming, with its antique French furniture, gilt framed and covered in soft grey tapestry of a floral design, its big Benares brass jardinières filled with tall palms, its shapely bronzes bearing gleaming electric lights. Another excellent scene is the Library at the Priory, which Messrs Oetzmann and Co., of Hampstead-road, W., who are past-masters of the art of supplying artistic and appropriate furniture, have made handsome and cosy with carved black oak furniture, an agreeable colour note being introduced by the soft grey green tapestry of a huge grandfather chair. The wide experience of Messrs Oetzmann always ensures artistic effect combined with suitability.

La Montansier is an artificial, unconvincing, and wholly theatrical play, which was written for the purpose of exhibiting the peculiar ability of Madame Réjane. Everyone is familiar with the tricks and talents of that artist; and it was somewhat of a surprise to learn that the leading rôle was to be played in an English adaptation by the usually serious and pathetic Miss Lena Ashwell, whose triumph in Resurrection is still fresh in our memories. It was evident that either Miss Ashwell possessed an almost incredible and hitherto concealed versatility, or that the part must be rewritten for her, and played by her on quite different lines to those laid down by the French actress. The latter course appears to have been followed by the adaptor, Mr Michael Morton, who, however, appears to have kept to the main lines of the original. As our readers may remember, La Montansier was produced in Paris on March 24 last, and was recently seen in London at the Prince of Wales's Theatre. The heroine is an actress to whom we are first introduced in the reign of Louis XVI., just before the Revolution. The leading actor of the company to which she belongs is named Neuville; and he, like the old comedian, St. Phar, is in love with Marguerite, otherwise "La Montansier." She soon has a theatre of her own, and when Robespierre and St. Just are in power, she shelters within it a proscribed Royalist, named Philippe, Marquis De Pommeuse. St. Just, who discovers this, comes to Marguerite, and offers her choice between becoming his mistress and being guillotined for treason to the Republic. Marguerite is in "a tight place;" but she gets out of it by inducing all her company, including, of course, Philippe, to volunteer to join one of the Armies of the Republic. The Marquis, however, is still in an awkward position. He cannot make up his mind to fight against his friends, the emigrés; and at a critical moment he deserts to the enemy. Neuville, who has made arrangements to repel the attack of the latter, directs that the Marquis shall be the first one to be shot; but Marguerite, who loves Philippe, threatens, if the order to the men to fire is given, to run in front of the guns. Neuville, in despair, puts a pistol to his head to commit suicide; and with a sudden revulsion of feeling, Marguerite herself gives the order to fire on the enemy. Philippe is rescued by Neuville, slightly wounded, and is thrown by him at Marguerite's feet. In the last act, the old actor, St. Phar, brings about a reconciliation between La Montansier and Neuville, by inducing them to rehearse a duologue in which a rural maiden pleads for forgiveness to her lover. The acting turns to earnest, and the pair go off embracing.

Miss Lena Ashwell made La Montansier a much less frivolous and more innocent personage than that represented by Madame Réjane; and this view of the character, coupled with the intense seriousness of several of the other artists in the cast, made the artificiality of the play all the more obvious. As long as the work of the three French authors was taken as a comedy, its "thinness" passed unregarded; but when it was played as a serious drama, the "comic relief" in the third act, in which the actors are engaged in irregular warfare, seemed somewhat shallow, and the work lost much of its possible charm. Miss Ashwell, however, must be credited with a very clever performance on the lines chosen by her; and her treatment of the love scenes was tender, earnest, and expressive. A strong and intense embodiment of the rôle of Neuville was given by Mr Frank Mills, who acted throughout with manly vigour and firm authority. Mr Charles Groves, like the admirable and experienced actor that he is, handled the character of St. Phar very adroitly, delivering the fine speeches about the theatre with artistic elocution and with excellent spirit. Mr Harry Halley did well as Barelle; and Mr G. Drayton made what was possible of the part of Nicolet; Mr L. Race Dunrobin doing good work as Berton. Mr Thomas Holding played the vacillating Marquis De Pommeuse smoothly and ably; Mr Edward Knox gave a neat sketch of an amorous Abbé; and two gallant members of the old French aristocracy had good representatives in Mr H. Pellew and Mr C. P. Peel. Mr Charles A. Doran as St. Just was as cold and stern as could be desired, and emphasised powerfully the icy heartlessness of the relentless Republican. Mr L. Savile was efficient as the Emissary, Mr W. Belgrave made a soldierly De Noailles, and Mr Cecil Pearce played the Austrian officer very creditably. Conspicuously commendable was the Mdlle Senedar of Miss Sydney Fairbrother, a performance full of quaint, unconscious humour and bright, comical characterisation. Miss Marie Hudspeth was duly motherly and impulsive as Madame Brunet; and the actresses of "La Montansier's" company were all attractive and tastefully attired, Miss Beryl Mercer enacting Gertrude with much sprightliness. Mr Walter Helmsley's scenery was picturesque; M. Louis Keyzer's incidental music, including a jaunty march, was tuneful, lively, and appropriate; and the piece, produced by Mr Michael Morton, who appeared with Miss Ashwell at the close of the performance, went without a hitch.

BROADWAY THEATRE, NEW-CROSS.

On Monday, Sept. 5, W. Gillette and Sir A. Conan Doyle's Play, in Four Acts, entitled
"SHERLOCK HOLMES."

Mr Charles Frohman's company, including Mr H. A. Saintsbury, is paying a welcome return visit with W. Gillette and Sir A. Conan Doyle's celebrated play entitled Sherlock Holmes. The play is here, as elsewhere, watched with breathless interest from start to finish. Mr H. A. Saintsbury realises very cleverly Dr. Conan Doyle's popular hero; his performance is throughout a masterly piece of work. Mr Lawrence Leyton plays well as the hero's faithful friend, Dr. Watson, Mr Marc Macdermott is an excellent John Forman, Mr W. F. Stirling presents an excellent character study as Professor Moriarty, Mr Leslie Carter is an emphatic and convincing James Larrabee, Mr Legal Robinson is a capable Sidney Prince, and Master Cedric Walter is a warm favourite as Billy. Other parts are well acted by Messrs J. F. Anson, G. Walters, J. Poole Kirkwood, Douglas Munro, E. H. Fairburn, H. Boughton, W. Wilson, and Milo M. Loomis. Miss Vera Langdon is a gentle and pleasing Alice Faulkner. Miss Mary Lindon plays powerfully and well as Madge Larrabe. Miss Rosalie Notrelle is good as Thérèse. Miss Clarice as Mrs Faulkner and Miss Rosamond Rokeby as Mrs Smeedley are capable representatives of their parts.

SCENIC ARTISTS' ASSOCIATION.

Last February a complimentary dinner was given by a committee of artists, authors, and composers to the principal English scenic artists. Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema took the chair, and was supported by Sir E. J. Poynter, President of the Royal Academy; Mr Alfred Austin, the Poet Laureate; Professor Van Herkomer, Sir Squire Bancroft, Major-General Baden-Powell, Mr Rufus Isaacs, M.P., Sir George Lewis, Mr John Hare, Mr Beerbohm Tree, Mr Pinero, Lord Kilmorey, Sir Douglas Straight, Sir Clinton Dawkins, Mr Marcus Stone, R.A., Professor E. Ray Lankester, Sir E. Busk, Sir W. Agnew, Sir F. Semon, Mr Cyril Maude, Sir F. Burnand, Mr Sargent, R.A., Mr Willard, Sir F. Pollock, Mr Dion Boucicault, Mr Kendal, Mr Arthur Bourchier, Mr H. V. Esmond, Mr H. A. Jones, Mr Martin Harvey, Mr Fred Terry, Mr Sidney Grundy, Sir Bruce Seton, Mr Gerald Du Maurier, Mr G. Frampton, R.A., Mr H. Waring, Mr Marshall Hall, K.C., M.P., Mr Anthony Hope Hawkins, Mr J. Comyns Carr, Sir H. Jerningham, Mr Seymour Hicks, Mr W. Grossmith, Mr Cecil Raleigh, Mr Edward Terry, Mr Heinemann, Mr Lucy, Mr Murray Carson, Mr M. H. Spielmann, Colonel Hughes Hallett, Sir F. Milner, Sir Anderson Critchett, Mr F. Baden-Powell, Mr Carl Meyer, Mr George Lewis, Mr H. B. Irving, Sir Rennel Rodd, Mr G. Alexander, and Sir Philip Burne-Jones, hon. secretary of the Reception Committee. This dinner brought home to the guests of the evening that they had no organisation of their own by means of which they could return the compliment or take action in any way as a united body of scenic artists. On April 30 Mr Walter Hann invited the London scenic artists to meet at his painting-room in Murphy-street, and it was there resolved to form a Scenic Artists' Association, and Messrs. E. G. Banks, J. J. Markwell Davis, R. J. Douglas, W. Harford, W. T. Hemsley, H. Hinton, J. Harker, H. W. Owen, H. Potts, W. Raphael, H. W. Robinson, and W. B. Speng were elected by a ballot as a committee of management, with Mr Walter Hann as chairman and Mr Ernest Hann as secretary and treasurer pro tem. A second general meeting was convened to meet at Mr Hann's painting-room on May 24, when Mr Hawes Craven was invited to accept the office of president of the Association, and Messrs Francis Voules and Welch, of 84, Bishopsgate-street Within, were appointed honorary solicitors to the Association, and rules were drawn up and passed. The first meeting of the committee was held on June 1, and the secretary pro tem. was instructed to keep a register of names of artists seeking employment, and to prepare a catalogue of "authorities" on subjects connected with scenic painting. At the second committee meeting, held Wednesday, July 27, Mr H. Lawrence Harris was appointed secretary of the Association. It was announced that Sir Philip Burne-Jones had accepted the honorary membership of the Association, and the rules passed by the general meeting held on May 24 were (subject to slight clerical alterations) duly confirmed. These rules provide for the management of the Association by a council of officers and committeemen; an annual subscription, of which one-fourth is devoted to the benevolent fund; the keeping of a register of artists disengaged and managers requiring their services; an annual public exhibition of the works of members of the Association, and an annual general meeting and dinner. At the committee meeting held on August 8 Mr J. Harker was elected vice-president, and Mr J. Stafford Hall, of Liverpool, provincial representative. Offices have been taken on the first floor of No. 5, Robert-street, Adelphi-terrace, Strand, where a large room is provided for the use of members of the Association for the purpose of meeting fellow-members and friends, for writing letters, and as a London address, &c. The objects of the Association are, firstly, to promote good-fellowship among scenic artists in Great Britain and Ireland and protect their professional interests; to keep a register of artists requiring employment and employers requiring the services of scenic artists; and lastly, by means of a benevolent fund provided for by one-fourth of the annual subscriptions to render assistance to members who may be in temporary pecuniary need. This benevolent fund is a special feature of the Association, and it is hoped that it will be greatly augmented by donations by means of theatrical and musical benefit performances, and by legacies. The offices of the Association are open daily from ten to four, and copies of the rules, list of members, and other information will be gladly afforded to anyone interested who will call on or write to the secretary, Mr H. Lawrence Harris, at 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, W.C.

"ERIKSSON'S WIFE."

A New and Original Play, in One Act, by Christopher St. John, Produced at the Royalty Theatre, on Saturday, Sept. 3.

Haldor Eriksson	Mr A. G. POULTON
Erik Eriksson	Mr TOOSE
Pastor	Mr JOHN CABORN
Pastor's Man	Mr GEORGE MILLINGTON
Ingmar	Mr EDWIN PALMER
Karin	Miss LYDIA RACHAEL
Brita	Miss OLIVE TEMPLE

The Chetwynd Affair was preceded at the Royalty on Saturday evening by a play, in one act, presumably of Scandinavian origin, but announced as the original work of Christopher St. John. It is a piece of ruthless sincerity and grim power; but its cheerlessness and the ferocity of its climax will not recommend it to the ordinary theatre-goer. Haldor Eriksson, a well-to-do peasant of a Scandinavian village, is about to marry for the second time, and brings home his betrothed, Brita. His son Erik, a youth of nineteen, lazy and debauched, is exasperated at another woman supplanting his mother, who has been dead scarcely a twelvemonth; and to make matters worse, Brita, though believed by Haldor to be above suspicion, is known to Erik only too well as a girl of bad character. The young man denounces her as a drab, and accuses her of effecting his downfall. Haldor, in a state of indignation, declares that his son shall apologise on his knees or leave the house. Eric chooses the latter course, threatening to return and kill Brita. While Haldor has gone to see that everything about the house is in order for the new bride, he leaves Brita alone in the kitchen. Erik returns, and urges Brita to leave the house. The distraught girl entreats him to withdraw his charges, and allow her to remain, urging that she is now a repentant woman. Eric is about to relent, but the memory of his dead mother is too much for him, and catching Brita by the throat, he all but succeeds in strangling her. Haldor, returning, appears at the top of the stairs, and, taking up a gun, shoots Erik dead. The terrified woman falls on the body, and implores his forgiveness. Haldor's suspicions are aroused, and he asks why she pleads for pardon. Brita's face is too eloquent of her guilt to leave any doubt in the mind of the distracted man, and raising the gun he is about to club her, but relents, and Brita goes out of his life, leaving him alone with his dead son. The hit of the representation on Saturday was made by Mr A. G. Poulton, who represented the stern father with grim determination and power, being particularly fine in the tragic conclusion. In the earlier episode of the piece Miss Olive Temple realised the seriousness and sadness of Brita, the betrothed, showing also considerable power as the repentant and despairing girl in the final catastrophe. Mr John Cabourn made a benevolent pastor; Mr Toosé was not strong enough for the part of Erik; Miss Lydia Rachael showed marked intensity as Karin; and Mr Edwin Palmer made a satisfactory Ingmar, the cast being completed by Mr George Millington as the pastor's man.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS FLORA DAVIS.

MISS FLORA DAVIS is the possessor of a very sweet voice. She is also a dainty and artistic actress, and yet in her teens. When only fourteen years of age she played Phyllis, in Dorothy. Then as a member of Miss Amy Sherwin's opera company, in South Africa, she appeared in Carmen, Cavalleria Rusticana, and other operas. In South Africa she sang before ex-President Kruger, and was nicknamed "the Transvaal Nightingale." During her stay there she played in Rip Van Winkle, The Mikado, Marjorie, afterwards coming to England to study. Madame Alice Barth coached her to play Arline, in The Bohemian Girl; and Lola, in Cavalleria. Lately she was engaged by Mr Frederick Mouillot for The Girl from Up There; then playing The Shop Girl, Circus Girl, and Runaway Girl; also playing the principal boy in Christmas pantomime, 1903, Sinbad the Sailor. MISS FLORA DAVIS.

May last Miss Davis proceeded to South Africa, replacing the late Miss Katie Seymour as My Lady Molly. She also appeared in the following répertoire:—Dorothy, The Old Guard, Faust Up to Date, My Girl, The West-end, and The English Daisy.

MR. WILLIAM MACLAREN.

MR WILLIAM MACLAREN, who is well known in the provinces, has just concluded his fourth year of management with Sir Francis Burnand's celebrated drama Proof. He has found this standard play such a favourite in the country that he has booked a fifth consecutive tour, extending well into 1905. Mr Maclaren's career dates back to 1889. His first engagement of any importance was with Mr Ben Greet's pastoral plays, in such parts as the Banished Duke, in As You Like It; Antonio, in Twelfth Night; Sir Nathaniel, in Love's Labour Lost; Starveling, in A Midsummer Night's Dream; and Sir Partemire, in Love in a Mist. The last mentioned play was one of the first productions of Mr Louis N. Parker, and took place at the Digby Hotel Grounds, Sherborne. The leading lady of the company was Mrs Patrick Campbell, and the leading man the late Mr Frank Rodney. Then followed a tour with Landeck's My Jack, in which Mr Maclaren played the leading part. Engagements followed with Mr Sidney Cooper's A Noble Brother, Mr Robert Watt's White Star, Mr W. E. Langley's Love's Battle, Called Back, Hazel Kirke, &c. Then came a three years' engagement with Mrs Bandmann-Palmer, during which Mr Maclaren played some forty parts, including Romeo, Claude Melnotte, Young Marlow, Jaques (As You Like It), Bassanio, Lord Leicester (Mary, Queen of Scots), &c.—a most valuable experience for a young actor, and one, unfortunately, not easily gained nowadays. After some three months with Mr Arthur Jefferson, during which time Mr Maclaren created the "heavy" part of Gideon Snake in The Bootblack, now called London by Day and Night, he was engaged for Guy Maitland, in the Olympic drama, True Blue. A tour with Mr Louis

MR. W. MACLAREN.

Calvert followed, and Mr Maclaren appeared as Iago, Laertes, and Ghost, Bassanio, Chateau Renaud, De Mauprat, Sir Thomas Clifford (The Hunchback), Derrick Von Beekman (Rip Van Winkle), Duc De Gonzague (The Duke's Motto), and Pierre and Lazare, in Proof. In The Lyons Mail Mr Maclaren had the unique experience of playing Lesurques to the Dubosc of Mr Louis Calvert—two parts usually doubled by the leading actor. It was during this engagement that Mr Maclaren considers he gained the finest experience of his career, as he looks upon Mr Louis Calvert as one of our finest stage-managers. Later on he met him again on a tour of As You Like It (a most delightful engagement), when Miss Julia Neilson was the Rosalind, Mr William Mollison the Jaques, and Mr Louis Calvert the Touchstone. In June, 1895, Mr Maclaren married Miss Lily C. Bandmann. Miss Bandmann has had as varied an experience as her husband, and has played such parts as Juliet, Rosalind, Ophelia, Portia, Mary Stuart, Pauline, Leah, Lady Teazle, Julia (The Hunchback), Nan, in Alone in London, for over 300 nights, to the John Biddlecombe of her husband; Valentine, in Proof, created by her mother (Mrs Bandmann) at the Adelphi in 1878. Husband and wife have recently spent a well-earned holiday at their pretty home, Gowanlea, in Worthing, but are now on tour with Proof and other plays.

"THE GIRL FROM BOND-STREET."

A New Musical Comedy, in Three Acts (the Book by Roland Oliver, the Lyrics and Music by Louis La Rondelle), Produced on Monday, Sept. 5, at the Central Theatre, Northwich.

Lucy Harvey	Miss VIOLET VARCOE
Lady Fielding	Miss BELLE BARTLETT
Lottie Harvey	Miss LILLIAN BEZANT
Lady Tremayne	Miss NELLIE SCOTT
Mrs Harvey	Miss PHYLLIS MANNERS
Lord Herbert Seacombe	Mr J. W. WOODBRIDGE
George Fielding	Mr STENSON LIDDARD
Archie Maynard	Mr GEORGE WATTS
Mickey Malvarney	Mr FRED A. ELLIS

The production of this musical comedy on Monday was marked by much heartiness, and those responsible received the congratulations of the audience. The play is as follows:—The "Girl from Bond-street," a stylish dress-maker, Lucy Harvey by name, is the reputed sister of Lottie Harvey, daughter of Mrs Harvey, a lodging-house keeper. In act one these three ladies arrive at the Eagle Hotel, Southcliffe-on-Sea, and treat us to some very diverting scenes. Lord Herbert Seacombe, George Fielding, and Archie Maynard, appear at the same hotel, in the character of pierrots, and Lord Herbert speedily develops a penchant for the "Girl from Bond-street." The arrival of the ladies mentioned above, and the comical scene which ensues when they are attended by Malvarney, the hotel waiter, go far to make up the strength of the first act. In act two we are introduced to Lady Fielding, at whose house her son George, with his two friends already named, make a centre for a musical mission. Here George presses his suit on Lucy, but when that pretty young lady learns that he has practised on her credulity, and is not a wandering minstrel, but a real live English Lord, she feels the humiliation to her intelligence to such an extent that she refuses to become his wife, and most summarily dismisses the imposter, to his great astonishment. In the last act we are in the homely precincts of Mrs Harvey's house. Here that worthy lady discloses the fact that Lucy, her supposed offspring, is no less a personage than the daughter of Lady Fielding, who lost the child at sea twenty-one years ago, the youngster being rescued by the husband of Mrs Harvey from a watery grave. All then is jubilation. Lucy and George are reconciled. Lottie pairs off with Malvarney, the comic waiter, and there is every propect of future bliss.

Mr Fred A. Ellis—who produced the comedy—is happily cast in the rôle of Malvarney, and the audience on Monday never tired of seeing him on the stage. Mr Woodbridge makes an effective Lord Herbert, and Mr Stenson Liddard and Mr George Watts did their utmost in the characters of George Fielding and Archie Maynard respectively. As Mrs Harvey Miss Phyllis Manners was full of verve, and one regretted that she had nothing to do in Act II. Miss Violet Varcoe, who played the Girl from Bond-street, was suffering from indisposition, and one or two of her songs had perforce to be eliminated. Miss Belle Bartlett did her best with the part of Lady Fielding, whilst Miss Lillian Bezant as Lottie Harvey both acted and danced excellently. Minor characters were ably taken. The scenery, by Messrs Bull and Co., London, was bright and effective, and the dresses were of the best. Mr Percy Webb, the local manager for Mrs Golden, worked conscientiously with the touring management to make the representation a success; and with some pruning and a little touching-up there is no reason why The Girl from Bond-street should not enable one to pass a pleasant evening. It would be unfair not to add that the music of Mr Rondelle is a great feature, his various numbers being received with hearty applause.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

PITTSBURG, PA, AUG. 29.—HARRY WILLIAMS' ACADEMY.—The boards of this theatre were occupied during the past week by Rose Lydell's London Belles, who gave a spirited and excellent representation of Dazzling Nancy, a merry whirl of complications in two acts, by Barney Gerard, music by J. Edwin Owens. Rose Lydell as Nancy Hanks proved irresistible, while W. T. Campbell as I. Fleecem and Johnny Weber as Snitz Harzenfeffer kept the house in continual mirth with their humorous acting. Jack and Bertha Riches did some high-class singing and dancing. The Weston Sisters in their burlesque boxing act came in for warm applause. Kenny and Hollis rendered some capital comic songs; the Bijou Comedy Trio sang admirably; and Campbell and company, in The Sculptor's Dilemma; and Relyea, exponent of physical culture, afforded agreeable turns.

"HER FIRST FALSE STAP," by Joseph Le Brandt, a rural play of considerable interest, was given at the Bijou by Charles F. Whitaker's homogeneous company, and scored a decided success. The trials of Edna Allen, the wayward girl, were vigorously depicted by Miss Helen Ray, who did the lion's share of the evening's work. Jack Walters, her first lover, was given by James Norval very tellingly, while the rest of the company ably supported the hero and the heroine.

THE Empire, Pittsburg's up-town theatre, under the management of E. J. M'Cullough, has opened its doors to its habitués with that ever-green play, Finnigan's Ball, in three rounds, by Geo. H. Emerick. The company, in charge of Ollie Mack and Jos. W. Spears, contains those excellent actors Edw. F. Gallagher and J. J. Barrett, who spell success to any company. They did so in the present instance, for they kept the house in screams of laughter throughout. Mayme Taylor as Mrs Bedelia Casey played with refinement and taste. The young ladies billed as belonging to the Frost dramatic company were, without exception, pretty, lively, and good dancers. In short, it was an excellent performance, and augurs well for the ensuing season.

THE Grand Opera House (proprietor and manager, Harry Davis) opened for the season as a vaudeville—without intermission from 1.30 to 10.30 p.m. Charles Hawtrey and company in Time is Money, and Madame Slapoffski, described as England's greatest prima donna, head the list. A good turn were the Six Musical Cuttys in their clever performances on various instruments. Clarice Vance gave some coon songs in her inimitable way; Jules Jordan and Lew Harvey, as two sons of Israel, scored heavily, and were recalled several times; the Four Bards gave an excellent exhibition of strength and gracefulness combined; Elizabeth Knight, the Anny Lowery girl; Thompson's performing dogs; Hickey and Nelson in twisted and tangled; Mitchell and Cain, and Jehan Bedina and Arthur contributed effectively to the evening's entertainment.

ON Sept. 5 (Labour Day) the Avenue Theatre and the Nixon will open in refined comedy with stock companies.

"THE COLLISION."

A Railway Tragedy, by Alfred Walter and J. Gowa.

ACT I.

The action passes in Rodecourt's elegantly furnished smoking-room; he is managing director of the South Western Pacific Railway. The play opens with a simple and charming little scene between Rodecourt's motherless son George and his grandfather Watson. The boy is on the eve of returning to school. Rodecourt joins them, nervous, over-worked, and, though showing his intense love for his boy, seems not to have time to play with him. His father-in-law, the impersonation of the old-world principles, entreats him to beware of the stress and strain incurred by the management of such a tremendous concern and the troubles among his employees, who consider themselves underpaid and overworked. Watson, belonging to the old school, is not sympathetic, considering the terrible speed and complexity of the present railway criminal and dangerous to life and limb. Rodecourt, alone, is repeatedly called to the telephone to make traffic arrangements necessitated by a special train for a foreign Prince passing over the line. He also has an interview with one of the dissatisfied employees. Just at the end of the act there is a powerful scene between Kitty, a beautiful young woman, wife of a signalman, with whom Rodecourt has a liaison. The woman reproaches him with neglect, and demands more wages for her husband. When she leaves him there is a short, pathetic scene between Rodecourt and his boy, who comes to beg his father to go to bed.

ACT II.

In the signalman's cottage on the line, one or two of the workpeople complaining of their position, talking of accidents on the line caused by carelessness through overwork. Kitty, the young wife, is visited by a former lover, who has got wind of her visits to Rodecourt, and reproaches her. He gets violent, and the husband, coming back from his signal-box, insists on an explanation. When he realises the truth his passion is boundless. He entirely forgets his duty, tries to attack his wife, her former lover, and a friend who tries to act as peacemaker. During the whole act railway whistles have been heard, and the passing trains seen; when the scene of brawl and passion is at its height, suddenly a whistle is heard, then a train passing, a crash, sounds of voices, then screams and groans. These terrible sounds silence the combatants, who stand expectant, conscience and horror-stricken.

ACT III.

At Rodecourt's house he is receiving his co-directors and other people of position interested in the railway, and the function is a great success. Conversation is carried on among the guests; the absence of Watson, the father-in-law, is commented on, and explained by his having taken the boy to the station and then probably gone with a friend to a café. The guests go in to supper, and the stage is left empty. Rodecourt's speech to his guests is heard from the adjoining room. The telephone rings, and Rodecourt is called to the instrument and told of the railway accident, also that one of the officials is on the way to him. He is much perturbed. When the official arrives with particulars that the engine driver and several passengers are killed, besides those injured, Rodecourt asks in despair, "And my boy? He was in that train." He gets no direct answer to his question. Watson arrives, and tells him the terrible news—the fearful accident which has killed the boy with others. Rodecourt loses all control over himself, calls himself a murderer, his son's murderer, and then becomes hysterical, going stark mad, imagining the boy is still asleep in his room, calling to him and finally going to him there. Watson sends for the doctor, and explains the terrible situation to him; they arrange to get Rodecourt out of the house on the plea that they are taking him to meet his boy. There is consternation and sympathy among the guests, to whom the terrible situation has to be explained.

The scene between Kitty and Rodecourt in the first act, and the whole second and third act, contain some of the strongest and most intensely stirring situations ever produced by any playwright; the scenes between Watson and Rodecourt and between the latter and his little boy could hardly be surpassed for touching sentiment and simple pathos. The whole second act, with its constant bustle, with the trains seen passing, and the collision, happening practically in full view of the audience, as well as the Telephone scene of the third act, afford ample scope for great acting and ingenious "mise-en-scène."

OVER £300 was raised by a lifeboat procession in Sunderland last Saturday week, the principal features of which were a number of beautiful tableaux arranged by Mr Charles E. Machin and Mr Percival Craig, of the Avenue Theatre and Theatre Royal in that town, and these gentlemen have received the following letter:—"Mayor's Chambers, Town Hall, Sunderland, Aug. 30.—Dear Sirs,—It affords me much pleasure in tendering you my best thanks for the keen interest evinced and the great amount of aid you rendered in the proceedings on Saturday last, which, I am sure, to a large extent accounted for the grand success which attended the movement. Yours faithfully, H. J. TURNBULL, Mayor."

MR SCOTT BUIST will produce a new comedy, by Cyril Harcourt, entitled The Axis, at Worthing on Monday, afterwards visiting Eastbourne.

A NEW play, in one act, by Ralph Roberts, entitled Buffo; the Story of a Broken Heart, was produced at Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, on Monday. The scene is Bergman's farm on the Veldt near Poardesburg. Pretorius Bergman, an elderly farmer, falls in love with his pretty ward Rosamond, who naturally prefers his young friend Eric Lydon. The pathetic part of the story is the elder man's awakening to the fact that he has a successful rival in Eric. Miss Pattie Elliott played the part of Rosamond charmingly, and Ralph Roberts, the author of the playlet, did well as the farmer, who is also known as Buffo. Mr Charles Calvert was good as Eric Lydon, and Miss Ella Edgar as Bergman's sister Martha completed the cast. The new piece was well received.

PRESENTATION.—On Saturday evening the stage staff of the Gaiety, Dublin, made a farewell presentation to Mr Geo. A Jackson, who has filled the position of scenic artist to the South King-street house for fifteen years. Mr Jackson is leaving Dublin to take up a similar position in his native city of Bristol. The presentation, which included a massive gold ring (with a suitable inscription), was made by Mr George Armstrong, who expressed the great regret which the members of the staff felt at the departure of Mr Jackson, with whom they had worked so cordially for such a long period. They wished Mrs Jackson and their old colleague all good luck and long years of happiness. Mr Jackson, in acknowledging the generous compliment which had been paid him, said that during the long period they had worked together they never forgot that their first duty was to be loyal to the theatre and to the popular manager, and as far as possible to make each other contented and happy. For the hearty kindness with which he had been received by every member of the staff during the time he had been connected with the Gaiety Theatre he had to express his deep gratitude, and to assure them that he should ever cherish its remembrance with pride.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR JOHN BILLINGTON, whose death occurred on Monday last at his residence, 72, Burghley-road, Kentish-town, had been ailing for the last two years, and for months past had not left the house except to drive or to walk as far as the door of Mr J. L. Toole's carriage to grasp the hand of his dearly loved friend when visited by him. It seems somewhat pathetic to note at this day that Mr Billington never destroyed a scrap of paper on which Mr Toole had written, and one of his dying messages was to the fellow veteran of his craft.

AT the bedside, and even as the last moments approached, Mr Billington so retained his faculties, almost to the moment of death, that he was able to recognise all the dear friends and relatives who surrounded him. When his heart-broken wife asked him, "Have you any fear of death?" he replied, "Not the slightest. Do not grieve—I shall be waiting for you." Then, after a pause, and taking hold of his brother's hand, he added, "My noble brother," and quietly passed away.

AT the funeral, which took place yesterday afternoon, the relatives present were Mr William Billington (brother), Mr George F. Brown and H. J. Bromley (nephews), Dr. Charles Knott (brother-in-law), and Mr Percy Billington (nephew). Others who occupied carriages were Mr Macready, M.R.C.S., the well-known surgeon, son of the late W. C. Macready; Mr Charles Lowne, representing Mr J. L. Toole; Mr Harry Paulton, Mr Henry Westland, Mr George Shelton, Mr Cyril Maude, Mr Cecil Beryl, Mr Dillon Croker, Mr John Coates, and Mr Joe Hatton. The funeral cortège left the house about half-past two, reaching St. Benet and All Saints Church, Lupton-street, Kentish-town, about three o'clock. Here the funeral service was held, it being officiated over by the Rev. R. H. Gilbert, of Hensworth Rectory, near Wakefield, who is a nephew of the deceased, assisted by the Rev. Mr Bristowe. The interment took place at Highgate New Cemetery at 3·45, the spacious grounds being filled by a reverent crowd, among whom were many prominent theatrical, literary, and artistic people.

A LARGE number of very beautiful wreaths were placed around the grave. An anchor, which bore a card, inscribed with the words, "From his desolate widow, Adeline ('Dan')," told of the sorrow of the chief mourner. Sir Henry Irving sent a handsome cushion wreath, composed of lilies, chrysanthemums, roses, and other fine flowers, his card merely bearing the phrase "In remembrance." Mr John L. Toole's note on the wreath ran as follows: "With sincerest sympathy, deep regrets, and affectionate remembrances, from his old friend, J. L. Toole." Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft's floral tribute carried their "true regrets"; and Mr George Grossmith's message was "In affectionate memory."

FROM Mrs Robson came a bunch of heather, and the little slip of cardboard said, "Just a bit of Yorkshire heather for that dear Yorkshireman, John Billington." Miss Mary Tennyson and her sister forwarded a chaplet of pansies, fraught with the tenderly expressed symbol, "Here's pansies—that's for thoughts." A wreath which arrived from Mrs and Miss Gladys Murch told a whole history in the sentence, "In memory of a dear friend and cultured gentleman."

OTHER wreaths were received from Mr and Mrs Robert Billington (cousins), the Rev. Mr and Mrs Gilbert (nephew and niece), Mrs Burgess (niece), Dr. Turton (nephew), Mr Weedon Grossmith, Mr George Grossmith, Mr Cyril Maude, Mr Frederick Harrison, Mr Joe Hatton, Mr Dillon Croker, Mr Cecil Beryl, Miss Martha Cunningham, Mr Byron Webber, Mr and Mrs Tivadar Nachez, Mr E. Y. Lowne, Mrs Gillmore (Miss Emily Thorne), Mr Frank Gillmore, Mr and Mrs H. J. Bromley, Mr Harry and Miss Agnes Paulton, Mr George Shelton, the Rev. Mr and Mrs Young, Miss Sylvia Morris, Mrs Bromley, sen., Mr J. B. Shaw, Dr. and Mrs Knott (of Southsea), Miss Iris Lincoln, and from Mary, an old servant.

IT was somewhat unnecessary to revive—as has recently been done in the daily press—the question of booking seats in the pits and galleries of theatres, considering that Sir Henry Irving put the experiment fully to the proof when, as Mr Irving, he was in management of the Lyceum Theatre in 1885. We deal with the matter fully this week on our leader page, where our readers will find all particulars of Sir Henry's attempt to bring about the alteration and its rejection by the British public.

A SPECIAL general meeting of the Royal General Theatrical Fund will be held at the St. James's Theatre on Thursday, Oct. 13, by permission of Mr George Alexander, who will preside. The object of the meeting is to add an additional clause to the "N.B." of Rule 10. The present "N.B." of Rule 10 is:—"No notice to be given to defaulters; the possession of a copy of the rules being deemed and declared sufficient notice;" and the proposed addition is:—"But the directors are empowered, in their discretion, to suspend the operation of the clause respecting arrears and the non-payment of fines, in any deserving case, for so long and on such terms as they shall deem fit."

MR SYDNEY VALENTINE, who is figuring just now as owner of "Moral Waxworks" at the Garrick, obtained the first of his many engagements by answering an advertisement for a "second low comedian and thoroughly experienced actor." He was rapidly advanced to juvenile lead—because he possessed a more presentable dress suit than any other "thoroughly experienced" gentleman in the company! Since those far-away days Mr Valentine has recited on the music hall stage and undertaken a heavy part in an opera.

MR VALENTINE tells many good stories of the old days at the Lyceum, including the following little experience of his own. He was cast to play an old Italian refugee, and felt a little anxious as to Sir Henry Irving's reception of his reading of the part. The first rehearsal, however, struck Mr Valentine as being very satisfactory. He felt that he had done himself credit. Sir Henry made no comment until the act was over, then he crossed the stage and said in his quiet way, "I suppose you are going to play it like that? Oh those lines, eh? I see. It's a good part. It's supposed to be an old Italian, isn't it Yes. At present it strikes me as being Valentine with an accent!"

MISS NELLIE SEYMOUR, now playing in Sergeant Brue at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, was married on Saturday at St. Giles-in-the-Fields to Mr Brian Chas. Durant Kemp-Welch, of Porchester-place. Only a few friends, including Mr Owen Hall, author of Sergeant Brue, in which Miss Seymour has been playing a small part, were present at the ceremony, which was very brief. Miss Seymour, wearing a brown silk dress trimmed with sables, arrived a few minutes before the time fixed for the ceremony, and spent the interval in walking round the churchyard. The bride and bridegroom afterwards drove in a hansom cab to the Savoy Hotel, where a small party was entertained to lunch. In the evening the bride appeared in the play, and the bridegroom sat in a box. The wedding had been kept a secret, but when the members of the company heard of it, large packages of confetti were obtained, with the result that the bride and everyone else on the stage left the theatre smothered in it. Miss Seymour does not intend to leave the stage.

MR CHARLES HAWTREY has made such a hit on the "vaudeville" stage in America that he will not return to England till next April.

AN unfortunate accident happened during the performance on Monday evening of Two Little Vagabonds at the New Theatre Royal, Worcester. The drama was being played by Hardie and Von Leer's company, and Miss Elene Lonsdale, who was impersonating the part of Mrs Thornton, was struck on the forehead by a curtain pole which became unfixed during the first act. The lady received a nasty wound, which bled freely; but she continued to play until faintness overcame her, when the curtain was rung down, and the management asked for the indulgence of the audience for a few minutes. Upon her subsequent reappearance Miss Lonsdale was warmly greeted, and her impersonation frequently elicited applause during the evening.

EASTBOURNE is supposed to be a very "goody-goody" place; and on Sundays the numerous tea-gardens, including those at Wannock and Thornwall, are closed. And yet at the Pavilion Theatre on the Pier Sunday afternoon and evening concerts take place; and such artistes as Miss Marie Studholme, Mrs Brown Potter, and Miss Alice Gomez are announced to appear at forthcoming Sunday entertainments. Ordinary ballads and comic songs are given. The usual refreshments, including all alcoholic liquors, are procurable, and smoking is permitted. The visitor to Eastbourne on Sunday may drink gin-and-water and smoke a cigar at the Pavilion on the Pier; but if he takes a walk in the country he cannot get a cup of tea. Devonshire Park is closed on Sundays.

MR BEERBOHM TREE writes:—"May I suggest that, in view of Shakespeare's wide appeal to humanity, all classes of the community should be represented in subscriptions to a memorial in his honour It would, it seems to me, be inappropriate that the arts only should take part in this movement. Lawyers, doctors, politicians, ecclesiastics, soldiers, and sailors have all in turn been epitomised by him. And who should preside over the meetings of such a committee with greater fitness than one of the leaders of the great political parties 'Above all, let the people—who best understand and love him—bear their share in doing honour to England's greatest man. Let the tribute be national or not at all."

MR OWEN HALL, the author of so many successful "books" of musical plays, does not think the present generation ought to be asked to subscribe to another statue of Shakespeare. He hasn't amused them much in London during the past twenty years. If there is to be a new statue of a playwright who has entertained the British public of modern times, surely, he says, it ought to represent some popular author of musical comedy.

MR CHARLES WARNER writes:—"Sir,—The long-deferred seems likely to be achieved at last, and a memorial to the greatest poet the world has ever known is a foregone conclusion. Every Englishman is proud of our greatest living poet, Algernon Swinburne, and I cannot do better as an appeal than quote his words:—

> But even as Shakespeare caught from Marlowe's word
> Fire, so from his the thunder-bearing third,
> Webster, took light and might whence none but he > Hath since made sing that sounded so the sea,
> Whose waves are lives of men—whose tidestream rolls
> From year to darkening year the freight of souls.
> Alone above it, sweet, supreme, sublime,
> Shakespeare attunes the jarring chords of time;
> Alone of all whose doom is death and birth,
> Shakespeare is lord of souls alive on earth."

Mr Warner has added his name to list of subscribers of 100 shillings to the Memorial.

MISS ELLEN TERRY has written to correct a statement in a daily paper to the effect that the piece entitled Eriksson's Wife, recently produced at the Royalty Theatre, is based upon an original play by Mr Christopher St. John. Mr Alfred Toosé, in an explanatory note, says:—Miss Terry is quite correct in saying the play is entirely original, but the originality does not proceed entirely from Christopher St. John. The plot of the play wholly, and the situations partially, are of my conception; and I took them to Christopher St. John, who fitted dialogue to the plot and situations supplied by me.

MISS ELEANOR ROBSON, who made such a striking success in Merely Mary Ann at the Duke of York's Theatre on Thursday, and played the heroine when the piece was produced at the Garden Theatre, New York, in January last, has only been on the stage for three years and a-half. She made her first appearance in New York as the heroine of Arizona, afterwards appearing in that drama at the Adelphi. She next enacted Constance, in In a Balcony, and subsequently depicted Mdlle. De La Vire, in A Gentleman of France.

MR C. I. COLTSON, the secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, has received during the last few days the sum of 30s., collected by Mr Weedon Grossmith, and which amount is the result of the sale of that gentleman's autograph. In reply to the many requests which Mr Grossmith receives he forwards a postcard on which is printed the following:—"Mr Grossmith will be pleased to send his autograph on receipt of a few stamps in aid of the Actors' Benevolent Fund." Mr Grossmith complains that many people write long letters to him saying how it would be an everlasting favour, &c., to get his valuable autograph, and when he sends it on trust they don t send the stamps. He has even found it necessary to write a second time for a small donation. Evidently Mr Grossmith will have to abandon giving credit, and insist on cash.

AT Miss Lena Ashwell's production of Mr Michael Morton's English version of La Montansier at the Coronet Theatre on Monday night, amongst those present were Mr Tree and Miss Tree, Mr George Giddens, Miss Helen Ferrers, Miss Constance Collier, Miss Suzanne Sheldon, Mr Oscar Asche, Miss Lily Brayton, Miss Elizabeth Robins, Miss Ada Crossley, and Mr and Mrs Henry Dana.

MR GEORGE FULLER GOLDEN, the well-known and popular American humourist, late of the Savoy Theatre, while motor cycling from Manchester to Brighton side-slipped on a greasy patch of road, and was very nearly run over by a motor-car. He sustained a sprained ankle and some bad bruises, and was prevented from fulfilling an engagement at Glasgow this week. Mr Golden had just finished taking a long rest at Brighton.

THE Kaiser has been trying his hand at stage-management. He has been attending the rehearsals of the new ballet Coppelia at the Berlin Imperial Opera House. A Slavonic dance hung fire, and the Kaiser, leaving his place in the stalls, went on the stage and coached the ballet, showing them the proper movements. He then instructed the orchestra how the music was to be played, taking the baton out of the conductor's hand and directing the band, finally turning to the company and saying, "Yes, yes, you may look at me, but you know that my interpretation is correct."

THE many friends of Mr Charles Boult will be pleased to hear that his little daughter Lilian was successfully operated upon on the 31st ult. at the Liverpool County Hospital for Children, West Kirby, Cheshire, where she has been since May, and where she will be pleased to see or hear from her numerous well-wishers.

MR FREDERICK MERER, who severs his connection shortly with the Grand Theatre, Fulham, owing to its being converted into a music hall, has not been allowed to depart without some mark of appreciation from his many friends, and a farewell benefit has been arranged for him on the afternoon of Monday, Sept. 17. Mr Merer has made himself exceedingly popular by his unfailing courtesy during his engagement as business manager at the Fulham Theatre.

MR HALL CAINE'S play The Prodigal Son, which Mr Arthur Collins will produce at Drury-lane Theatre next autumn, includes a marvellously realistic snowstorm. Four out of the five acts pass in Iceland in the dead of winter, the remaining act on the Riviera in the height of the season.

IT is becoming quite usual for the author of even a successful new piece not to appear on a first night. After the production of Merely Mary Ann at the Duke of York's Theatre on Thursday, the audience would gladly have seen Mr Israel Zangwill, so as to have had an opportunity of expressing their delight with his work; but there was no response to the calls of "Author!" and after persevering for a short time, the orchestra played the people out.

MRS LANGTRY'S new play, which she will shortly produce, is founded on an incident which actually happened when crossing the Atlantic. A married lady, accompanied by her husband, was "booked" as a spinster. She decided to keep up the joke, with results in the way of misunderstanding that may easily be imagined. The action takes place on the deck of a "liner."

THE Cingalee, which has been running for over 300 nights at Daly's Theatre, is still drawing very full houses; and Mr Lionel Monckton's music and the brilliant and artistic manner in which the piece is mounted will doubtless continue to attract large audiences for many months to come.

MISS KITTY MASON, who plays Signorina Tasso in The Cingalee, at Daly's Theatre, in her first solo dance on Thursday evening slipped on the stalk of a flower and injured her ankle, and was unable to appear during the rest of the evening.

MR LESTER COLLINGWOOD last Monday received congratulatory telegrams from many friends, it being his forty-eighth birthday. Among the presents were a diamond and emerald scarf-pin and a beautifully embossed silver cigar-case, inscribed "To one of the best, Lester Collingwood, from a few of his Birmingham pals. Sept. 5, 1904." Mr Collingwood, we are pleased to know, is doing enormous business at his own theatre, the Alexandra, Birmingham.

"BILL SYKES AND NANCY," a one-act adaptation from Dickens's "Oliver Twist," was produced at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, on Thursday. The incident of the murder of Nancy was on Thursday evening used in a twenty-minutes' "curtain-raiser" prior to the appearance of Miss Louie Freear in Boy Bob The act was taken with only slight changes from the novel. Noah Claypole watches Nancy during her interview with Mr Brownlow and Rose Maylie, and reports the affair to Fagin, who in turn carries the tale to Sikes. The notorious burglar, convinced that his paramour has been betraying her companions, kills her, the brutal crime being enacted in full view of the audience. The characters were in the hands of Mr A. T. Hendon, Mr B. Soane Roby, Mr Brisco Owen, and Miss Jessie Burgwitz, who did their work admirably.

MR AND MRS FRANK STUART (Miss Winifred Stuart) concluded at the Queen's Theatre, Farnworth, Bolton, on Saturday last a twenty-two weeks' tour with the military drama Dishonoured, and intends touring next year that successful comedy-drama The Curate, which had such a prosperous run last year. It has been brought up to date; and for a new character comedy part which has been written in by Mr Harry Percival, author of The Master of Boldrewood, that excellent Irish comedian Mr Cecil Morand has been engaged. The scenic effects of the next production of The Curate will be a special feature.

MR W. PAYNE SEDDON reopened Derry Opera House on Monday with The New Clown. At the close of the second act Mr Seddon, who was warmly received, appeared before the curtain and said:—"Ladies and gentlemen,—Before opening the theatre to-night I had no intention of appearing before the curtain, for I felt that it was, as it were, turning over a new leaf in the diary of the Derry Opera House, and that that new leaf was as yet a blank. Your kindly and encouraging send-off has given me something which I must say, and that is—Thank you. I feel I have the good wishes of the Derry theatre-goers, and I trust that when we get to the bottom of this first new leaf the contents will be to my credit and to the satisfaction of my auditors—the Derry public."

MISS JESSIE BATEMAN, the heroine of the comedy at the New Theatre, joined the Bensonians at the age of seven, making her début as the Fairy Mustardseed, in A Midsummer Night's Dream. She comes of an old Quaker stock, her father having been very distantly connected with the well-known theatrical family of the same name. Miss Bateman was a member of the Haymarket company when The Clandestine Marriage was produced, and one of her longest engagements was in A Message from Mars.

THE death occurred on Saturday last of Mr Wm. James Clark, proprietor of the Earl Spencer Hotel, Roehampton. The deceased, who was sixty-three when he died, and had been ailing for over twelve months, was well known to many London professionals, having been house steward at the Lyceum for over twenty years. The funeral took place on Thursday in the family grave in Norwood Cemetery. The wreaths were handsome and numerous.

THE first volume—A to G—of the late W. Davenport Adams's "Dictionary of the Drama" has been published by Messrs Chatto and Windus. The amount of information collected and condensed is extraordinary, and the work will be interesting and valuable to pressmen and students of the drama.

MISS LILIAN BRAITHWAITE, who plays the heroine in The Garden of Lies at the St. James's, is the wife of Mr Gerald Lawrence, and has only been on the stage for about six years. Directly after their marriage she and her husband went for a long South African tour with Mr William Haviland's company. Miss Braithwaite is always very generous in giving her services in the cause of charity. She has one little daughter, named Joyce. Mr Lawrence, who has been chiefly connected with His Majesty's Theatre, is a clever violinist, and has published several songs.

MR CECIL BROOKING suggests that the theatrical profession should do something to protect itself against the risks of infection when in lodgings. At Oxford no lodgings can be let to undergraduates without a certificate of sanitary inspection. Why, asks Mr Brooking, should it not be so with theatrical lodgings? Could not the Actors' Association—which has power, if it only knew how to use it—bring pressure to bear through their representative doctors in each town?

MR J. BANNISTER HOWARD, general manager of the Ben Greet companies, will open his new and handsome theatre at King's Lynn on the 26th inst. with one of the Ben Greet companies, and has engaged Mrs Beerbohm Tree to recite a prologue written for the occasion.

MR LENNOX PAWLE, first mate on the Heart-in-Hand, in Beauty and the Barge, had played many parts in West-end theatres before he accepted an engagement at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile-end, where he was the principal comedian for half-a-dozen years. Mr Pawle was the promoter of the now defunct London Matinée Syndicate. His father was the late Mr J. C. Pawle, a well-known barrister, and his brother, Colonel A. S. Pawle, served with distinction in the South African War as second in command of the C.I.V.

MR ARTHUR BOURCHIER has arranged with Miss Gladys Unger eventually to produce her play in four acts, entitled Mr Sheridan, at the Garrick Theatre, where, however, no change of programme will be needed for a long time to come, owing to the fact that The Chevalier is proving very successful.

MR WILLY CLARKSON has received a very charming autograph letter from M. A. Antoine, the celebrated French actor, who will shortly produce King Lear in his Paris playhouse. M. Antoine refers to Mr Clarkson as "a great master of the perruquier's art," and adds that without his aid it would not be possible to produce King Lear in Paris. Mr Clarkson is supplying all the wigs for Sir Henry Irving's forthcoming tour.

MR GEORGE ALEXANDER has kindly lent the St. James's Theatre for an entertainment in aid of the special appeal fund of the Samaritan Hospital for Women, on the afternoon of Tuesday, Nov. 22

THE cast of Mr Bernard Fagan's drama, The Prayer of the Sword, at the Adelphi Theatre, includes Mr Oscar Asche, Mr E. Lyall Swete, Mr Charles Rock, Mr Lewis Casson, Mr Charles Angelo, Mr H. R. Hignett, Mr Alfred Brydone, Mr Herbert Grimwood, Mr Walter Hampden, Mr Lewis Willoughby, Mr M. Wilson, Mr A. H. Rowe, Mr Frank Gadsby, Mr Ashton Pearse, Mr R. F. Anson, Mr Philip Darwin, Mr Gordon Harker, Mr A. O. Chapman, Miss Lily Brayton, Miss Dora De Winton, Miss Pamela Gaythorne, and Miss Hilda Wauton. The piece, though serious in story, contains plenty of "comic relief."

MESSRS ARTHUR MORRISON AND HERBERT C. SARGENT'S one-act play, That Brute Simmons, which is the "front-piece" to Beauty and the Barge at the New Theatre, is one of the very best "curtain-raisers" that has been seen on the stage for some time. It is full of humour and cleverness, bright, lively, and very amusing; and, admirably acted, it sends the audience into ecstasies of delight and laughter. That Brute Simmons is a smarter and better written play than the piece of the evening.

MR HARRY NYE-CHART, who appears as Sir John Kellond in The Chevalier, is a Cambridge man, and gained his first experience of the stage at college, where he stage-managed the Footlights Club. He has toured in America several times, and was married in Boston some years ago. Mrs Nye Chart's professional name is Miss Violet Ray.

THE tickets issued at the Duke of York's Theatre on Thursday for the production of Merely Mary Ann were very informative. They bore the name of the play, the hour at which the performance began, and the side of the house on which the seat represented by the ticket stood.

MR J. H. LEIGH will open the Court Theatre with the Hippolytus of Euripides, translated by Professor Gilbert Murray, and Mr Bernard Shaw's new play John Bull's Other Island will also be produced.

MR G. P. HUNTLEY, when on his recent Australian tour, was persuaded to join the Freemasons, and on the last night of Kitty Grey at the Princess's Theatre, Melbourne, his brother Masons handed a large spirit flask across the footlights to him as a memento of the occasion.

MR A. E. MATTHEWS, who is such a good Charlie Inskip, in The Chevalier, and usually plays very young men, has been on the stage for over ten years. He is a descendant of a famous Drury-lane clown, Tom Matthews, the successor of Grimaldi and the master of Harry Payne. The young actor at the Garrick is fond of sport, and has travelled extensively.

MR LOUIS D'EGVILLE, who is superintending the ballet dances in Mr Beerbohm Tree's production of The Tempest, belongs to a family which has instructed the Royal Family in dancing for 150 years. Mr D'Egville gave the Princesses of Connaught their first instruction in the art, and he and his father taught the Princesses of Edinburgh and Princess Ena of Battenberg.

THE Aldwych Syndicate, Limited, has been registered with a capital of £20,000 in £1 shares. The object of the company is to acquire from the Duke of Bedford, or his trustees, on lease or otherwise, a block of land on the Bedford estate, fronting the intended new crescent, called Aldwych, London, W.C., to acquire any other lands and buildings in London, and to carry on the business of property owners, builders, contractors, decorators, builders' merchants, theatre, opera-house, and music hall proprietors, &c.

MR CHARLES VERNON HEATHCOTE, we are sorry to hear, has had a relapse and is unable to proceed to Folkestone to recuperate. He now lies in a critical condition in the Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital. The "Revival" opera company which he was forming, and of whose future he was so sanguine, will be abandoned. For the past twelve months Mr Heathcote has been in very poor health from malarial fever contracted during his Indian tour. He developed acute gastritis. Much sympathy has been expressed for this unfortunate young actor, who is universally well liked.

MR JAMES ARCHER, R.S.A., who died last week in Surrey at the age of eighty-one, was best known to the present generation as a portrait painter. In 1872 he exhibited at the Royal Academy a fine portrait of Sir Henry Irving as Mathias in The Bells.

THE trustees and guardians of Shakespeare's birthplace held a special meeting on Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of electing two life trustees in place of Canon Evans, of Parkstone, near Bournemouth, who died a few weeks ago, and Mr Frederick Haines, F.S.A., of Haverstock-hill, London, who had resigned his seat on the Trust on account of failing health. The mayor (Mr Bird), who presided, said the executive committee had discussed the matter, and agreed unanimously that Lord Redesdale would make the most suitable trustee. He was elected, and the Rev. Francis Hodgson, of Clopton House, Stratford-on-Avon, was chosen to fill the other vacancy.

MR OSWALD BRAND is writing a revised version of Black-Eyed Susan, which Mr Davey will present at the Grand Theatre on the 19th of this month. Mr Ernest Leicester will appear as William, Mr Joynson Powell as Captain Crosstree, and Miss Helen Bancroft as Susan, while Miss Kate Brand will be entrusted with a comedy character.

MR RUSSELL ROSSE will conclude his comedy season at the Opera House, Crouch End, next week, with a revival of Sweet Lavender, in which Miss Leonora Braham, of Savoy Theatre popularity, will play Mrs Gilfillian. Mr Duncan Young, the popular lessee, will also appear next week with Miss Edith Hesketh in A Pair of Lunatics.

THE tour of Trooper Hunt's Widow has been a very successful one, and Mr Frank Kelson's company has been most favourably received at the Memorial Hall, Chesterfield, this week. Local playgoers were kept in continual laughter by the really mirthful farce, which became funnier as it went on. Trooper Hunt is introduced to the audience in a lawyer's office. He has been reported dead in South Africa, and there are some legal complications about his will. He has to "be his own widow" to secure certain testamentary dispositions, and at once sets about the task. In the second act, in his cousin's farm parlour, we see him in skirts and widow's weeds, and the fun thus created is "immense."

SIR HENRY IRVING has paid a compliment to the Smart Set by adding to his repertory a dramatisation of "Gran'father Coquesne," a story by Cosmo Hamilton, which is published in the September number of that magazine. The hero is a veteran of the Napoleonic wars, too old to fight, but not too old to avenge the honour of his family and his country. The incidents are tragic.

MISS LENA ASHWELL has secured the English rights of the French play called Les Oiseaux de Passage already played for over a hundred nights in Paris. It will be adapted by Mr Michael Morton.

MADAME SARAH BERNHARDT telegraphs with respect to the proposed Shakespeare Memorial:—"It is not too late to pay universal homage to the greatest poet who has ever lived on this earth. The intellectual brotherhood of all civilised minds will give to that homage colossal proportions. This monument must, in truth, be more beautiful than all the monuments raised to emperors, to kings, to great men, for this Poet is King over Kings and Elect among the Elect."

MR OWEN HALL states that the great difficulty in a musical play "book" is that he is compelled to make his piece in two acts only. He says:—"The best farces—take the farces of Scribe, Chivot, and Meilhac—are all in three acts; the first introductory, the second working up to the situation of the piece, and the third the dénouement. Now, in two-act musical comedies we have to get our situation at the end of the first act—practically two acts in one, and only half the evening is gone, so that leaves us an hour and a half or an hour and a quarter to do what the greatest French constructors took half an hour over. Naturally we have to be dramatically thin, and have to depend here upon our songs and pretty numbers."

MISS NELLIE PETTITT, the daughter of the late Henry Pettitt, was married on Wednesday last at St. Matthias' Church, Earl's-court, to Mr Percy Boswarth Smith, of Oorogum, Mysore, India. The happy pair will join the Sumatra on Oct. 2 at Marseilles, en route for India.

THE production of His Highness My Husband at the Comedy has been postponed from Saturday next, the 17th, to the 21st inst.

A CORRESPONDENT writes that the matinée hat problem has been solved at last. He was standing in the box-office of his theatre the other day when a lady entered and expressed a desire to book one seat. The booking clerk graciously pointed out the best available seat, which happened to be in the centre. The lady smiled sweetly and said, "No, I don't think I had better take that one as the hat I shall wear is somewhat large; let me have this one at the extreme side and I shall not obstruct the view of other people and earn somewhat uncomplimentary remarks!" It seems a pity that all ladies do not think the same as this considerate member of her sex.

MR MALCOLM STERLING MACKINLAY, a pupil of Manuel Garcia, who has been connected with the Savoy, Avenue, Lyric, and Coronet Theatres, with the late Madame Antoinette Sterling's farewell tour, and with the Queen's Hall Ballad Concerts, receives pupils in singing and voice production, by the famous Garcia method (the old Italian "Bel Canto" school). Amongst those who have had lessons in voice production from Mr Mackinlay, are members of the Moody-Manners English opera company and of the companies at the Lyric, Haymarket, St. James's, and Shaftesbury Theatres.

"THE EARL AND THE GIRL" will be considerably added to before its transference to the Lyric Theatre on Monday. The theatre itself has been redecorated in red and gold. Miss Hart-Dyke will introduce a new dance entitled "L'Entente Cordiale;" an "Owl Song," with electrical effects, is to be sung by Miss Louie Pounds; a "Gondola Song," with chorus, by Mr Robert Evett; and a duet, "The Patchwork Garden," by Mr Walter Passmore and Miss Florence Lloyd. Miss Agnes Fraser will have a new culinary ballad, and while rendering it will make a pudding in sight of the audience.

THE management of the Elephant and Castle Theatre have engaged for their company that deservedly popular and talented actress Mrs Bennett, and also Miss Agnes Paulton, Miss Judith Kyrle, Mr Harry Paulton, jun., Mr Charles E. Langley, Mr Jo Monkhouse, Mr J. C. Aubrey, and Mr Ernest E. Norris. The management have also been fortunate enough to secure the services of Mr George Conquest, who will appear in a round of favourite characters, and Mr Fred Conquest, who will play the part of Zacky Pastrana, the man monkey, in For Ever, the sensational drama made famous by his father, the late George Conquest.

MR E. M. ROBSON, the plucky little host of the Old Ship Inn at the New Theatre, possesses, among his many souvenirs of a long stage career, a gift from Queen Victoria. He played Todman, in Liberty Hall, with Mr George Alexander's company at Balmoral, and her Majesty complimented him in a few well-chosen words, and some time afterwards he received a diamond and ruby pin—the Royal monogram, surmounted by a small crown.

"THE SCHOOL GIRL" was produced in New York on the 1st inst., with a cast including Edna May, Mr Grossmith, jun., Mr James Blakeley, and Mr Fred Wright, jun. The production was a complete success.

"THE DARLING OF THE GODS" was the subject of an address delivered recently by the Rev. George Walters, at the Hyde-park Unitarian Church, Sydney. The congregation included the Japanese Vice-Consul and several representatives of the dramatic profession. Mr Walters expressed the opinion that the play might have been even more appreciated than it was if it had been better understood. It seemed to teach that this earthly life, with its mingling joys and sorrows, was mystically connected with the spiritual realm, and that "heaven" and "hell" were really of our own making.

THE marriage of Miss Gertrude Evans and Mr Richard Fulton was quietly celebrated at St. George's Hall, Mount-street, W., on the 1st inst. The numerous presents included a cheque to the bride and a silver cigarette case with monogram engraved to the bridegroom from Mr and Mrs William Maclaren. On Saturday evening the newly wedded couple were most agreeably surprised by the presentation to the bride, after the first act of Proof, at the Eden Theatre, Bishop Auckland, of a beautiful basket of fruit and flowers from Mr and Mrs Maclaren, and a white bouquet from the members of the company. After the performance the audience were played out to the strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," whilst behind the curtain Mr Alfred Wareing, on behalf of the members of the company, presented Mrs Fulton with a silver toilet tray and Mr Fulton with a sovereign purse with inscription. Mr and Mrs Fulton are now busy answering a sheaf of congratulatory telegrams and letters of which they were the happy recipients.

MR DOUGLAS GERRARD, who is playing Prince Kara with Mr Beerbohm Tree's No. 1 Darling of the Gods company, at Theatre Royal, Middlesbrough, this week, has just finished a long vacation spent at his place in the County Carlow, Ireland, where he has been motoring, riding, and driving. He played David Rossi (Robert Taber's original part) with Mr Tree's South company of The Eternal City this spring. Prior to that he was with the first Quality Street company, starring as the dashing Captain Valentine Brown.

"THE GARDEN OF LIES."

A Romance, in Four Acts, adapted from the Story of Justus Miles Forman by Sydney Grundy, Produced at the St. James's Theatre, on Saturday, Sept. 3.

Carol III.	Mr HERBERT DANSEY
Denis Mallory	Mr GEORGE ALEXANDER
Colonel Von Altdorf	Mr CHARLES FULTON
Sir Gavin Mackenzie, M.D.	Mr MARK KINGHORNE
Creighton	Mr LESLIE FABER
Henri	Mr E. H. BROOKE
François	Mr GERALD JEROME
Princess Eleanor	Miss LILIAN BRAITHWAITE
Jessica Mannering	Miss CORISANDE HAMILTON
Fifine	Miss MARGARET BUSSE
Dame Du Comptoir	Miss ELINOR AICKIN

It is easy to understand how Mr George Alexander came to produce The Garden of Lies. It contains all the ingredients which have made successful other romantic plays in which he has appeared. There is the reckless dare-devil who gets mixed up with affairs of royalty and of state; there is the redemption of the ne'er-do-weel through the influence of love; and there is a fair amount of "swash-buckling." It is what is frequently described as a "strong acting play." Mr Alexander not only has scope for some of his most chivalrous and insinuating courtship; he is enabled to depict the terrors of delirium tremens in a very powerful scene, and to fight a duel with marvellous activity and energy. There is plenty of stirring incident in The Garden of Lies, and it is full of the flavour of adventure and romance which has made the success of so many of Mr Alexander's productions.

The plot will seem to our readers almost incredible; but it appears less so when adroitly outlined in conversation on the stage. A certain Princess Eleanor of Novodnia, has been the victim of a carriage accident; and a blow on the head has impaired her memory of the past. There is danger that she may go mad entirely if her husband, Prince Carol of Novodnia—of whom, please remember, she has no distinct recollection—be not restored to her; and the great physician, Sir Gavin Mackenzie, in consultation with the Prince's right-hand man and admirer, Colonel Von Altdorf, decides that a substitute must immediately be provided; as, owing to political disturbances, it is impossible for the Prince to leave Novodnia for Paris, where the action of the play takes place. It is necessary, therefore, to find a man sufficiently unscrupulous to impersonate the absent husband, and attractive enough to satisfy the Princess, and prevent her becoming insane; and this exceptional individual is discovered in a certain soldier of fortune called Dennis Mallory, who is a slave to the "absinthe habit," and who after a moral struggle with his better nature, in which the latter comes off second best, decides to undertake the job. Intentionally, the actual state of the case is concealed from him, and he is unaware that the Princess is married. He has already become enamoured of her, having seen her from a window, while she was walking in her garden, and when they meet she falls in love with him at first sight. Such is the situation when Prince Carol, unable to bear longer his separation from his spouse, arrives unexpectedly from Novodnia, which he has left to its fate and to the machinations of the insurgent-leaders. No sympathy can be felt for a man with a bald patch at the back of his head, who wears "spats," and yet presumes to be the husband of a lovely vision with copper-coloured hair. "How dare you have money?" one of the Two Macs used to ask of his companion; and we feel positively indignant that this conventional creature should interfere with the amours of the romantic though absinthe-loving hero. The poor Prince, indeed, "gets it all round." He receives no consolation from the Princess; his own prime minister scolds him to his face; and even the Scotch alienist abuses him roundly from an open window. However, Prince Carol has plenty of pluck; and he challenges Mallory to a duel with swords, but is, of course, out-fought by the soldier of fortune, who behaves most chivalrously, giving the Prince his fullest support and volunteering to return to Novodnia to help him put down the revolt. In the course of suppressing the rising, the Prince is slain, and Mallory is also supposed to have perished. Practised playgoers are, however, habitually incredulous of such reports. Mallory turns up in the last act, and the Princess clasps the modest victor in her arms.

There are few actors on the English stage who could have pulled a piece through by sheer hard work as Mr Alexander did The Garden of Lies at the St. James's on Saturday. He did not spare himself, and his acting in the delirium tremens scene already alluded to was splendidly intense and vigorous. He fenced in the duel with a marvellous mixture of grace and energy; and his love-making was as insinuating, as reverent, and as seductive as ever. Mr Herbert Dansey did remarkably well in the unthankful part of the Prince of Novodnia, and made the hapless monarch sufficiently unsympathetic for all practical purposes. That fine actor Mr Charles Fulton was firm, earnest, and powerful as Colonel Von Altdorf; and Mr Mark Kinghorne gave a racy, characteristic performance as Sir Gavin Mackenzie; Mr Leslie Faber as Creighton being a perfect model of the well-bred, well-groomed, up-to-date young man of modern fashion. Miss Lilian Braithwaite in her exquisite gowns and ruddy locks looked bewitchingly picturesque, and played the Princess Eleanor with a mixture of artlessness and elevation that was highly effective. Miss Corisande Hamilton did the little she had to do as Jessica Mannering extremely well, and Miss Margaret Busté was quite commendable as Fifine, Miss Elinor Aickin impersonating the Dame Du Comptoir efficiently. The Garden of Lies will bear modification here and there; and probably Mr Alexander will see his way to the necessary improvements, and will carry the play to success on his own shoulders.

A MEMBER of a touring musical comedy company was recently strolling along the beach of a popular seaside resort when he chanced upon a young lady sitting upon a comfortable deck chair reading a book. He paused, and after saying "Good morning," he suggested that it was a fine day. Although not encouraged in any way to do so, the youthful actor seated himself on the sands in front of the lady, and entered into details relative to himself—that he was playing an important part in the musical comedy at the theatre—which proved to be a minor part—&c. He then spoke of the theatre, the glories of the "profession," and finished by hinting to the lady that she was fitted in every way for the stage, and asked if she knew anything about such matters. The lady thereupon lifted her eyes from her book for the first time as she said quietly to the "actor," "Yes, I know a little about the business; my husband is manager of the theatre you are now playing at."

DEATH OF MR JOHN BILLINGTON.

Mr John Billington, the veteran actor, passed away at his residence, 72, Burghley-road, N.W., on Monday afternoon at the age of seventy-six. His health began to fail some years ago, and he was compelled to retire from the calling he loved so well. It is characteristic of the most generous of the professions that an old comrade with a long and distinguished career was not allowed to take his final leave of the footlights without bearing away a practical testimony of the esteem and veneration of his brothers and sisters in art. No one deserved this recognition in a greater degree than John Billington; and the honour paid him at the Haymarket Theatre last autumn by players in front and players behind formed a fitting close to his fifty years of active stage life. On the large committee that organised the testimonial was to be found every name of note in the world of the theatres; and with the professional aid of Sir Henry Irving, Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr Beerbohm Tree, Mr Cyril Maude, and the enthusiastic support of other actor-managers, the brilliant success that attended the function was a foregone conclusion. The programme opened with the first act of Mr Clyde Fitch's play, The Last of the Dandies; followed by an act of Mrs Gorringe's Necklace; Dr. Conan Doyle's one-act piece, Waterloo, with Sir Henry Irving as Corporal Brewster; and Mr W. W. Jacob's story, dramatised by Mr Louis N. Parker, entitled The Monkey's Paw. The final scene was the leave-taking of the veteran actor. Sir Henry Irving acted as master of the ceremonies, and performed his task with his customary easy grace and distinguished courtliness. Mr Billington made a few remarks, stating that he had been on the stage half a century, and felt that he had honestly done his duty. He now had to say farewell to them, and with all his heart he thanked them for their great kindness. The memory of it would soothe his declining days. Mr Edward Ledger was hon. treasurer of the Testimonial Fund, and the total amount subscribed was £852 3s. 7d.

The story of the long professional life of an actor who, to go no farther back than the old Adelphi days, was associated, with his accomplished wife (who survives him), with Benjamin Webster, Paul Bedford, Madame Celeste, and Wright does not lend itself readily to compression. Mr John —"Handsome Jack"—Billington, as he has been called, began his career in his native county of Yorkshire, mastered the rudiments there, and worked hard for journeyman's wages under Mr Mercer Simpson at Birmingham, where he and his wife—Adeline Mortimer—became great favourites. He did some strenuous circuit work on the other side of the Border, where he first met, "in business," with Marie Wilton (Lady Bancroft); and—persuaded, the "second time of asking," by Mr Webster, who had seen and admired his acting and personnel in the country—came to London and became a metropolitan fixture "in the bill." There are many features and circumstances in the career of Mr Billington—Thackeray's "romantic hero of the stage," as the author of Vanity Fair once told him. He had seen, acted with, and worshipped Macready before he made his pilgrimage to London, the Mecca of the histrion. Concurrently he had taken his part—that is to say, his multiplicity of parts—as supporter of every kind of star that formed the constellation of the Macready period. Therefore it might at least be said of him when he originally set his foot on the stage of a London theatre that he knew his business.

John Billington made his first appearance on the London stage April 14, 1857, at the Adelphi Theatre, in the character of Harry Mowbray, in Like and Unlike. He remained at the Adelphi under the management of Mr Webster, for eleven years, or until 1868, and played in nearly every piece of importance produced there during that period. Among the various "original" parts "created" by him may be named:—Walter, in The Poor Strollers, in 1858: M. Dubois, in Ici on Parle Français; Frederick Wardour, in The House or the Home; Beaumont Fletcher, in One Touch of Nature, &c.; in 1859: Hardress Cregan, in The Colleen Bawn; in 1860: Count D'Arcy, in Magloire; George Peyton, in The Octoroon; 1861: Ned Plummer, in Dot; 1862: John Mellish, in Aurora Floyd; 1863: Kit Coventry, in Through Fire and Water; 1865: Walter Wielding, in No Thoroughfare; 1867: Sir Percival Glyde, in The Woman in White; 1871: Mark Musgrave, in Rough and Ready. During that time he had also played Modus, in a revival of The Hunchback at the Adelphi, with Miss Bateman as Julie; Alfred Casby, in Hen and Chickens; and many other parts. On the termination of Mr Billington's long engagement at the Adelphi he devoted his time to starring in the provinces, and playing leading rôles in London, and on July 19, 1875, he entered on a season of management at the Globe Theatre. Subsequently he was identified with the Folly, or, as it was afterwards called "Toole's" Theatre, where, after "creating" Gottfried in Gretchen at the Olympic, in March, 1879, he appeared as Josiah Grainger, in a revival of Married in Haste, Jan. 3, 1880, and as Major Treherne, in a Cyril's Success, on the 17th of the same month. On March 31, 1880, he "created" the part of Lord Hesketh, in Upper Crust, this being apparently his first appearance with Mr Toole; and after playing John Peerybingle, in a revival of Dot, on Oct. 10, also "created" the following parts:—Major-General Mogador, in Auntie, March 15, 1882; Josiah Papworth, in Girls and Boys, Oct. 31, 1882; Sir John Tracey, Kt., in The Butler, Dec 6, 1886; and Mr Pappendiek, in The Don, March 7, 1888; also Colonel Tudor, in The Jilt, at the Princess's, July 29, 1886. The House and the Home was played by command at Windsor Castle, and it was in relation to that piece that Mr Billington and Miss Henrietta Simms were complimented by her Majesty Queen Victoria through Webster on the excellence of their acting. It is remarkable that he made two successes in Boucicault's version of The Cricket on the Hearth, first, as Ned Plummer, and secondly, as John Peerybingle. In the latter character, which he made one of the most natural Yorkshiremen on the stage, he won solid renown. In Australia, when on tour "down under" with his old friend and play-fellow, Mr J. L. Toole, his John Peerybingle was rightly accounted one of the most striking of his uniformly acceptable impersonations. Mrs John Maxwell (Miss Braddon) would be one of the first to speak in high praise of his John Mellish. The No Thoroughfare cast did not at first include Mr Billington. He was cast for Walter Wilding, but, "not to put too fine a point on it," he threw up the part. It was Webster's persistent cajolery which induced him to reconsider his decision, and, finally, still against the grain, to undertake what was to the last a most unsympathetic task. When Charles Dickens, on his return from America, saw No Thoroughfare for the first time he warmly congratulated the impersonator of Walter Wilding on the judgment he had displayed in the realisation of a character which he (the author) had been unable to portray to his satisfaction! Wilkie Collins and Tom Taylor were warm admirers of Mr Billington's conscientiously artistic work. In one of the dramas by the latter author he took such pains with the "make-up" the services of an eminent Royal Academician were called in to add the finishing pictorial touches.

Remarkable as is the foregoing list of characters, it leaves untouched a repertory of extraordinary variety and extent. John Billington did good work as a Shakespearian actor, and had stamped himself with distinction in "character" parts. In a wide range of these are William, in Black-Ey'd Susan; Sir Charles Coldstream, in Used Up; and Captain Murphy Maguire, in The Serious Family. In his time he produced three, if not more, original plays, two by Paul Meritt, and one, Haunted Homes—not one of the author's happiest efforts—by Henry J. Byron. One of his earliest engagements came through that illustrious tragedian—and comedian—G. V. Brooke. The Billingtons in their extremely callow days, had played with him in Dublin. On parting with him Brooke said, "We shall meet again." That meeting did not take place as was contemplated, but a letter was received from Brooke, in which he said he had secured Mr and Mrs Billington an engagement at the Dunlop-street Theatre, Glasgow, if they cared to accept it. This they resolved to do, and that led to better things.

Mr Billington's later career, "as all the world doth know," was in connection with Mr Toole. When the latter popular favourite was prevented by illness from further appearance on the stage, the home of them both was in every sense of the term "broken up." Meanwhile their relations had been professionally and personally of a most fraternal character. During one of their provincial tours, when, in fact the company appeared at Edinburgh, Messrs Toole and Billington were the guests of the Pen and Pencil Club. In proposing the toast of the evening Dr. Pryde, a much-respected citizen of Edinburgh, said, "Nature intended Mr Billington to be an English squire, and were I to look at his portrait I would expect to see in the background an old baronial hall, surrounded by ancestral trees. But Nature has not carried out her original design. She has done far better. She has kept him near herself, and made him hold up the mirror before her. He has in his time played many parts admirably."

The funeral of Mr John Billington took place at Highgate Cemetery on Friday afternoon. A service was held previously at St. Benet and All Saints Church, Lupton-street, Kentish-town, at 3 0 o'clock.

THE LATE MR. JOHN BILLINGTON.

MR JOHN HARE has secured Miss Hilda Trevelyan for the part of the simple Irish girl, in Little Mary, on tour.

AT the usual weekly meeting of the council of the Actors' Association, held last Tuesday, Francois Cellier, jun., May Grimshaw, and Nellie Clyde were nominated as candidates for membership. The hon. solicitors reported progress in several matters, and in a dispute between a manager and a member arbitration was decided upon. A letter was read from a manager expressing his thanks and satisfaction for securing an artiste in a case of emergency. The report of the Finance and G.P. Committee was read, and the chairman stated the committee had chosen some new comfortable lounge chairs for the saloon, smoking, and waiting-rooms. Dr. F. W. Brook, of Walworth-road, was appointed an hon. medical officer to the A A.

Lady Gerania	Miss EDITH OSTLERE

With some little judicious pruning this new recruit in the world of drama will very probably prove a success. Although constituted of familiar materials, those materials are handled with care and discrimination, and if, as suggested, the pen is drawn through some of the unnecessary dialogue and the varied incidents brought into greater cohesion, Dr. Wake's Patient will make its way on its own merit. The story is one of love, and so ingeniously woven that its acceptance would be readily assured but for the introduction of "foreign matter," which mars it in several places and impedes the smoothness of the story. Young Dr. Wake, who enjoys a famous London medical practice, is on one of his yearly visits to Devonshire, where his father owns an extensive farm. The greetings between the son and parents are very affectionate, and everything jogs along merrily until an injured lady (Gerania), who has been thrown from her horse, is brought into the cottage to have her wounded arm attended to by the doctor. After the operation they separate, seemingly impressed by each other, without names being mentioned.

Act two introduces us to the consulting-room of Dr. Wake in London, and here, among the waiting patients, are a bishop and an earl and countess, the latter bringing their daughter, Lady Gerania. The progress of the act reveals the fact that Dr. Wake has cultivated a passion for the unknown lady who met with the accident; whilst she on her part confesses to a confidant her inability to discover the young practitioner with whom she fell in love at first sight. The Earl and Countess of St. Olbyn's purpose in seeking medical advice for Gerania is to "brace her up" and cure her of an "unfortunate attachment." The meeting of the doctor and patient can be imagined. He orders her to a watering-place to recuperate, promising to visit her when calling upon another of his patients.

In act three there are mutual confessions, and Lady Gerania accepts his proposal of marriage, which is approved by the Earl and Countess. A note of discord, however, is struck by the appearance at the fashionable hotel of Mr and Mrs Wake, the parents of the doctor, in their homely garb, carrying their own luggage. Lady Gerania after a little hesitation—being somewhat nonplussed by the thought that the celebrated medical man belonged to working people—cordially greets both, and there is every evidence that matters will run smoothly. When the worthy couple, however, are introduced by the doctor to the Earl and Countess the latter exhibit a revulsion of feeling, and express their objection to the match. The scene between the Earl and the agriculturalist is a very fine one—well thought out and well rendered. The doctor and his parents immediately leave for home, a note being sent to Lady Gerania informing her that the engagement is broken off.

The fourth act brings repentance on the part of the haughty St. Olbyns, and the doctor, having received knighthood, accepts the hand of Gerania.

The setting of the piece left nothing to be desired; in fact, in the third act, the beautiful scene representing Seton Barr, with its picturesque, far-reaching bay and trailing floral decorations, could scarcely be improved upon. Above all, the success of the play is to be attributed in a great measure to the excellence of the company in whose hands it is. Mr Loring Fernie acted with discretion the somewhat difficult part of Dr. Forester Wake; a powerful, robust, and admirable rendering of Wake's father was given by Mr F. Percival Stevens; Mr Charles Combe was the Earl; Mr W. Gayer Mackay presented a clever picture of the Hon. Duff Wynterden, whose nerves were "absolutely" wrong; Miss Hilda Thorpe was an acceptable Countess; and other well-filled parts were those of Mrs Murdock by Miss Margaret Holt; Mrs Wake, a thoughtful, tactful, and tasteful impersonation of the farmer's wife, by Mrs Henry Leigh; Miss Bronson by Miss Violet Thunder; and the Bishop by Mr Adam Alexander. To Miss Edith Ostlere (who under the name of "Robert Ord" is joint-author of the play) every credit must be given for presenting with true artistic feeling a graceful and sweet Lady Gerania. The cordial applause given to Miss Ostlere was well deserved. It is to be regretted that, owing probably to the fine weather that has prevailed during the week, public support of this acceptable play has not been great.

THE first Covent-garden fancy dress ball will take place on Friday, the 30th inst. Messrs Frank Rendle and Neil Forsyth have engaged Mr Dan Godfrey's grand orchestra, and valuable prizes will be offered as usual during the season for the best costumes.

THERE will be a special matinée of The Chetwynd Affair at the Royalty Theatre on Saturday next. The author, Mr Kennedy Cox, has accepted a commission to write another play in collaboration with Mr Christopher Masterman for production at a West-end theatre this autumn.

"MERELY MARY ANN."

A Comedy, in Four Acts, by Israel Zangwill, Produced at the Duke of York's Theatre, on Thursday, Sept. 8.

Mr Israel Zangwill's comedy Merely Mary Ann, which was presented by Mr Charles Frohman at the Duke of York's Theatre on Thursday evening, achieved undeniable success. It was not only the hearty applause at the end of each act which gave evidence of this; further testimony was supplied by the furtive, yet distinctly observable, use of pocket-handkerchiefs in the stalls, as hardened playgoers wiped away the silent tears which otherwise would have coursed down their cheeks. Merely Mary Ann was indeed admirably played; but that fact does not diminish the credit due to the cleverness of the author, who touched the feelings of his public to the quick by the dexterous use of extremely simple materials.

The "atmosphere" of the first three acts of the play is that of a cheap lodging-house kept by a certain Mrs Leadbatter. Living here is Lancelot, a young and ambitious composer, whose works are "over the heads" of the ordinary public, and who, therefore, finds it impossible to dispose of them. His old friend Peter, who started with him on the road to Fame, has gone into the tea business, employing his evenings in writing the melodies of popular songs. Peter conceals his identity with the concoctor of these familiar airs; and Lancelot is ignorant that his friend is the composer of one of the most banal and hackneyed tunes of the hour. The general servant of the Leadbatter establishment is a country girl named Mary Ann, who falls devotedly in love with Lancelot, and even obeys his fastidious instructions to always put on a pair of gloves before coming into his room. The agony of Lancelot is protracted by his fallacious hopes of getting his works published or performed; and, as he refuses to allow Peter to repay to him an old debt, Lancelot is in great difficulties. He is comforted by Mary Ann; and when, after earning £30 by taking a commission to "do" a "popular" song, Lancelot decides to leave Mrs Leadbatter, the girl, who is utterly innocent of guile, implores him to take her away with him. He refuses to commit such a dastardly act; and, finally, accepts Peter's renewed offer to return the above-mentioned loan, and goes off to work hard in pursuance of his high aims.

Between the third act and the last a transformation is effected in Mary Ann. She comes into a large fortune, which has been left to her by a relative, is called Marian, is educated and polished, and takes her place in refined society. Her wealth is a strong attraction to Lord Tottenham, who makes love to her in his inane style. Lancelot, now become a famous composer about whom all the ladies are "raving," visits Mary Ann's country house; and a scene in the lodging-house, in which he decided that to marry her was "impossible," is echoed, with the difference that it is she who now comes to the conclusion against matrimony. Lancelot is depressed; but in a few moments Marian, in the cap and gloves of the lodging-house servant, returns, and allows him to clasp her rapturously to his breast.

It must not be supposed that the above story monopolises the merit of Merely Mary Ann. There are dozens of little clever "bits" scattered throughout the play. There are the Sisters Trippet, who come in from their work at a music hall, and "chaff" the proud young composer; there is a benevolent parson, Mr Smedge, who complacently drinks a "stiff" tumbler of whisky and soda and then returns thanks for the soda water; there is Herr Brahmson, a shrewd but kindly music publisher; there are Mrs Leadbatter and her daughter Rosie, each a character. The dialogue, too, is full of good points; indeed, the desire to get "a laugh" has occasionally led Mr Zangwill to adopt verbal expedients almost unworthy of his critical acuteness.

The whole success or failure of the piece certainly depended upon the way in which the two leading characters were acted. Lancelot might so easily have been made absurd, and Mary Ann so mawkish, that Mr Frohman is to be warmly congratulated upon having secured such gifted exponents of those two parts for his London production of the play. Miss Eleanor Robson, who made her appearance in the part of the simple little servant, which she had already sustained with so much success in America, won the heart of the house from the outset. She had exactly the face and figure required, and she acted with admirable tact and tenderness. The innate delicacy and purity of the "slavey," her rural remembrances, her frank affection, and her adorable silliness and submissiveness made a combination which the audience at the Duke of York's Theatre on Thursday found irresistible. The enthusiasm evoked by Miss Robson's performance was intense. She evidently "captured" the house completely. Mr Henry Ainley's personality was exactly suited to the representation of the dreamy, arrogant Lancelot, and his Hyperion curls, his Jovian front, and his clearly-cut features made him a perfect picture in the part. He played it with a sincerity and vigour which were entirely convincing. Mr Gerald Du Maurier was able to supply a very effective contrast to Mr Ainley's embodiment. His Peter was full of dry humour, and was very neatly handled. Mr George Ralemond as the Rev. Samuel Smedge acted with unctuous placidity; and Mr Charles Cartwright contributed a sound and genial interpretation of the rôle of Herr Brahmson. The little rôles of O'Gorman and Blaydes had quite competent representatives in Mr Hubert Willis and Mr Herbert Mansfield; and Mr Cranley Douglas contributed a quaint caricature as Lord Tottenham. Miss Ada Dwyer was the "very image" of a lodging-house keeper of a certain class, and Miss Mabel Garden played Rosie with a keen appreciation of the type. Miss Paula Von Arold and Miss Maud Wynter were lively and natural as the Sisters Trippet; Miss Susie Vaughan, looking superb, was easily equal to the demands made upon her as Lady Chelmer; and Miss Geraldine Olliffe satisfactorily embodied the Countess of Foxwell, the "society ladies" at Mead Manor Hall being creditably depicted by Miss Cartwright, Miss Rosa Leo, Miss Hylda Franklin, and Mrs Sam Sothern. Mr Howard Templeton played the butler with dignity. At the close of the performance of Merely Mary Ann great enthusiasm was displayed, Miss Robson being required to appear again and again; and earnest demands were made for the presence of the author, who, however, did not present himself to receive his reward in the acclammations of the delighted audience.

A NEW Life of Sir Arthur Sullivan, by his cousin, Mr B. W. Findon, will be published by Messrs J. Nisbet and Co. on the 19th inst. The author says he has "tried to give as just a view of Sullivan's life and work as it is possible for one who loved him as a kinsman and appreciated his sterling qualities as a friend and composer."

A CHAT WITH MR. WILKIE BARD.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Of what use is personality to an actor or to a music hall artist? That is a question which has before been discussed and been answered in more ways than one. We should be inclined to say, if we were forced to give an opinion, that personality performs a greater service for the variety artist than for the player of parts on the legitimate stage. The versatile actor should be a man who can sink his own identity so thoroughly that, without the aid of a programme, recognition would be impossible; whose very gestures and voice will change with, and be characteristic of, each new impersonation he gives you. To put it shortly, it should be possible for him to present Grimaldi one day and Savonarola the next. Of course it has to be admitted that in some cases an actor's personality, or part of that personality, is admirably fitted for certain parts. He may, for instance, have a character specially written to suit his own peculiar style. But, putting on one side physical peculiarities and limitations, which often necessarily compel artists to keep to one class of work, everybody must agree that the actor who lays claim to versatility must be able, whenever called upon to do so, to lose his own individuality while before the footlights. Now, the music hall performer is more of a free agent in this matter. He is not obliged to fall into any particular line or personate any particular character. Originality goes a long way towards creating his success in life. What does that originality consist of? Personality, to a large extent. Should any unbeliever desire to verify that answer, let him study the stage-work of, say, half-a-dozen of our best music hall artists.

Let us give one instance to back up our contention, and in giving that instance we will go no further than Mr Wilkie Bard, the subject of this interview. Mr Bard himself claims—and not unjustly, we think—that he owes his advancement in the variety profession to the individuality he displays in his appearancesbefore the public. His own mannerisms afford the clue to the popularity to which, as an entertainer, he has attained. Go to the Oxford and witness his turn, and you will not deny that you see something new—a precise something that no other artist presents.

So much for personality. Now a word or two from Mr Bard. "It seems to be an old professional dogma," says that gentleman, "that if an artist is to get a good salary in the provinces he must have a big London name. My experience has been the reverse. The comedian has not the opportunities in the metropolis that he has in the country, where he can sing five or six songs and show his versatility and originality. The provincial man who comes to town finds himself in a quandary as to what particular business he should put on, or what will prove to his London audience that he is somewhat different from anything else that has been seen or heard. He has only a few minutes in which to display what talents he possesses and he may make the mistake of selecting from his répertoire of songs one that may not be so well received as another he has sung in the provinces. Of course, he has to chance all that. My experience is that London audiences are more easily satisfied than country audiences. I had felt considerable diffidence as to what song I should sing when I was engaged to come down here, but Mr George Adney Payne, who has been very kind to me, said, 'As you are in the provinces so let yourself go in town.' I followed his advice, and was gratified at the result."

Before he entered the profession Mr Bard was in a cotton-spinner's warehouse in Manchester, where his home is. He used to sing at the big clubs in the city, doing the Chevalier style of business. Being advised to join the ranks of the profession, he eventually got his first engagement at the Grand, Manchester, where he rendered "'E ain't the bloke I took 'im for at all," and "Never have a lodger for a pal" written by Mr Ernest Schliffer. The last-mentioned song suggested to Mr Bard the mannerism which he has since adopted, for he found his audience appreciated it very much. An agent then took him in hand, and he was booked to appear, at a nominal salary, at the Argyle, Birkenhead, and at the Empire, Aberdare. These engagements were followed by a twelve-weeks' Moss and Thornton tour, resulting in return engagements, the last being for a period of sixteen weeks. Some of his earliest successes in the way of songs were written and composed by Frank Leo, who was responsible for "Would you like to go halves in that?" "That's where she sits all day," "It was b-e-a-u-t-i-f-u-l," "Is there anything else you'd like?" Mr Bard states that the turning-point in his career occurred when he first began singing Mr Leo's "It was b-e-a-u-t-i-f-u-l." He tells us that he had many offers to go to opposition houses, but he preferred to stick to the firm he had commenced with. His first pantomime engagement was at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, when he played the Baron, in Red Riding Hood, the production running nine weeks. The following year he was engaged by Mr Elliston to appear at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, as the King, in Puss in Boots, and in the ensuing Christmas season he was secured by Mr James Macready Chute for the dame's part in The Babes in the Wood at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol. Other pantomime engagements were with Mr Fred Wyndham to play Samuel Steele, a merchant, in The Sleeping Beauty, at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, and with Mr Chute at Bristol again as the King, in Puss in Boots, last year. Next December he opens at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, as Ali Baba, in The Forty Thieves; and in the 1905-6 season he will be once more back with Mr Chute to play Mother Goose in the pantomime of that name at the Prince's, Bristol; while for 1906-7 his services have been requisitioned by Mr Robert Courtneidge to appear as principal comedian at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool.

Mr Bard has only been associated with the music hall profession for nine years, his first London appearance having been made at Collins's six months after his début at the Grand, Manchester. He holds contracts with Mr G. A. Payne for London for the next three years and for the provinces with Messrs Moss and Stoll. His wife, professionally known as Miss Nellie Stratton, is a charming and clever comedienne, and Mr Bard points proudly to the fact that since their marriage the two have never been separated from each other by engagements or otherwise. Messrs J. W. Knowles and J. Hargraves, who are the authors and composers of the songs he is at the present time so successfully singing, are uniting their efforts in the writing of another ditty which Mr Bard hopes to produce shortly. Mr Bard's favourite pastime is golf.

PRINCE—In loving memory of Jessie Prince, who departed this life September, 1903

Home at last thy labours done,
Safe and blest the victory won;
Jordan past, from pain set free,
Angels now have welcomed thee.

Never to be forgotten by her friend, Lily Burnand.

TEARLE.—In loving memory of my friend, George Osmond Tearle, actor, who entered rest Sept. 7, 1901.

I would not wake thee from thy gentle hush—
Spring, summer, autumn, winter, let them pass!
All we count good and costly are but gleams
Of light that quiver on a mound of grass.

R. C., Bournemouth.

VINCENT.—In ever-loving memory of my dear wife Mary, who died September 7, 1902. Frederick Vincent, Grand Theatre, Leeds.

WOOD—In ever-faithful memory of my dear husband, Charles Wood, for twenty-eight years manager of the Rotunda Theatre, Liverpool, who died suddenly, Sept. 5, 1902.

His whole life was a benefit to all who were connected with him.

MRS H. H. BARRINGTON has been re-engaged by Mr Walter Melville for her old part of Matilda Parker, in The Worst Woman in London.

CONSIDERABLE exitement was recently caused on the beach at Yarmouth by the collapse of a giant kite, which had been sent up by Mr Sandon Perkins, the business-manager of Miss Emma Hutchison's Cousin Kate company. As this favourite comedy was to be followed by another of the same firm's attractions, viz., A Country Mouse, he had arranged with the advance-manager of that show to send up a representation of one of the rodent species, but to his surprise, when the effigy arrived it was nearly as big as an elephant. Nothing daunted, the flier allowed the "mouse" to follow "Kate" up the string, but, alas, the wind blew not so gently and pleasantly as it is wont to in the second act of Cousin Kate. The result was in one way a great disappointment to the organisers of the advertisement, but, perhaps, gave more publicity than their most sanguine anticipations. The kite fell far out at sea, the mouse on the sands, and amidst a blowing of syrens and shouting of people, the populace realised that no one was drowned, but that The Country Mouse would be very much alive for next week at the Royal.

MR LILFORD ARTHUR and his company leave King's-cross to-night, at 11·30, for Aberdeen, where on Monday he will produce the farcical comedy, Jones's Jaunt. He has secured Charles Collette, of Cryptoconchoidsyphonostamata fame, as his star, and has enlisted a very strong company. Report speaks very highly of the piece, which for the past three weeks has been most carefully rehearsed in London.

MR QUINTON M'PHERSON has been engaged by Charles Frohman for Mr William Gillette's season in the United States in The Admirable Crichton. Mr M'Pherson was with Mr Gillette in Sherlock Holmes, and then took the position of general stage manager for Mr Frohman's touring companies, producing Warp and Woof for Mrs Patrick Campbell.

THEIR Majesties the King and Queen and her Royal Highness Princess Victoria visited the Garrick Theatre on Saturday evening and witnessed the performance of The Chevaleer.

MISS ALMA EVELYNE, who created the part of Madame Jan, in The Fisher Girl, and made such a successful début as an old lady, has been re-engaged for it, and with Mynheer Jan has been convulsing the large audiences at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, this week, and taking big encores for their charming duet, "When we were twenty-one."—Owing to the indisposition of Miss Olive Morrell on Tuesday and Wednesday, the part of Aurora Brue, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, was played with success by Miss Kitty Ashmead.—Mr Bernard J. Lieli and Miss Georgette Thierry have been engaged by Mr John F. Asche, as Moss Jewel and Mabel Huntingford, in The World.—Mr Ernest Shand will return to Camden Theatre for pantomime at Christmas.

"NEIGHBOURS."

A Musical Comedietta, by H. Sutherland Edwards, with Music by Vera Leslie, Produced at the County Hall, St. Albans, on Sept. 2.
Jack ..... MR H. DOUGHTY
Marjorie ..... MISS F. TREVELYAN

Jack occupies a flat, and, suffering from a certain affection of the heart, for which Cupid is responsible, he forgets all about his dinner until he arrives home. After a search he finds something edible, but as he is without any bread he decides to apply to his neighbour. It appears, however, that the elderly lady who occupied the next flat has left, and her successor is a girl named Marjorie. She has quitted her former rooms in consequence of the annoyance caused by an unknown admirer who worried her by letters and attempts to make her acquaintance. A letter, however, has been forwarded, in which the writer announces his intention of paying her a visit at nine o'clock, as he is determined to see her. She is disturbed by a knock at the door. It is Jack, who is surprised to find the flat has a new occupant. He asks for the loan of some bread, and she appeals to him for protection from the gentleman who pesters her with love-letters. This admirer is no other than Jack himself, who takes advantage of the situation by inducing her to go into his room while he pretends to administer a sound thrashing to the persistent lover. In the end it is discovered that Marjorie is the young lady whose guardian desires her to marry Jack, and all ends happily. The two characters were well played by Mr H. Doughty and Miss F. Trevelyan.

MR CHAS. EVANS'S BENEFIT.

HALL-BY-THE-SEA, MARGATE.

Mr Chas. Evans took his annual benefit on Wednesday evening, when this spacious structure—one of the largest in the provinces—was crowded with visitors and inhabitants of the neighbourhood, among the latter being several of the resident gentry. Mr Chas. Evans has been associated with Lord George Sanger for ten years, and this has necessarily given him a good training and experience in all the details which are inseparable from good management. Since the death of Mr Wm. Sanger, four years ago, Mr Chas. Evans has been general manager, and the success of his efforts is practically seen in the good programmes he provides and the large audiences which are attracted throughout the season. He was the recipient of numerous letters and telegrams of congratulations and wishes for "good luck" from several brother managers and professional friends.

The bill included Professor Earle, Angeline Carmody, Spring and Spring and Rosie Carlo, Stanley and Greenop, Mdlle. Roza's great canine hippodrome, Edwin Barwick, Sibyl Montague, and the Five Bon-Bons. Walter Payne's Bio-photoscope gave a series of humorous sketches and a portrait of Mr Evans, which brought forth a storm of applause. The orchestra, conducted by Mr Joseph Beckwith, played two selections and also a liberal programme of dance music. There was a fine display of fireworks in the pretty and well-wooded gardens, which were charmingly illuminated. The ball which followed was an altogether splendid affair, and the ballroom had its capacity, great as it is, well tested. The scene was of great brilliancy, the subdued light from the crystal chandeliers being intermittently relieved by the bright electric cromium light, which was judiciously used. Everyone spoke in the highest terms of commendation of the great treat that had been afforded them, and wished Mr Chas. Evans the best of success for the future. This gentleman has evidently a career in front of him.

MISS LILIAS WALDEGRAVE has been kindly released by Messrs Murray King and Clark to rejoin Sir Charles Wyndham for rehearsals for his American tour.—Mr Leonard Pagden has engaged Miss Madge M'Intosh for his usual autumn season at West Pier, Brighton, commencing on the 19th inst. Others in the cast are Miss Katie Johnson, Miss Gladys Bartle-Frere, Mr Orlando Barnett, Mr J. Knox-Orde, Mr Wm. Allonby, &c.—On Saturday night last, at the Grand Opera House, Middlesbrough, owing to Mr St. Alban being suddenly called away, the part of Gaspard, in Les Cloches de Corneville, was played at short notice by Mr Fowler Thatcher with such success as to lead to his being personally complimented by the local management.

FURTHER details are to hand from Australia respecting Messrs Allan and Co.'s vigorous and successful crushing of a form of musical piracy, and the great Melbourne firm deserve all honour for their prompt and decisive action on behalf of the British houses for whom they are agents. At Sydney recently Mr Justice A. J. Simpson (Chief Judge in Equity) was occupied with the granting of decrees in respect of a number of well-known musical compositions imported into Australia from the United States. Some time ago two interim injunctions were granted against François Michel Albert in respect of "The Honeysuckle and the Bee" and "The Green Fields of Virginia." By consent his Honour has since made a decree in respect of these songs, as asked for in the prayer of the statement of claim. Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter applied for a decree against the same individual in respect of seven songs. By consent a decree was granted, restraining the defendant from importing or selling any of the songs, and a similar decree was granted against another person named Klippel (trading as David Davis and Co). Messrs Charles Sheard and Co., also obtained decrees against the same parties in respect of a number of songs, including the ubiquitous "Bill Bailey." In addition to agreeing to the injunctions, and consenting to pay a royalty of 6d a copy on all they had imported, Albert had to pay £250 on account of law costs and other expenses, and Davis and Co £50 on the same account.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICAL

MIDDLESBROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Middlesbrough Theatres, Limited; Managing-Directors, Messrs Geo. and Charles Imeson.—Mr Tree's powerful company, in The Darling of the Gods, is fulfilling a week's engagement here. As Yo-San Miss Frances Dillon gives a most sympathetic portrayal of her part. Mr Robert Pateman fully sustains his reputation as Zakkuri (Minister of State). Mr Douglas Gerrard as Kara proves himself a capable actor in some of the most stirring incidents of the play; Miss Rhoda Ray as Madame Asani is much admired; as Nu Miss Dorothy Brunt sings some effective songs; Saigon is in the capable hands of Mr Ivan F. Simpson; and to Miss Eve Muriel is safely entrusted the part of Rosy Sky.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Company, Limited; Licensee and Manager, Mr T. Hopcutt.—Mr Martin Harvey and company are this week filling an engagement at the Opera House to the delight of large and appreciative audiences. The Breed of the Treshams is the piece presented, with Mr Harvey as Lieutenant Reresby, a difficult character which he sustains in his own inimitable style. Mr Charles Glenney as Colonel the Hon. Clement Hungerford is very successful; Cornet the Hon. Francis Tresham is well played by Mr Milton Rosmer; Miss Coleridge is deserving of high praise for her presentation of the Hon. Margaret Hungerford; and in the part of Betty Miss N. De Silva is very good.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow.—At the Empire this week Miss Ethel Arden, supported by Geo. Abel and company, in the sketch, Three of a Kind, tops the bill, and provides much merriment; Starr and Leslie are old Teeside favourites, and meet with well-deserved success; A Meeting at the Club, by the Zenary Brothers, elicits much applause; the Jackley Wonders do some sensational feats; the New York Nippers, in Bedtime, are favourites; Arthur Gilbert, comedian, sings good songs with taste; and Miss Marie Wilton and Miss Maud Wilton, comediennes, create a good impression. Chas. Lilburn, eccentric comedian, and the Bio-Pictures make up a good programme.

OXFORD.—Lessee, Mr Wm. Robinson; Manager, Mr William Ainsworth.—The Boccaccio Minstrels, including Signor Francia, the great mandolinist, are here, and give a good show; the Lukushima Troupe of Japanese do some really smart feats; Aga, the suspended maiden, gives a mystifying performance; Ryde and Behman are clever acrobats; Miss Edie Anderson dances prettily; Wal Croft, comedian; Merton and Rydon, vocalists; and the Bio-Pictures complete a bill which gives satisfaction to the patrons of the "'Varsity."

NEW BRIGHTON.

GRAND TOWER THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr Albert Bulmer.—The main attraction here this week is Claude Ginnett's original Rejected Remounts, in which four trained horses assist in the performance of a clever and amusing little farce. The company also includes Gerald Mount, double-voiced vocalist and impersonator; Willie Walker, ball-puncher; Four Olympian Stars, expert vocalists and dancers; Jeannie Banff, Scotch comedienne; Jennie Belmore, the popular burlesque actress and dancer; and the Brewsters, lady vocalists and speciality dancers, whose performance is clever and instructive.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Teale Lingham.—With the glamour of Mr W. S. Gilbert's name attached to its authorship the performance of The Fairy's Dilemma this week by Mr Arthur Bourchier's company, under the direction of Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr M. V. Leveaux, has necessarily aroused much interest here. The author's satirical wit and characteristic humour are pungently expressed throughout the dialogue. Mr Charles V. France afforded much pleasure by his enjoyable portraiture of the self complacent Colonel Mauleverer. As his sweetheart Lady Angela, who fails to find words in the English language to do justice to his many virtues, Miss Ada Homer was excellent. Amusement was derived from Mr Frank Stanmore's impersonation of the diffident clergyman; and Mr Frank Collins as the legal luminary rendered good service. Miss Elsie Cooke was a singularly charming representative of Fairy Rosebud; and the Demon Alcohol, who reforms and goes into the firework business, had a capital exponent in Mr C. Herbert Hewetson. Miss Gertrude Hope pleasingly enacted the rôle of Clarissa. Mr Charles V. France and Mr Frank Collins also appeared with success in The Conversion of Nat Sturge, which preceded.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—Mr Walter Melville's company is this week appearing in The Worst Woman in London, and the plot development of the drama has been followed with evident interest by Palace audiences. In giving realistic effect to the unenviable characteristics of the lady described in such superlative terms Miss Constance Medwyn has her work set, but she comes through the ordeal with credit; and other leading rôles are well played by Messrs Edwin J. Collins, Paul Barry Lewers, H. M. Payne, B. Elton, Joe Bracewell, Miss Lilian Ross, and Miss Helena Rigby.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—Captain Rudolph introduces his elephants and animals which are put through a variety of tricks, all of which are performed in such a manner as to afford proof of their careful training. A budget of songs is submitted by Julie Mackay, who is heartily applauded. Arthur Reece in song and recitative scores readily, and Les Brunins utilise the paraphernalia of the billiard table for their cleverly performed juggling and balancing feats. Those well-known entertainers and leg-mania artists, the Haytors, are well to the fore; while the Olive Trio of comediennes, and Woodhouse and Wells, comedians, are well received. A capitally devised sketch is that in which Walter Hast and Peggie Lennie appear, and their acting and singing are much enjoyed. The M'Kays figure to good purpose in comedy and lightning sketch business; while Damm Bros. as eccentric acrobats, and Amy Sullivan, comedienne, are also successful contributors.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr Will H. Boardman.—One of the most remarkable animal acts presented before the public is that under the control of Richard Sawade, and the performance, in which lions, tigers, bears, and dogs take part, is creating something like a sensation here. Bert Gilbert again makes a welcome appearance, and the song in which he appears as an inebriated swell, who has a difference of opinion with a cabman regarding the fare creates the heartiest of merriment. Geo. W. Leslie and company appear to advantage in the sketch Chums. Mr Leslie is said to have played in this piece over 1,200 times. A particularly graceful contortionist and gymnast is Alethea, whose turn is deservedly applauded. The acrobatic and balancing tricks of the Jurgens Trio are especially noteworthy, inasmuch as they are performed on rolling globes. Miss Carola's miniature circus is a feature in the programme, and there are also appearing Doris Lilian, comedienne; Law and Norman, entertaining comedy duettists; and Mark Lane, comedian.

OLYMPIA.—Lessees, Messrs Richard Thornton and Sidney Bacon; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Nelson Barry.—That popular play, The Sign of the Cross, is being performed here by Mr Wm. Greet's company. Mr F. B. Woulfe submits a dignified assumption of Marcus. Mercia has a sympathetic and graceful exponent in Miss Evelyn D'Alroy. Mr Frank Wood is again seen to advantage as Glabrio, and Tigellinus and Lucinius have worthy exponents in Mr Charles Aldred and Mr J. Weatherall respectively. A good impersonation of the Emperor Nero is given by Mr A. Bernhardt Turner. Miss Alma Bolton as Berenice and Miss Cissie Carlton as Dacia are both successful.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Newcastle and Gateshead Theatres, Limited; Managing Director, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Ernest W. Bacon.—This week's programme is headed by the Manello and Marnitz Troupe of acrobats, who give a really wonderful and clever performance, which has met with a capital reception. Russell and Russell submit an artistic and smart musical turn; the Sisters Desmond give one of their characteristic duets; Les Belles Americaines, vocalists and dancers, in a song and dance, exhibit much skill; Johnson and Bert, in a novel act, "A Queer Customer," cause much laughter by their smart knockabout business; Fred Clarke's Nippers in their clever entertainment, including their boxing exhibition, are as smart as ever; the Brothers Andreassen, acrobats; Miss Kitty Marion, comedienne; Friscari, juggler; and Fred M'Arthur are the remaining turns in a strong programme.

NEWPORT.

LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow's company is playing Under Two Flags here this week, and it is no surprise to find that it is causing widespread interest. Miss Constance Elgin plays Cigarette with a realistic power that is refreshing, and Miss May Pardoe acts with grace and ability the part of Princess Venetia Corona. Mr Mark Blow in the part of Bertie Cecil Royellieu takes full advantage of its dramatic possibilities; Mr Reginald Harley West is satisfactory as Barklie; Mr George Norman-Burt makes a successful Lord Rockingham; and as Colonel Chateauroy Mr Chas. D. Pitt acts with sufficient venom to justify the hatred of the audience. Mr Will Hook is a characteristic Rake. Aunt Rebecca is the curtain-raiser.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr O. Stoll.—Eugene Stratton, heading the bill here this week, is accorded a warm reception. Heeley and Meely, American knockabouts, are clever acrobats and dancers; Peppo's monkeys provide an amusing turn; and J. Coyle is entertaining. The Three Ramoniers give a graceful performance on the trapeze; Fred Russell is a source of much laughter in his ventriloquial entertainment; and Elsie Clare displays a beautiful soprano voice. Other turns are Lily Langtry, who sings in a vivacious manner, and the Fleury Trio of graceful dancers.

NEWQUAY.

VICTORIA HALL.—Mr Chas. Frohman's Sherlock Holmes company is here. Mr Kenneth Rivington appears as the great detective, his calm, resourceful acting easily obtaining for him the premier honours. The rôle of Dr. Watson is embodied by Mr Edward Heanley with natural ease, and as Professor Moriarty Mr Arthur B. Murray has proved himself a skilful exponent of a master criminal. Mr Ernest Grey as James Larrabee depicts the villain in a thoroughly satisfactory manner; Miss Florence Radcliffe gives an earnest reading of the unhappy Alice Faulkner; and Miss Carrie Lacey submits a vivid portrayal of Madge Larrabee. Mr Walter Hicks's efforts as Billy considerably lighten some portions of the play.

NORTHAMPTON.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident Manager, Mr W. J. Andrews. — The return visit of G. R. Sims and H. Pettitt's military drama, In the Ranks, has again demonstrated the clever, consistent, and well-developed illustration of the part of Ruth Herrick, by Miss Edith Blair-Staples. Mr Edward Lloyd is a most commendable Ned Drayton, and the remaining characters are ably represented.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Fred H. Anderson; Acting Manager, Mr Robert Barton.—The programme this week is headed by Austin and Cowan, Australian vocalists. Vi Owen, a paper tearer, is another turn of importance; Carlotti is a good juggler; the Two Radium Girls meet with success; the Clarions are clever; the Schallers are too well known to require further praise; and the business of Tom Beet is thoroughly good throughout. Kioto is again well received.

NORTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—This place of amusement was reopened on Monday evening, under the above management, when Messrs Fred D'Arcy and Fred J. Little's company, with The Executioner's Daughter, attracted a large and appreciative audience. As Mons. Roche Mr Edward M. Hamilton acquitted himself with conspicuous success; Mr George Beverley gave a capital portrayal of Felix Marcus; Mr Wilson Howard was an interesting Paul Rovel; Mr W. H. Sharpe made the most of Kretch; Mr Sinclair Holden scored as Vivian Ormonde; and Mr E. W. Avery was clever as Tom Holmes. Miss Dorothy Riddell in the title-rôle was most effective; Miss May Rosine was a pleasing Sally King; Miss Carlotta Anson was well placed as Felice; and Miss Beattie Moore gave a good representation of Christina.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr William Mould.—Mr J. K. Reynolds and company, with the sketch Conscience, is proving a great draw here. Virto in his musical act have come in for an enthusiastic reception, and Miss Minnie Moran, comedienne and dancer, is clever. The Brothers Obo, comedians, are favourites; Mr Charles Ouseley, comedian and dancer, is well received, and the Bio-Photoscope is still attractive.

NORWICH.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Manager, Mr Fred Morgan.—The New Sapho Syndicate, Limited, is presenting here this week Miss Annie Bell with a well-selected company in Sapho, and her impersonation shows much power and ability. Mr Horatio Sinclair as Jean Gaussin was remarkably fine in his part; Mr Archie Helsby was especially good as Flamant; Mr J. A. Storey deserved every praise as Legraud; and Mr G. Antley won golden opinions as Césaire. Miss Lottie Ray was very natural as Joseph.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt; Musical Director, Captain Selby.—The management present an excellent programme here this week, and crowded houses twice nightly are the result. Seeley and West are good musicians, and their turn is much appreciated. Steve Cooke as a comedian is very successful; Prince Fee-Lung exhibits some clever juggling tricks; Ida Gladstone, a great favourite, is well received; Frederic Neiman, with his minstrels, exhibibits clever ventriloquial powers; Agnese and Arthur Lynch are good as American song illustrators; Miss Fredrica's highly trained performing terriers and pony are an attractive item; Parks' Eton Boys give a capital vocal entertainment, and Mr and Mrs Clifford Bronte are immensely funny in their duologue, Saucy Maid. Mention should also be made of the excellent performance of the band under Captain Selby's bâton.

NOTTINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Howard Finney.—The Earl and the Girl gained the heartiest plaudits on Monday night. Mr Wm. Stephens scored a veritable triumph as the irrepressible Jim Cheese, and his many antics and capital topical song "Satisfied for Life" evoked continuous laughter. Mr Bertie White was exceedingly amusing as the Hon. Crewe Boodle, and Mr William Walsh expressed admirably the choleric nature of Bunker Bliss. Mr Percy Carr sang with considerable fervour, and his acting as Dick Wargrave deserves high commendation. Miss Aimee Grey made a delightfully vivacious exponent of Elphin Haye, singing the "Chimpanzee" song charmingly. Her association with Mr Carr in the song "Cosy Corner Girl" was undoubtedly the hit of the evening. Miss Florence Imeson made a bright and animated Daisy, giving the popular song "Sammy" with refreshing abandon. As Liza Miss Dot Carey acted naturally, and Miss Gladys Fontaine looked every bit her character as the strong lady; and successful representations were also made by Miss Helen Langton, and Messrs Will Hindson, J. C. Graves, and Tom Redmond. There was an exceptionally strong chorus, who sang with spirited effect and acted with unmistakable skill under the bâton of Mr Evelyn Baker.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Chas P. Cooke. —When Woman Hates is a drama full of strong points, but the sensational element is kept well within bounds and the humorous business is capitally worked in. Miss Nettie Ware's company is to be congratulated on their sound work. Miss Ware plays the rôle of Cora Daintry thoughtfully and well, making this complex character stand out to marked advantage. Mr John B. Shinton gives an easy portrayal of the hero, Lieutenant Rokeby, and General Rokeby finds a satisfactory exponent in Mr William Yates. Mr Bensley Evans offers an effective display as the millionaire; Mr Oscar Adye brings out the villainy of Godfrey Lawton with power and discrimination; Miss Jennie Hughes as Marie Rokeby adds much to the success; and Mr Eric Campbell makes his points tell as Bill Smasher. The comedy element has most able exponents in Miss Ida Cunard (Mrs Potts), Miss Sybil Newman (Mrs Growler), Mr Fred Bonstead (Patrick O'Brien), and Mr William Wallace (Alphonse).

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Geo. H. Beagle.—The company of Mr Vivian Grantham gives an excellent representation of Slaves of Passion, a capitally written drama which finds great favour here. Mr John M'Farlane portrays Ivan Dronski with an energy that carries conviction, and his performance is good throughout. Mr Alfred H. Majilton plays Paul De Beaufre with care and reserve, and Mr Vivian Grantham assumes Sir John Hawthorn crisply and cleverly, making a bright and amusing study of this entertaining character. Mr Allan Wilkie embodies the scheming Prince Mazaroff with sufficient force, and Mr Frank Colson submits a fine representation of the genial Dr. Petrovitch. Miss Agnes Imlay brings much dramatic ability to bear upon the part of Zara Dronski, acting with great intensity. Miss Molly Alison Alexander gives a spirited and attractive impersonation of the baroness Valinski, and Miss Madge Seymour meets with favour as the volatile maid Lisette. Mr Frank Ayrton adds to the humour as Harry Dunn, and the minor parts are in good hands.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Hatton Wharton.—Miss Marie Loftus is one of the cleverest of our comediennes, and time only enhances the attractiveness of her performance, especially the pantomime skit, which brings out the imitative powers of Miss Loftus to perfection. W. C. Fields employs some eccentric methods in his juggling, but if anything they serve to heighten his marvellous skill, and the "turn" deservedly draws a tremendous ovation. Fred Harcourt's clever feats of sleight of hand are accomplished with a neatness and finish that can compare with anything of the kind shown here. Minnie Cunningham's unaffected style make her songs the more attractive, and her items are thoroughly enjoyable. The macaws and cockatoos of Mdlle. Marvelle give a dainty entertainment, showing evidence of careful training; and a similar turn by Henri Abdy's canine circus is watched with interest. The "One Leg" song of Fred Lincoln gains him favour, as also the contribution by Nat Travers. Miss Lilian Warren gives a pictorial song prettily; and Katie Weston is suitably rewarded for a song.

OLDHAM.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr George Knowles.—A first-rate variety company here this week includes Miss Amy Augarde, in a song scena, in which she impersonates Napoleon; Walter Stanley, comedian and dancer, is very smart; the Tally-ho Trio provide a novel and enjoyable turn; Rose Harvey is successful as a comedienne; Miss Lillian Lee is in good voice; Edgar Budden is well received in his bone solo and roller skate dancing; Carle and Carmanelli are original and quaint instrumentalists; Barrett and Knowles, comedians, are successful; and the Rinaldo Trio are clever equilibrists.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr Hulme.—A crowded house witnessed the first appearance here of the Negro musical comedy In Dahomey, by Mr Will Marion Cook, the Negro composer, and produced by Messrs Hart and Avery. The catchy music, songs, dances, specialities, and ludicrous situations elicited the appreciation of the audience. Dan Avery and Charles Hart as the Fakirs keep the audience in roars of laughter. Mrs Hart in the part of Mrs Stinger, Miss Bowman as Mrs Lightfoot, and Mrs Freeman as Rosetta play their parts with power and effect, being cleverly assisted by sixty real Negroes in coon songs and choruses, and genuine cake-walks.

GAIETY.—Proprietors, Oldham Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr E. J. Dexter. — An enjoyable programme is here this week, including the Waldrons, in a farcical sketch; Essman, continental juggler; Miss Lily Pender, speciality comedienne; Bob Pearson, in his latest success; Miss Flo Chevalier, comedienne; Wilton Warton, magician and humorist, and the Sylvesters, equilibrists. Raymond's Bioscope is responsible also for an excellent entertainment.

OXFORD.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr C. C. Dorrill.—On Monday Mr Milton Bode's excellent company began a six nights' engagement here with Tommy Atkins, which had a reception as hearty as it was well deserved. Mr Frederick Ross gave a powerful and telling performance as Harold Wilson; Mr G. C. Doughty was admirable as the villainous Captain Maitland; Mr John Nolan was brimful of humour as Sergeant Molloy; and Mr Billy Harman was a quaint and comical Ebenezer Skindle. Miss Lola Patey gave a powerful and sympathetic impersonation of Ruth Raymond; Miss Florrie Vickers was excellent as Elsie Wilson; and Miss Ethel Tinsley was highly amusing as Kate Perkins. The scenery and stage effects were first class.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr H. G. P. Wells.—The Harvest of Sin holds the boards here this week, and is uncommonly well received. Mr Chas H. Lester very cleverly doubles the parts of Harold and Arnold Mainwaring; Mr Sidney Compton does well as George Mainwaring; Mr E. Valentine is a convincing and natural Paul De Brisionere; Mr W. Garrett gives an excellent sketch of character as St. John Haughley; and Mr J. Fulton Millar gives a powerful and realistic rendering of Silas Logan. Miss Pattie Hastings is an interesting and fascinating May Mainwaring; Miss Kathleen Willoughby is successful as Gladys Mainwaring; and Miss Louisa Peach shows genuine dramatic power as Grace, Paul's wife.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY

INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT
49, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer, by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman, July 31st, 1901

Mr A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette, Aug. 2d, 1901

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901

Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual, 1904, reappears with all the features that to metropolitan and provincial playgoers make it invaluable as a work of reference. It again contains a list of new plays and important revivals at the London and suburban theatres, with dates of production to the end of November; new plays submitted in the provinces; the theatrical, musical, and equestrian obituary for the year; and other stage matters concerning which information is often desired. Each branch is excellently classified. What may, for convenience sake, be termed the "useful" portions of the "Annual" are sandwiched by forty short stories by popular actors and entertainers, the interest of these contributions being increased by autographs and portraits.—Daily Chronicle, Jan. 16th, 1904

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual, 1904, contains, as usual, many items and statistics of use and interest to all connected with the stage, and, in addition, a number of sketches and short stories by leading artistes, managers, and others. Among the contributors are J. L. Toole, Dan Leno, George R. Sims, George Robey, Huntley Wright, Harry Randall, Bransby Williams, A. W. Pinero, Louie Freear, Little Tich, George Mozart, and Douglas Crichton. The publication is cheap at a shilling.—Birmingham Daily Gazette, Jan. 16th, 1904

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904

The veteran J. L. Toole has a good story in "The Era" Annual (49, Wellington-street, Strand) a publication which is highly valued by all who have anything to do with the stage. He says:—I was once playing in "Dearer than Life" with Irving and Billington at Leeds. After the performance several gentlemen were in the general room of the hotel where we were staying, and among them a certain Mr Jones, who professed to have a large acquaintance in the profession, and who appeared to have a local reputation as a judge of ages.
"Well, how old," said someone, "would you take Mr Toole to be?"
"Well," said he, "sixty-five, if he's a day."
"Do you know him?" I asked.
"Oh, yes; I know him very well indeed."
"Ah! and how old should you take me to be?"
"Well, I should take you to be forty, if you're a day."
Irving asked Mr Jones if he didn't think Mr Toole was nearer seventy-five than sixty-five. "No," he said; "sixty-five, if he's a day," and the company present seemed to put it down that that would be my age. They had most of them been to the theatre and seen me—for the first time probably—playing an old man; and as it was my first visit to the town, and we were going on by the mail train that night, I had a fancy not to go away and leave them under the impression that I was this very old gentleman. I found that Jones was a decent sort of fellow, and I said to Irving that before I went I should just give him my card and let him know what a mistake he had made. By and bye, when our cab arrived, we said good-night to our casual acquaintances, and, taking Mr Jones aside, I handed him my card, whereupon he said "Oh, indeed!" in a very offensive manner, turned upon his heel, and walked away.
"Well," I said to my friends as we drove away, "that's the most impertinent fellow I think I ever met." Whereupon Billington and Irving went into fits of laughter, and confessed that they had warned Mr Jones that I was continually passing myself off as Toole, and he was to be quite prepared for my handing him a card and trying the imposition upon him.—Leeds and Yorkshire Mercury, Friday, Jan. 22d, 1904.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1904.

WAITING AT PIT DOORS.

It is not surprising that, every now and then, someone should be struck with the idea of alleviating, in some way, the imagined "wrongs" of the people whom one sees on first nights standing for hours outside the doors of our leading London theatres. They are, indeed, extraordinary persons. The mere fatigue of remaining on one's feet for hours is severe enough; and when to this is added the wet and cold which these waiters on the threshold often have to endure, their staunchness and perseverance are wonderful. Baffled by the strangeness of the spectacle, the philanthropist takes refuge in what we may term "counsel's opinion." He calls on persons in authority, and consults them as to what can be done to alter the present arrangements. The replies—the shrewdness of our actor-managers being considered—might have been foreseen. Mr BEERBOHM TREE, for instance, thinks the idea of booking seats in the pit in advance is an excellent one. "As an idea," he agrees with it entirely. He has never seen any reason why the seats in the pit and gallery should not be booked; and certainly has no reason himself against so booking them. But—do the people want it?

Mr GEORGE ALEXANDER is very doubtful, indeed, if they do. As for the trouble, that would be as nothing. Mr ALEXANDER, however, remembers when he was with Sir HENRY IRVING twenty years since at the Lyceum how the great actor-manager in the season of 1885 tried the experiment of booking seats for the pit and gallery there. On referring to the papers of that date, we find the following advertisement:—

LYCEUM.—SPECIAL NOTICE.

With a desire to increase the comfort of the public, all seats in the pit and gallery of this theatre may, during Mr Irving's management, in the future be booked, and the pit and gallery will be reseated for this purpose by Mr J. C. Phipps. The booking-office for these seats will be in the pit passage, and it will be opened from eight o'clock in the morning until six in the evening. Every seat, whether booked or taken at the doors, will be numbered, the occupant receiving a voucher to be retained throughout the evening. These seats can be booked one week in advance from April 27. No fees. Pit, 2s.; gallery, 1s. Mr Irving hopes by this arrangement to put an end to much inconvenience and discomfort hitherto experienced on entering the theatre, and he believes that the possession of a reserved seat throughout the evening will be a boon to the playgoing public.

A somewhat similar notice was inserted in the playbills. Booking commenced at the extra box-office on April 27. The experiment was eminently unsatisfactory all round; and a week after it had begun the manager had to advertise that a change back to the old method would take place on May 18, the earliest day admissible on account of the seats already booked. The return to the old practice was announced as follows:—

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Mr Irving begs respectfully to announce that, in accordance with a generally expressed wish on the part of the public he has determined to restore, from Monday, May 18, the Lyceum pit and gallery to the old form.

Sir HENRY found that the public of that day did not want the new arrangement, which was probably before its time, and they did not hesitate to say so emphatically. They preferred that the cheaper parts of the house should be available for those who could not make their arrangements for an evening's enjoyment a long time ahead; and a certain proportion doubtless preferred the "rough-and-tumble" which used to exist before the establishment at the Lyceum of the queue—then an innovation. The very class of persons attending the pit changed during the experiment; and in the days of the pit and gallery booking it was a common thing to see carriages stop in the Strand and wait whilst the footman was sent up the passage to the pit to purchase tickets. The new class of audience was much less demonstrative than the old, and the actors were not sorry when the old audiences, with their heartier ways, were restored. Sir HENRY learned, at an expense of something over a thousand pounds sterling, a valuable and lasting lesson regarding the British public.

"But," asks the tender-hearted querist of the long-experienced Mr HELMSLEY, "surely you must often receive letters of complaint from weary waiters, especially after cold, wet nights?" "In the whole course of my professional experience," says Mr HELMSLEY, "I have never received one such letter." Mr HENRY DANA, at His Majesty's, is equally convinced, and equally unable to account for the facts. If the "waiters" suffer they suffer in silence.

Yet there must be some explanation of this silent heroism, this voluntary endurance on the part of first-night pittites. The masses cannot always analyse their instincts. They are influenced by inherited superstitions, which can be traced back to primitive ancestors. Now, one of the most universal of all ancient habits of thought is that which regards personal suffering as a tribute to a deity. We find it amongst the Indian devotees who subject themselves to various tortures in honour of Shiva; it runs through all the practices of medieval aceticism. SIMEON STYLITES stood for years on a pillar, until the results were positively unsanitary. We fancy that we perceive in this long suffering, in these weary hours of waiting at theatre doors, a vague reminiscence of painful worship and adoration. It is true that the old notion that the idol was gratified by the spectacle of the sufferings of his worshippers is not now entertained. Even the worst enemies of the much-abused actor-manager do not believe him to be a modern Juggernaut. But the testimony to the love of the worshippers by their sufferings is still strong. What greater proof of a playgoer's admiration for Sir HENRY IRVING can there be than to stand in cold and rain, scorning the scorn of the passers-by; proudly enduring the inclemencies of the weather, and steadfastly, calmly, and cheerfully—waiting for the doors to open.

The English is the only nation which can wait supremely well. Its patience is entirely unaffected and unforced. And this love of bearing and enduring is it a thing to be despised or destroyed by "coddling," at a time when luxury and ease are stealthily invading all classes and sapping the foundations of the national stamina? Surely not. Our managers show their sound good sense by adopting a tentative policy on this particular question. They have erected shelters; they have established the queue. To do more would be superfluous; to do less would be difficult, considering the stern proof of affection given by these long and weary vigils.

At present the occupation of one of the seats in a front row of the pit on a first night is a proof of endurance and staunchness of which the occupant may well be proud. It is a tribute to our national love of "hardness," of our instinctive contempt for the soft, the luxurious, and the facile. The seat in the front row is the reward of stamina, of unalterable resolve. It places the holder only a few feet worse off in respect to seeing and hearing than the stallite who lounges in—usually ten minutes late—to his numbered seat. We say that "at present" a good seat in the pit is a testimony to patient strength. We regret to notice, however, that gold is exerting its influence even in this department. We refer to the effeminate practice of hiring messenger boys to hold places for playgoers who "turn up" at the last moment, and, like the wren who rose to a height on the eagle's back and then began to soar "on its own"—its own initiative, not its own back—take the places of their hired and falsely faithful substitutes. We confess we should like to see this sort of evasion rendered impossible. There is a story of a soldier who fought in the American Civil War, at a time when by payment it was possible to get a combatant to replace you. He was boasting of his martial exploits, when a civilian observed to him, scornfully: "What are you bragging about? You came back, while I—well, the bones of my substitute still whiten the clearings in the Wilderness." No doubt the person who hires a messenger boy or other individual may, in a sense, glory in that person's fatigue and chilliness. He hires him, and his creditable sufferings into the bargain. But 'tis a poor, shallow pride after all. The incense is incense; but it is not acceptable in the temple. There can be no kinship between the man with the substitute and the man with aching feet, who feels that he has honestly won the laurels he wears. Certainly, if ever again, as has more than once occurred, a leading actress, like the ministering angel that she is, sends out bread and butter and coffee to the dwellers on the threshold of the pit and gallery, we think that the refreshments should strictly be limited to those who have borne the "winter and rough weather," the squeezing, and the suspense.

After the experiment had been tried by such an experienced manager as Sir HENRY IRVING, we should have thought that it would have been quite unnecessary to bring up the subject again.

THE annual stock season commenced at the Terriss Theatre on Monday, with The Shaughraun. A powerful company has been engaged. Mr Campion Abbott appeared as Robert Ffolliott, Mr John M. Traighton as Father Doolan, Mr Felix Pitt as Corry Kinchela, Miss Rosemary Rees as Artie O'Neale; while Conn was effectively played by the capable comedian-manager Mr Newman Maurice. As a further attraction the management are weekly engaging two or three well-known variety turns to supplement the bill, and these are this week headed by that favourite comedienne Miss Marie Collins, the others being the Sisters Bartholomew, duettists and dancers, and Mr Phil Rayner, a clever comedian and mimic. A comical absurdity entitled The Soldier and the Policeman opens the evening's entertainment.

MR CHARLES H. BOWMAKER, late acting-manager, secretary, and treasurer of the Surrey Theatre, has had a managerial career that has not only given him an exceptional experience, but has gained him a host of friends among those he has come in contact with. From 1889 to 1893 he was lessee and manager of the Alexandra Theatre, Southend. Then he took over the Empire Theatre, Southend, as manager from 1894 till 1901, when he came to London; and from 1902 till the close of the Surrey Theatre in July last was associated with Mr George Conquest in the management of the Surrey.

MR REGINALD F. TURNER, who has concluded a period of long and popular management of the Grand Theatre, Luton, built the house about seven years ago, and it must be a sore trial to his feelings to sever his connection with it.

PAISLEY.

PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile.—A Hot Night is drawing good houses here, and, well represented by the Milton Rays company, it certainly deserves liberal patronage. Several catchy songs, &c., are included, and the capital choruses are given with tuneful effect. The Eldorado Quartet of lady dancers are encored for their graceful dancing. With such an up-to-date comedian as Mr Rolando Martin there is bound to be a continuity of fun; he deservedly scores heavily as William Whiffles. Mr Arthur Milton comes in for a full share of approbation, and keeps the fun at high pressure in his assumption of Frank Frith; Mr Harry T. Butler contributes a comical reading of Mark Maybury; Mr Francis Hope is droll and amusing as Fontenoy Flutterwig; Mr Maxwell Stewart as Professor Sheerman is eminently successful, his singing being excellent; and Mr James Sherwin submits a robust and breezy presentment of Capt. Dionysius Drake. Miss Susie Beavan is distinctly happy and pleasing as Polly Drake; Fanny Frith and Mary Maybury are charmingly played by Miss Madge Wrae and Miss Jessie Wrae; Miss Adeleine Montagu as Mrs Fontenoy Flutterwig acts with pronounced ability; and Miss Clara Reid sustains the rôle of Lucy Lorrimer with a brightness and spirit quite refreshing.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr Delno Fritz.—A capital programme submitted this week includes turns by the following:—Henderson Stanley Quartet, vocalists, instrumentalists, and dancers; Connie Milton, dainty comedienne; Walter Gurney, comedian; Dale and D'Argan, comedy acrobatic conjurers; Lily Mason, serio and dancer; Shavo, expert and comedy juggler; and Tom Bassett, Shakesperian comedian.

PENTRE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Owners, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr Eugene Hardie.—Miss Cissie Moxon's company is here this week in the musical comedy A Trip to Rum-Tum. Mr W. Garvey is responsible for the drolleries of Larry O'Hooligan; Ebenezer, Hezekiah, &c., is cleverly interpreted by Mr Jim Woods; Mr Chas. Russell creates screams of laughter by his portrayal of Cecil Toft; Billy Hooligan and Peggy Hooligan are capably sustained by Mr W. S. Hutchinson and Miss Kitty Jones respectively; Miss Lily Mayfield is exceedingly good as Angelina Toft; and Miss Marjorie Manifold is a capital Percy Vere. Miss Cissie Moxon is a charming Flossie Nixie, her songs being of the highest order. The Saxon Troupe and Miss Tyrell and Miss L. Arch are exceptionally clever in their graceful cake-walk dance. Mr Haydn James wields the bâton effectively.

PENZANCE.

ST. JOHN'S HALL.—The Ben Mar Troubadours were accorded a grand benefit night here on Monday as a fitting wind-up of their successful season on the front for the past three months. The performance was under the distinguished patronage of his Worship the Mayor, and the house was filled in every part by a thoroughly friendly and appreciative audience. No fewer than twenty-six items were presented. The troubadours worked hard, and conspicuous among this little coterie of talented artistes was Mr Harry Benet, whose songs, general make-up, and quaint methods have distinctly marked him out as a favourite with local audiences. Mr Sydney Atherton's fine voice always meets with warm appreciation, and equally meriting approval is the sweet tenor voice of Mr Will Newton. Mr Alf Shaw and Mr T. S. Warren are comedians who never fail to raise a hearty laugh, whilst Mons. Jean De Roy is a ventriloquist of much ability who works his various figures with much cleverness. A good word must be spoken for Mr J. Coulton, the musical director of the troubadours, as upon his unflagging efforts much of the success of this company has depended.

PERTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge.—Messrs J. K. Murray and J. M. Dawson's company is here this week in Driven from Home. Mr J. K. Murray as Anthony Raybrook ably impersonates the pride-wounded parent; Mr Frank Wilton effectively acts the rôle of Jabez Thomas; Mr Jack Dawson, in the part of Walter Hatherleigh, struggles manfully against trying adversity; Mr Cyril Harrison scores in the subtle part of Geoffrey Waring; Mr C. Quinton Fulford plays the heroic part of weak-minded Willie, an outcast, with effect; Mr Jack M'Kenzie is decidedly entertaining as John Anderson; and Mr A. J. Williams cleverly portrays a bad sample of British workman as Dick Saunders. Miss Alice Metcalfe is seen to advantage as Barbara Ashdown, Raybrooke's housekeeper, and afterwards his wife; Miss May M'Kenzie creates a very agreeable diversion from the pathetic element as Margaret Baillie, afterwards Mrs Anderson; Little Marcella is worthy of praise as the Nipper; Miss Lydia Donovan, in the rôle of Laura Baybrook, scores a huge success, and evokes the sympathy of the audience; subsequently, on her appearance as young Walter Hatherley, she is no less successful. Messrs Wilson, Waddington, C. Stanhope, Gilny Aird, and George Thompson ably fill the minor parts.

CITY HALL.—Walker's Cinématograph and concert company, under the personal direction of Mr Walker, was in Perth on the 2nd and 3rd inst., and gave two capital musical, vocal, and pictorial evening entertainments to appreciative audiences on both occasions.

PORTSMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—Overflowing houses are the order here this week to welcome Mr George Edwardes's able company in The Orchid. The play is presented in a brilliant manner, and reflects the greatest credit on all concerned. Miss Coralie Blythe does full justice to the part of Lady Violet Anstruther; Miss Irene Verona makes the most of the amusing Caroline Vokins; Josephine Zaccary is played by Miss Gertrude Gilliam in a painstaking and capable way; Mr Lawrence Grossmith impersonates the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour in his well-known drily humorous manner; Mr George Gregory fairly revels in the part of Meakin; and Mr Ellis Ogilvie's Mr Aubrey Chesterton is a most admirably drawn character.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—This week we have here C. and F. Renad's company with the musical pantomimical comedy The Swiss Express. Mr Charles Renad and Mr Frederick Renad as the eccentric servants, James and John, are highly diverting, their absurdities making the audience roar. Mr Wilford Bailey as Dr. Gondimar Gull is very amusing, and Miss Marie Millward as the bride, Virginia, acts with a due sense of her responsibilities. Mr George Martin as Bob Rollingstone, Mr Alec Wylie as Dudley Green, Mr H. Alexander as Mr Septimus Squeeze, and the Four Brighton Girls, vocalists and dancers, also lend valuable aid.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—The programme submitted this week by the management is a good one. The Jackson Family, with their refined musical entertainments, are a great draw; Verno and Voyce, popular singing comedians, give an admirable turn; La Belle Nello, graceful contortionist, is very clever; Fred Percy, Ethiopian delineator, is an attraction; Charles Bignell, popular comedian, sings some good songs; and Charles Stevens, character vocalist, is another excellent turn. Also appearing are Harry Maxam, versatile comedian; and Ethel Loftus, the youthful actress. Payne's Photo-Bioscope shows some exceedingly good new pictures.

PETERBOROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. Darville Vernon.—The Sin of Her Childhood is being presented here this week. As Stephen Hazzel Mr Austen Milroy displays great ability, and Mr Chas. Fancourt makes the most of his opportunities as the Rev. Alan Grey. Mr Fred Elvin as Barney O'Reilly has ample scope for the display of his undoubted talents as a comedian, and is well supported by Miss May Pratt as Eliza Muggins. Mrs May Fulton gives a good interpretation of May Hazzel, and Little Dott Moss is clever as Hannah Spry.

PONTYPRIDD.

ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr Rex Dooley.—Mr Bert Wentworth's talented company opened here on Monday in That Woman From France. Intense interest was manifested in Miss Marie De Roos' admirable assumption of Camille Nicholl. Chief masculine honours were appropriated by Mr Jerrold Heather, who gives a fine interpretation of John Beaumont. Mr Bernard Dunston is worthy of the highest praise for his droll Latimer Louder; Mr Annerley Hely is the possessor of undoubted ability as Philip Harrington; Sir Edmund is admirably portrayed by Mr John B. Murray; Miss Evelyn Marrable is a sympathetic Beryl Stancliffe; Miss Lola Tempest displays merit as Martha Williams; Miss Amy Maitland is a charming Winnie; and Mr H. Leonard Williams is painstaking as Cecil Charrington.

PRESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Stephen Pritt.—The D'Oyly Carte principal répertoire opera company affords delightful entertainment here this week, and is drawing good houses. On Monday The Gondoliers was staged. Mr C. H. Workman was exceedingly droll as the Duke of Plaza Toro; and Mr Strafford Moss acquitted himself well as Luiz. The Don Alhambra Del Bolero of Mr Fred Billington was an excellent impersonation. Marco Palmieri and Guiseppe Palmieri had two admirable representatives in Mr Pacie Ripple and Mr Albert Kavanagh respectively. Miss Theresa Rassam made a stately Duchess of Plaza Toro; Miss Bessie Mackenzie was well suited as Casilda; and Miss Ida Dwelley very successfully delineated Inez. Miss Norah Maguire gave a charming portrayal of Gianetta; and in the rôle of Tessa Miss Jessie Rose was equally pleasing. Great praise must be accorded to the chorus and band. Other operas to be given during the week are The Mikado, Iolanthe, Patience, and The Yeomen of the Guard.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Sawyer and Woodruff.—At this theatre an enjoyable variety entertainment is provided this week. The Cabarets, with their ten performing dogs, give a capital exhibition. La Petite (Ellie and Edgar), although quite young, are expert wire-walkers. Duncan is a clever manipulator and juggler with Indian clubs. Oswald, equilibrist and staircase performer, does some remarkable hand jumping. The Waffatangs (Bud and Chink), coloured singers, receive well deserved applause for their coon songs and sand dance, Bud possessing a wonderful voice. Harry Hayton causes much amusement. Mdlle. Henrietta is a charming vocalist and 'cello player. Gilling shows his ventriloquial powers to great advantage. The Freans, whose songs evoke much laughter, are encored for their refined dances; and the Saletos contribute a brilliant acrobatic display.

RAMSGATE.

AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr Henry Bowman.—Mr F. S. Gilbert and company have been appearing here this week in an operatic répertoire. On Monday evening Maritana was given, the performance being a complete musical success. Mr Gilbert sang admirably as Don Cæsar, and Miss Constance St. Bride made a charming Maritana. Mr Karl Mora did well as Don Jose, and Miss Cecilia Waldron's contralto voice lent fine effect to the musical numbers of the part of Lazarillo. The other rôles were admirably acted. On Tuesday The Bohemian Girl was in the bill, with Mr Gilbert as Thaddeus and Miss Vera Vizard as Arline, a part in which she displayed much ability. Miss Waldron's singing as the Gipsy Queen was much admired. On Wednesday Faust drew a large audience. The title-rôle was impersonated in accomplished fashion by Mr Gilbert, Mr H. G. Place making a fine Mephistopheles, and Madame Marie D'Alcourt an effective Marguerite. On Thursday The Daughter of the Regiment was put on. The company's engagement concludes on Saturday.

VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Herbert Jay; Acting-Manager, Mr N. Arthur Hornby.—The Marriage of Kitty has been given on each evening at the "Pav." by Mr. Frank Wilson's clever company very pleasingly. Miss Vera Fordyce appears as Kitty and Miss Kate Harwood is capital as the French lady. Mr Wilson does excellently as Sir Reginald Belsize, and the remaining parts are handled with skill. On the afternoons of the week (with the exception of Thursday, when The Marriage of Kitty was performed), the well-known party of entertainers, the Scarlet Mr E's have been delighting big audiences with their varied and high-class programme. The Jester has made himself a special favourite. At each performance. Jury's bioscope pictures have evoked much admiration.

MARINA AND PROMENADE PIER.—Proprietors, Ramsgate Marina Pier and Lift Company; Manager, Mr H. Smith; Entertainment Manager, Mr Fred Pollard.—At the Marina Theatre on Tuesday evening Mr Fred Pollard, the popular entertainment manager, took his complimentary benefit, a large audience assembling in honour of the occasion. An attractive and varied programme was arranged, and many smart turns were given. In the course of the proceedings Mr Pollard suitably expressed his thanks to his friends before and behind the curtain for their kind patronage and assistance. He also spoke of his indebtedness to Mr Smith, the company's local manager, for the help he had rendered during the season.

RADCLIFFE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr Jas. Boothman.—Mr F. Jarman's company in the new Anglo-Russian drama In Dark Siberia is here. Mr Fred W. Mussett displays talent in the characters of Capt. Victor Gordon and Kobe, and Mr Charles Osborne is commendable as Major Waroff. Mr H. Romsay is also effective as Col. Nevski. Serg. Petrovitch, the funny part, is well taken by Mr Harry Seymour; and Miss Maud Murray is satisfactory as Ivanova; Miss Cecilia Ransome is convincing as the Hebrew boy; and Miss Helen M'Culloch is graceful and pleasing as Princess Orloff.

RAWTENSTALL.

GRAND THEATRE.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr J. Ellis Miller.—Messrs Haddon and Loader's company on Monday opened here on a return visit with The Greatest Scoundrel Living. A good house favourably received the performance, which was an excellent one. As the hero, Frank Fielding, Mr John Cecil gave a thrilling exposition, and was exceedingly well supported by Mr Jack Haddon as the villain, Percival Haynes. Messrs Wilton Bedford and Harry Liddle as Tom Masters and Sam Grubb greatly amused the audience, Miss Lottie Pearce as Bessie Bright lending valuable assistance in providing the humorous side of the piece. As Rosa Moulton Miss Nellie Thorne Hallam proved a great success, her portrayal being sympathetic and artistic. Miss Marie Rayner as Mabel Cross gave a powerful interpretation, and the remaining characters were severally well sustained. Miss Pearce contributed an enjoyable song and dance, which was deservedly encored.

READING.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr W. E. Barnett.—Messrs Hardie and Von Leer's original company is paying a pleasing return visit here with Two Little Vagabonds. Miss Laura Hansen plays pathetically as Marion Thornton; Miss Lenna Vernon is good as Nurse Randall; as also is Miss Marie Pritchard as Biddy Mullins. Mr J. W. Henson scores heavily as George Thorton; as Captain Darville Mr Wolston Foster acts with ability; Mr Alfred Russell causes amusement as Bill Mullins; Leeson is well portrayed by Mr Jack Royal; Mr Frank Gordon and Mr Fred Archer as Dido Bunce and The Coughdrop respectively make the most of their opportunities; and a good reception is accorded Miss May Hart as Dick and Miss Dorothy Marsdin as Wally.

ROCHDALE.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Smith and Lee; Business-Manager, Mr S. L. Lee.—A strong programme is submitted here this week. Miss May Geraldine, comedienne; Texas Hathie, tight rope performer; the Four Herberts, jolly Californian farmers; John Lloyd, the singing collier; Miss Flo Hilton, male impersonator; Bros. Leone, light weight athletes; the Fordyces, juvenile artistes; the Two Rubies, comediennes and dancers; and Kyoto, with his mysterious box and dog, make up a most enjoyable evening.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Hargreaves; Acting Manager, Mr Frank Hargreaves.—Lydia Yeamans heads the list here, her mimicry and vocalism being efficiently accompanied by Mr F. J. Titus. Arthur Bright, comedian and Milanese piper; Simosa San, juggler, &c.; W. H. Morgan, descriptive vocalist; Weston and May, in Married Life; May Fallowfield, coon and English songstress; the Brooklands, vocalists and dancers; Mondraz and Raymond, comedians; and Baroni and Kemp, protean artistes, complete a capital bill of fare.

ROTHERHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. Manning.—Miss Gladys Silvester and Mr Fletcher Sansome's company is filling the bill here this week with Jack's Sweetheart, a musical comedy. Mr Cecil W. Parke is heard to advantage as Jack Tremayne, and Mr Fred Loseby is amusing as Hon. Bertie Babington. Mr Will Percy is a versatile Samuel Sherlock Spotter, and Mr Murray Yorke as Captain Dugard is a typical villain. Mr Edward Houghton as Sir Henry Stanhope is a breezy Admiral, and Messrs Michael Hastings and Harry Hanley are highly diverting as Sammy Spriggs and Billy Buttons respectively. Misses Madge Western and Annette Swiles are responsible for successful musical numbers as Lady Dolly Dartley and Miss Angela Sweet, and Miss Augusta Rochfort scores as Mrs Hopkins. Miss Jennie Clare as Sally is well received, Miss Gladys Silvester as May Leslie gives a capital rendition of the part, her singing and dancing being greeted with well-merited applause.

RUGBY.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Kingsley.—Mr Frank Curzon's company appeared on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings with Glittering Gloria. Mr John James is well suited in the part of Jack James, and causes much merriment, Mr Stanley Arthur as Archie Toddleby is very humorous, and as Zebedee Poskett Mr Haughton Macaulay is excellent and is responsible in no small degree for the undoubted success of the comedy. Miss Eva Bertram as Gloria Grant, or Glittering Gloria, looks charming and gives a graceful, artistic, and amusing rendering. Mr C. W. Hulse is greatly to be praised as Colonel Gallegher, and Mr Gerard Clare as Algernon Entwistle is very good. Miss Lilian Williams is sweet and effective as Mrs Jack James, and Miss Dorothy Duncan as Dorothy Kenworthy is charming and vivacious; both ladies work hard and make the most of their opportunities. Miss Mary Bunn is good as Sarah, and Mr Charles Williams is very funny as Mr Griddletop. Mr F. Bentley and Mr Percy Witzer are both excellent as Samuel Slapton and Robert Shreve. Onions as Garibaldi, an earnest bulldog, looks the part.

RUNCORN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr H. W. Caddick.—Mr Hugh Osborne and company are here in the drama entitled The Sins of the Fathers. Mr Wallace Eastlake as George Armitage is excellent; Mr Max Coutts scores as Sebastian Brandt; Mr Cecil Ravenswood is responsible for a forceful and finished study of Jim Hewitt; and Mr Arthur Traill is a praiseworthy Mr Harmsworth Comedy and tragedy combined are introduced to an acceptable degree by Mr Harry E. Thorpe as Deuteronomy Smith and Mr Charles Locke as Justin Thyme. A standing feature of the play is the powerful and exceedingly clever acting of Miss Beryl Ravenswood as Camille Leblanc; Miss Dorothy Routh is well received as Edith Harmsworth; Miss Edith Le Ray is successful as Polly, and introduces well-executed dances; and Little Miss Lulu Bowes must also be commended for her interesting juvenile work.

RYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Bannister Howard; Business-Manager, Mr J. Westbrook Poole.—During the first three nights of the week Murray King and Clark's company presented Basil Hood's play, Sweet and Twenty, which was exceedingly well received. The piece holds the attention of the audience till the fall of the curtain. This is greatly due to the excellent acting of Mr Robert Milsted and Mr Lionel Glenister as the brothers; and of Miss Rosalie Jacobi as Joan. Mr Geo. Miller makes a good character study of the ponderous cleric; and Mr Murray is funny as his eccentric odd man. On Thursday Norman V. Norman's company presented Nell Gwyn.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. C. Harrison.—Mr Fred L. Connynghame and company occupy the boards here this week with The Best of Luck and A Mother's Love. On Monday, when the first-named was played, Mr Connynghame displayed great dramatic ability and versatility as Captain Robert Bruce. Mr Arthur Rose submitted a good portrait of Ralph Murdoch. P.C. Jaggins and Bob Roberts were portrayed respectively by Mr Francis Stewart and Mr Willie Barrett in a humorous manner; Mr Chas. Dunbar as Matthew Merryweather and Mr Tom W. Ford as Colonel Bruce were capably interpreted; Gwendoline Murdoch was artistically drawn by Miss Violet Mearee; Miss Laurie A. A. Pardy was a pleasing Dorothy Dornton; Miss Lallah Davis, a satisfactory Kitty Hawthorn; and Little Bertha Hanbury, a clever Ruth.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

ON Monday last an extraordinary meeting of shareholders and directors took place at the New Grand Music Hall, Clapham junction. The result of the meeting is to the effect that Mr Walter Gibbons has made an arrangement with the shareholders to pay a dividend of 8 per cent. for a certain period, he to have the option of purchasing the hall at a total sum of £50,000. Mr Gibbons has already placed £5,000 in the hands of the directors as a deposit, and by the arrangement must complete his purchase within twenty-one years. Among the shareholders present last Monday were to be seen Mr Joe Elvin, Mr Harry Randall, Mr Wal Pink, Miss Jennie Mills, Miss Nellie Wilson, and Harry Phillips. Mr Fred Williams officiated as chairman.

MR WALTER GIBBONS will run the Grand, Clapham, on the two houses a-night plan, and he has now completed an arrangement by which the Palace, Croydon, passes into his possession. He contemplates many structural alterations at the latter house, and intends shortly to convert it into one of the handsomest houses in the outer metropolitan area. Mr Gibbons now controls the fortunes of the Islington Empire, the Royal, Holborn; the Grand, Clapham; the Duchess, Balham; and the Palace, Croydon. We shall soon hear of a Gibbons circuit.

MR CHARLES COBORN, who this day completes his third consecutive and phenomonally successful season of three weeks at the Britannia Pier, Great Yarmouth, will next week appear at the Gaiety, Birmingham, for the first time under the present management. He is booked to give recitals in Canada, commencing at the Massey Hall, Toronto, on Tuesday, Oct. 11, but he will not be away long, as he returns to fulfil engagements on the Moss Circuit and others in November.

MR COBORN takes with him letters of recommendation to the colony, amongst which the following, from Archdeacon Sinclair, calls for special notice:—"To the Bishops, clergy, and others in Canada.—I have great pleasure in introducing Mr Charles Coborn, who is about to visit Canada. Mr Coborn is a popular entertainer of the best and highest class in England. The people need amusements, and it is therefore necessary that these amusements should be in good taste and without reproach. Mr Coborn's songs and recitations, while full of fun and humour, are entirely free from coarseness and vulgarity, and represent the grotesque and unexpected aspects of life with a light and good-humoured touch. Apart from that, Mr Coborn has done a great deal in the cause of charity and philanthropy, for which a large number of clergy and leaders of such work owe him a strong debt of gratitude. Any kindness and courtesy shown to Mr Coborn during his stay in Canada will be well placed and warmly felt.—WILLIAM SINCLAIR, Archdeacon of London and Canon of St. Paul's Cathedral."

MR COBORN'S many friends, professional and other, will heartily wish him a prosperous journey and a safe return to his native land. This will make his second visit to the colony, so he is not altogether unfamiliar with the country and its ways and requirements. We believe that Mrs Coborn will accompany the adventurous Charles.

MR DAN LENO is to return to the London Pavilion on Monday week for an exclusive engagement. He promises the production of two entirely new songs. The return of the King's Jester to the popular house in Piccadilly-circus will be very welcome to his large host of London admirers.

MR FRANK GLENISTER is enjoying a few days' holiday, in which he is combining business with pleasure. During his absence Mr William Cobbett is in command.

MR HERMANN FINCK, who, with his wife and family, has been seeking reinvigoration in Margate, has returned to his duties at the Palace, where the selections played by his fine orchestra are always a feature of the excellent programmes.

THE annual report of the Music Hall Home shows that that institution is in a very satisfactory financial position. Since last November the Home has been removed to 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, were there are seven inmates. There is a substantial balance at the bank, and the general interest shown by the profession in the fund is very encouraging. The committee tender sincere thanks to the M.H.A.R.A. for their generous donations, the directors of the Camberwell Palace for the free use of the hall for the annual matinée, Mr Bob Hutt for organising the comedians' walk, Mr Walter Hassan (of the Hippodrome, Liverpool), Atlas and Vulcana for their grand collection during their Australian tour, and also the managers and proprietors for allowing the collecting boxes to be placed in their various halls. Miss Nellie Wilson heads the card collections with £8. The general meeting will be held at the Camberwell Palace on Wednesday next at 3 0 p.m. Mr Thomas Barrasford has promised to take the chair.

THAT most modern of conjurors, Mr Ralph Dean, from the States, who is to appear on Monday at the Palace Theatre, gave a private performance before a number of members of the Press at that house on Friday (yesterday) afternoon. Mr Dean, who was the success of a season at Proctor's, New York, will startle his audience on Monday by boiling a kettle on a block of ice, and he offers £500 to anyone who can prove that the trick is brought about by the aid of chemicals. His culinary feats are even more extraordinary. Mr Dean pours apparently boiling water upon some eggs, and immediately they are frozen into blocks of ice that are as brittle as glass and as hard as steel. He manufactures ice cream in thirty seconds in a chafing dish; he can convert grapes into hailstones in thirty seconds; and he can wash quicker than the quickest laundress. Borrowing a hat for a washtub he soaks handkerchiefs and other things in what looks like boiling water. When he calmly returns these articles to the audience fifteen seconds later they are quite free from moisture. He can burn ice, and he will turn paraffin oil to ice in a glass tube, and then, lighting the ice, makes a paraffin candle. There are many other tricks in Mr Dean's repertory; but these are sufficient to show that his turn is one of the most complete novelties we have had for years. He is exclusively engaged by the Palace proprietors at a very large salary, and is being cleverly boomed by the astute young business-manager, Mr Alfred Butt.

THE eighth annual concert in aid of the fund for the relief of needy survivors of the Light Brigade charge at Balaclava will be held at the Alhambra on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 22. The services of many well-known artistes have been secured, and Mrs Brown-Potter has consented to recite Lord Tennyson's well-known lines on the "Charge," the survivors of the gallant six hundred being present on the stage. Every penny received will be applied for the benefit of the survivors, without any deduction whatever, all expenses being paid by the founder of the fund.

IN the Court of Chancery, on Wednesday, in the case of Hilton v. Maskelyne, the motion, which is an application for an injunction to restrain Mr Maskelyne, the well-known illusionist, from increasing the height of St. George's Hall, Langham-place, stood over, the parties having an arrangement under consideration. Mr W. Alison Russell appeared in support of the motion.

MR JESSE HEWITT, who has been assisting Mr Peter Watson at the Palace, Manchester, for the last seven years, was married on Thursday to Miss West, of Longsight, at the Octagon Church, Stockport-road, Manchester. The bride, who is not connected with the profession, was attired in ivory white satin, and was attended by six bridesmaids in white silk. The wedding presents were handsome and numerous. The happy pair have been the recipients of many hearty congratulations from friends in and out of the profession.

MR GEO. ZALVA, of the Scarborough and Barrow-in-Furness Hippodromes, in addition to running two places of amusement, is also conducting a variety agency, and has the booking for the Yarmouth and Lowestoft Hippodromes, in which he is interested. During Lady Londesborough's Society Theatricals at the Scarborough Hippodrome Mr Zalva was commissioned by Lord Londesborough to supervise the arrangements generally. That he did so with satisfaction is proved by the fact that after all expenses have been paid the handsome sum of over £300 will be handed over to local charities. Mr Zalva, who is only thirty years of age, was for many years the head of the well-known Zalva Trio of wire performers.

THE Borough Theatre, North Shields, starts on Sept. 26 as a variety house with two performances nightly, and the sole proprietor has placed the bookings in the hands of Mr Harry Burns, of Burns's Agency. This enterprising gentleman must have his hands pretty full just now, as he is entrusted with the bookings of the Empress Varieties, Hartlepool; the Tivoli, South Shields; and now the theatre above-mentioned. By-the-way, the owners are all councillors—Councillor Everton, Councillor Hall, and Councillor Jefferson.

MR A. W. MATCHAM, the highly esteemed manager of the Birmingham Empire, returned to his duties on Saturday last from an enjoyable holiday jaunt at Margate. He is looking extremely well and not a little bronzed; and is being congratulated by his many friends on his improved appearance.

IT is well known that J. W. Rowley is an expert at repartee. At a provincial music hall recently he made some remark to the audience about a donkey cart, thereupon a bright obstreperous individual in the audience shouted "Where's the donkey?" Rowley paused a moment in his business, and then quietly said "Look in the glass."

THE annual staff outing in connection with the Grand Varieties, Manchester, took place last Sunday, the rendezvous being Croft, a beautiful country place near Culcheth, Lancashire. A large party made the journey in the very best of weather. Excellent arrangements had been made by Mr Geo. Prince, the advertising manager. Thanks must be given also to Mr H. C. Arnold, jun., manager, and other gentlemen for their successful efforts.

DIVIDENDS of six per cent. on the preference shares and five per cent. on the ordinary were what the shareholders of the Star Theatre of Varieties, Limited (better known as the Empire), Dublin, had passed to them at their recent annual meeting. Mr Adam Findlater presided, and, in moving the adoption of the report, hoped that the shareholders would be pleased with the year's working of the theatre, as he and other directors were. Mr Loftus Walsh thought, after waiting for four years for a dividend on the ordinary shares, that they ought to deal with the ordinary shareholders more generously. Instead of five per cent. they should get ten per cent, or at least seven and a-half per cent. The chairman, in reply, said by paying the present dividend there would be more confidence in the concern.

AN amusing story comes from a new Palace not a hundred miles from Epping Forest. This week a sketch is being played, in which it is necessary to have the stage well filled with people. Wherever the popular actor who runs the show appears he engages a crowd of local talent. So, one day at the end of last week, a notice was posted outside the theatre to the effect that "Fifty supers and fifty children" were wanted. It had not been long there when a poor, hungry-looking woman, timidly approached the livery-clad linkman on the pavement and asked: "If you please, sir, can you tell me what they mean by 'fifty suppers for fifty children?'"

SATURDAY last being the occasion of the annual hospital buttonhole day at the Hartlepools, Messrs Bliss and Bliss, with their usual good-natured liberality, set themselves to work, and invaded the streets, hotels, cars, and stations with their jingling boxes, their appeal resulting in a satisfactory addition to the funds.

MESSRS BEANLAND AND BATH write:—"Your correspondent states that we have dissolved partnership. As this is slightly misleading, we should like you to make it known through your columns that we are about to dissolve partnership, but shall fulfil existing contracts."

ON Wednesday evening the Southend Kursaal presented a beautiful picture, when another successful confetti fête and fancy-dress carnival was held. The spectators numbered many thousands, and the costumes of the dancers were original and picturesque. Dick Whittington and the Good Fairy made a charming couple, and much merriment was caused by the antics of the Cat. The programme included a cake-walk competition, in which the awards were decided by the audience, the couple receiving the most applause taking the award.

The contest was a keen one, and much enthusiasm prevailed. The youthful dancers were adepts at their art, and introduced an infinite variety of steps. The fete was efficiently organised by Mr Charles A. Barnett, and Mr A. Cater carried out the duties of M.C. with his usual tact and courtesy. Mr Sidney Childs, the genial manager of the Kursaal, was assiduous in looking after the comfort of his numerous guests.

MISS ROSIE ADAMS (the daughter of Harry Adams, of On Guard fame) made a palpable hit at the Oxford, Middlesbrough, last week with a répertoire of original songs written by her father. The young lady opens in town on Monday.

A NUMBER of the members of the Union Cyclistes Internationale paid a visit to the Empire on Thursday evening, their cycling costumes making a strong contrast against the more sombre black of the evening dress worn by many of the habitués. Several of those who had in the afternoon competed in the world's championships at the Crystal Palace were also present at the Empire and the other West-end places of amusement.

THE Brighton Hippodrome Football Club held a general meeting on Thursday last, Sept. 1. The secretary announced that Mr Thomas Barrasford had kindly consented to become the president of the club. The following officers were elected:—Captain, A. R. Hollands; vice-captain, D. Dwain; hon. treasurer, Chas. W. Johnson; hon secretary, B. J. Brown; assistant hon. secretary, T. Gaitley. An attractive list of fixtures has been arranged, and a first-class and convenient ground secured. The secretary is also endeavouring to arrange some mid-week matches with a few of the London music hall and theatre teams. The club anticipates a most successful season, as the team contains some first-class players

THE Oxford announces the special engagement of Mr George Gray in that much-discussed sketch, The Fighting Parson, for Monday next.

MISS VESTA TILLEY has returned from her holiday in splendid health, and commences her autumn provincial tour at the Nottingham Empire on Monday. As this tour will be Miss Tilley's first appearance in the provinces since her return from America, we may expect to hear that she has succeeded in breaking her previous records at the different towns she visits, for although London claims her as an "idol," the provinces have long held a warm corner in their hearts for this charming artiste, whose appearance among them never fails to pack the theatres from floor to ceiling. Miss Tilley returns to London at Christmas to the Tivoli, in spite of the many tempting offers made by theatrical managers for her services in pantomime.

AT Marlborough-street Police-court on Monday, Mr Hedderwick, solicitor, made, as arranged, a second application for a summons against the Oxford for producing what is alleged to be a "stage play," called The Belle of the Orient. Mr Kennedy, having read through the information containing the facts put forward by the prosecution, pointed out that the proceedings were against a limited company, and that it was usual for the secretary or some other officer of the company to attend the court. Mr Hedderwick replied that he could show an authority which enabled a limited company to be summoned. Mr Blackmore, secretary to the Theatrical Managers' Association, who are prosecuting, having sworn to the information, the summons was granted. At the request of Mr Hedderwick, the hearing of the summons was fixed for October.

MR J. D. SOLOMON reopened the Kilburn Empire on Saturday evening. It is understood that a new palace of varieties is contemplated in Maida-vale, in the near neighbourhood of Kilburn. Rumours of this kind will always be in circulation; but at the present time music hall financiers are wisely holding their hands in view of the conversion of suburban theatres into variety houses.

MR GEORGE FULLER GOLDEN, the popular American comedian and raconteur, has had a narrow escape from serious injury. On Sunday morning he was enjoying a trip on his motor cycle at Brighton, when he had a side slip on a bit of greasy stretch of road, and by the luckiest of chances just escaped being flung beneath the wheels of a passing motor-car. He was taken to the Brighton Infirmary. He was to have appeared at the Palace, Glasgow, this week.

MR WALTER STEPHENS informs us that he has applied for a provisional licence for a first-class music hall which he, with others, intends to erect in the Lewisham High-street at the corner of Limes-grove, and that notice to this effect is now on the site. The house will be run on the lines of two performances each night. Mr Stephens announced his intention a few weeks ago of taking over the Surrey Theatre, but that house is still to be let.

MR JACK DE FRECE'S responsibilities as manager will be increased probably by the direction of another converted suburban theatre, and in addition to this the erection of several new variety halls is contemplated in certain suburban districts. One of the latest to be chosen is Edmonton, and here it is proposed to provide a hippodrome. In view of John Gilpin's historic ride the name is most appropriate.

MR VICTOR STEVENS, the popular comedian, is by way of returning to the variety profession. He will open at the Tivoli, Manchester, on Monday, afterwards visiting Brighton, and then returning for a long season in town. Mr Stevens married Miss Alice Brookes, who commenced her stage career on the halls, afterwards appearing with her husband at the theatres in pantomime and burlesque from his own pen.

MR BLAKE ADAMS opens on Monday week, Sept. 19, under the management of Mr Frank Macnaghten, with a dramatic episode, The Great Pitch, written by himself. There are only two characters in the trifle—Sam Tucker, played by himself, and Mrs Lumley, impersonated by Miss Mona Robin (Mrs Blake Adams). Most of the music has been specially composed by Mr Percy Kurutz, musical director at the West London Theatre. Mr Blake Adams hopes to appear in the sketch in London shortly.

FRED HARCOURT has introduced a number of new and startling mysteries which are meeting with remarkable success on the Stoll tour, one of the most notable being "The Mystic Sphere," which causes general amazement and baffles all attempts at solving the mystery. Mr Harcourt has been specially engaged by Oswald Stoll, Esq., for the London Coliseum with his latest Oriental mystery, "Levets," which is calculated to puzzle the knowing ones.

MR FREDERICK TREVALLEN, otherwise "Phroso," gave evidence at Marlborough-street Police-court on Monday in a case in which Mr Walter Morford, managing director to Messrs Swan and Edgar (Limited), Piccadilly-circus, was summoned before Mr Kennedy by Chief Inspector Hayer, of the C Division, for causing an obstruction on the footway outside their premises by exhibiting in the shop window a man or figure of a man. Mr Trevallen said he was know as "Phroso," his performance being that of a doll. Whether he was the doll or not he would not disclose, as that was his business. He was willing to forfeit £50 or £100 if anyone could say whether the figure were a doll or a human being. Cross-examined by Inspector Hayer, "Phroso" said he neither paid nor agreed to pay anything to Messrs Swan and Edgar for the use of the window. Eventually Mr Morford was fined 40s. and costs.

The 371st meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Fred Millis presiding. Mr Douglas White reported that fifty new members had joined during the past week, making the total number enrolled since the commencement 10,560. Mr Douglas White acted as secretary pro. tem. during Mr Stuart's absence. After several matters had been discussed, the meeting was adjourned until next Tuesday at the usual hour.

MR G. H. ELLIOTT'S charming song, entitled "Ma Havannah Queen," promises to be one of the biggest numbers that eminent artiste has ever had. The song is undoubtedly a great success, and will be heard in many pantomimes this forthcoming season. The words and music are by two clever young writers, whom we have had occasion to mention before, namely, Messrs Alf J. Lawrance and Harry Gifford, and the song was immediately secured for publication by Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter.

ON Thursday night the Palace management were smart enough to secure and to exhibit on their bioscopic screen pictures of the army manœuvres at Clacton. Very fine and clear were the views showing the disembarkation of the men and horses, the infantry scaling the cliffs, and General French's army marching on London.

THE Glenroy Troupe of dancers on Monday, at the Palace Theatre, Aberdeen, produced two new specialities, which met with an instantaneous success. They return to London on Oct. 3, opening at the Tivoli and Paragon.

A FEW years since there was a revival of interest in clog-dancing, and competitions were held at various halls, and notably at the London Pavilion, where large audiences on two special occasions listened to the clang of the wooden shoon. In a match at the hall in Piccadilly-circus between Miss Bella Permain and Miss Minnie Ray the latter won, but on Saturday evening in a contest at the Grand, Bolton, this lady only secured third place, the winner being Miss Bertha Winder, who fulfilled a little time back a long and successful engagement with Mr Charles Morton at the Palace Theatre.

THE death of Mrs Eustace Jay, at the early age of thirty-two, has caused universal sorrow among the deceased lady's large circle of friends in and out of the profession, and the sad event has evoked much sympathy for the popular manager of the Palace, Croydon, in his bereavement. Mrs Jay had long been an uncomplaining sufferer from an acute internal malady, and at the urgent request of her husband she entered the Anti-vivisection Hospital, Battersea-park, less than a month ago, for the purpose of undergoing a trying operation at the hands of a well-known specialist. The operation, which took place on the 30th ult., was eminently successful in every way, and high hopes were entertained of the patient's recovery; but she succumbed to heart failure on Friday, the 2nd inst

THE funeral on Monday was most impressive, and in the neighbourhood of Mr Jay's residence at North End, and indeed all along the route to the Croydon Cemetery, Mitcham-road, blinds were drawn. The attitude of the crowd also was reverent and sympathetic. Among those who followed the remains, besides the bereaved husband and members of the deceased's family, were Miss Amy Height, Mr Robert Dove, Mrs Amy Coleman, Mr J. H. Murry, Mr Steve Jones, Mrs Jones, Mr Harrison, Miss Mickey, Mr Will Dalton, Mr Fred Partridge, Mrs Pilling, Mr Hurst (representing the Terriers Association), Mr Terence H. Baizley, Mr J. E. Giggs, Mr Harry Philips, Mr Lyle (manager of the Theatre Royal, Croydon), and Mr W. Cayley, with the staff at the house.

MANY beautiful wreaths and floral emblems of esteem and sympathy were received from Mr Eustace Jay, Mr T. Gardiner Hales, Mrs and Miss Hales, the directors of the Palace of Varieties, Croydon, the staff of the Palace of Varieties, Mr Eugene Cuffe, Mr and Mrs Stanley Johnson, Mr and Mrs Frank Hayes, programme attendants at the Palace of Varieties, Mr and Mrs Bale, of the Bale troupe, Harold, Nellie, and Isabel Jay, Miss Daphne De Rohan, Mr and Mrs Tom Vine, Mr and Mrs John H. Murry, Mr Samuel James, Theatre Royal, Croydon, the manager and staff Theatre Royal, Croydon, Jack Lotto, Mr and Mrs Bosworth, Mrs Dufty, Mrs Steve Jones, Miss A. Rice, Rice Brothers, Mr and Mrs Burn, Mr "Papa" Brown, the Three Laurels, Mr and Mrs Alfred Lotto, Joe Elvin, Mr Robert Dove, Mr and Mrs Brooker, Leslie Arms, Addiscombe, Croydon Common Football Club, Mr and Mrs Will Dalton, Mr and Mrs Stephen Jay, Mrs Torrens, the Terriers Association, Mr and Mrs Flack, Miss Amy Height, and many more. Telegrams of condolence and sympathy were received from Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr and Mrs Harry Randall, Leon Victor, Ella Lane, Dr. Cameron, Mr and Mrs Harry Phillips, "Papa" Brown, Cliff Ryland, and the Terriers Association, per Harry Lester, secretary.

MISS DAISY DE ROY will endeavour to eclipse her production of Sinbad in her new annual, entitled Lucky Dick Whittington. She is sparing no expense, time, or money to attain this object. She will play principal girl herself, and Mdlle. Lucretia, the top-boot dancer, is re-engaged for title-rôle. The comic parts are in the hands of good comedians, and the combination of beauty and fun should make Lucky Dick Whittington bear out the promise of the title.

MR JAMES STEWART, the tramp at the piano, returns to town on Monday, after a twenty-five weeks' tour on the Moss and Stoll circuit. He comes back to the Palace Theatre, the scene of his former triumphs.

THE prizes won in the East-end Beauty Show at the Cambridge Music Hall were publicly presented at Saturday night's performance by the M.C., Mr George Egbert. The prize-winners were—Rebecca Mayne, Hannah Lyons, and Esther Banks.

To the Alhambra ballet L'Entente Cordiale special significance was given on Tuesday night, when a number of International guests, including delegates and sports competitors from Italy, France, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Russia, South Africa, Australia, America, and Switzerland, were present.

AT the Folies-Bergère, Paris, a new sensation has been introduced—a variation of "looping the loop" or "flying the flume"—called the Auto-Bolide. The apparatus resembles somewhat a huge S, with the junction of the two curves cut away. Starting at the top curve, an intrepid lady descends in an automobile with terrific speed, and is hurled upside down against the opposite curve, leaping a space of about ten yards.

M. LEBLANC, on going up the staircase of No. 17, Rue Saulnier, Paris, on Saturday, met a playful young lion coming down. Rushing off to the police station, he returned with a squad of officers with drawn swords and revolvers. On inquiry it transpired that M. Deveire, a menagerie agent, lived in the house, and had several young lions and tigers, which played about the courtyard, much to the amusement of the tenants. M. Deveire has been requested to keep his playful animals within bounds for the future.

WE are informed by the Musical Copyright Association that the total number of pirated copies seized by their agents, in London alone, during the month of August was 25,017, in addition to thirty-three sets of transfers and four sets of photo zinco blocks.

MR A. DANIEL BURTON, the indefatigable director of entertainments for Mr George Burton, the well-known Yorkshire caterer, is now on his annual tour in search of big and novel acts for the great Sheffield Winter Carnival and the 1905 fête and gala season.

MR ALBERT VOICE'S successful scena Jack Sheppard; or, The Burglary at the Grange, is to go on tour with a specially selected company. This scena has scored an undeniable success on the Barrasford tour.

MR GEORGE KNOWLES, the popular acting-manager of the Royal Theatre of Varieties, Oldham, has contracted an acute attack of eczema and gout in his right foot. His numerous friends will be glad to learn that he is progressing favourably.

MISS LOUIE LYNTON, who has been scoring a big success with her "Dolly Varden" song on the Barrasford tour lately, has just secured the rights of a new song written by F. Warden-Reed, entitled "My Butterfly Boy," which will be produced at a West-end hall shortly with elaborate scenery and dresses.

THE Zanettos are scoring a great success at the Pier, Great Yarmouth, where they will be for the next two weeks.

MISS EDNA CRAGGS, fresh from her week's holiday in France, is again amongst us, viz., at the Cambridge Music Hall, with four new creations and some of the latest French dresses.

IT is with regret we have to announce that Mr Mike Whallen, the popular comedian, is lying seriously ill in an American hospital, where he has been since July. His condition is so serious that an operation will have to be performed.

MR CHARLES MORTON, who has been enjoying a most pleasant time by the seaside, hopes to be back at the Palace on Monday. In his absence Mr Alfred Butt has been diligently attending to affairs.

CHIRGWIN, the white-eyed one, is taking a well-earned rest this week. Anyone on the Brighton-road on Wednesday would have seen him rattling along in his new motor towards London-by-the-sea, which place he reached in two hours, arriving home in time to have a solid lunch.

BENEFITS are beginning to loom ahead. A popular function is the bespeak to Mr Jesse Sparrow, who announces his annual at the Camberwell Palace on Oct. 18. Mr Tom Tinsley will welcome his numerous friends at Gatti's (Road) on Oct. 27.

MISS KATE LAWRENCE'S stirring new naval song has been published by Mr David Day, under the title of "Why shouldn't we fight for our own?" The words are by the author of "The ship that belongs to a lady." Miss Lawrence's former successful sea song, and the music is by Henry E. Pether.

THE current number of the Onlooker contains an excellent portrait of Miss Ray Wallace, the clever mimic, seated at the pianoforte. Miss Wallace's great success as an imitator has probably prevented her blossoming into a Corney Grain in petticoats, for we feel certain that she has talent in this direction.

MR LEON BASSETT does much to encourage the game of cricket among the members of the Camberwell Palace staff; and organised on Sunday a most interesting match with the Whitcomb Wanderers at Acton. Excitement ran high towards the end of the game, the match being won by the South Londoners by 2 runs, the respective totals being 88 and 86. The smart fielding of Bassett's team was mainly responsible for the victory.

MR DAVID HART'S complimentary benefit at the Grand Theatre, Gravesend, on Thursday, was a most pronounced success. The 5 25 special from Charing-cross took down a crowd of agents, among whom were Messrs Fred Higham, Tom Shaw, Felice Napoli, Dave Cohen, George Fuller, A. A. Davis (Colombo), Sydney Hyman, Emanuel Warner, J. Henderson, Tom Claxton, Ernest Edelsten, Sam Hart, Serpentello, A. Sheldon, Edward Granville, Captain Davis brought Marie Lloyd over from Chatham, and Mr Sam Mayo was allowed to give his services by permission of Mr Barnard, of Chatham. The bénéficiaire was the recipient of a handsome gold cigar-case from the staff. Mr George Barclay stage-managed.

MESSRS CHAS. B. COCHRAN and CO, LIMITED, are introducing to the English halls a very novel turn at the Palace, Manchester, next week. "Electro" is the title of the new act, but to disclose its character would rob it of its charm. Suffice it to say that like Phroso, The Moto Girl, and The Magic Kettle, it is the sort of music hall attraction that "keeps them guessing."

MR GEORGE GILBEY has in "Little Arthur" a dame song which is pronounced by Press and public to be the best in recent times. It is from the prolific pens of Messrs C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton, who are responsible for many of Mr Gilbey's hits, including his latest patter effort, "The Globe Trotter."

MANY will regret to hear that the wife of the elder partner of the Brothers Harrison is lying seriously ill at St. Bartholomew's Hospital. A recent operation was performed with success, and it is to be hoped that the lady's condition will soon improve.

PARIS MUSIC HALL NOTES.

(FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THE Alhambra opened its hospitable doors on the 1st to an enthusiastic crowd, who had sorely missed this pleasant place of amusement during the month of August. The house was well filled in stalls and boxes, but the galleries and promenade were simply packed. The people in the top gallery were thicker than flies. The success attained by Mr Barrasford in Paris is extraordinary. The bill was excellent. Nelly Vonare presented a contortionist number, and was well received. She was followed by the Brothers Philippi, both very good acrobats. They do a clean, straight show with some very clever head and hand balancing. A delightful turn is offered by Shawline, that clever Scotch whistler. He has turned whistling into a fine art. His notes are as true, as pure, as those of a lute. He appears as a ragged beggar, and introduces first all sorts of amusing effects; then he gives operatic selections, accompanied by a full and very strong orchestra, but those wonderful notes of his rise above the volume of sound with an entrancing effect. He is a virtuoso and a real lover of music.

IT is doubtful whether many people in Paris have seen a ring constructed so cleverly as it is arranged at the Alhambra. They can place a thirty-four yard ring, padded towards the proscenium side in order to overcome the difficulty of the raked stage, and after a couple of rehearsals the horses get as used to it as though they were in a circus. Louise and Hermann Althoff are the equestrians who utilise this clever arrangement. They do a jockey act and the usual equestrian act, the lady in long skirts. The real difficulty, however, is the scenery and wings, but the turn was admirably given and loudly applauded.

A TURN which will please the children is Tschernoff's. He has three trained ponies and a troupe of intelligent fox terriers, which go through all sorts of tricks. One pony has two rings harnessed to him, through which two poodles leap, one pony swings Tschernoff, another rocks the fox terriers, one poodle harnesses the pony to the trap for his master to drive in, and the terriers stand on the wheels as they revolve, whilst the rest of them run in and out of the spokes. Blanche Charmeroy is a pretty girl who plays extremely well. She is a very fine musician.

THE hit of the evening was undoubtedly made by O'Gust. His act is too well known to require detailed description. His mimicry of animals has made glad laughter for the little ones all over Europe, but his imitations of a saw, a plane, and other tools show an attention to detail which he has raised to a fine art. He was recalled time and again, and most generously accorded us the pleasure of something new each time. He is as popular with the grown-up folk as with the children, to whom his name is a household word. It was an excellent bit of business to engage him. Jacques Inaudi, the mental marvel, most certainly deserves his title. Unfortunately the huge auditorium of the Alhambra makes his work hard, and the people in the gallery were so impatient to get individual answers that they must have tired the wonderful little man; but he bore it all with good humour.

THE moving pictures representing the Auto-boats at Calais were followed with breathless interest by the excited audience. Nothing else could so adequately have demonstrated the enormous speed which these boats attain. The Musical Jees are a household name, and their fun in a forge, accompanied by some really excellent music, brought a delightful evening's entertainment to a close.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

THE EMPIRE.

New editions of ballets are not unknown at the Empire, and Mr George Edwardes has a ready method of adding to the attractiveness of a production which is possessed by few of his fellows. In High Jinks he has found it easy to give the entertainment at the country house something of a classical complexion, and instead of "Merry Marguerite"—a mild adumbration of the Faust legend—we have now "Pan and Pierette." Pan naturally has his habitat in the realms of Arcadia, peopled in this instance by Dresden china shepherds and shepherdesses, a white pierrot, two pierettes, a fortune-teller, a gay marquis, and some grotesque mummers. This may be incongruous if we regard the interpolated ballet from the strictly mythological point of view, but it is eminently attractive, and, moreover, it gives the much-desired opportunities to that delightful dancer, Mdlle. Adeline Genée, in the part of Rose Pompon, a pierette. She gives us of her best in the scena "The Animation of Pan," and shows herself to be a perfect pantomimist and a magnificent dancer. The fair prima donna assoluta is evidently pleased to get back to short skirts, and she looks particularly well in a dainty pink costume. M. Paul Sundberg in the part of Pan lends most effective aid to Mdlle Genée in their combined dance; Mdlle Francesca Zanfretta's dark beauty and Castilian features make her an ideal representative of Fenella, the gipsy fortune teller, her dance being also loudly applauded. Mr Fred Farren (whose clever eccentric dance is still retained), Mr Will Vokes, Mr Harry Rogerson (who is responsible for the wonderful impersonation of the sleepy page), and Mr Hugh J. Ward make the dance of the mummers a very grotesque affair; Mdlle. Cora is agreeably prominent as Gleam, a white pierrot; and Miss M. Paston, Miss D. Craske, Miss Edith McFarlane, Miss Ethel Shaw, Miss Gladys Thomas, and Miss E. Tree do excellent work in the various numbers. The grand valse and finale is a fascinating picture, in which the whole corps de ballet give decided charm to the intricacies of a well-arranged dance. The new music has been written and arranged by Mr Cuthbert Clark, the musical director, who has done his work exceedingly well. Mr Clark may also be complimented on the orchestral rendering of a selection from Romeo and Juliet. The costumes have been executed by Miss Hastings, Morris Angel and Co., Lawring and Co., and Peter Robinson; and the wigs are by Mr Willie Clarkson. Mr Joseph Harker's scenery is artistic and pretty in the extreme. The new edition of the ballet was heartily applauded on Monday, and High Jinks in its latest guise bids fair to run until the directorate is prepared with the new ballet on the subject of "Eton." The variety programme is largely made up of excellent gymnastic and acrobatic exhibitions. The chief new comers in the current scheme of amusement are the Luppu Trio, in a very fine quadruple bar act. One of these well-set-up gymnasts swinging from bar to bar with hands and feet, raises himself on his feet to a vertical position, and retains his balance perfectly. The feats throughout are very remarkable, and they are executed in the most perfect manner. Dubois and Ramza, a pair of eccentric acrobats who are appearing, we believe, for the first time at the Empire, are funny in their table feats. They introduce, too, with droll effect, a dummy, and their doings are voted very smart and amusing. The Delbosqs in their tumbling speciality are much applauded for their leaping, one of the pair clearing no less than sixteen men, and turning a double somersault in his flight. Mr Charles R. Sweet, the musical burglar, is a great acquisition to London's laughter makers, and his quaint make-up is not more mirth-moving than his patter. We are amused when he tells us that in the choice of professions one must remember that the burglar is more honest than the politician. The musical portion of Mr Sweet's entertainment appeals also to the popular taste, and, though it has its showy side in imitations of various instruments, it has its artistic moments to be found in the fine harmonies introduced into a common-place melody. The musical burglar has an original plan of entertainment that makes him very popular, and his geniality is a decided factor in his success. Mr Syd May's burlesque of the wrestler Hackenschmidt is funnier than ever; and other turns that we have but lately noticed include Miss Marguerite Cornille, with a cultured interpretation of "Te souviens-tu?" by Benjamin Godard; and Paulton and Doley, expert and eccentric cyclists. H. Sloan, burlesque juggler, is also announced; and the Biograph concludes the programme, to which Mr H. J. Hitchens gives his unceasing attention.

THE OXFORD.

The current Oxford programme is particularly strong in comicality, and laughter is in the ascendant for the greater portion of the evening. A very popular turn is that contributed by Mr Wilkie Bard, who has now worked his way into the front rank of variety comedians A dry method of utterance and a command of quaint expression are the chief factors in his success; and there is nothing forced in his methods. He is not prodigal of gesture, nor does he depend on exaggeration in dress or make-up; but he has his audience, as it were, in the hollow of his hand from his entrance until his exit. He deals gently, even persuasively, with his listeners, whom he treats like a large family party. He lectures them on their poor vocal efforts, and tells them they are the "rottenest glee party" he ever heard. He recites the words of his refrain and gives them a lesson on it in an imploring attitude. It is the very simplicity of the song that makes the whole business so absurd, for no cockney lover of music hall melody could fail to get hold of the strains of "O—oh—capital O" after the first time of hearing it. The taking chorus is eventually chortled all over the house, and that the happiest relations exist between audience and singer is reflected in the ringing applause that brings him back to the footlights again and again. Mr Joe Elvin is an older favourite at the Oxford, and he is seen to immense advantage in the farcical absurdity The Wrong House, which is from the versatile pen of Mr Wal Pink. The plot of this trifle—if it may be said to possess one at all—concerns the mistake of Podgers, who, after "playing the game" with his pal Snooks, is refused admission to his own residence by Mrs Podgers on account of his drunken state, and finds a refuge next door, where the servant is waiting up for the missis's uncle. The conversation between Mr and Mrs Podgers causes shrieks of laughter, and Mr Elvin's gag, "You're blind," addressed to all and sundry is an ingenious touch that readily appeals to the house. Mr R. G. Knowles has a characteristic number in "The girl, the woman, and the widow," and Mr T. E. Dunville makes a great hit in his impersonation of a railway guard and the Highlander. Mr Will Evans is quite a coquettish barmaid when he laments in a droll scena the threatened abolition of the neat-handed Phyllises who draw the beer for the thirsty at our licensed houses of refreshment. Early in the evening Miss Elaine Ravensberg and company appear in an operatic incident, entitled The Maid and the Brigands. The incident is apparently taken from Fra Diavolo, and we have the bedroom scene, and the rescue of little Zerlina from the comic cut-throats, Beppo and Giacomo. Miss Ravensberg manages the undressing scene very daintily, and sings with considerable sweetness and power. She is well supported by the baritone, who gives good effect to a love song, and by the actors who take the parts of the brigands. Miss Sable Fern has the house entirely with her when she sings that pretty melody "The Lily of the Valley," and Miss Margaret Ashton's fine bravura singing is quite one of the features of the programme. Another is the amusing and well acted sketch of Terry and Lambert. Mr Terry plays a shoemaker, who upbraids his wife for her lack of domestic knowledge, and the wrangling scene is cleverly done. Presently the couple break into imitations of the New York Bowery tough and his sweetheart—a very successful finale to an excellent turn. Martinetti and Grossi are labelled Continental novelty surprise artistes. They extract harmony and melody from the wheels, the frame, and the saddle of a bicycle, and even the handle is made to play Ellen Wright's sweet song "Violets." A gigantic palm in pot is made to do duty as a 'cello, and a teapot becomes a cornet under the skilful hands of one of this clever pair, who are applauded to the echo. Kelly and Gillette's fun in a billiard-room includes a vastly amusing trick with a barrel that is supposed to contain lager; and the acrobatic comedian, who draws lighted matches from his pocket, plays larks with a nude statuette of Venus, gets rid of about a couple of dozen collars, and fools round generally in the most irresponsible way, is a most persistent wag. The use of a huge billiard board is discovered when the partners, each in turn, contrive from its spring bed to turn a succession of single and double somersaults with unerring accuracy and skill. A third acrobat, grotesquely made up, puts in some clever ground work, and the show is an undoubted success. Lieutenant Travis shows wonderful versatility and command of technique in his ventriloquial entertainment; Froba's cannon-ball feats are astonishing; and other turns include Hackenschmidt, the wrestler; Miss Ray Wallace, the Lyons Trio of cake-walkers; Michalinis, eccentric equilibrist; Miss Maud Esmond, comedienne; and Miss Lily Tiso, eccentric soubrette. Mr Albert Gilmer, looking extremely well after his recent holiday, returns to find business excellent. During his absence his popular lieutenant, Mr C. Blyth-Pratt, has been superintending the entertainment.

THE BEDFORD.

The lengthening nights and the uncertain weather may have been factors in the large attendances that have been seen this week at the long-established Camden-town variety palace; but the real raison d'être of the good business done is to be found in the announcement of a grand singing competition which took place last night. Three valuable money prizes were offered by Mr B. P. Lucas, the managing-director, for the best impersonation of Mr Tom Leamore in any of his well-known songs. Aspirants for comic singing honours have been seated in all parts of the house during the week, and the methods of the popular comedian have been keenly watched by spectators anxious to catch every tone and gesture. Mr Leamore appears towards the end of the entertainment, and sings his amusing song concerning the experiences of an ancient and battered dame. She is given to reminiscences of triumphs over the other sex is this unlovely female, and emphasises the fact that "Piccadilly Rose" had a very good time "in the days when she was young." In another piece of burlesque absurdity Mr Leamore dilates on the woes of a would-be conqueror of Hackenschmidt. The experiences of the novice in the catch-as-catch-can style are told with much breadth of humour, and the attenuated appearance of the singer, in jersey, knickers, and knee-caps is ludicrous enough to account for the hearty laughter to be heard in all parts of the house. Mr Harry Champion is another immense favourite in Camden-town, and he takes his songs at express speed. In "Sitting on it and keeping it warm" and "Oo er!"—both capital specimens of his style of song—he causes immoderate laughter, and has perforce to add another number before he is finally allowed to retire. Miss Maud Venn, a burlesque actress whose triumphs have hitherto been mostly secured at the West-end halls, is making her first appearance at the Bedford, and though the point and humour of her songs are not of that obvious nature so much favoured there, she manages to score. "Little things tell" is a truism very pertinently and saucily insisted on by the attractive Miss Venn, whose charming figure looks well in a tasteful evening gown; and there is a piquancy in her account of Cupid's conquest of a young member of the Society of Friends that is not lost sight of by her listeners, who recall her very heartily. Early in the evening Miss Cissie Sinclair asserts successfully her claim to be regarded as a chic comedienne; Nellie and Nora play some most effective selections on the piano, violin, and xylophone; and Miss Mary Thorne, American soubrette is also announced. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is responsible for a series of films, which show a melodramatic story of a murder and a father's revenge. But the most popular pictures are those that illustrate the humours of paterfamilias and materfamilias starting for their annual holiday. The cab accident and the eventual transference of "mother" to the luggage van appeal by their irresistible drollery to the risible faculties of any audience, and the Bedfordians laugh consumedly. In The Sorrows of Satan, derived in some way no doubt from Marie Corelli's novel, we find the devil quite a respectable gentleman with the earthly cognomen of Prince Lucio Rimanez Through his influence the poverty-stricken and despairing Geoffrey Tempest is endowed with the nice little sum of five millions. Geoffrey elects to devote himself to pleasure and the worship of self. He is married to the beautiful Lady Sybil Elton, who laughs a bitter laugh, in the second scene, and, after declaring her love for the very devil himself, drinks poison and dies. Henceforth the repentant husband Geoffrey will devote himself to good works, and add to the very limited number of hours of happiness enjoyed by Prince Lucio. The sketch is polemical rather than dramatic, but it is effectively presented by Mr Maurice Hoffman and his company.

BATTERSEA EMPIRE.

The many variety lovers of Battersea are still liberally catered for by the enterprising Mr Ernest E. Giles, and the varied and first-class programme he has put forward this week has attracted excellent attendances. A welcome of much cordiality has been extended to Miss Fanny Robina, the popular and versatile comedienne and vocalist scoring an immediate success with her first song, "Claude Duval," her impersonation of the dashing young knight of the road being a very exhilarating and finished one. Miss Robina makes a very picturesque figure of the notorious highwayman, who is loud in his praises of the jolly, old-fashioned days, wearing a handsome costume complete to the smallest detail, and delivering the stirring lines with forcible expression. Even more successful is her second selection, "My little baby boy," in which she appears as a happy young mother who is quite contented with her lot, humble though it may be. She has no desire for riches and travel; her six-roomed cottage is her castle, and its ruler is his Royal Highness the King—"her little baby boy." This song of homely sentiment is admirably given by Miss Robina, who makes every point tell, and the refrain is rendered by a young lady in the balcony possessing a strong and clear voice, the audience evincing their appreciation of this decidedly attractive number in no uncertain fashion. There are many items in the fine programme that make for merriment, Binns and Binns, "the vagabonds in comedy and music," indulging in many humorous antics and original devices that create hilarity, besides playing the post-horn and concertina with skill and to the evident delight of the audience. Early in the evening Mr Harry Lane, an eccentric comedian with a quietly quaint style, wins applause for his rendering of a funny song, "Oh, that box of cigars;" and the droll and versatile Mr Harry Pleon has many pertinent and laughter-compelling remarks to make concerning Eve and the fair sex in general, his two songs, "It's the same old song" and "It's about time that you came home, Bill Bailey," also delighting his auditors. Captain Slingby, an entertaining ventriloquist, voices some amusing figures, the dialogue of Farmer Giles and his donkey imitation especially creating mirth; and the Motramos (Tom and Jennie) are responsible for a humorous little interlude that embraces much original comedy and some admirable musical selections, the entire entertainment of this hard-working and popular duo giving much satisfaction. Miss Ida Brophy, a serio-comic with a good style and a couple of pleasing songs, gives the requisite point to her first item, "Then she realised the silly thing she'd done," her song and dance, "Only to call her Baby," also affording enjoyment; and the Sisters Maud, duettists and dancers, are successful in a pretty song and dance. Mr E. J. Sheldon, comedian, has a laughable ditty in "Changes," and a particularly entertaining item is the Protean interlude given by a lady known as Dorina, entitled How She Did It. Seven distinct characters are impersonated by Dorina, each change being effected in a marvellously rapid and clever manner, and besides being a wonderfully smart quick-change show the trifle proved most amusing. The only male part is played in a finished and humorous style by Mr E. C. Matthews, the author of the sketch, which was received with decided cordiality by the audience. The exhibition of photographs in connection with Mr Giles's novel profit-sharing scheme is also popular. The capable orchestra here is under the careful control of Mr W. Hinkinson.

MARIE LOFTUS IN NOTTINGHAM.

THE EMPIRE

It is no reflection on the ability of the other artistes on the current Empire programme—all of whom are very clever people—to say that two entertainers stand out with cameo-clearness among the company. One is a favourite of long standing in Nottingham; the other a stranger, but one who had not been two minutes on the stage before he was added to the not inordinately long list of people whom we cannot see too often. Miss Marie Loftus—not alone because she is a lady—must claim first attention. Her three songs last evening were not precisely new but we are glad that the craze for novelty has not induced Miss Loftus to abandon creations that show her powers to the best advantage, and still possess charm for the public, for something that might have nothing but unfamiliarity to commend it. "What do they do with the old ones?" (with the unexpected pathos of the final verse, her life-like realisation of the simple Devonshire lass on her first visit to London), and her skit on pantomime (which has become a classic of the variety stage) were the items Miss Loftus chose last night. All "went" most successfully, but the last named, in which the clever lady appeared to revel, was most enjoyed, with its quick transitions from the principal girl, with her demure little voice, to the boy, full of robustious energy, and the stolid shilling-a-night chorus lady, tumbling over her train and getting sadly mixed up in her evolutions. The audience were carried away in delight by the giddy and frenzied finale, in which Miss Loftus, as the inevitable coon songstress, does a Cinématographic dance with a real coloured youth, and the pair had to return thrice to the stage to acknowledge the appreciation of the audience.—Nottingham Press.

A capital entertainment is provided at the Nottingham Empire Theatre of Varieties this week. Marie Loftus pays a return visit, and last night received a splendid welcome. She appears in three characteristic songs, and displays all the ability which has gained her such fame. She is as sprightly as ever, and her clever acting greatly enhances her vocal efforts Her burlesque pantomime sketch is still included in her répertoire, but it has been greatly improved and brought up to date since she last produced it in Nottingham, and it is quite safe to say that it creates more amusement now even than it did previously.—Nottingham Press.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

The programme at this favourite North London resort is as interesting and well varied as usual. The list of artists is headed by Miss Marie Kendall, who is paying another visit to Holloway, where she has quite a host of admirers. Nor is this surprising, for she is as clever as she is versatile. Whether playing the part of principal boy in pantomime or representing familiar types of character Miss Kendall's performance always reaches a high level of excellence, and she never fails to amuse and interest her audience. As an exponent of Cockney character and humour she is particularly good. Miss Kendall is first seen as the representative of a matron who is anxious to give advice to her spinster sisters in regard to the problem, "how to be happy though married." If the husband is late for dinner violent measures are to be adopted, and this determined lady has a certain cure for the Benedict who neglects his home for the billiard saloon. Next Miss Kendall comes on arrayed in a bright coloured dress and carrying an infant. As the proud young mother she has a good deal to say about the baby, and the subject of the song which she sings is the christening, which was evidently an occasion of much rejoicing. She recognises an acquaintance in the stalls, much to the gentleman's confusion, and she condescends to compliment the conductor of the orchestra on his blue eyes—"just the same colour as baby's." This impersonation proves to be a most successful one, and is heartily appreciated by the audience. On her third appearance Miss Kendall discards comedy for homely sentiment, and gives an expressive rendering of "Just like the ivy I'll cling to you," showing that she is not merely a clever singer of humorous songs. Another artist who has visited the Empire before is Zarmo, the comic juggler. He has a heavy black beard, wears loose trousers with patches of various colours, and an immense watch-chain, his appearance altogether being of the most grotesque description. After purposely failing to accomplish certain tricks Zarmo juggles very cleverly with knives and other articles, including some large property carrots and three figures representing golliwogs. A portrait of his mother-in-law is the target for various missiles, and one of the old lady's eyes sustains damage in the course of the bombardment. Mr Lawrence Barclay makes his appearance in the character of a sandwichman, who dolefully complains that he once "wanted to go on the boards, but not between them." In his ditty there is the inevitable reference to Chamberlain and his fiscal policy. Mr Barclay has a remarkable command of facial expression that is particularly effective, and this he brings into play in his rendering of an amusing parody upon "Little Yellow Bird." The Two Bees have sung "Hiawatha" over 600 times, but they are still warbling the popular American melody with unvarying success. The special scenery adds considerably to the effect, and the duet is received with immense favour. The couple known as Goggin and Davis continue to score in their comedy acrobatic act, in which they introduce a comical duel with broadswords. Their flying leaps and their acrobatic business generally is wonderfully clever. Miss Mabel Hind's scena, A Little Japanese, is a pleasing turn which secures its full share of applause; and Mr Dutch Daly has added a few fresh stories to his budget, and his concertina playing is as good as ever. Mr Steve M'Carthy, the "Irish coon," also meets with a flattering reception. The Manings distinguish themselves as acrobats and equilibrists, their head-to-head balancing being specially clever. A feature of the current bill is the American Bioscope, which presents a series of pictures showing the destruction caused by the great fire at Toronto.

THE METROPOLE.

No home for the drama exists in Camberwell, the Metropole, which for ten years has provided for the dramatic wants of the busy suburb, having been turned to the purposes of variety on the plan of two houses a-night. Built by Mr J. B. Mulholland in 1894, the Metropole was opened by him on Oct. 29 of that year, and some of the finest ornaments of the stage have appeared from time to time on its boards. Mr Mulholland set an example that was extensively followed in other suburbs with varying fortune, one, at least, of the new theatres having long since adverted to the policy that has at length overtaken the Metropole. Mr Jack De Frece, whose long experience in variety business eminently fits him for the work, has taken a lease of the theatre, which reopened on Monday, cleaned and redecorated, at prices ranging fron 2l. to 1s. Pending the necessary licence from the County Council smoking is not permissible, but no restriction is placed on the sale of drinks at the bars. A moderate house was obtained for the first performance on Monday, but at the second the hall was packed in every part, the audience becoming very enthusiastic in appreciation of the artists who furnished the opening programme. A good beginning was made by the Sisters Vincent, who are remarkably expert on their feet, dancing with dainty grace and skill, and winning a cordial recall. A pronounced hit was also made by Mr J. W. Rickaby, who ministered to the merriment with "I've brought the coals," and with his impersonation of a militiaman with a comic parody on "The Soldiers of the Queen." A new departure was made by Hill and Lane, a precocious pair, who sing a duet as college boy and girl, indulge in some smart dialogue, and display their versatility by playing the piccolo and cornet—a combination that was much enjoyed. Percival amused and interested with his tricks on the piano, being especially impressive with his imitation of Paderewski playing "Alice, where art thou?" and a speciality was provided in the sand-dancing of Mr Frank Cumminger, whose frenzied steps resulted in the greatest excitement. Miss Flo Cecil's efforts as a comedienne won approbation, and the acrobatic feats of the Four Andys, including a muscular young lady who acts as bearer and tumbles skilfully, drew forth abundant cheers, chief of which were bestowed on the Risley business with a couple of youths, one of whom did a double somersault from the feet of the "bearer." The banjo was effectively played upon by Hill and Whittaker, American artistes, who gave a pretty and tuneful selection. A flavour of novelty attaches to the rendering by the lady of a travesty of a Negro preacher requesting the congregation to "Please stand up and sing 'Hallelujah'" Appropriate gestures and facial play are given to the impersonation, the little "crack" in the voice being drolly introduced by the fair vocalist, whose deep tones closely approach those of a powerful baritone. An uproarious conclusion to the bill was furnished by the sketch entitled The New Mamma, a piece of frivolity in which a tumultuous wedding breakfast is succeeded by an equally lively scene at a railway station, finishing by a jaunt to Brighton Pier. The names used in the rendering were not quite identical with those contained in the programme, but the principal performers seemed to be Mr Tom Wallace, who was irresistibly funny as John Willie Winkle, and Miss Aggie Morris, who did well in the title-rôle. A large chorus, conducted by Mr Dudley Powell, was engaged in the production, the costumes and scenery being elaborate, and the mirth was unflagging during its progress. The leader of the orchestra is Mr Josiah Law, and Mr Lloyd Townrow, the acting-manager, retains under the new régime the position he so worthily occupied under the old.

SHEPHERD'S-BUSH EMPIRE.

A handsome and luxuriously appointed building, the Shepherd's-bush Empire, which has been opened now just over a year, evidently supplied a long-felt want in this rapidly growing neighbourhood, as is sufficiently evidenced by the crowded audiences which nightly assemble within its walls. One of the most important items in the current programme is Fred Karno's famous comedians in the very funny pantomime travesty on the modern music hall, entitled Mumming Birds. The scene is the boards of a variety theatre, two built-up and fully equipped private boxes being located on each side at the back of the stage. These are all filled, the occupants of the lower box on one side being an elderly gentleman and his son, an enthusiastic youth in an Eton suit. The stage-box opposite is occupied by a swell, who, it is evident, has dined "not wisely but too well." The first artist to take the boards is a topical vocalist, and the disgust of the occupants of the boxes is evinced in various ways, the Eton boy pelting the unfortunate singer with missiles and annoying him with a pea-shooter—a form of amusement that he indulges in with the other performers as a butt—and the inebriated young gentleman taking down his number at the side of the stage and otherwise hinting that it is time for him to retire. The vocal efforts of the Swiss Nightingale are also received with derision, and the warbling of the Rustic Glee Party, a trio of most eccentric-looking individuals, who endeavour to sing "Hail, smiling morn!" is soon put a stop to, the swell forcibly removing them from the stage. The prestidigitateur is also a most amusing personage, and there is renewed merriment when "the saucy serio" takes the stage and warbles about "The naughty, naughty men," her personal charms appealing strongly to the youth and the swell, who, getting bolder owing to his frequent libations, invites the damsel into his box. Next appears the "Terrible Turkey," a mild-looking youth, who is responsible for much fun. After he has engaged in burlesque bouts with the principals, the cleverly acted skit ends in a general melée. The leading performers work extremely hard and with complete success. A capital turn is that of Austen Boyd and Trixie Gilfain, purveyors of Mixed Drinks. The lady appears as a smart little barmaid, and after indulging in humorous repartee with her partner, sings of her experiences as a barmaid in various countries—a clever dialect song. Burlesque business, including drama and opera, is also done by this talented couple, the lady, moreover, evidencing her ability and versatility by playing the bagpipes. Miss Lilian Lowe gives a cultured rendering of "The song that reached my heart," and wins a flattering reception. Miss Fanny Erris has an excellent number in "The days gone by," which contrasts present-day manners and customs with those in vogue when George the Fourth was King. Mr Martin Conway employs an eccentric method in his two comic songs, "She's a lady" and "Sing Hilly-holly," and Miss Phyllis Yorke, a youthful artist, gives a dainty little song and dance. Max Renard can fairly boast of some wonderfully trained dogs, a natty little terrier turning a number of backward somersaults. Several high-jumping hounds also take part in this interesting show, which is terminated by some canine tableaux that are extremely well done. The performer known as Alexander the Great accomplishes some wonderful tricks on a bicycle, including getting up and down a flight of steps on one wheel. The "Gentle" Mackweys indulge in much boisterous fun, which keeps the audience in a roar, their comic wire act being voted very clever. A series of interesting and amusing pictures are shown by the Biograph, notably "Off for the Holidays," a subject that is most humorously treated. Mr E. H. Dobson is the efficient acting-manager here, and Mr George Richardson has the direction of the orchestra.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

The important improvements which have recently been carried out at this hall should be and doubtless are appreciated by the patrons of this exceedingly popular place of amusement. At the main entrance the space has been so divided as to prevent those entering the building coming into collision with people leaving it; and a still more noticeable improvement is the lowering of the stage by several inches. The principal attraction this week has been the engagement of the famous wrestler Hackenschmidt, whose reputation in his own line of business is alone sufficient to attract a big house. Some well-contested matches have nightly excited the enthusiasm of crowded audiences; and on the evening of our visit Hackenscomidt met an opponent quite worthy of his prowess. The contest was a very spirited one, and was watched with eager interest by the onlookers. Mr Will Spearman, the energetic manager at this hall, added to his numerous duties that of timekeeper for the occasion, and as half the allotted time had passed, and Hackenschmidt's opponent was still undefeated, the excitement became intensified. However, the world-renowned wrestler eventually achieved another victory, the contest occupying a little over nine minutes. Both wrestlers were liberally applauded. A very successful item in the current bill is the duologue entitled A Yacht for Sale, which was produced some time ago at the Oxford. It will be remembered that all the fun arises through a lady mistaking the house of a gentleman who has a yacht for sale for a registry office for servants. She wishes to engage the services of a maid, whilst the gentleman is under the impression that she is likely to become the intending purchaser of a yacht known as "Saucy Sally." Some of the replies to her questions are so curious that the lady naturally thinks that the supposed agent is demented. He talks of having had "her" scraped and painted, and volunteers the information that she is very fast, but that she behaves well when she meets "a heavy swell." The would-be salesman is, of course, equally bewildered when his visitor inquires whether she—meaning the maid she wishes to engage—is a hard worker, and also whether she drinks. The obvious reply is that she occasionally "takes too much aboard," and is inclined to "roll a little." It is difficult to understand how such a misunderstanding could be kept up so long, but the audience enjoys the fun immensely, and the sketch is played to an accompaniment of hearty merriment. Miss Alice Yorke gives a capital impersonation of the puzzled and occasionally indignant lady who has come to the wrong office, and the male character is cleverly embodied by an actor whose name does not appear upon the programme. Griff is engaged here this week, and as of yore scores in his comedy juggling act. He now has an assistant named Alpha who is quite an expert with the hoops. Their performance—an admirable mixture of real skill and comedy—is well appreciated by the audience. Mr Arthur Lennard is an artist who is always received with favour. He has a good budget of songs widely differing in subject but invariably effective. "Three make jolly fine company," may be cited as an excellent specimen, the domestic sentiment being aptly expressed in the delightful mental picture of the dear wife and the fond father with the baby on his lap. Mr Lennard also makes a hit with the clever and amusing comedy song, "That's what the organ played." Espinosa and Neilson do very well in their speciality act, which includes an imitation of Continental acrobatic dancers, and a travesty of the energetic efforts of a Russian troupe of dancers—from the Whitechapel-road. This couple also contribute a coon song and dance. Miss Sable Fern achieves her usual success with "My Lily of the Valley" and a new ditty, which she sings in ordinary costume. Mr Will Dalton opens with a dame song and next appears in the character of "one of the Old Brigade." The Three Sisters Lea are expert dancers, and Mr Frank Parham excels in the same line of business. Miss Daisy Mayer is applauded for her songs, "Doesn't it tickle your fancy" and "In Sunny Spain," in which she gives a burlesque description of a bull-fight.

MR RUSSELL WALLETT, after his success at the Hammersmith Palace, was immediately engaged by Mr Tom Barrasford, and opens at the Pavilion, Glasgow, on Monday.—The latest addition to the fraternity of the Terriers is Mr Fred Carr, comedian, of Carr and Rose.—Wisper, the comedy tourist juggler, and Miss Beattie Bloom, comedienne, have just returned from a three months' successful tour of the provinces. They open on Monday at the Middlesex and Bedford.—Great Scott, the ladder king, has just concluded a successful ten weeks' Barrasford tour, and commenced a short season in town, opening at the Empress, Brixton, on Monday last.—Mr Arthur Slater, siffleur, has been secured by Mr Frank Glenister for twenty-one weeks for the London Pavilion; and Mr Tom Barrasford has engaged him for three tours.

THE following further sums have been received for the Mrs Jean Stanley fund:—Mr Lapsus Linguæ 9s.; Sydney Jousiffe, 10s.; Joe Elvin, Esq., £1 1s.; Mrs Elvin, 10s.

MISS DULCIE REIGATE, who should have appeared at the Empire, Portsmouth, next week, is unable to fulfil her engagement, owing to her having severely sprained her ankle.

MR CHARLES FISHER has returned to the theatrical boards for a season to play the part of the young sailor, Hendrick, in Mr Oswald Brand's comic opera The Fisher Girl, but he is under engagement to Messrs Hyman Brothers to play a répertoire of his condensed operas on the "South African circuit," and will sail on Christmas Eve for the Cape.

NORWICH GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

It is announced that this place of entertainment has been purchased by Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt, and these gentlemen intend to transfer their business from the Hippodrome about the end of October, and convert the house to the purposes of a theatre of varieties. From an advertisement which appeared in our paper the week before last it became known that the Grand Opera House was for sale, and rather than it should go into the hands of others Messrs Bostock and Fitt determined to purchase it. They accomplished this on Saturday, and will enter into possession on the 26th of the present month. In order to assist Mr Morgan, the manager, in his bookings, the purchasers have arranged that he shall continue to manage for one month longer.

With characteristic urbanity Messrs Bostock and Fitt have offered Mr Morgan the use of the present Hippodrome for the purposes of the drama, and it is understood that Mr Morgan has accepted their offer. Therefore, after the lapse of a year, the old Theatre Royal will resume its dramatic associations, and it is hoped that both places will be accorded a share of patronage. Messrs Bostock and Fitt intend on opening the Opera House to continue their custom of two houses nightly, with a matinée on Saturdays, at the present popular prices.

Mr Fred Morgan has been interviewed, and gives an interesting account of his experience of nearly half a century. Mr Morgan does not believe that there is any decay of interest in the drama, and he is satisfied there is more taste for the play than there was ten years ago; but he says he cannot give a first-class theatrical entertainment in a house like the Grand Opera House at prices to compete with those at the Hippodrome. As he says, a man can take his wife and children to the best places at the Hippodrome for about a third of that asked at the Opera House. Moreover a person can go to the variety show without taking his pipe out of his mouth. "If," says Mr Morgan, "I had equal advantage with Messrs Bostock and Fitt in the matter of price and smoke I could fill my house as easily as they can theirs." But Mr Morgan thinks that the demand for sumptuous and elaborate performances prohibits any reduction in price. He further points out that fifteen years ago patrons of grand opera were content with a small band; now they want double that number, and artists of higher proficiency. But all the evil, he says, arises from the fact that trade is bad and lack of money is the cause of the thin attendances. Mr Morgan believes that no idea of puritanism or objection to the drama exists in Norwich on the whole, and he says that such talented artistes as Mr and Mrs W. H. Kendal, Mr F. R. Benson, Mrs Lewis Waller, and others characterise Norwich people as excellent audiences to play to, but although he believes the Norwich people have an increasing interest in the drama, the difficulty lies in catering for the stalls and the gallery. Whilst those plays suitable for the stalls are unsuitable for the gallery, those plays that suit one will not suit the other portion of the house; and, as a rule, the stalls do not lend adequate support. Mr Morgan states he has had an offer of the management of a large theatre in the north, but he intends staying in Norwich. His idea is that the old Theatre Royal will still maintain its prestige, and the appointments and appliances are better now than they were when he left.

In conclusion, Mr Morgan pays a pleasing compliment to Messrs Bostock and Fitt, and especially to Mr Fitt, for the able way they have conducted the Hippodrome. To this compliment we would like to add the name of Mrs Fitt, who has always been assiduous in her attentions to the comforts of the patrons of the Hippodrome.

The Hippodrome at Scarborough was crowded on the 2nd inst., at the second performance of amateur theatricals, promoted by the Countess of Londesborough. Miss Ada Crossley sang Handel's recitative and air, "Ombra mai fù," with violin obbligato by the Countess of Kinnoull. Miss Crossley also gave "Now sleeps the crimson petal." "Mighty like a rose," and "Oh, that we two were maying." The remainder of the programme was the same as on the opening night, and the performance of Mr Cecil Clay's Pantomime Rehearsal caused great merriment. Among those present were the Earl and Countess of Londesborough, the Marchioness of Cholmondeley, Lord George Cholmondeley, the Hon. William Walsh, Lady Mildred Cooke, Sir Everard Cayley, Lady Sybil and Miss Veronica Codrington, and the Dowager Countess of Londesborough. Amongst those contributing to the entertainment were the Earl and Countess of Kinnoull, Lady Maud Warrender, Lady Alington, the Hon. Mrs A. Fellowes, Miss Muriel Wilson, Lady Lettice Cholmondeley, Lady Ida Sitwell, and Lady Irene Denison. The Countess of Londesborough presented Miss Ada Crossley with a beautiful bouquet of Malmaison carnations.

M. Gustav Esmann, a dramatic author, was found dead in his room in Copenhagen on Sunday afternoon, shot through the back of the head. A young woman in a dying condition was discovered in an adjoining apartment with a revolver by her side. It is supposed that she first shot M. Esmann and then turned the weapon on herself.

Whimsical Walker arrived at Cape Town Aug. 14, on his way to Australia, feeling much better in health for his sea voyage. He expects to return on Nov. 22 to appear in the Drury-lane pantomime.

At the Torquay Police-court on Monday before the borough magistrates, Mr Frank Gurney, formerly secretary of the Torquay Theatre Company, was charged with embezzling the sum of £41 10s. 5d., the property of his late employers. The accused went to Hennock in August, and took the books and some cash belonging to the company with him, leaving his address with Mr Arthur Pearce, bill-inspector. He did not intimate his address to the managing-director. He was arrested on a warrant. After a long hearing the Bench committed the accused for trial at the quarter sessions, and fixed bail in two sureties of £10 each.

A Playgoers' Club has been formed at Melbourne. The club will hold periodical meetings at which will be discussed plays performed locally and elsewhere, and some of the work of the advanced dramatists of the day. It is also proposed to arrange for the performance of some works which are otherwise not likely to be seen on the public stage in Melbourne.

The Ada Lee company, which so successfully produced recently a new sketch entitled The Lancashire Lass, has just booked a number of dates on the Moss and Thornton tour.

At the Opera House, Leicester, on Saturday last, a copyright performance was given of an original three-act play called The Crown, written by Robert Wilford.

Mr Wilfrid Holl, actor and playwright, who died on the 1st inst. at the age of twenty-four, went on tour with Miss Elaine Verner and also with Mrs Langtry. For the last three years of his life he was with Mr F. Mouillot's A Message from Mars company. He was the author of several successful plays, including A Race for Wealth and The Crimson Club, written in collaboration with M. James, and now successfully touring under Mr Gus C. Livesey's management.

Advertisers and Subscribers who are moving about, and who have their Copy of "The Era" sent direct from this Office, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, are requested to forward the Addresses for their Papers [not later than the Tuesday] in each Week.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

'Tis a far cry from Oldham to Oxford, and it would be difficult to find two fair grounds more different than Tommyfeld and St. Giles. The former—especially in its now straitened condition—encompassed with brick walls of mighty mills; the latter set in the midst of ancient embattlements, in the very heart of Oxford's Gothic atmosphere; a broad avenue of trees set in a broader avenue of grey and crumbling walls. Oxford has been en fête; not the Oxford of Eights week and Commem., but that other Oxford which the gownsman dubs "townee." St. Giles' Fair was the excuse, and a good one, too. It was gaily upheld by the pick of Western shows. Some enterprising firm had issued a picture-postcard of the fair in 1868; and it was easy to see the progress which fair-ground novelties have made since then. The Cinématographs present were those of Messrs Jacob Studt, Arthur Twigdon, Thurston, Taylor, Professor A. Bull, Chipperfield, The fine art shows of Messrs Brett and S. Knighton, Tom Taylor's athletic exhibition, and Ingram's dog and monkey circus were also present. The machine list included Messrs Barker's and Thurston's gondolas, Thomas Clarke's switchbacks, Bailey's switchbacks, and Gale's switchbacks, Thurston's bicycles, galloping horses by Thurston, Wilson, and C. Bird; steam horses by Buckland, Ayers, Brett, and Wall; juvenile horses by Hearn; steam yachts by Forrest, highfliers by Benfield, Phipps, Aldridge, and Hollifield; and swings by Holloway, Wall, Buckland, and Tyler. The other novelties included the Oriental bazaars of Messrs Kemp, the Great Fisheries Exhibition of Mr R. Chipperfield; rifle saloons by T. Clarke, Pratley, Holmes, Cater, Wilson, Hearn, Edwards, Osborne, Forrest, and G. Hatwell; Emma sheets by Taylor, Westray, Webb, Rawlings, Seaton, Clack, and many others; cokers by Holloway, Butler, Buckland, Roberts, and Knighton; roll-up boards by Kemp, Sewin, Corrall, Young, Wincott, Spurrett, Bird, Rawlings, Westray, Jenks, Webb, Clack, Norman, Barber, Barnard, Irvin, among many others. Altogether a worthy gathering of showmen for this grand west-country meeting. The fair is a great attraction to crowds of country people, and the railway companies run many excursions from all parts. In addition to the pleasure fair attractions, cheapjacks and auctioneers of job lots availed themselves of the gullible many, and classic Oxford was asked to mourn the demise of Bill Bailey. At either end of St. Giles there were stationed a couple of temperance refreshment tents. No doubt Proggins and his bull-dogs were in attendance

The Pan-Celtic Congress has not absorbed all the Celts. Enough were left to make the fair which has just ended at Aberavon an all-round success. Those who shared in the good business which was forthcoming were Mr W. Haggar with his Royal Bioscope, and Mr Wadbrook's Electrograph. The other Cinématograph reaping the spoils was Messrs Dooner and Son's Electrograph. Mr Tom Wortley's fine arts, Mr Sol Reader's midget ponies, and the same exhibitor's crocodile show, the athletic contests of Messrs John Scarrott and Harry Cullis, the novelty booths of Professor Ruby, a Phantoscope, and the Sedgemoor Colliery exhibition completed the list of shows. Messrs H. Studt and Sons' gondolas and the same firm's gallopers and ostriches, T. Butlin's juvenile, and Jervis's steam horses, Nall's highfliers, Jervis's swings, and Brown's miniature swings were the machines in attendance. The other novelties were of the usual order, and were supplied by Messrs J. North, Billy North, G. Roberts, R. Fossett, Nall, Cogger, J. Day, Brown, and Mrs Sheen.

An interesting feature of this fair was the special service held on the fair ground on Sunday afternoon, conducted by the Vicar of Aberavon, the Rev. H. Griffiths, attended by his fully surpliced choir. The service was well attended by a representative congregation of showmen.

The fair and parade at Beith, N.B., was well sustained by Messrs Geo. Biddall and Son's electric ghost illusion, Chipperfield's French menagerie, Mrs Sarah Johnson and Son's circus of varieties, Sahib Leo's Egyptian Hall, Prof. Wm. Wood's school of arms, Mr Henry Chapman's feathered artists, Horatio's giant horse, and the Boswell character delineations. The machine list included Mr James Wilmot's Canadian switchback, Mr Geo Wilmot's three-abreast gallopers, Mr Joe Wingate's safety bikes, Stevenson's Highland Mary, and Smillie's manual swings. The first-class shooting concerns of Messrs S. J. Rostron, Smith, and Steen, and the minor fun of the fair with bogies, gold-fish, and Krugers by Messrs M'Intosh, Day, Stevenson, Brockley, and Smith.

From the Yorkshire round news is to hand of four feasts. From Bradford we hear of Great Horton Feast being well maintained by Messrs Relph and Pedley, Cinématograph, and H. Ashley living pictures and empire varieties did excellent business. The celebrated Lomas Family in the ghost illusion entertainment (manager, Mr J. Jones), gave a capital show. Weston's star menagerie, Hughes and school of boxers and athletes, and Harry Hughes' No. 2 show, with Storey's fine art gallery, added to the attractive list of exhibitors on the ground. The high-class machines included Whiting's electric gondolas, Hurst's two machines, and the Newmarket riding school set by Hibbert of Stockport; Richards steam yachts, and Kirby's highfliers.

At Farsley Feast were the Cinématographs of J. Manders and H. Testo; fine arts of J. Manders; Blakey, handcuff king; Bliss, crocodile show; J. Crampton, steam horses; J. Redfern and A. Morley, swings; E. Bentley and W. Radcliffe, Winchester ranges; and the inevitable aggregation of cokers, Emmas, and roll-up boards.

Birkenshaw Feast was smaller. Here were Will Kelso with his theatre and Mrs Birch with her midgets. T. Harriess and S. Corrigan supplied the machines, and the ranges and smashers were by G. Holdsworth and others.

Barker's Winchester range and similar shooting concerns by Delaney and Jewell, and a bottle battery by Garlick, with minor attractions of the coker and variety order supplied by Messrs Harrington, Block, Jewell, Whiting, Kirby, Southwood, Fletcher, Harrington, Leonard, Forshaw, and others completed the fair list.

Very rarely is Perth favoured by the visit of such a magnificent cavalcade as Buffalo Bill's "Wild West" Show. Two performances were given on the South Inch on Monday. The weather was fine, and the opportunity of being present at this wonderfully realistic production of Wild West life was eagerly taken advantage of, as was evident by the sea of expectant faces around the great arena before the performance commenced, and the large number of unfortunate tardy arrivals who were turned away, notwithstanding the seating accommodation being for 16,000. At the conclusion of the main programme a short variety entertainment was given

The Neath September Great Fair opened on Thursday, and continued until Saturday. We had the following attractions:—Messrs Danter's new switchback farmyard, H. Studt and Son's switchback, gondolas, and farmyard; bottle-shooting, Messrs J. Wright, H. Coggers, J. Butlin, E. Booth; shooting-galleries, J. Fossett, J. North, Butlin; cokernuts, J. North, J. Daly, J. Butlin; Mollies, J. North and J. Day; Wadbrook's Electrograph and variety entertainment; Hagger's Bioscope, Dooner's Bioscope, Crecraft's Bioscope and lion show, and numerous other attractions.

Another of the great Yorkshire feasts took place last week, and, being favoured with fine weather, thousands visited the feast ground and kept up the usual customs. The attractions included the gondola set of Asplands, the switchback railway (Mrs Waddington), William Murphy's No. 1 gondola set, Hamilton's leaping horses, Waddington's gondolas, Tuby's horses, Collins's cockerel set, Dobson's Ocean Wave, and Kaye's miniature horses. Some of England's premier shows were there, including G. H. Kemp's electric theatre, Monte Williams' Bioscope, Manders' No. 1 menagerie, Waddington's Cinématograph, Hodgini with his circus, Gess with his athletes, Stewart's boxing troupe, Le Neve lady wrestlers, Gibson's Home of Mystery, steam swings of Messrs Morley and Shaw. The majority of showmen here travel to Holbeck Feast, which takes place to-day, the largest feast around Leeds being held on the moor, by lease from the City Corporation, Leeds, to Mr William Murphy.

At Redditch we have Herbert's riding circus, park swings, bottle shooters, cokernut gardens, stalls, &c. Barber's auction pavilion is now paying a visit to this town.

At Besley were Arrowsmith's famous roundabouts, swing boats, shooting saloons, cokernut sheets, Mollies, and Jone's varieties.

BANDURRIAS AT THE NEW-CROSS EMPIRE.

Every source of amusement is drawn upon by the management of the Moss and Stoll Empires for the delectation of the patrons of their palatial halls, the programme at the New-cross hall this week seeming to exceed in excellence and variety the liberality for which the enterprising firm is famous. The quality of the entertainment is assured by the inclusion in the bill of the Bandurria Quintet, whose manifestations of music appeal to the earnest student quite as much as to the popular appreciation. From the little band of gaily attired Spanish troubadours, armed with mandoline and guitar, flows forth a volume of insinuating melody that stimulates the sense of hearing, rising and falling softly in a classical excerpt or catching the ear with a well-known refrain. They begin with the famous "Estudiantina Waltz," which is exquisitely rendered, the balance of tone being artistically preserved. A diversion is created by a medley of popular airs, ranging from "Bedelia" to "Eyes of Blue," even the inevitable "Bill Bailey" gaining freshness from the dainty rendering of the accomplished musicians. The audience become engrossed in the ravishing strains, evidence of their thorough enjoyment being supplied by the persistent recalls lavished on an interlude that is all too brief.—The Era, Sept. 3, 1904.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, July 12.—Fiddle-dee-dee is drawing crowded houses at the Palace Theatre in spite of an unmerciful "slating" directed at it by the morning papers. The people like bright, clever, clean fun, and the American company, introduced by Mr Harry James and managed by Mr S. W. Combs, supplies every element that goes to fun-making of a wholesome sort. The mere absence of a plot leaves folks free to laugh at what is going on without worrying about "the why and wherefore."

The Tivoli welcomed another new comer in Miss Nellie Kilburn on the 23rd, and this clever serio comedienne leaped at once into public favour. Miss Maud Faning has returned to her old place. Will Van Allen, the Uessems, Ella Wellington, Maud Beatty, Irving Sayles, Maggie Fraser, and the Jones Brothers are still in front of public esteem.

Mr Wilson Barrett's untimely death has seriously affected the thousands who enjoyed his two seasons here with his complete company. Sincere sympathy is felt for those of his family and company, whose loss is irreparable.

SYDNEY, July 19.—Fiddle-dee-dee is the name of a wild carnival of fun and frolic staged by the American Travesty Stars introduced by Mr Harry James. There is no attempt to tell a story, amusement pure and simple being the raison d'etre of the production. Three clever comedians fill the scene with wild vagaries and the air with hilarious sayings. These three, and Ben Hassan as a huge Newfoundland dog, keeps the laughter going. We have never seen better comedians of the character type, and Hassan's animal acting reminds us of Charles Lauri. Miss Maude Amber is a stately singer, gloriously frocked, and her voice is rich, full, and tuneful. Mr Winfield Blake is a handsome baritone, Miss Lillie Sutherland a marvel of coon dancing, and Mr Richard Goodall plays a sententious Irishman acceptably.

"The Marriage of Kitty" at the Criterion is now preceded by The Widow Woos, in which Mrs Henderson, Messrs Athol Forde and F. W. Perman and Master Sydney Halliday are concerned. The bright one-act play by Mrs Francis Blundell and Mr Sydney Valentine was neatly acted and those who were in the cast were warmly applauded.

The Tivoli has a new comer in the person of Will Von Allen, a player on an endless variety of instruments and a raconteur of unusual raciness. He was most favourably treated. The Uessems, Burke, Moller, and Teller, the Sivronis, Ellen Wellington, and the Diamond Duo, Maud Beatty and Tom Bass, are mainstays of the show.

MELBOURNE, July 27.—Mr George Edwardes's musical comedy company has concluded a nine weeks' season at the Princess's Theatre, under the direction of Mr J. C. Williamson. Three Little Maids, The Girl from Kay's, and Kitty Grey were produced. In Mr G. P. Huntley we have an accomplished comedian of rare ability. As Lord Cheyne and Hoggenheimer Mr Huntley has given us examples of fine comedy, and he will be long and pleasurably remembered by Melbourne playgoers. Misses Madge Crichton, Delia Mason, Elsa Ryan, Eva Kelly, and Clara Clifton were the recipients of numerous floral gifts, and Messrs Maurice Farkoa, J. E. Fraser, and George Carroll were warmly cheered. In a farewell speech Mr Huntley stated that he intended to visit Australia again. A nine nights' season, prior to opening in Sydney, was played in Adelaide to enthusiastic audiences, and Mr George Edwardes's general manager and stage director, Mr E. T. Steyne, is now probably satisfied that what threatened to be a rather disappointing tour will prove in the end to be highly satisfactory.

At Her Majesty's, Mr J. C. Williamson's dramatic company is playing The Light that Failed, the part of Dick Heldar being in the capable hands of Mr Cuyler Hastings. The wayward Maisie is cleverly interpreted by Miss May Chevalier, and Miss F. Gleeson, a native of this city, has sprung into prominence through her able rendering of the part of Bessie. Mr F. Hamilton Stuart (Torpenhow), Mr Lumsden Hare (the Nilghai), Mr Edmund Gwenn (Beeton), and Mr J. B. Atholwood (Castavetti) are all well placed in their respective parts. On Aug. 6 the company will produce Sunday, in which Miss Tittel Brune, who has just arrived from America, will play the leading part.

At the Theatre Royal Mr William Anderson is producing a rapidly changing succession of well-staged melodramas, the success of which is to be credited to a strong company, including Miss Eugenie Duggan, and Messrs Dunbar, Inman, Willard, and Carey. Vaudeville entertainment is provided at the Opera House by Mr Harry Rickards's company, the leading turns being contributed by Miss Katherine Dahl, the Tossing Austins, the musical Johnstons, Miss Maud Beatty, Miss May Moore-Duprez, Mr Pete Baker, Mr Tom Dawson, and Silly Billy Elliott.

Mr Frank Toubs, musical director of Mr George Edwardes' musical comedy company in Australia, was recently presented with a silver-cigarette case and matchbox by the members of the Princess's Theatre orchestra, Melbourne.

A six weeks' season of Italian opera will be given at Covent-garden by the San Carlo Theatre company from Naples, beginning in the middle of October. The performances will not intertere with the fancy dress balls, which commence on Sept. 3 and will be held fortnightly. On these evenings no performance of operas will take place.

The committee of the Buenos Ayres Lord's Day Observance Association have written to Mr J. Maurice Bandmann to express their appreciation of his generous action in suspending all Sunday performances, and to assure him that by doing so he has given satisfaction to very many British and American residents in the city.

Heer Louis Zimmermann, the celebrated concertmeister and solo violinist of the Amsterdam orchestra, has been appointed Professor of the Violin at the Royal Academy of Music, to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Mr Willy Hess, and will take up his duties at the commencement of the Michaelmas term on the 22nd inst.

Mdlle. Adeline Genée, who has received such a cordial welcome on her reappearance at the Empire, after her annual holiday, commenced to study dancing when she was a small child, and still practises every day. The pupil of her uncle M. Alexander Genée, she made her début at Copenhagen, and appeared at Berlin and Munich before accepting an engagement at the Empire. It has been said of this Danish première danseuse—and she considers it one of the prettiest compliments she has ever received—that she "floats on music."

A large sale is reported of Mr Tom Costello's "Farewell, my little Yo San," in its "sixpenny pops" form, and Messrs Mills and Bennett Scott are to be congratulated on the number.

Mr Editor.—Sir,—Your correspondent in his report of Winter Gardens, Morecambe, last week omitted to mention, yours faithfully, The Violas.

SCARBOROUGH.

SPA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Fras. Goodricke.—The attraction here this week is Mr F. R. Benson's Shakespearian company, which is appearing in The Merchant of Venice, The Rivals, Hamlet, Othello, Twelfth Night, and The School for Scandal. The company has had a most cordial welcome.

LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Waddington and Sons; Acting-Manager, Mr T. J. Carpenter.—A large audience assembled to witness the first performance here of The Duchess of Dantzic. Marechale Lefebvre is well sustained by Mr Albert Chapman; Mr Colin Mackay is amusing as Papillion; Mr Frederick Moyes gives a most careful impersonation of Napoleon; Miss Alice Coverick is a pleasing Renée; and Miss Rita Presano wins the sympathy of the audience in the most exacting rôle of Catherine Marechale Lefebvre. All the remaining characters are well sustained.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietress, Mrs Henry Mayhew; Manager, Mr F. P. Morgan.—The boards here are occupied by Messrs E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company, which is appearing with success in the drama The Traitor. Mr Stephen Scanlan is excellent as Number One; Mr Edwin Jenner is a capable Captain Ross; Mr Wellesley Draper shows considerable ability in the dual-rôle of Prince Rudolph and Colonel Nervi; Miss Hettie Senior wins favour as Elsie Duprey; and Miss Georgette Thierry does well as Zula.

PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM. — Managing Director, Mr Wm. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr William Kitchingman.—Here the attractions consist of the Cairo Orchestra and vocalists; Madame Mary Spicer and Mr A. Monaghan; Mdlle. Bartenelli, novel contortionist; the Dorcan Troupe of trapeze artistes; Carlo and Male, wire walkers; Mr G. Nicholson, Mr Harry Liston and Miss L. Lumley, sketch artistes; Olgo and Rochelle; the Boultons; and Professor Dickinson and troupe of lady swimmers complete an excellent bill.

ZALVA'S HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr George Zalva.—There is again an excellent bill-of-fare offered here. A capital turn is by Caban and his sixteen performing ponies. Mendel, the blind pianist, gives a good musical turn. Mdlle. Agnes Krembser puts in some clever juggling feats. Martino, contortionist, and the Misses Bosanquet, vocalists, are also warmly applauded. Doodles, the clown, is as popular as ever.

SALFORD.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—F. Brooke Warren's company in the sensational drama Mysteries of the Thames is successfully entertaining the numerous patrons of this house. Mr Roy Fortescue makes a good impression in his impersonation of Richard Brandon, a ruined man. The villain, Captain James Denbigh, is fittingly sustained by Mr F. Brooke Warren. A clever performance is given Miss G. Warren, who represents Helen Price, a woman of pleasure, and also her unfortunate crippled sister, Grace. Little Doris is prettily sustained by Miss Nellie Palmer; Miss L. Shelton creditably undertakes the part of Kate Brandon; Jack Hammond is well done by Mr Gilbert Hall; and Mr Elton Morgan as Bill Bosco, Mr D. Hardie as Peter Waggles, and Miss Flo Norman as Emma Seaton successfully combine in the comedy element. The staging is good.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Licensee, Mr James M. Hardie; Secretary and Manager, Mr C. Shayler.—An excellent programme is headed by a clever comic acrobatic exhibition by the Original Garganis, followed by an interesting dramatic episode in one act, A Daughter of Pleasure, in which Grahame and Harrington are seen to advantage. Steel and Laing are much applauded for their acrobatic and singing and dancing speciality. Harry Edson introduces his clever dog Doc, and other acceptable turns include Will Fredo, with his comic songs and expert clog-dancing; Hannah and James, foot equilibrists; Edward Clode, baritone vocalist; and Cissie Reece, serio and dancer.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead.—Good houses are being drawn by this week's programme. The Mannons give the laughable farcical absurdity Uncle Yank; Renson and Waite have a highly diverting comedy act; Burnetti, a quick-change character musician; Flo Deighton, Anglo-American soprano vocalist; Keith and Merson, eccentric acrobatic singing and patter comedians; Caselli and James, banjo experts; Adrim and Oram, eccentrics; Len Lever, coon songs and dances; Clifton and Gibson in their funnisities; Lydia Dudley, comedy artiste; and Charles Rose, comedian and speciality clog dancer, also are successful.

L. AND N.W. PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietress, Mrs S. A. Higham; Manager, Mr Sam Higham.—A good programme—including Miss May Valrose, serio and dancer; Mr France Kimball, crazy musician; Miss Hilda De Grey, soprano; and the Sisters Wynne, duettists, dancers, and mandolinists—is headed by Mr Sam Higham, comedian, in his new and old characters, which are always acceptable.

SHEERNESS.

TRANSFIELD'S HIPPODROME. — Sole Proprietor, Mr T. G. Transfield; Secretary and Manager, Mr Chas. Melvin.—Heading the bill here are Ada Alexandra and her merry Dutch girls, who meet with a flattering reception; Othello and Venus present a remarkably smart performance on the trapeze; the Misses Atherton (Flo and Nellie) win hearty applause as operatic duettists; a clever performance by Rozell on the slack wire is also much appreciated; Mr T. W. Barrett gets heartily encored for his rendering of some capital songs; whilst Little Bishop, the indispensable clown, and Mr John Yelding, equestrian, form the remaining items of a well-arranged bill.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr P. Reymond.—This popular place of amusement reopened for the season this week with an attractive programme, including the Calden combination in the dramatic sketch Sunset. Other capital turns include Miss Nellie Walton, comedienne; Oak and Ash, eccentric comedians and patterers; Lesmore and Allen, comedy duettists; and the mannikins, aptly described as the Living Marionettes, together with Good Old Phil.

SHREWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr W. Q. Dornton. The return visit this week of Mr George Edwardes's company with San Toy was highly welcome, and the piece was thoroughly enjoyed. Mr Edmund Sherras was in fine voice as Bobby Preston, and his patriotic song was greatly appreciated. Mr Alfred W. Clark made a droll and capable mandarin as Yen How. Mr J. G. Williams as the dapper, irascible Sir Bingo Preston was smart and successful; Mr Cliff Davies made a clever and amusing Emperor; Mr Adam Gordon was well placed as Sing Hi, and his acting was conscientious; Mr Walter P. Wright merited praise as Lieut. Tucker; Mr Clinton Reynolds as a Chinese student acquitted himself creditably; Mr Alfred Beers, who had plenty to do as Li, vastly entertained his audience; and other male parts were in safe hands. Miss Don Harradane made a bewitching and vivacious San Toy, and her singing was effective; Miss Florence Arnold was bright and clever as Dudley; Miss Mabel Lavelle looked well and acted with care and ability the part of Poppy; Miss Beatrice Gradella was efficient as Miss Rose Tucker; Miss Beatrice Vaenor was a dashing and attractive Ko Fan; and the Misses Lydia Naylor, Nancy Duncan, Margaret Evans, Ethel Twichin, Blanche Hounsell, and B. Tennyson filled the rôles of Emperor's wives admirably, their songs being capitally given.

SHEFFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr W. C. Purcell; Acting-Manager, Mr T. S. Carter.—A crowded house welcomed The Cherry Girl on Monday. Miss Helen Hart made a captivating and tuneful Pansy, and other pretty and talented ladies were Miss Ida Worsley, Miss Ravensberg, Miss Connie Loxton, Miss Ada Holt, Miss Rosa Ravensberg, Miss Agnes Hodgkinson, Miss Vaughan, and Miss Dorothy Green. Mr Frank Lincoln as Moonshine and Happy Joe revelled in the opportunities afforded him for the display of his peculiar and quaint humour. Master Louis Victor made a great success in the part of Snowball, and other characters were ably sustained by Mr Percy Oakley, Mr S. M'Alpine, Mr R. H. Howard, Mr Albert Felino, Mr H. Walker, Mr Charles Danvers, and Master Sydney Grata. Mr Fritz Hart was an efficient conductor, and the whole entertainment was thoroughly enjoyable

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr George Edwardes's company opened here in San Toy on Monday, when there was a large and enthusiastic audience. Miss Fanny Dango was bright, tuneful, and piquant as San Toy; Miss Francis was a vivacious Poppy; and Miss Maude Darling was pretty and graceful as Dudley. That charming exponent of Terpsichorean art, Miss Alice Lethbridge, acted agreeably as Rose Tucker, and, as usual, danced divinely; Mr Reginald Kenneth was smart as Bobby Preston, singing excellently; Mr John Humphries was an unctuous and laughter-provoking Yen-How; Mr Colin Coop repeated his amusing impersonation of the Emperor; Mr Arthur Soames did well as Harry Tucker; Mr Stratton Mills was again successful as Sir Bingo Preston; and Mr E. S. Staples was funny as Li. The scenery and dresses were beautiful and artistic. Mr George M. Saker conducted the well-trained chorus and augmented band.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—The thrilling drama When London Sleeps is being played to good houses here by Mr Lester Collingwood's company. The scenery is good, and the effects are very realistic. The leading parts are all admirably impersonated by Mr W. H. S. Sams as the daring and athletic hero; Mr Victor Mason as Sammy Blythe, Mr Frank Graham as Captain Rodney Haynes, Mr Frank Eden as the Hon. Bertie Broomhead, Miss Maude Hastings as Queenie Carruthers, "Queen of the wire," Miss Mary Brammer as Hilda Carrode, and Miss Effie M'Intosh as Carrie Jones.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—The Pantzer Bros., society acrobats, head the bill this week, and other artistes engaged are, Khan and Khan, in a clever exposition of necromancy; the Casselli Sisters, eccentric dancers; Lalla Selbini, cycling, juggling, and musical pot-pourri artiste; Ferreros, in a musical act; Alf Holt, American comedian; Selma Braatz, juggler; Stelling and Revell, comics, on the bars; the Arnatos, musical sketch artistes; and Miss Carrie Lawrie and her juveniles in The Kindergarten.

GRAND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr W. C. Burns.—Les Valdos, continental eccentrics; H. E. High, an amusing entertainer; George Prince, a diverting comic singer; Miss Lind, vocalist; J. C. Crawley, James Dubois, and the Jalvans, expert jugglers, are drawing the "merry denaries" into the Macnaghten treasury nightly, and all win hearty and deserved applause.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. Marlow, jun.—Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week Cousin Kate was most successfully presented by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company. Miss Lilias Earle plays the part of Kate in a capable manner, and Mr Yorke Stephens also appears, his fine acting being greatly admired. The scenery and other settings are an exact replica of the London production, and the dresses are very pretty. On Thursday and Friday and Saturday The Belle of New York was the attraction.

PIER PAVILION. — Sole Lessee, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr Chas. Harrington's original No. 1 American Combination in the musical adaptation of the world-famous beautiful work, Uncle Tom's Cabin, is here this week. The play is excellently staged, and throughout the respective parts are capitally rendered. Uncle Tom is ably embodied by Mr J. Carr, Mr Charles Harrington gives good effect to Phineas Fletcher, Mr B. Lenton is well suited as Mr St. Clair, George Harris is admirably characterised by Mr Guy P. Ellis, Mr John Henry Rogers makes a hard slave-master as Legree. Miss Hettie Johnson is a noteworthy character in Eliza Harris, Miss Sylvia Stella is remarkable for her vivacity as Topsy, Little Minnie gives an excellent portrayal of Little Eva, and Cassy is in the most capable hands of Miss Zerlina Zerbini. The Plantation festival is rendered in a most efficient manner.

KURSAAL. — General Manager, Mr J. Sydney Childs.—An excellent programme is again provided this week, large and appreciative audiences being the result. Little Zola is a comedian of no mean repute, and is vociferously received; Miss Nellie Pearson is a pleasing comedienne; Frank White is well suited as the cake-walking coon; the mysterious "Mr E." gives some clever hoop tricks; Player's Royal Cadet Choir are good; John Macaulay still merits favour with his robust tenor singing; and Jones's cycle track is a feature worth seeing. The Bioscope has some very interesting films; while the Circus still continues to draw large audiences. The Kursaal Pierrots also maintain their reputation in the Café Chantant.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—The sensational drama, Queen of the Night, is paying a return visit here. Included in Mr James Stillwell's company is Miss V. St. Lawrence, who sustains the rôle of Paulina with confidence and power. Mr James Stillwell gives a good performance of Philip Stoneleigh. Miss Pollie Denville brightly depicts Kitty White, and an amusing Adolphus is submitted by Mr Edgar Morgan. Mr F. Thorpe-Tracey as Old Briskett is funny. Miss Katherine Barnett makes the most of Maud Sylvester, and Mr A. E. Campbell does well as Frank Cavendish, M.D.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—The entertainment furnished by Chung Ling Soo, the marvellous conjuror, is entirely different from that given by him here some months ago. He now travels with thirty supernumeraries, and his military mandarin procession is only one item in the host of attractions he offers. Ganty, the funny man, is decidedly quaint, his songs being loudly applauded. The Three Sisters Chester, vocalists and instrumentalists, are popular, and Frank and Free are smart comedy artistes. Beatrice Willey, ballad vocalist, sings well, and other good turns are Dot Hardy, Sam Shipley, Beatie Worth, and the Lannons.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—Miss Lottie Collins holds the premier position this week, and is a huge success. The Onatis, Algerian jugglers, contribute a clever turn. Iben Obed as a hand balancer stands alone, several of his feats being quite new and daring. Alf Chester is a decided success, his contributions being enthusiastically received. Miss Omega on the wire is exceedingly clever; Miss Bessie Willow renders her songs admirably; Lydia Dreams, in a ventriloquial sketch, is most entertaining; Frank Hartley does well; and Geo. Edney, in a descriptive song, is much appreciated. Mr Collins is generously giving the total proceeds of a Sunday concert for the benefit of the North Staffordshire Hospital. A bumping house is certain.

SPENNYMOOR.

CAMBRIDGE THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr Harding Thomas; General Manager Mr Herbert Vere.—Mr Rice Cassidy's company is paying a return visit. This time Dan the Rake is the bill-of-fare provided for four nights, The God of War being the attraction for the remainder of the week. Mr J. Rice Cassidy in the title-rôle of the first-mentioned play is excellent, his songs and patter being greatly appreciated. Miss Lillian Clare's sketch of the wild Irish Madge is admirable. Mr Frank Orchard represents Colonel Flamer in a clever manner, and Mr Frank Copeland contributes a good reading of Lieut. Charles Cavanagh. Mr Frederick Biron is effective as the villainous Tom Cooper. Mr Norman Hall creates much amusement as Archille. Miss Florence Halton wins admirations for her charming portrayal of Helen. Miss Ada Roscoe as Mrs Donelly is well suited to her part. Other rôles are in the hands of Messrs Stephen Crossley, Charles Crosby, and Ernest Chandler.

STALYBRIDGE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Leighton Rooke.—Mr and Mrs F. G. Kimberley's A Sister's Sin company is paying a third visit here. Mr Arthur Royston displays much vigour in the character of Harold Raymond; Miss Cora Linda, in the part of Minnie Hastings, has many opportunities for showing her ability; the villainy of the piece devolves upon Mr Raymond Thomas; Mr Sidney Rennef undertakes the character part of Farmer Hastings with much skill; and Miss Clara Santley as the gipsy, Charzell, is seen to advantage in an arduous part. Mr Cecil Morand introduces a song in the comedy part of Larry Murphy, and is very ably assisted by Miss Edie Macklin, Miss Lillian Warren, and Mr Edwin T. Kisby. The scenery and properties are very effective, and the whole production is a success.

ST. HELENS.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED — General Manager, Mr M'Leod Loader.—The New Commander is being presented here this week by Miss Grace Warner and company, amongst the most prominent members being Miss May Dallas, Miss Maud Warburton, and Messrs George Gordon, B. Couch-Johns, St. Bernard Wyntour, J. P. Marsden, and M. Anderson. Specialities are contributed by Miss Daisy Caulder and the Primrose Quartet of dancers.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident Manager, Mr A. V. Carnell.—Hilarity, played by Mr Fred Karno's company, is the chief attraction here. Brothers Babusian meet with a hearty reception for their sensational acrobatic performance; the Musical Palmers evoke well-merited applause; Mr Charles E. Ernest, "a human orchestra," is deservedly appreciated; Miss Flo Wood is a dainty comedienne; Mr J. P. Dane repeats his former success; and attractive items are supplied by Mr Harry Clifford, vocalist; Miss Daisy Almer, serio; and Wanotee, gymnast and contortionist.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—A Message from Mars, capably presented by Mr Mouillot's company, is making a welcome reappearance here this week. Horace Parker is impersonated by Mr Rawson Buckley with much success, and Mr W. H. Brougham as the Messenger is thoroughly efficient. As the Tramp Mr Bruce Lindley is excellent, and Mr Frank G. Dunn as Arthur Dicey is very pleasing. Miss May Saker is most charming as Minnie Templer, and Miss Flora Hastings makes a stately Miss Parker.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—A Traitor Prince, by George A. De Gray, acted by Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company, is staged here. Mr G. M. Montanini as Prince Rio Dalmeirez is quite a success; as Lieut. Frank Derrick Mr Austin Mortimer plays with skirit; Mr A. H. Longford in the dual-part of Richard Vane and Colonel Vane does well; a good deal of humour is shown by Mr E. Carter Livesey as Billy Bright and M. T. G. Vane as the Hon. Bobby Dalrymple; Mr G. E. Hall's Cara is also capable; Miss Lillian Roseberry's Lola Vayne is effective; Miss Beatrice Western's Vashti is very creditable; and some pretty dances are given by the Geisha Trio.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—This week we have Charles Vandyke's pantomimic sketch Sensations, which heads the bill; the Sisters Russell, whose comic items are a great hit; the Patti Brothers, with some wonderful head balancing; the Young American Quintet, singing tunefully and dancing well; Ryder Stone, in a burglar song; Steeley and Dowton's legmania show; Oliver Conroy, a funny singer; and Payne's pictures.

STOURBRIDGE.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—In the Shadow of Night is being presented here by Mr James Willard's company. Mr Hamilton Deane as Clifford York plays the villainous rôle in characteristic style; Mr Fred Norburn as Jake Grudgewell is effective; and Mr Archie Selwyn, in the dual rôle of Joe Jackson and Rev. Hope is excellent. Miss Nellie Sheffield as Mollie Woodstock is an efficient exponent, and together with Mr Chrisholm Taylor as Tom Nainby provides plenty of fun. Miss May Woodstock is a winsome Violet Kingston, and Mr Howard L. Tracy does well as Gordon Allington. Miss Phyllis B. French is satisfactory as Bob, a little tramp.

STROUD.

SUBSCRIPTION ROOMS. — Manager, Mr H. J. Twitchett.—Miss Inez Howard's Man to Man company, under the direction of Mr Henry Chattell, was here on Saturday. Mr Fred S Peake played with power and emotion the part of George Gordon. Mr Shiel Barry made the character of the Mad Parson stand out conspicuously. Mr Frank Mainwaring portrays Richard Ellerton, the villain, with great earnestness. Mr Jack Paulton is quaint and funny as Samuel Plumtree. A forcible picture of the convict, Bill Burkley, is given by Mr Edward W. Cudd. Miss Dora Davis worthily sustains the rôle of Ethel Maythorne. Miss Doris Kelney makes an excellent Miss Lavinia Dove, and Miss Maud Leslie Cudd gives a clever rendering of Gipsy Madge.

SUNDERLAND.

AVENUE, LIMITED — Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Mr Edmund Tearle and company are visiting us this week. On Monday, before a large audience, The Three Musketeers was presented. Mr Edmund Tearle admirably portrayed the part of D'Artagnan, being well supported in the parts of the three Musketeers by Messrs Richard Melton, Neal Fitzwilliam, and Vernon O. Crabtree. Miss Kate Clinton was decidedly good as Miladi; Miss Esther Tearle as Constance gave a convincing interpretation; Mr William J. Miller played the part of Cardinal Richelieu admirably; and Mr T. W. Benson as Boniface was also worthy of mention.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Mr Ernest R. Abbott's company, in The Mariners of England, occupies the boards here this week. Mr Abbott faithfully portrays the character of Lord Nelson; Mr Clifford Clifford as Admiral Talbot, Mr John Lester as Captain Hardy, Mr W. H. Garbois as Lebaudy, Miss Ada Abbott as Mabel Talbot, Miss Isabel Singleton as Polly Appleyard, and Miss Linda Riley as Nelly Dell are equally good in their respective parts.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr George V. Wybrow; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alfred Brown.—Mark Melford and company, in an amusing sketch entitled Non-suited, prove an excellent turn; the Gladenbecks give a fine gymnastic display, the lady performer being particularly good; the Four Jumels are interesting in a musical turn; and Phil Herman, comedian; Ike Scott and Son, comedians; Cline and Clark, song and dance artists; George Turner, comedian; Ada Whitton, burlesque artiste; and Vernon's animated pictures complete the programme.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce.—The attraction at this house during the week has been His Excellency the Governor, a most amusing farcical comedy, by Captain Robert Marshall, played remarkably well by Messrs Percy D. Standing and Monckton Hoffe's company. All the characters were capably filled, especially His Excellency by Mr Percy D. Standing; the Right Hon. Henry Carlton by Mr Monckton Hoffe; and Mr John Baverstock by Mr William Allison; Mrs Wentworth-Bolinbroke by Miss Isabel Grey; Ethel Carlton by Miss Joan Ellis; and Stella De Gex by Miss Nora Hoffe; the other parts also being in good hands. The Lady who Dwelt in the Dark, a pretty one-act play by Mr Monckton Hoffe, has been the curtain-raiser.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—This week the boards have been occupied by Messrs Garside, Knowles, and Ludlow's company with The London Fireman.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—The programme presented here during the week is a very enjoyable one, and contains the M'Naughtons, two high-class comedians; Marie Weston, a clever step dancer; J. W. Hall, a capital comedian; the British Quartet, an exceedingly good glee party; J. A. Wilson, the black oracle; Roburtus and Wilfredo, very clever ball manipulators; Bijou Russell, a pleasing dancer; Zanfretta and Naplo, clever instrumentalists; and Herr Fritz, a smart illusionist.

SWINDON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr Alfred Manners; Assistant-Manager, Mr W. B. Astin.—The Original Leopolds, in their popular musical and acrobatic entertainment, Frivolity, kept a large audience in continuous roars of laughter with their merriment and clever antics on Monday, when they opened a return visit to this town. The company is under the business direction of Mr J. Ellery, while Mr J. Leopold, jun., is responsible for the stage-management. The great feature of the piece is undoubtedly the unique acrobatic feats of the Leopold Troupe, and the remarkably fine Roman statuary sets, which are received with outbursts of applause. As Sammy Mr Bert Lloyd achieves great success with his endless stock of genuine fun, and Mr John Gerant makes the most of the part of Oliver Buckwheat, while Miss Ruby Wyndham is pleasing as the much-sought-for "widow." Mr J. Leopold, jun., and Miss Amy Hall as the runaway lovers play capitally together and give intense delight with their coon song and dance in the second act. The dances and side business reflects great credit on other members of the company.

TON-Y-PANDY.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Counsell.—Mr Harry Starr and his company, in the popular comedy-drama Otto the Outcast, are paying what proves to be a highly welcome return visit. The unstinted plaudits of a well-filled house demonstrated plainly that the piece has lost none of its interest.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Resident Manager, Mr Frank Burland.—This popular Rhondda variety hall entered upon a new era on Monday night, when it was reopened under the above management, who have acquired the building during the vacation. Characteristic of the new management, the interior has been thoroughly overhauled, and the decorations reflect the greatest credit upon those concerned. Several improvements, too, were noted, the most conspicuous being the addition of charming private boxes and the extension of the side circle. Not the least enjoyable feature is the increase of the orchestra to fourteen members. Prior to the rising of the curtain Mr Burland (late of the Palace, Plymouth, and also of Blackpool) made a neat speech, in which he outlined the policy of the new governing body, and said that no effort would be spared to provide the best of provincial variety shows free from any trace of vulgarity. In one way this speech was the hit of the evening. The programme included Professor Schickley's bears, Miss May Lilian Levey; Gauze, the Indian female impersonator; the Sisters Lee, the Four Maisanos, Gintara, the Japanese top spinner; and R. C. Note. The orchestra, under the leadership of Mr F. Leslie, rendered a good account of themselves.

TORQUAY.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing Director, Mr R. Smerdon; Secretary, pro tem., Mr Arthur Pearce.—Mr Henry Dundas's company, in the celebrated drama Human Nature, occupies the boards this week. Mr Henry Dundas as Captain Temple is loudly applauded, whilst Miss Lilian Dundas as Cora Grey is also well placed. As Captain Temple's wife Miss Batho-Griffiths is very good; Mr C. B. Keston as Paul De Vigne could hardly be improved upon; and the same may be said of Mr Henry C. Cooper as the Solicitor. Mr Reginald Weighill as Joe Lambkin is good.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Captain Welton Dale; Acting-Manager, Mr F. E. Manaton.—Sunday has been well received this week. Miss Dorothy Cacey appears in the title-rôle, and Mr Herbert Ross takes the part of Colonel Brinthorpe. Mr and Mrs Calvert Routledge's company in A Night Off is announced for the week-end.

TYNEMOUTH.

PALACE AND WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Blome.—Staig's motor racing in mid-air heads the bill here this week, and is accorded a hearty reception. Ashton's Italian orchestra continues to please with well-rendered selections; Miss Dora Barrington is a sweet and cultivated soprano; the Brothers Durant, speciality artistes, are most amusing. Maurice Garland, magician, and the Terras Brothers, acrobats, also contribute to the enjoyable entertainment.

WALLSEND.

THEATRE ROYAL — Owners, the Wallsend Theatre Company; Manager, Mr T. Richardson.—Mr Fred Cooke and company are appearing here this week in On Shannon's Shore. Mr Fred Cooke undertakes the part of Father O'Flaherty, and acquits himself in excellent style; Mr Bert Pearson makes a capital Hyacinth O'Neale; Mr Dan Farrough is passable as Turlough O'Hanlon; Miss Gladys Gilchrist gives a clever impersonation of Mary O'Shanahan; whilst as Norah O'Rierdon Miss Davidge Honder leaves little to be desired. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday The Diver's Luck was to be staged.

WALTHAMSTOW.

PALACE.—Managing Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slatter.—The overture to Flotow's tuneful, but almost forgotten opera, Stradella, artistically rendered by the orchestra, under the careful direction of Mr H. Petersen, puts this week's audience into good temper for an agreeable bill. The Sisters Hall are an attractive couple of young ladies who sing harmoniously. Mr Johnny Gilmore, an Australian artist, is quaint and amusing, both as singer and patterer. A bright and clever mimic is forthcoming in Miss Rosie Archer, whose imitations of well-known favourites are distinctly good. Mr Walter King is a most amusing comedian of whom the audience would fain have heard more. The Sisters Dacre are duettists and dancers of the best kind. The leading feature of the programme is The Fighting Parson, in which Mr George Gray, supported by a strong company, repeats his successful performance. Allis and Cassati contribute an amusing item, entitled In a Funny Few Minutes, which certainly deserves its name. They are most mirth-provoking.

KING'S THEATRE.—Messrs Charles Draycott and H. B. Peppin's company is doing good business this week in the stirring, not to say startling, drama The Best Must Win. As Gaston, Marquis De Marcel, alias "The Panther," Mr Charles Draycott has a part in which he simply revels in villainy. His acting is throughout superb. The Panther's satellite, Juan Minos, has a capital representative in Mr H. B. Peppin; Mr R. Watson is good as Paul Dumaresq, and Miss Lillian Loyde an attractive Denise. In a long cast Messrs Fred Aldworth, O. J. Round, H. I. Fielding, Snelling Lestocq, Fred Weston, and Wilson Frith; Misses Mary Vincent, Violet Ospringe, Florence Lovell, and Ethel Vinroy put in really good work The sensational "Kiss of Death" is gruesomely realistic. Charles Draycott is personally responsible for the entire production.

WAKEFIELD.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Messrs M. B. Buckstone and J. R. Cox's company in the drama The Seal of Silence is here this week. Mr Henry Lonsdale undertakes the part of Jack Ellerslie with ability and power; Mr C. Arrol-Aldersyde acts well as Dr. Mark Renwood; Mr Reginald Payne is successful as Kenneth Morrison; and the part of the villain, Captain Hedley Norman, is ably portrayed by Mr George Langdon. Mr Free L. Moore is efficient as Sharkey Shepps, a coster; and Mr Charles Coleman scores as Bimbo. Miss Mary Buckstone gives an effective rendering of Madeline Morrison; Miss Gertrude Hunt acts with charm as Lilian Desbrooke; Miss Cissie Cleveland is pleasing as Dora; and Little Violet Du Cane as Victor deserves mention.

WARRINGTON.

ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Messrs Carson and Granville's company in the stirring play Defending His Honour is paying a welcome return visit here this week. Mr John Davidson acts with impressive fervour the part of Douglas Brice, being particularly effective in the death-bed scene. As Stephen Grand Mr Clifton Boyne portrays the cultured scoundrel with rare effect, and as Dick Damish Mr John Hignett was as well placed. Messrs F. L. Arthur and Kenneth Black, jun., score well as Richard and Dick Venison, and Mr C. H. Herbert acts with dramatic force as George Duncan. Miss F. Melrose-Millett wins high praise for her delineation of Ethel Bryce, and Miss Edmond Lyons scores as Mrs Theresa Verizon, a remark which also applies to Miss Lilian Matthews as Miss Trixie Lucian. The minor parts are in excellent hands, and the staging effective.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Wilmot.—Crowded houses are still the order at this house, and on Monday evening a warm welcome awaited Tom White's Arabs, who supply an entertainment which is truly mirth-provoking. Eileen and Mayne are rightly styled talented instrumentalists and dancers; and Zasma is not only an expert acrobat, but lifts some heavy weights with his teeth in astonishing style. Florence Carlow uses a sweet soprano voice to advantage; and Bob Gardner, the Milanese piper, supplies a capital turn. Capital pictures are drawn in rapid time by Vandinoff, and the Royal Bioscope shows some of the finest pictures seen here for a long time.

WELLINGBOROUGH.

CORN EXCHANGE.—A successful performance of The Daughter of the Regiment on Saturday brought to a conclusion a welcome three nights' visit from Mr F. S. Gilbert's opera company. Miss Vera Vizard worked very hard as Marie, and was admirable throughout. Mr Gilbert was good as Tony, Mr Karl Mora appeared as Sergeant Sulpice, and the company also included Miss Constance St. Bride (whose Maritana and Arline were excellent), Miss C. Waldron, and Mr G. H. Place.

WELSHPOOL.

TOWN HALL.—Secretary, Mr Elledge.—On Monday Messrs Baring Brothers presented Charley's Aunt to a large audience. Miss Lucy Sibley gave a graceful rendering of Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez; Miss Winifred Ingham made a winsome Ela Delahay; Miss Renee Roy was seen to advantage as Amy Spettigue; and Miss Mary Fletcher was an admirable Kitty Verdun. Mr Walter Beaumont played well as Stephen Spettigue; Mr Sydney Lynn was a good Colonel Chesney; Mr Fred Tyrell's Bassett was a careful study; and the trio of undergraduates, Jack Chesney, Charley Wykeham, and Lord Fancourt Babberly, were ably represented by Messrs Hastings Lynn, Basil Lynn, and Edmund Byker.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

GRAND.—General Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Fred Conneaux.—The return visit of The Indian Mutiny, played by Frank E. Burdett's specially selected company, is being favourably received. The Lieut. Manley of Mr Fred Emery is a well-studied rendition. A realistic representation of Ra Goonga is given by Mr Ernest Keand. Exceptional dramatic versatility is shown by Miss Maud Digby in her admirable assumption of the rôle of Ghuz-nah. Mr Villiers Stanley makes a realistic character of Nebu Singh, and good wholesome Irish comedy is instilled into the character of Terry O'Brien by Mr Johnny M'Elroy.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—The bill for this week is headed by that ever-popular comedian, J. W. Rowley, and the second place of honour is held by the Remingtons, Continental gymnasts and acrobats. Other turns are supplied by Musical Silvo; the Violas, mental telegraphists; Shang Hia, conjuror; Howe and Ardie, gymnasts, in a speciality, Up in a Balloon; Francis, the cannon-ball king; Chas Cork, coon; and a lady who deputises for Little Dando.

PIERROTS.—The Bliss and Bliss Park-road Pierrots go as strong as ever. Audiences both numerous and enthusiastic witness the performances daily. Leo Bliss has earned the indelible mark of popularity, his songs being repeatedly encored. A sketch is now being played nightly, that for the present week being Aladdin, which is admirably adapted for the occasion, and gains unstinted applause.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Payne.—Mr W. T. Elworthy and Mr J. Buckley's company has appeared here for three night in A Pair of Spectacles. The Gregory Goldfinch of Mr W. T. Elworthy was an artistic interpretation. Mr Brember Wills gave an excellent portrayal of Benjamin Goldfinch; Miss Beth Elliott was a charming Mrs Goldfinch; and Miss Kathleen Maitland was decidedly good as Lucy Lorimer. Mr Harold Standing (Percy), Mr Escott Robson (Dick), Mr J. Norman (Mr Lorimer), Mr Sam Wilkinson, jun. (Joyce), and Mr N. Aveling (Bartholomew) all gave praiseworthy impersonations of their respective characters. On Thursday and Friday nights Miss Fortescue and répertoire company presented Moths, Ought We to Visit Her? and The School for Scandal.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—The Æolian Opera Singers opened here on Monday to a crowded house. Miss Florence Kay sang "The Twilight Hour" with expression, Miss Jennie Johns gained much applause for her singing of "My Chrysanthemum," and Miss Beatrice Kenyon's rendering of "Maid of Japan" was much appreciated. Mr Vivian Munro sang "Nini, Ninette, Ninon" and was well received, whilst Mr J. P. Ling proved extremely diverting in his humorous sketch and imitations.

WEST STANLEY.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Lessee and Proprietor, Mr T. C. Rawes; Resident Manager, Mr David Williams.—This handsome little cosy theatre, which, during the vacation, has been undergoing extensive alterations, was well filled on Monday with a thoroughly appreciative audience gathered together to witness the production of the sensational melodrama, entitled Because I Love You. Mr W. Cavell Clark as Nemo (the Vulture) plays a most exacting part with real ability; whilst Mr Richard A. Greene makes a manly Captain Stirling, V.C. Mr Walter Rayham invests the part of Christopher Chandos with a degree of pathos. As Professor Predate Mr Albert Sefton is very good; and as Eddie Poplett Mr Guy Ramsden is excellent. Miss F. Trevior scores as Lady Ursula; and as Mrs Popplett Miss A. Stintion gives satisfaction. Miss Madge North has a heavy part as Norina Chandos; nevertheless she acquits herself with commendable ability. The comedy element is in the safe hands of Mr Tom H. Court as Nebuchadnezzar, a cats'-meat man, and Miss Minnie Leslie as Cleopatra Cotton. Great credit is due to the management for their careful attention to the general mounting of the piece.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Stanley Theatres Company, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Mark H. Linden.—Mr T. Arthur Jones and his company are paying a visit here this week with the drama Life's Sweetest Sins. As Captain Harold Marston Mr T. Arthur Jones is very good; and as Doctor Colbrooke Mr A. B. Garth is sufficiently villainous to merit the usual disapprobation of the audience. Miss Madge Morley is charming as Doreen; and as Fay Colbrooke Miss Amy Rudd is satisfactory. Called Back was played on Thursday night.

WEYMOUTH.

JUBILEE HALL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. R. Wallis.—Quite an artistic and financial success is the result of the visit of Mr Chas. Macdona's company in the musical comedy A Country Girl. The title-rôle is ably filled by Miss Florence Hallam, whose singing meets with much appreciation; Miss Florence Burdett does exceedingly well as Nan; Miss Sadie Neville as Madame Sophie is a great success, her business with Barry (Mr Richard Telford) keeping the house in a continuous roar. Barry's humorous antics and sayings are the cause of many an honest laugh. Sir Joseph Verity's character is well brought out by Mr W. O. Billington; and Mr Guy Williams sings and acts well as Mr Geoffrey Chaloner.

WHITEHAVEN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Clark.—Miss Rose Faith's company is appearing here in the Georgian costume play No Cross, No Crown. Mr Ernest Lodge acts well as Sir Francis Luttrell, and Mr Herbert Clifton works hard as Doctor Ashby. Mr Logan Darra is good in the rôle of Austin Blake, and Mr C. George is satisfactory as Rawson Haines. Miss Jenny Lodge creates a good impression as Mistress Clare, and Miss Rose Faith is well cast as Lady Luttrell. The costumes and scenery are elaborate.

WIGAN.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr John Worswick.—The fascinating play, An Actor's Romance, has been presented during the week by Mr Cecil Barth's company. Mr Guy Hastings as Harold Davenport gives a forceful representation of the part, and Mr Ernest Rushton does well as Robert Livingstone. Mr E. H. Dobell as Charlie Cummings is admirable. Louise Davenport has a dignified representative in Miss Bertha Northam, while Miss Connie Leon as Dottie Dillingham is sprightly and mirth-provoking. Little Marie Ada Dowsing in the child's part of Phyllis Davenport gives a pathetic portrayal of the character. The part of Florence, the adventuress, is capably represented by Miss Beatrice Bevan.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—Stewart and Morgan, in their vocal speciality Leaving Ireland, are exceedingly popular. Mabel La Blanche, a singer of American songs, and Amy Elvira, another clever vocalist, are also well received. The Mezzettis give a fine gymnastic act, and the Three Geraldos, capital jugglers, are appreciated. Clara Butler is a good contralto vocalist, the Mozondos perform some remarkable jumping feats with tubs, and George Globe and George Rapley are capable comedians. The Leslie Brothers give a clever performance on a singular variety of musical instruments. The Hippodrome Bioscope depicts very clearly a trotting-match on the Wigan Racecourse.

WINDSOR.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Governing Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry E. Rickitt.—Messrs Marston and Buckstone have made a decided hit here this week with The Silver Cross. The play is well known, having had a long run, but recognition may again be made of the highly finished and skilful rendition of their parts by Mr Frederick A. Marston as Ben Adams, the old fisherman; Mr W. A. Buckstone as the Rev. Nicholas Frewin; Mr Syd Bazley as Tomkyns Quinton, the delightfully funny "Man in the Tub;" Miss Maud Western as Ida Adams; Miss Cissy Glenney as the very natural and impressive wealthy widow, Laura Beechcroft; Miss Poppy Denby as Sully Beedles; and Miss Edie Sinclair as Mrs Hemily Enrietta Fudge. The Sisters Veli contribute much to the success of the production by their dances, songs, and mandoline solos.

WOKING.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr Joseph Lewis.—A large house on Monday night witnessed the performance here of the new and original drama The Traitor, given by Miss Inez Howard's company, under the direction of Mr Henry Chattell. Mr Harry Wren as Prince Rudolf, the Crown Prince, won much approval for an excellent rendering of a trying part; Mr Frank M. Reece as Chief of the Police, "the Traitor," and number one of the secret society, created much terror until retribution overtook him at the close of the play. Mr J. Noel Bird was highly successful as the Captain of H.M.S. England, whilst Mr Fred Haming created much amusement as Jack Boult, the Captain's naval servant. Mr E. E. Conway evoked considerable laughter as General Hertz, Captain Ross's rival, as also did Mr E. W. Parr as Zoff, Jack Boult's rival. Miss Ethel Conway won the entire sympathy of her audience as Lieut. Nicholas, the little martyr. As Zula Miss Phyllis Vaughan made a telling impression; Miss Nellie Freeland was a capital Sen-Sen; Miss Dora E. Taylor as a French detective, Elise Duprey, was very popular; and Miss Gwen Dallas was good as Countess Zicka, the inevitable wicked woman.

WORCESTER.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager Mr Arthur Carlton; General Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—This week the attraction is that familiar melodrama, Two Little Vagabonds, which is adequately represented by Hardie and Von Leer's combination. Miss Elene Lonsdale plays well the part of Mrs Thornton, but met with an unfortunate mishap on Monday, being struck on the forehead by a curtain-pole, which became unfixed during the first act. The part of George Thornton, whose unfounded jealousy is the basis of the play, is forcibly embodied by Mr Talbot Homewood. The two little vagabonds are cleverly impersonated by the Misses Lilian Francis and Violet Carr. Miss Edna Eden is good as Barbara Scarth, Mr Douglas Cecil scores as Captain Darville, Mr A. Cheverton makes the most of the small part of the footman, and Mr Hesselgrave is humorous as the Gaffer.

WORKINGTON.

QUEEN'S OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Coates F. Porter.—Mr Geo. Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company presented Judy; or, the Fatal Hand to a large and appreciative house on Monday. Mr F. Lyndon was satisfactory as Grip; Mr Wm. Vane was good as the hero; Mr Carlton Wallace acted well as Duburg; as the coster Mr W. Casey gave a popular impersonation; Miss Mary Neil, in the dual-rôle of Alice and Polly, played with excellent effect, and was frequently applauded; Miss Muriel Thompson as Blake was spirited; and Miss F. Groves as Judy was lively and forcible. The play was well mounted.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Helsby Wright.—There was a good house on Monday to witness Saved from the Sea, by Mr Leslie Vyner's company. As Dan Mr L. Robinson was manly and heroic; Mr S. C. Kearns gave a good conception of Peter; Mr W. A. Attfield did well as Richard Fenton; and Mr R. H. Handon was capital as Jim Weaver. Miss F. Russell-Spiers was sympathetic as Dan's wife; Miss D. Condor acquitted herself well as Polly; and Miss B. Vernon as Mrs Blake and Miss R. Bahars as the nurse were well placed.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr E. H. Bull and Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Percival.—For this week Miss Olga Nethersole's company is appearing here in Sapho, of which a capital representation is given. Miss Cecil Cromwell is seen to great advantage as Fanny Le Grand, the varying moods of the character being well sustained. As Jean Mr Arthur Royston gives a careful and admirable impersonation; Mr Arthur Poole does well as Déchélette; Mr James Kenning is successful as Hettema; Mr Cremlin is a capable Uncle Césaire; and Mr Frank Melrose is efficient as Caoudal. Miss Jessie Melville is praiseworthy as Madame Hettema; Miss Sybil Rutter is very effective as Joseph; and other characters are well filled.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr Fred Benton and Mr Fred J. Little; General Manager, Mr Fred Benton.—Mr Henry Johnston's company is appearing here this week in The Bank of England.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Barnard; General Manager, Mr W. H. Lennon.—A capital programme is provided here, the principal item being the George Bonhair Gregory Troupe in their wonderfully smart Risley performance. The other items are Selby and Myers, comedians and dancers; Walton and Lester, "the world's worst wizards;" Ralston and François, in a nautical scena; the Sisters Terry, duettists and mimics; Haig and Novel, comedians; Hettie Lee, vocalist and dancer; and the Sisters Avina, speciality artistes.

WORTHING.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. B. Dixon.—Audiences here are delighted this week with the favourite comic opera, My Lady Molly, which is excellently performed by Mr Arthur Hart's company. Miss Mabel Lait in the title-rôle proves herself to be a capital actress and vocalist. Miss Maud Thorne is a winsome and clever Alice Coverdale. Miss Sybil Thorne as Hester is good, as is Miss Lottie Sargent as Mdlle. Mirabeau. Mr George Grundy makes an admirable Captain Harry Romney, his vocalisation being much admired. As Lionel Bland Mr Frank Strather is highly successful. Mr Walter Ashley gives a dignified portrayal of Sir Miles Coverdale. Mr Arthur Powell as Micky O'Dowd proves himself to be a thoroughly successful comedian. Mr T. Norbury is very good as Reuben Oates. The remaining characters are well placed. A special word of praise is due to the wonderfully tuneful and well balanced chorus, under the direction of Mr Carlton Mason.

WREXHAM.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr Herbert Nicholls.—This week a capital company has entertained visitors here. Paul Courtney and company in the sketch, The Doctor, causes roars of laughter; Mr George Wyres, the quaint comedian, is retained for another week; the Two Daniels, Negro artistes, provide a good turn; and Miss Ivy Graham, comedienne, and Miss Madeline Rita, a charming young vocalist, also do well.

YORK.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—Messrs Bright and Maxwell's company opened on Monday in Little Mary. Miss Christine Silver as Moira Loney was the centre of attraction, and gave an impersonation that was at once winsome, natural, and bright. Mr Arthur Holmes-Gore, as was to be expected, proved a tower of strength, the easy-going, good-natured Earl of Carlton was portrayed to the life. Mr Arthur Kightley was sufficiently arrogant as Lord Rolfe to become infinitely amusing, and Mr A. W. Bascomb scored as the bullet-headed Earl of Plumleigh. Miss Elspeth Dudgeon was particularly clever as the Countess of Plumleigh, and Miss Evelyn Neillda and Miss Beatrice Kelston were pleasing as Lady Milly and Eleanor Gray. A neat character sketch of Sir Jenninga Pyke was presented by Mr Geo. Mudie. The Bugle Call is one of the prettiest curtain-raisers seen here for a long time, and in it Miss Henrietta Leverett is particularly clever as the Hon. Mrs Denbigh.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooke.—A Chinese Honeymoon is an old favourite here and during the present week Mr George Dance's strong company is appearing before large audiences. Mr Harry Brayne now impersonates Mr Pineapple with much success. He is very popular here and is cordially received. Miss M. Sadie repeats her clever portrayal of Fi Fi. From start to finish she creates roars of laughter. Tom Hatherton has an excellent representative in Mr Percy Yorke, and Miss Jose Collins is a lively Mrs Pineapple, dancing in first-rate style. Mr Frank Wood as the Emperor, Mr Leonard May as Hi Lung, and Miss Marie Adair as Soo Soo work hard and with equal success.

THE COINERS. NO. 150.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

Passing the Spurious Coin. The Coiners' Den. Detected. Raid by the Police. Exciting Chase. Desperate Struggle. Holding Up a Motor Car to facilitate Escape. An Explosion. Exciting Capture by the Police.

Length, 260ft. Price, £6 10s.

THE BOBBY'S DOWNFALL. NO. 151.

The Policeman outside an inn having a quiet nip of beer, which he evidently relishes. The temptation of drink proves too strong for him, and soon begins to take effect. He leans up against a gas-lamp for support. Tramp arrives, drinks the Bobby's bottle of beer. A chance of a joke occurs to him. Taking handcuffs from Policeman's pocket he fastens him to the gas-lamp. Shortly the Policeman awakes from his drunken slumber, and in his efforts to free himself the gas-lamp gives way, topples into the road with himself on top, while Tramp laughs heartily at his awkward predicament.

Most Laughable.
Length, 165ft. Price, £4 2s. 6d.
Code word, "Downfall."

LATE FOR WORK. NO. 152.

The Lodger Retires for the night. Landlady's little son has a grudge against him, and alters all clocks in the house, including the lodger's. Landlady bursts into bedroom in a great hurry, wakes him, and points to clock. He commences a great hurried struggle to don his attire, upsets tray containing his breakfast, and rushes pell-mell out of the house; knocks over a lady's bassinette containing a baby, and next knocks down a stout policeman at the corner. Policeman, thinking something wrong, runs after him and stops him. Man explains his hurry, and policeman shows him the proper time. He sees the joke which has been played on him, vows vengeance, goes back home, and gives the miscreant a well-deserved punishment.

Length, 165ft. Price, £4 2s. 6d.
Code word, "Work."

FLY-CATCHERS. NO. 153.

A Tale of the Toff and the "Catch 'em alive, oh!" man. A fight ensues between the two, fly-catchers flying about in all directions. The toff gets almost covered with them; his attempts to get them off his hands and face are excruciatingly funny. A short Film, but a sweet one.

Length, 65ft. Price, £1 12s. 6d.
Code word, "Catchers."

Five per cent. Cash Discount.

NEW ELGE FILMS.

MORE COMICS WITH POINTS.

We wish to particularly call the attention of exhibitors to the very fine selection of new pictures which we now have at their disposal.

Many of the films which we are now issuing will, we feel confident, MAKE HISTORY, and it therefore behoves those who wish to keep "at the top of the profession" to see these pictures without delay. Those who see will purchase.

Our August Elgé List will be ready on Monday next, and will contain full particulars of all our latest pictures.

No. 198. THE BABY SHOW.

Fat babies, lean babies, black babies, white babies—in fact, all kinds of kiddies, some cheery and others surly. They do not all obtain first prize, but they all deserve it. That, at any rate, is their "mummies'" opinion.

Length, 150ft. Price, £3 15s.

No. 200. THE FATAL WIG.

A maiden fair, past the first bloom of youth, resorts to artifice in the hopes of renewing her charms. But, youth will be served, and while the damsel is making a hit with her Sunday boy, some children on the other side of the garden wall procure their pa's fishing-rod, and hook a wig at a moment when the infatuated pair are locked in each other's arms.

Length, 118ft. Price, £2 19s.

No. 203. THREE LITTLE MAIDS.

Illustrating the adventures of three pretty little tomboys, who play truant for the day, and get up to all sorts of mischief. One of the funniest, and certainly the daintiest picture ever taken.

THE LOVER'S CRIME.

A scene of jealousy and sudden rage. A violent act bitterly repented when too late, and a hurried flight from justice, ending, after many exciting adventures, in the capture of the criminal.

The first scene is laid in a pretty country lane, where a young lady is keeping an appointment with her jealous and passionate lover. He upbraids her with inconstancy, and she gets angry and tears up a letter which he has written to her, and flings the pieces in his face. Then she pulls the engagement ring from her finger and throws it on the ground, and tells her jealous lover that she will have nothing more to do with him. Enraged past all bearing, the lover suddenly pulls a revolver from his pocket and shoots his sweetheart dead. He repents his hasty action all too late, but he quickly sees that nothing can be done but hide, if possible, the traces of his crime and endeavour to escape the consequences. He takes the lifeless girl up in his arms and seeks round for a place to hide her. At the foot of a haystack near at hand he lays her gently down and covers her with loose hay. But already the sound of the shot has attracted a couple of policemen to the place, and the guilty lover has only just time to climb a ladder on to the top of the stack before a policeman arrives hot-footed on the scene.

The hasty concealment of the body has been badly done and is quickly discovered. The policeman runs up the ladder and accidentally knocks it over behind him. And then commences a chase which waxes both hot and furious before the murderer is finally run to earth. There is a terrible struggle on the top of the haystack and a wild leap for life by the criminal. The policeman tumbles from the top, but recovering himself he pulls himself together, and joined by another constable rushes off after the escaping man. Through copse and thicket, over stony roads, he runs with the policemen in full pursuit. At one quiet spot he doubles suddenly on his immediate pursuer, and flinging him to the ground gains a fresh start. Soon he comes to a high brick wall, which in his exhausted state is almost too much for him, but he manages to scale it just before the policemen arrive. He is hard pressed now and he finds himself at the banks of the river. He crosses the weir over the rushing, boiling water, his pursuers close at his heels, and then as a last resource he takes to the water.

One of his pursuers, however, is an expert swimmer, and he dashes in after the fugitive. After an exciting struggle in mid-stream, a severe ducking for the murderer proves too much for his plucky resistance, and, half-drowned, he is dragged ashore, handcuffed, and marched to justice.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual, 1904, contains, as usual, many items and statistics of use and interest to all connected with the stage, and, in addition, a number of sketches and short stories by leading artistes, managers, and others. Among the contributors are J. L. Toole, Dan Leno, George R. Sims, George Robey, Huntley Wright, Harry Randall, Bransby Williams, A. W. Pinero, Louie Freear, Little Tich, George Mozart, and Douglas Crichton. The publication is cheap at a shilling.—Birmingham Daily Gazette, Jan. 16th, 1904

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904
"The Era" Annual for the current year preserves all the features which have made it popular among actors and actresses in the past—short stories, some of them very good and some of them not so good, by well-known entertainers, countless photographs, and a list of plays produced during the year which should make it useful to students of stage history. It is a sign of the times that Omar Khayyam should be quoted on the first page of the almanack.—Morning Post, Jan. 23d.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERTILLERY.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr Fred Thomas.—Mr Bert Wentworth's company opened here on Monday in the drama That Woman From France. The play, which is full of stirring incidents, was keenly followed by a large audience, who showed their appreciation in an unmistakable manner of the good fare set before them. Mr Jerrold Heather acts the rôle of John Beaumont in his usual able manner; Mr Leonard Williams scores as Cecil Charrington; Philip Charrington is well played by Mr Annerley Hely; Mr Bernard Dunston makes a capital Latimer Louder; Mr John Murray is seen to advantage as Sir Esmond Charrington; Mr William Artaurd is good as Mr Somers; Miss Marie De Roos in the title-rôle proves herself an actress of exceptional ability; Miss Evelyn Marrable gives a very clever rendering of Beryl Stancliffe; Miss Amy Maitland is very good as Winnie Williams; Miss Lola Tempest's portrayal of Martha Williams is admirable; Miranda is in the capable hands of Miss Edith Devane; and the minor parts are well cast.

ACCRINGTON.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr J. E. Barnes.—Mr Gar Kiddie's company opened here on Monday with The Chinese Idyl. Mr Fred Danvers is genuinely funny as His Excellency, and Mr Dawson Dewick keeps the house in the best of humour. Mr F. H. Dundas must be complimented on his performance of Lieutenant West, his singing being particularly good; Mr Maine is capable as Ching Foo; and Mr W. H. Gatty as Fi Hi is all that can be desired. Miss M. Mainwaring as Pitti Pat gives a bright rendering; Miss Marie Ranbird plays Belle Brighton effectively; and Miss Emmie Milsted as Princess Stephanie is particularly good, her dancing being excellent.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Fairbairn.—When a play has run the gauntlet of criticism and emerged with the stamp of almost general approval little more need be said to recommend it to favour. Mr Ganthony's drama, A Message from Mars, may be said to have won that distinction. The company engaged in its representation here is Mr F. Mouillot's principal combination. The Horace Parker of Mr Rawson Buckley is a really capital study. As the messenger Mr W. H. Broughnn is both physically commanding in appearance and distinct and clever in utterance. As the tramp Mr Bruce Lindley appeals unerringly to our sympathies, and some minor male parts are well played by Messrs F. Dunn, H. E. Lanceley, Eustace French, W. Powell, W. Ravenscroft, and others. Miss May Saker gives a refined and lovable impersonation of Minnie Templer. Miss Joan Meredith does well as Mrs Clarence, and Miss Peggy E. Yoeman is effective as Pella.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmot.—Variety, as served up at the New Hippodrome, seems to have found a responsive public. Heading the list of this week's artists are Tom White's Arabs, including the speciality artist, Pimple, in a vocal act. Among other star artists are the Bros. Babusian, sensational acrobats. Wat Tyler attracts as a character vocalist; the Countess, the coloured vocalist, is an effective turn; Young Igo claims attraction as a clog-dancer; and one of the features of the bill-of-fare is Zaid, the Spanish Moor, in his novel speciality, supported by the beautiful Orienta; Gillen, ventriloquist, is also a favourite; and Flo Wood is a charming comedienne. The Hippo Bioscope projects some new and effective pictures.

AYR.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr H. W. Day.—Mr John Cassidy's company opened here on Monday with the new Muldoon's Picnic. Mr Edwin Garth was the Michael Mulcahy, and his simulation of the intoxicated man was excellent. He received admirable support from Mr W. G. Wesley as Dennis Muldoon. Mrs Muldoon was embodied by Mr Leo Whamboult, who gave a clever performance of the part. Mr G. Cromwell appeared as Gussie Tearle and Miss Madge Cassidy as Kitty Muldoon, and Miss Norah Waylett as Cora played their parts admirably, sang sweetly, and danced well. The more prominent members of the company were ably supported by Mr W. H. Montgomery, Mr A. Selwood, Mr H. Gilbert, Mr H. Halliday, and Mr Reg Kloof, who scored with his musical speciality in the last act.

BACUP.

NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr Richard Nightingale.—Mr Denman-Wood this week presents a strong attraction in the shape of a visit from Miss Annie Bell with the much-discussed play Sapho, in which Miss Bell presents a powerful study of the title-rôle. Mr G. Antley contrives to extract some humour from the part of Cesaire; Mr Horatio Sinclair's Jean Gaussin is marked by care and conscientiousness; and a sound performance of Dechelette comes from Mr R. A. Greene. Mr Archie Helsby is in every way a satisfactory Flamant; Father Legrand is characteristically portrayed by Mr James A. Storey; and Little Miss Lottie Ray as Joseph, a child, is highly commendable.

BARNSLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. C. Mitchell.—Napoleon the Great is the attraction here. Mr Hugh Montgomery plays the title-rôle cleverly; Jules Meuron is ably impersonated by Mr Charles Halling; Mr Henry Earlesmere makes a capable Colonel Lavarennes; Paul Laczinska has an excellent exponent in Mr M. Morley Carroll; Mr Frank Thorne, the writer of the piece, is a vigorous Pierre Pomponnet, and Sergeant Choupin is an interesting character in Mr C. W. Spencer's hands. Miss Chrissie Dunbar is an admirable Marie Walewska; Miss Maude Russell a charming Leoni Marbeoux and Marcelle Choupin is good as played by Miss Florence Thorne.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr G. E. Hoey.—When London Sleeps is being played here by Mr Lester Collingwood's excellent company. Mr W. H. Sams gains favour as the hero David Englehardt; Rodney Haynes, a scheming villain, is effectively played by Mr Franklyn Graham. The humorous parts are well supported by Mr Victor Mason as Sammy Blyth, Mr Frank Eden as the Hon. Bertie, and Miss Effie Macintosh as Carrie Jones. Miss Maude Hastings is a pleasing Queenie Carruthers, and Hilda Carrode is made the most of by Miss Mary Brammer.

BEDFORD.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter R. Wilson.—One of the best and most amusing turns here this week is that of Kyoto, comedy Japanese entertainer. He is a marvellous contortionist, and also excels in juggling and conjuring. Another clever and amusing performance is given by W. Perrette and Bessie Shelley in their novel comedy quick-change entertainment, entitled Teasing the General. In the second part there is a scena, entitled On Guard. Other performers who take part in the varied programme are Brian and Lawrence, in musical comedy sketches; Benson Kleve, comedian; Miss Mary Geraldine, comedienne and dancer; Miss Frances Manners, comedienne; Nash and Noel, comedians; and Miss Yo'ande Noble, comedienne.

BATH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr Lewis A. Long.—Hardie and Von Leer's well-organised company in the popular play Two Little Vagabonds is once again occupying the boards here. Miss May Hart and Miss Dorothy Marsdin as the two chums, Dick and Wally, arouse sympathy that reaches many a heart, and wins for the clever artists rounds of applause. It is many years since Miss Laura Hansen has appeared locally, but her excellent work in the past is not forgotten, and in her present character of Marion Thornton she brings to bear the womanly charm and ability she undoubtedly possesses. Another old favourite is at hand in Mr J. W. Henson, who makes an excellent George Thornton. Mr Wolston Foster impersonates Capt. Darville in a manly spirit. Miss Nell Oliver is well suited to the requirements of the rather ungrateful character of Barbara. The humorous element is ably cared for by Mr Alfred Russell and Miss Marie Pritchard as Bill and Biddy Mullins, and they have able coadjutors in Mr Frank Gordon and Mr Fred Archer as Dido Bunce and the Coughdrop. Mr Jack Royal, in addition to acting the manservant Leeson, undertakes the heavy responsibilities of stage-management, which is carried through with complete success.

PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Trussell.—Heading another good bill are the Jackson Family, a quartet of young musical artists whose talents are cordially recognised, as evidenced by the loud applause they receive; Abo Kou astonishes all by his marvellous juggling, and his assistant creates much amusement with some smart by-play; Pete and Juno, coloured comedians and dancers, provide a good turn that meets with approbation; Lily Lassah, comedienne, dances with an energy that gains her plenty of admirers; Johnny Holland and company remain a second week, presenting a fresh farcical sketch; J. C. Crawley, vocal and instrumental mimic, also appears; Pallister's Bioscope is back again with some excellent new films that create interest and hilarity; and Eugene Miska, magician, performs his tricks with dexterity.

SYDNEY GARDENS.—Messrs Adeler and Sutton's Pierrots are once again located at these picturesque gardens. In addition to Mr W. G. Sutton himself, such old favourites as Charles Harvey, comedian; Miss Emilie Tait, soprano vocalist; and Frank Dunlop, comedian, reappear with their former success; John Green, baritone vocalist, is a welcome newcomer. Henry Saunders accompanies in capital style.

BELFAST.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr James M'Cann.—Mr George Dance's No. 1 company opened here on Monday with the ever-popular musical play A Chinese Honeymoon. The rôle of Mr Pineapple was capitally undertaken by that droll comedian, Mr Martin Adeson, his songs being deservedly encored, and the part of Mrs Pineapple was cleverly sustained by Miss Eva Bevington, her charming rendering of "The à la girl" being repeatedly encored. Much praise is due to Miss Vera Vere for her smart impersonation of Fi-Fi, her quaint rendering of "I want to be a lady," and other songs being much appreciated. Miss Madge Temple presented a fascinating impersonation of Princess Soo-Soo, her vocal numbers affording infinite delight; and the rôle of the Emperor Hang-Chow was admirably sustained by Mr Philip Hayden. Miss Holford Beringer furnished a capital impersonation of Mrs Brown, the official mother-in-law, and Mr Frank Crump's impersonation of Tom Atherton was all that could possibly be desired. Other rôles were ably sustained by Miss Kate Leicester, Miss Daisy Moule, Miss Emily Taylor, and Mr Ernest Laws. The chorus was exceptionally brilliant, and with the orchestra was under the skilful direction of Mr A. Romilli.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr John B. Beardmore. Messrs Wood and Bates head the bill here, and these clever musical comedians have been successful. A sensation has been caused by Cussac-Talma, who introduces his original act, entitled Robing the Robe, assisted by Mdlle. Yvone De Forge, protean artiste. A hit has been made by Princess Pauline, the captivating comedienne. Peggy Lennie and Walter Hast stage an attractive fantasy entitled The Heirloom; or, a Christmas Dream, and praise is due Mr Harry Alaskas, a performer of decided ability, whose novelty acrobatic act is quite a feature of the bill. Miss Lily Sharplin is a mimic of decided ability; Mr George Rapley, comedian, has some up-to-date patter; and Law and Norman must be commended for their novel comedy act On Active Service. The Paragon Trio, speciality vocalists, sing very harmoniously; and the programme is completed by the new series of Palace Pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brock.—The clever Protean actor, Mr R. A. Roberts, heads the bill here, and produces with much success the dramatic sketch Dick Turpin. Mr Harry Freeman, comedian, is always a favourite, and the comedy gymnasts, Venola Brothers, provide a smart performance. The Mayvilles (Harry and Elsie) appear in their well-known Lilliputian entertainment, which has afforded infinite pleasure, and Mr Frank Lynne, a comedian of much resource, has been successful with his humorous recitations. The Sisters Lonnen are charming duettists and dancers, and also in the programme are Will Cornish, with his unique musical speciality; and Josh Dixon, comedian.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Henry T. Downs.—A capital audience on Monday at each house welcomed the reappearance in this city of the clever comedienne, Miss Katie Lawrence, who has been very successful with her vivacious rendering of several good chorus songs. Fyne and Hurley appear in their capital act, The Coster and Dude, which is well calculated to amuse; and the lady baritone, Mdlle. De Rose, possesses a fine voice, which has been heard to much advantage. Mr George Bernard, actor-vocalist, deserves praise for his skilful treatment of several descriptive songs; and Mdlle. Bartenelli is a graceful and clever contortionist. Mr Wal Robins, the black and white musical comedian, has been applauded; and Mr J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist, has been accorded a good reception. The Boultons were unable to appear on Monday, but Miss Lizzie Wood deputised with success; and also appearing are Will Farrell, the quaint comedian, and Miss Lizzie R. Laurie, ballad vocalist.

BILSTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—False Lights is being performed here by Messrs Fred Sinclair and Willie Burnett's company. Ethel Forrester has a convincing exponent in Miss Alice Inman. Mr E. S. Petley is an earnest Captain Talbot. Mr Lincoln Calthorpe shows coolness and audacity in depicting Denbigh Lennox, Mr Gerald Munro gives a good character sketch of Plympton, and Mr David Hamilton is a keen-witted Seth Kaye, the money lender. Jimmy Holly and Susie Hawthorn find capable and comical representatives in Mr Fred Ramsdale and Miss Connie Meadows. The lighthouse and other scenic effects are more than interesting.

BOSCOMBE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Mr Charles Harrington's company, in Uncle Tom's Cabin, is paying a visit here this week. Mr J. Carr is successful as Uncle Tom; Mr J. H. Rogers plays Legree with effect; and Miss Zerlina Zerbini makes an excellent Cassy. The remaining parts in the lengthy cast are all in good hands. Some attractive musical items are introduced in the Plantation scene.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. Stone.—Mr Frank Bateman's company, in At War with Women, is here this week paying a return visit. The company is a good one, Miss L. Montague playing particularly finely as Auriel Romanoff. The General Malakoff of Mr Fred Vaughan is excellent. Captain Volsky is well played by Mr Arthur Balmoral; Mr Edward Ouston makes a distinguished Lieut. Alexis; and the Antolski of Mr Clinton Baddeley is an artistic and powerful presentment.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr Tom Whiting.—The Burnells, musical and comedy artistes, are excellent in On the Links; Vernon's Bioscope shows its latest novelties; the Sylvines in a trapeze act are good; Fred Horsfall is an amusing comedian; the Manzanares, in a graceful balancing act; Essman, the juggler; Miss Flo Melville, a winning comedienne, are all pleasing; and Adams and Ward are capital comedy acrobats.

BIRKENHEAD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; R. Abbott's company in The Mariners of England, Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell. — Mr Ernest forms an attractive feature here. As Lord Nelson Mr Abbott gives a picturesque and able impersonation; Mr W. T. Riley is an excellent Harry Dell, and Mr John Lester an efficient Captain Hardy. Captain Lebaudy is well represented by Mr W. H. Garbois, and the humour of the piece is well maintained by Mr Edwin Keene as Tom Tripp. Miss Ada Abbott is a graceful and entertaining Mabel Talbot, and Miss Isabel Singleton is well suited as Polly Appleyard. The piece is effectively staged. Trilby has been included in the week's production.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke.— The Gothams, in the musical comedy sketch, Miss Green; Mr Mark Melford and his combination in Nonsuited; Mr Billy Ross and company in A Hot Member; and the Mannons, in Uncle Yank's Mishaps, supply a large portion of the programme here. Rich and Rich, amusing comedians, vocalists and dancers, are one of the successes of the evening, and a good company also includes Miss Nellie Gannon, vocalist and dancer; Mr Charles Faning, Australian comedian; Mr Harry Wright, extempore vocalist; and the Two Stars, duettists and dancers. Mr Ernest Denney conducts an excellent orchestra.

BIRMINGHAM.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr Henry Johnston.—The Duke of Killicrankie marks another big engagement here, which Birmingham has not been slow to respond to, and the feast of humour has been a delight. Miss Doris Templeton portrays all the charming characteristics of Lady Henrietta, and the audience expresses its appreciation in unstinted terms. Mr Langhorne Burton plays the Duke in the true spirit of raillery. Miss Aida Jenoure shows off the humours of Mrs Mulholland to much advantage, and Mr Arthur Grenville as Pitt-Welby has made the most of his opportunities. The other parts are well played by Mr Guy Newall, Mr Guy B. Watson, Miss Helen Kay Robertson, and Miss Ellen Standing. For Value Received, a one-act play, ushers in The Duke of Killicrankie.

GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr V. Turner.—Are You a Mason? is the cry here, and laughter, loud and long, has resounded on all sides. Messrs Geo. Edwardes and Chas. Frohman are again responsible for the company, which includes such favourites as Mr Anthony Fawcett in the amusing rôle of George Fisher, Mr Harry Ashford as Amos Bloodgood, Mr Stephen Wentworth as Frank Perry, Mr Tom Mowbray in his best form as John Halton, and Mr Frank Ridley as Hamilton Travers. The ladies include Miss Harriett Trench as Mrs Bloodgood, Miss Violet Graham as Mrs Perry, Miss Mabel Younge as Mrs Halton, and Miss Gertrude Spencer as Fanchon Armytage, all of whom are successful.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—Gipsy Jack is stationed here, and meets with well deserved support. Mr Henry Bedford sustains the titular part, and infects the house with wholesome enthusiasm by the ardour which he puts into his impersonation. Mr T. Arthur Plummer as his antithesis, Mr Skinner, works his evil spells with considerable tact; and the subsidiary villain, Gerald Skinner, is well acted by Mr Alec Alexander. Miss Bessie Bedford as May Harvey, afterwards Lady Dexter (Jack's wife) gains great sympathy and admiration, and Miss Ada Antley, Miss Jennie Risley, Miss Enid Trench, Mr H. Dobell Lyle, and Mr Sid Bedford are in the cast.

METROPOLE THEATRE. — Manager, Mr Walter Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Hindle Taylor.—Mr James Willard's company is playing In the Shadow of Night here with much success. Mr George Harvey as the Squire of Hazelmere acquits himself of his task in a particularly able way; Mr Howard L. Tracy as Gordon Allington acts with perfect taste; Mr Hamilton Deane possesses excellent qualifications for the part of Clifford York; and Miss Nelly Sheffield is in every way admirable as Molly Woodstock. Miss May Richardson, Miss Phyllis B. French, Mr Archie Selwyn, and others add to the interest of this engrossing play, which is most realistically staged.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—Fiends of London, which is a drama descriptive of "the turf," is presented here in a most convincing manner by Mr Herbert Fuller's company. Mr St. Clair Forbes as the chief "fiend," Captain Crawley, commits more sins than fall to the lot of most stage villains, and acts with finesse through all. Mr Erskholme E. Clive is acclaimed as the "hero," Sir Horace. Miss Agnes Collier attains high favour as Laurie; Mr Hugh Carmichael comes out well as the old soldier, Christie; Mr H. Evan Gibbon is clever as the rascally lawyer; and Mr Herbert Fuller as the jockey, Bob Archer, is the idol of all.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr Dan Barnard. — The Silver King, which never seems to grow old-fashioned or unattractive, is scoring here this week, with Mr Lauderdale Maitland's fine rendering of the rôle. Mr W. V. Garrod makes an exceedingly strong and clever part of "the Spider." Mr Arthur Wright as the "venerable" and rascally Coombe is also successful. Miss Lilian Bethell wins much compassion as Nellie Denver. Mr Edward J. George as the faithful servitor is much favoured. Mr Philip Renouf creates diversion as Henry Corket, and Violet St. Clair and Jack Evan act well as the children.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr A. W. Matcham.—The excellent programme submitted this week is drawing packed houses. Charles Prinz's seventeen lions show remarkable training; Mr and Mrs Gene Hughes have a capital sketch A Matrimonial Substitute;" Stelling and Revell, in their horizontal bar act, are amusing; Gertrella, assisted by Elsie, is responsible for a charming trapeze act, presented in a special scena "In Cupid's Garden;" Albert Christian, baritone, and Katie Cohen render their ballads with good effect; Harry Dent and Ernest Sefton are a pair of good comedians; some smart dances are executed by the Sisters Caselli; and the Frank and Albert Boisset Troupe remain another week with The Evening Party.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Alber Bushell.—The star turn this week is Charle Coborn, who is well applauded for his excellen songs. Another attractive turn is a musica melange The Little Charwoman, which is thoroughly well played by Nannie Goldman, William Hollies, and company; Rose Hamilton is a clever burlesque actress; the Sisters Morrison are as captivating as ever; a smart banjo turn is provided by Earle and Earle; and Clyo and Rochelle, in their comedy act; Barrett and Knowles, eccentric comedians; Salva and Manza, in an equilibristic act; and Ethel Ryland and Dora Greve, comediennes, all win applause.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford.—That charming musical comedienne, Annie Purcell, is encored for her songs; Minnie Letta's Sporting Girls appear in a walking match on a movable track; Frank Gerald and company in a sketch, A Breach of Promise, are well received; the Sisters Anderson are loudly applauded for their songs and dances; Tom Lloyd is an exceedingly amusing comedian, and Will Godwin is popular. Mirzah, "The Man in Green," plays and juggles well with banjos; Vera Patey, Walter Belonini, and Edward Lode add to the success.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident Manager, Mr Edw. Foster.—Large and enthusiastic audiences are giving Alexandra Dagmar a hearty reception, her songs being rendered with her usual success. One of the best juggling acts before the public is that of Gelma Braatz; Beatrice Moreland presents a monologue entertainment in American style; the Karno Trio in their absurdity, The Travellers' Rest, are most amusing; and a bright future is in store for Little Dolly M'Calla, a juvenile comedienne. The Paulastro Troupe, the Four Milons, Ida Brophy, Bert Weston, and Lanton and Lane are all good turns.

BLACKPOOL.

HIS MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—The Belle of New York, played by Mr George Musgrove's company, is again proving a big draw here. Many of the old favourites are still retained in the cast, and could not easily be improved upon. Miss Beatrice Lamotte, in the title-rôle, Mr Harry A. Meymott as Ichabod, Mr Frank Lawton as Blinky Bill, and Mr Max Copeland as Pumpernick are all as good as ever. A new and excellent Fifi is found in Miss Lillian Digges, and Miss Winnie Brown is a very fine Cora.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr T. Sergenson.—Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company is here this week with Little Mary, which has met with the most cordial reception. Every part is in capable hands, and the result is an entertainment the excellence of which is fully testified by the box-office receipts. A more charming Moira Loney than is supplied by Miss Christine Silver could scarcely be imagined. This is her first appearance in Blackpool, and she has won all hearts. Mr Arthur Holmes-Gore plays the Earl of Carlton in a manner that will bear comparison with that of his famous predecessor in the part, which is saying much. Mr George Mudie submits a clever sketch as Sir Jennings Pyke, and Mr Arthur Kightley's Lord Rolfe shows him to be a very painstaking young actor who will be heard of in the future. Mr A. W. Bascomb proves his versatility by his excellent acting in the widely diverse rôles of Terence Reilly and the Earl of Plumleigh. Miss Elspeth Dudgeon (Countess of Plumleigh), Miss Evelyn Neilida (Lady Milly), and Miss Beatrice Kelston (Eleanor Gray) likewise merit a meed of praise. The special scenery carried by the company is most artistic. The Bugle Call proves an attractive curtain-raiser.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Signor Pepi and Co.; Manager, Mr T. P. Duignan.—Two shows daily are given here, and big audiences are attracted to every performance. Maggie Duggan, who is an immense favourite here, is paying another visit this week, and her burlesque imitation of a serio comic is a great success. Katie Butler is another popular comedienne; Sylvester Brothers contribute an acrobatic turn; H. G. Prosser is a clever comedian; Flo Chevalier takes well as a serio; Sisters Moran are pleasing duettists; Charles Mildare is a wonderful whistler; Breton's Troupe give a sketch; Tate and Tate are funny acrobats; and G. W. Foster sings his songs well.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Waller. — A really admirable bill-of-fare is provided here this week. It includes Harry Tate's company in a "motoring" sketch, which is an enormous success; the Follies, in song and sketch; Ada Fawn, comediene; Lauri Wylie, with his mimicking mannikins; O'Neil and Torp, acrobats and jugglers; the Mezzettis, in a clever gymnastic act; Flo Hilton, a smart male impersonator; Harry Grey, comedy vocalist; the Seven Savonas, whose musical abilities are really marvellous; the Cycling Elliotts; Fred M'Arthur, mimic; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

TOWER CIRCUS.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop.—Although the end of the holiday season is approaching, there is no diminution in the business here, and the "house full" sign is in almost daily use. Herr Munstedt's Colibris Midgets; the Novellos, Vermette and Dionne, Carrie Laurie's Juveniles, Sisters Andersen, August and September, Pim-Pim, Madame Therese Renz, and the Finneys are still here, and Hagedorn's wonderful grotto, with water and electrical effects, a spectacle unequalled in the circus world, continues to wind up a remarkably fine show.

WINTER GARDENS PAVILION.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—Further eulogium is quite unnecessary with regard to the Huddlestone-Tiller enormously successful ballet entitled Killarney; or, From Kerry Fair to the Gorgeous East, which continues its course with unabated vigour, and Mr Will Bishop and Miss Gracie Moore compel the warmest admiration from all beholders. Tiny Clementa, with her horse and dogs, and Charles Leb, with his zoological pot-pourri, also continue amongst the many attractions here.

BLYTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr George E. Good.—Messrs Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company has paid a most successful visit here with the ever-popular drama, The Still Alarm, in which Mr Glenville appears as Jack Manley, the hero of the piece, and gives a powerful and finished portrayal of the part. To Mr Paul Lovett is allotted the task of representing villainy in the character of John Bird. Mr Lewis Gordon as Franklyn Fordham, and Mr Fred Osmond as Doc Wilber are successful; and Miss Mary Lovett does all that is required as Elinor. Miss Hettie Zillwood is a charming artiste, and has a most enthusiastic reception as Carrie. Other parts are in good hands.

BOOTLE.

ROYAL MUNCASTER.—Proprietors, Messrs Pennington; Manager, Mr H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert E. Wilson.—A Woman's Revenge was presented here most successfully on Monday. Miss Winifred Chalmers is fully equal to the serious rôle of Mary Lonsdale, and fully awakens the sympathies of the audience. Mr Henry L. Osmond is no less successful in the character of Frank Drummond; Mr Elmore Frith plays the villainous Jeptha Grimwade with success; as Robert Overstone Mr W. Carriden is worthy of praise; Mr Herbert Woodin as Dick Chilton and Miss Madge Palmer as Lottie Bromley provide some highly entertaining comedy.

BRYNMAWR.

MARKET HALL.—Miss Inez Howard's No. 1 company is paying her welcome return visit here this week with Mr Frederick Melville's stirring drama Between Two Woman. Mr James Chippendale in the rôle of the Earl of Millard gives a finished performance. Mr Sydney R. Palfrey as Henry Millard and Mr W. H. Baker as Rev. Philip Carton plays with much skill. Mr Albert E. Mann as Jack Pringle lends capable support. Miss Emmie Barton gives a clever impersonation of the blind boy. The drama is well staged, and the company is under the direction of Mr Henry Chattell, the general touring manager being Mr William Martin.

BLACKBURN.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. H. Page.—Mr T. Arthur Jones and his specially-selected company are here this week in the exciting drama Life's Sweetest Sins. The play is well presented, the scenery and general effects being all that can be desired. Mr T. Arthur Jones gives a scholarly rendering of Captain Harold Marston, playing with admirable regard for dramatic effect; Mr A. Bartlett Garth portrays the cultured scoundrel Doctor Colbrook with distinct ability, gaining the usual disapprobation of the audience; Messrs G. R. J. Austin and C. Vernon Proctor as Kimberley Coutts and the Rev. Edward Gray render valuable assistance in their respective parts; Mr Harry C. Momber is a capital Bob Tanner; and Mr Bertram Lee a natural and effective Martin. Miss Madge Morley thoroughly distinguishes herself as Doreen Rivers; and Miss Amy Rudd submits a most efficient rendition of the rôle of Fay Colbrooke, Miss Sara Dudley being a vivacious Bess Grayson.

BOLTON.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Herman.—San Toy is again here, and is being well received. Miss Fanny Dango is charming in the part of San Toy, and by her pleasing acting and artistic singing wins hearty plaudits; Miss Maud Darling as Dudley is warmly applauded for her clever acting and dancing; Miss Lillian Bell sings with effect in the part of Yun Chi; Mr E. Statham Staples as the wily Chinaman Li convulses the house with his drollery; and Mr John Humphries is no less humorous as Yen How, his songs being well rendered. Mr Stratton Mills gives a commendable impersonation of Sir Bingo Preston; Mr Jocelyn Hope is dignified and quaint as Sing Hi; Mr Reginald Kenneth makes a capital Bobby Preston; Mr Arthur Soames is a good Lieut. Harvey Tucker; and Mrs Henry Claff acts and sings well as Fo Hop. Miss Alice Lethbridge (Miss Rose Tucker) gracefully dances a pas Seul in Act II. Other members of the company acquit themselves with much credit. There is a full chorus and orchestra, with Mr George M. Saker as conductor.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Kenyon.—A strong company is engaged here, comprising Charles Vandyke's troupe of pantomimists in their absurdity Sensations; Lily Turner, versatile vocalist; Mons. Slippere (assisted by Miss Ramsey), blind pianist and baritone vocalist; Minnie Mario, burlesque actress; Dave Meier and Belle Mora, speciality artistes; Bennett and Martell, comedians, in their crazy comedy act; Morny Cash, eccentric comedian; Edward Ind, comedian; Starr and Leslie, in a novel speciality act, introducing juggling, singing, &c.; F. V. St. Clair, vocal comedian; the Imperial Bioscope; and Fred Karno's troupe of celebrated comedians.

BOURNEMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee, Mr Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Mr George Dance's company is here this week, in A Country Girl. Staged with completeness, dressed sumptuously, and supported by a strong cast, the play is being received by crowded houses with the enthusiasm which the excellence of the production amply merits. Mr Francis Ludlow enacts in virile and breezy style the part of Geoffrey Chaloner, and his finished vocalism is much appreciated. Mr H. C. Morton causes much amusement as Sir Joseph Verity; Mr Fred W. Pattrick is pompous and dignified as Mr Raikes; Mr J. D. Newton is appropriately inane as Douglas Verity; Mr Arthur Hayter furnishes a typical character sketch of Granfer Mummery; Mr Ernest Cresfan is a dignified Lord Anchester; and unqualified praise must be accorded to Mr Harry Buss for his delightfully humorous impersonation of Barry. Miss Kathryn Comber, a charming Marjory Joy, sings with refinement and expression; Miss Ernestine Desborough assumes with stately grace the rôle of Princess Melaneh, her singing being much admired; Miss Nellie Cozens, a gay and demonstrative Nan, gains high favour; Miss Rosie Begarnie is sprightly and chic as Madame Sophie; and Miss Rosa Roble is eminently successful as Mrs St. Quinten. The augmented orchestra renders an excellent account of itself under the direction of Mr Otto Manns, jun.

SHAFTESBURY HALL.—Mr T. J. West's pictures are more than ever attractive, many interesting and attractive novelties having been introduced.

BRADFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr T. F. Doyle Acting-Manager, Mr J. Richardson. — On Monday a large audience greeted very warmly the return visit of Mr James Welch in the successful comedy The New Clown, and his delightful impersonation of the character of Lord Cyril Garston as usual kept the audience in a merry mood all the evening. Mr Welch is again finely supported, Mr G. H. Snazelle appearing as the old-time circus proprietor Dixon. As the belle of the arena (Rosie Platt) Miss Audrey Ford is charming; Mr Cyril Harcourt is a convincing and manly Captain Jack Trent; the Misses Maud and Winnie Chesterton are daintily represented by Mesdames Estelle Winwood and Alexandra Carlisle respectively; Mr Leopold Profeit as Mr Pennquick and Mr Leonard Buttress as the strong man (Billy) are capital, and help materially in sustaining the interest and fun of the piece. The other parts, too, are in excellent hands. The one-act play The Man in the Street precedes the comedy, and serves admirably in illustrating the versatility of Mr Welch, who as Jabez Gover is capitally supported by Mr Profeit as Phil Adair and by Miss Winwood as his wife, Minnie.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Francis Laidler.—The Seal of Silence, a play new to the patrons here, is the present attraction. The play is well staged, and a capable company is engaged in its representation. The objectionable and repulsive Dr. Mark Renwood, a scientist and an atheist, is forcibly represented by Mr C. Arrol-Aldersyde. Mr Reginald Payne is convincing as his ill-fated victim, Kenneth Morrison, whose reckless nephew, Captain Hedley Norman, Mr G. Langdon represents with force and skill. Juggler Jack, a showman, is a veritable hero in the sordid story, and the part has a capital exponent in Mr Henry Lonsdale. As a child actress Miss Violet Du Cane is conspicuous in a boy's part. The interest in the plotting and counter-plotting never flags, and there is a humorous element, successfully employed by Mr Charles Coleman as Bimbo Britton and Miss Cissie Cleveland as Dora Lumley.

EMPIRE. — Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Crawford Swann. — Mr George Lashwood, the clever and popular comedian, had a cordial reception on his reappearance here on Monday, and his songs, new and old, were encored and rendered in his customary fresh, bright, and finished style. The comediennes, Marie Reeve and Esta Stella, sing and dance acceptably, and a clever turn is given by Rayfayette's smart performing dogs. In American comedy, music, and dancing, Hume, Ross, and Lewis contribute an excellent and varied entertainment. Rachel Lowe's songs are well rendered. A highly diverting sketch, The Lie Alarm, is successfully presented by Smythson's comedy company. Florence Esdaile's songs are charmingly rendered, and very popular. Foreman and Fannon, "the Millionaires," contribute a funny turn; a good eccentric comedy song is given by James Kurry; and Bard and O'Brien on the slack-wire are distinctly clever and amusing in their acts.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr E. Harrison.—That charming and versatile artiste Lydia Yeamans, with her clever imitations and vocalism, is quite captivating the audiences here, and Les Valdos are funny and eccentric in their clever acrobatic turn. Lily Black, comedienne, has made an excellent impression, and as a tenor vocalist of good quality Arthur Aldridge earns applause. A variety of musical instruments are cleverly played by the Royal Zerbinis. An amusing exposition of conjuring is given by Henriot and Sauvion in a turn, "The Necromancer and his Troublesome Page," and capital turns are submitted by Harry Phydora and Charlie Cork, vocal comedians.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—Manager, Mr S. H. Carter.—The animated picture displays given by the New Century Company continue to draw and interest good audiences here.

BRIDLINGTON.

SPA THEATRE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Hy. Hague.—Mr Charles Macdona's company opened here on Monday in that amusing musical comedy The Gay Parisienne, which was well played by an excellent all-round company. Mr Tom May as Honeycomb was always equal to a very exacting part; as Tom Everleigh Mr T. Kennard both sang and acted well; Mr Arthur Watts was a "peppery" Major Fosdyke; and Mr C. A. Maynard as the French lover was very smart in his dancing. Miss Jennie Richards as Julie Bon-Bon was always at home in the part; Miss Ethel Wade's part of Norah gave that lady a chance of using her well-trained voice to advantage; and the rôle of Mrs Honeycombe was admirably embodied by Miss Gwen Clifford. Miss Madge Soutter as Ruth gave a most amusing rendering, and the other characters were in capable hands. The original glee singers (Messrs Jones, Reed, Kennard, and Fitzjames) delighted the audience with their part songs.

ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr Charles Palmer.—The manager's benefit took place on the 9th inst., and Mr Palmer's efforts to cater for the thousands who patronise this popular resort was rewarded by a "bumper" house, who were treated to a first-class programme, a host of talent contributing to the success of the entertainment. Miss Ethelle Vibert, contralto, and Miss Winder, soprano, were the lady vocalists. Mr Fred Fallas, tenor, and Mr Joseph Lycett, bass, gave some capital songs and duets; Mr Chas. Beanland brought down the house with his quaintly rendered humorous songs; and Mr and Mrs Palmer gave a capital little musical sketch, After the Honeymoon. The string quartettes by Misses Winternitz, Ososki, La Grilliere, and Van Biever were most artistically rendered, as was Mr Isodore Maurice's piano solos and accompaniments. The Willow Pattern Serenaders gave a unique turn; Mr T. D. Flynn's cornet solos were artistically rendered; the London Pierrot Team were successful in an original sketch The Other Fellow; Mr Flockton-Foster's entertainers contributed a laughable farce Shut the Door; and Herr Winternitz's Viennese orchestra also added to the attraction of the entertainment. Mr Palmer is to be congratulated upon the success which rewarded him for his many efforts to keep the reputation of the Parade well up to the times. The promenade concerts in the Pavilion are still going strong, and the vocalist this week is Miss Annie Bartle, a young lady with a sweet soprano voice. M. La Grilliere's 'cello solos and Mr T. D. Flynn's cornet solos are still a feature in the programmes.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Henry Hague.—Dr Churchill Sibley and his talented orchestra give excellent programmes twice daily. The violin solos of Mr Abbott are always artistically rendered, and so also are the charming harp solos of Mr Frederick Hall, who has been an especial favourite during the season. The vocalist for the week is Miss Lilian Turnbull, a very pleasing soprano.

SUMMER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs Beanland, Bath, and Danton.—Variety is still the order of the day at this seaside resort, and the programmes are always well rendered, the items by Messrs Syd Hind, C. Hyam, and the lessees being very clever. This week the great attraction is a baby show.

BRIGHOUSE.

ALBERT THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr T. Morton Powell; Manager, Mr Manley.—Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company is, without doubt, a powerful one, and well qualified to portray the different characters in The King of Crime, by Messrs Arthur Shirley and Benjamin Landeck. The principal character, Ronjarre, is taken by Mr William Clayton, an actor of resource, and he gives a capable portrayal. Henriette, Ronjarre's blind wife, is ably taken by Miss Marion Turner, and other effective impersonations are submitted by Messrs W. H. Porter, Herbert Evelyn, Walter Dale, Will R. Percival, Val W. Gully, and A. D. Anderson, and Misses E. Turner-Elliott, Ada King, and Kitty Russell.

BRIGHTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr W. S. Penley's company is here this week with Charley's Aunt. Mr Edwyn H. Wynne affords great amusement as Lord Fancourt Babberley, who masquerades as Charley's Aunt; Mr Walter Pemberton makes a capital Stephen Spettigue; Mr E. Savery's Colonel Sir Francis Chesney is well played; Mr Aubrey Mallalieu's Jack Chesney and Mr Mark Wylton's Charles Wykeham are represented in spirited style; Mr Fred Epitaux contributes a good character study as Brassett; Miss Mary Morison acts delightfully as Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez; and the parts of Kitty Verdun, Amy Spettigue, and Ela Delahay find dainty exponents in Miss B. Fitzgerald, Miss Marie Grogan, and Miss Mary Mallalieu respectively. The farcical comedy is preceded by A Barmecide Feast.

GRAND THEATRE.—Under the control of Mr Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr W. F. Crowe.—Mr Bert Coote's company is here this week with The Fatal Wedding. Mr Wilfred Payne displays able acting in his portrayal of Howard Wilson; Mr Leyton Cancellor is powerfully effective as Robert Curtis; Miss Marie Houseley gives a sympathetic rendering of the part of Mabel Wilson; and Miss Beatrix De Burgh is very successful as the adventuress, Cora Williams. Mr Charles H. Kenney as Toto, a French butler, and Miss Harriett Clifton as Bridget are highly amusing. Miss Ida Valli makes a pleasing Jessie, and sings tastefully. In the third act an entertainment of song, recitation, and dance is sustained by some admirably trained children. The play is superbly staged, and in the Church scene of the last act the choir boys sing with marked success.

AQUARIUM.—Manager, Mr W. J. Hardy; Secretary, Mr S. H. Andrews.—Mr Charles Conway, impersonator of characters from Dickens' works, and Snow and Farron, coon comedy artistes, are specially engaged here this week. The American Bioscope adds to the attractions.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr J. L. Graydon; General Manager, Mr Ernest Lepard.—The following are here this week:—Miss Alice Pierce, America's celebrated mimic, who gives clever impersonations of leading artistes; Chinko, juggler; the Ergotti and King Luis Troupe of Risley acrobats; Gilbert's troupe of performing cats and dogs; Charles Kitts and Rhoda Windrum, in their seaside absurdity, Two in a Tent; Nellie Randall, comedienne and dancer; Sandford and Lyons, comedians and dancers; Will Musgrave, comedian; Jessie Burnett, serio and dancer; George Antill, the evening "shadow;" and the Alhambra Pictures.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The following are here this week:—De Gracia's cleverly trained elephants; Mdlle. Clothilde, with her performing cockatoos and parrots; Austin Rudd, in his latest successes; Mr and Mrs Edward H. Lucas, in "Scenes from Dickens;" H. Hughman, American mimic; Verno and Voyce, in their vocal scena, Jack Sheppard; or, The Burglary at the Grange, the Waldrons, burlesque adepts; Sibb and Sibb, double trapeze artistes; Tray and Rich, black-and white-faced comedy team; Mons. De Musto, contortionist; the Brothers Pym, comic gymnasts; and animated pictures.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr C. Thompson Ford; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—Mr F. S. Gilbert's opera company opened here on Monday with Maritana. Mr F. S. Gilbert achieved conspicuous success as Don Cæsar De Bazan, Miss Constance St. Bride acquitted herself admirably as Maritana, Miss Vera Vizard made a charming Lazarillo, while Mr G. H. Place as the King of Spain and Mr Albert German as Don José were very effective. The programmes for the week also included The Bohemian Girl, Faust, Il Trovatore, and The Daughter of the Regiment.

WEST PIER PAVILION.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr A. D. Norman.—Mr Norman V. Norman's company opened here this week with Under the Red Robe. Mr Norman V. Norman gave an admirable impersonation of Gil De Berault; Miss Beatrice Wilson made a charming Renée De Cocheforêt, Miss Kathleen Rind acted with great feeling as Madame De Cocheforêt; and Mr Robert Hilton was seen to much advantage in the two parts of Cardinal Richelieu and Henri De Cocheforêt. Mr Robert J. Danson's Captain Larolle and Mr Norman Leslie's Lieutenant Manet were well played; and the remaining characters were ably sustained. The programme for the week also included Nell Gwyn and David Garrick.

BRISTOL.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Macready Chute.—There was a large attendance here on Monday evening on a return visit of Mr George Edwardes' company with The Orchid. The musical play was staged to perfection, and it was nicely played. The chorus was strong and effective, and the augmented orchestra did good work under the direction of Mr Ernée Woodville. Miss Coralie Blythe is pleasing as Lady Violet, her song, "Little Mary," obtaining much applause. Miss Irene Verona is very amusing as Caroline Vokins, without undue exaggeration; Miss Ethel Griffies plays with distinction as Zelie Rumbert; Miss Katie Leechman is pleasing as the Countess Anstruther; Miss Gertrude Gilliam sings and acts well as Josephine; and Miss Luna Love is capitally placed as Thisbe. Meakin has a very amusing exponent in Mr George Gregory; Mr Laurence Grossmith presents a clever performance of Guy Scrymgeour; Mr Ellis Ogilvie plays with distinction as Mr Chesterton, his make-up as Mr Chamberlain being quite startling; Mr Sidney Vincent as Zaccary introduces some expert eccentric dancing; Mr Donald Hall makes the most of the part of Dr. Faussett; and Mr Sam Walsh is a smart exponent of Comte Raoul. Good specialities are introduced by several of the principals, and the various dances are well done.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Ernest Carpenter.—Miss Olga Audre's company is here with The Mockery of Marriage. The drama is staged well, some of the scenes being quite realistic. Miss Florence Zillwood displays considerable power as Alva Kenyon; Miss Lydia Audre is both interesting and sympathetic as Rose Vernham; Mr Frank Dalton presents a fine powerful exposition of Seth Pearce; Mr Arthur Winpenny acts in a suffisiently aggressive style as Dick Kenyon; Mr Harry Stebbing plays earnestly as Jack Stanley; and Mr Talbot Hindley presents a good study of Old Pete. The comic parts of Mary Ann Barnicoate and Toby Wright are taken with much humour by Mrs Sidney Halling and Mr Will Skelton. The Four Aces introduce a clever acrobatic act, in addition to their sensational rescue of Alva Kenyon in the Railway Track scene.

PALACE.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Resident Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr Welchman.—This week Miss Lil Hawthorne tops the bill; her turn is very pleasing, and she obtains abundance of applause. The O'Brien Brothers do a smart bar performance; Madame Emmy's fox terriers are capitally trained; Wilson Hallett does a good speciality act as a mimic of children and as a whistler; W. H. Clemart is a successful ventriloquist; Will English, comedian, has some amusing songs; the Two Bostons amuse with their eccentricities; Charles Austin, eccentric comedian, obtains applause the Howards do a good musical act; Miss Annie Laurie is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; and Ernie Williams, vocalist and comedian, obtains appreciation. The performance concludes with Vernon's new animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—De Biere and company present an excellent act as expert illusionists; Hardeen interests with his mysterious escapes from handcuffs and manacles; Miss Ida Gladstone pleases as a comedienne; the Bob Hanlon Troupe do an expert flying trapeze act; Dave Marion amuses as a comedian; Belrose and De Velin, operatic duettists, sing with taste and distinction; Simms and Simms amuse as musical comedians; Herbert La Martine sings acceptably, and does some good baton swinging; and W. J. Churchill, comedian, has a quaint style which obtains applause. The performance — two shows a-night—concludes with some good animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.

VICTORIA THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr C. Smith-Wilkes.—Excellent business is being done here, both houses each evening being filled with appreciative audiences. The episode Sally in Our Alley makes a great impression. Mr John Lawson is an excellent Bernard Gaster, and is ably assisted by Mr E. S. Vincent, Mr Boon St. Joseph, Miss Lilian Herries, and Mr Bailey Cohen, and the other members of the company. Mr Lawson also shines in his famous episode Humanity as the Jew. The eccentricities of Mr Ben Nevis, with his songs and dancing, give much amusement. A clever musical performance is submitted by the Musical Clydes (Evie and Amy), and the Matagraph animated pictures afford much pleasure.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.

NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Waller.—The Bells of Haslemere, under the direction of Mr Chas. A. Chandler, are ringing here this week. Mr Leonard A. Yorke is most successful as Frank Beresford, infusing plenty of life into his part. Mr Montague Turner as John Silkstone and Mr Fred Allen as Joseph Thorndyke prove themselves past masters of stage villainy. Mr Chas. A. Chandler shines as Captain Vere. Mr Douglas Hamilton and Miss Mary Hardacre (brother and sister) play in a pathetic and telling manner. A pleasing and amusing interlude is introduced by Mr Charles Cevil as Reuben Armstrong and Miss Lilian Rignold as Dorothy Tremble. Miss Florence Chandler is applauded for her Norah Desmond, and Miss Stafford Smith's Mary Northcote is a finished and clever impersonation.

BUXTON.

OPERA HOUSE. — Secretary and Manager, Mr Arthur Willoughby.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday this week we had Mr George Dance's company, in The Girl from Kay's. The musical comedy was excellently received. Mr Johnnie Schofield in the part of Hoggenheimer kept the audience convulsed with laughter. Mr Tom Shelford, too, was most diverting as the Hon. Percy Fitzwhistle. Mr Sam Lysons was a capital Theodore Quench, and Mr T. Reynolds a good Mr Chalmers. Mr Charles Goold extracted much humour from the part of Joseph. Miss May Marton was particularly pleasing as Norah Chalmers, singing with taste and acting very prettily. Miss Polly Prim, too, as Norah's maid was eminently successful, being lo

CARDIFF.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Redford.—Mr W. S. Gilbert's amusing domestic pantomime, The Fairy's Dilemma, was presented here on Monday by Messrs Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux's company. The play drew a full house, and was highly appreciated. The leading characters of the "unnaturals" have all capital representatives. Mr Frank Stanmore as the Rev. Aloysius Parfitt was really irresistible, his amusing performance as the harlequin causing shrieks of laughter. Equally diverting was Mr Charles V. France as Sir Trevor, while no less successful was Mr Frank Collins as Justice Whortle. Two charming exponents of Lady Angela and Clarissa were seen in Miss Ada Homer and Miss Gertrude Hope. Miss Elsie Cooke made a particularly sweet Rosebud, and earned hearty applause for her delightful rendering of the distressed fairy, while Mr C. Herbert Hewetson as the Demon Alcohol gave undoubted satisfaction. The piece, which is made doubly attractive by a "grand ballet" and a fine transformation scene, is preceded by an amusing curtain-raiser entitled The Conversion of Nat Sturge.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Bateman; General-Manager, Mr Robert Sawin.—Patrons of the King's are well supplied with excellent fare this week. Mr T. Morton Powell's company presents the well-known drama, Honour Thy Father. Lillian Garth is well portrayed by Miss Mabel Coleman, and Gabriel is admirably represented by Mr J. W. Evelyn. Mr Albert Guyon is sufficiently villainous as Duncan Bly; Mr Douglas B. Watson as the bright, honest Jack Halyard is an unqualified success; Mr Fred W. Graham is exceedingly good as Mike Copplestone; while Mr Claude Merton in the dual-rôle of Job Merry and George Bloggs acts with much ability. Gertrude Garth is well sustained by Miss Kate Newton, and Miss Flora Leslie as Mercy Merry gives a capital delineation. Excellent fun is provided by Mr Fred Richards as Ned Pennycomquick and Miss Fanny Wallace as Poppy Cornleigh.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Lea.—Appearing here this week are Fred Karno's famous comedians, in Mumming Birds; the Gentle Mackweys, in their comic wire act; Florrie Gallimore, the popular comedienne; Alexander, trick cyclist; Max Renard, with his marvellous dogs; the quaint Martin Conway; Lilian Lowe, a sweet singer; Austin Boyd and Trixie Gilfain, purveyors of Mixed Drinks; and Fanny Erris, character comedienne.

CARLISLE.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, the Trustees of Mr R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr Stanley Rogers.—The first visit of Mr George Dance's company in the successful musical play A Country Girl has created quite unusual interest here. Mr Cyril Thompson's Geoffrey Challoner is an excellent performance, his rendering of several charming numbers being most effective. Mr Geo. Mudie, jun., contributes a clever character sketch as Sir Joseph Verity, creating considerable amusement. As Barry Mr Johnny Osborne acts, dances, and sings with wonderful agility, smartness, and humour, being very successful in a smart duet with Miss Veronica Brady, a particularly clever comedienne, who fairly shares the honours of the comedy scenes. Miss Maud Harvey has a charming personality, a melodious voice, and histrionic gifts which are seen to great advantage in her delineation of Marjory Joy. Prinsess Melaneh has a capable representative in Miss Aimée Roberts, who sings her various numbers with taste and skill. Miss May Glen as Nan is a great favourite, and her efforts contribute much to the success.

CASTLEFORD.

ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr Chas. Gadsby; Business Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman.—Wep-ton-no-Mah, played by the American-Indian actress Go-Won-Go-Mohawk and company is attracting large audiences. Mr C. W. Charles is excellent as Colonel Stockton; Mr George Thorne depicts Manuel Lopes, a desperado, very cleverly; Captain Franklin is a part capably handled by Mr George Courtney; Mr Theo Alker ably interprets the rôle of Chief Ga-ne-Gua; Mr Dan Ryan as Garry Cullen causes genuine amusement; much fun is also caused by Mr Guy D. Hackney as Sam White; and the success of Go-Won-Go-Mohawk as Wep-ton-no-Mah is undeniable. Miss Minnie Goepel gives a careful study of Nellie Stockton, and Matilda Sniffles is well acted by Miss Jessie Hart.

CHELTENHAM.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Cheltenham Theatre and Opera House Company, Limited; Manager, Mr Oswald Redford.—Sunday occupies the stage here this week. Miss Nita Faydon presents the title-rôle, and proves herself an actress of great versatility, her emotional scenes being particularly powerful. Mr J. Edward Pearce plays Colonel Brinthorpe in an easy and convincing manner; as Arthur Brinthorpe Mr Charles B. Vaughan is vigorous and realistic; Mr Ernest A. Douglas plays Tom Oxley with all the necessary ease and grace; Mrs Naresby has a pleasing representative in Miss Elizabeth Watson. The "boys," Towzer, Davy, Likely, and Jacky, represented respectively by Mr Frederick Powell, Mr John Manley, Mr T. Norman Walter, and Mr Whitford Kane, are clever character studies, particularly the Jacky of Mr Whitford Kane. The Nun of Miss Olive Adair has all the typical gentle dignity. The play is excellently staged and managed by Mr Walner Gregory.

CHESTER-LE-STREET.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr F. Denville.—A crowded house assembled here on Monday night to witness the interesting play entitled Jack Crawford. Mr Ernest Lodge submitted a capital rendering of Jack Maney, and as Captain Hill Mr Charles Holmes left little to be desired. Mr Horace Lingard played with considerable power as Paul Morton, whilst Mr J. P. Lallen made the most of Steve Cardon. As John Treacle Mr Fred Hagger was amusing, and was ably assisted by Miss Emma Coydall in the rôle of Jenny Treacle. Miss Eva Conway gave a clever impersonation of Rose Cardon, and Miss Kate Saville was pleasing as May Forrest, and afterwards as Jack Crawford.

CHORLEY (LANCS).

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr G. T. Sante; Secretary, Mr J. Clay.—The capital play No Cross, No Crown, is again the attraction here. Miss Rose Faith gives a powerful rendering of Clare, the second Lady Luttrell; Miss Gwen Stewart displays exceptional ability in the dual-rôle of Lady Margaret Luttrell and Mistress Grey, being particularly sympathetic in the latter character. Miss May Warden excellently undertakes Dorris Luttrell. Little Madge as Plato and Miss Kate Carnegie as Agatha are efficient. Sir Francis Luttrell receives due justice in the hands of Mr Charles West; Mr Harrison Chapman is an able exponent of Professor Nebb; Mr Herbert Clifton gives a masterly rendering of Dr. Ashby; as Austin Blake Mr Logan Darra is deserving of praise; while Mr C. George capitally plays Rawson Haines.

CLYDEBANK.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Wilson.—Laughter Land is the attraction here this week. The Marvellous Craggs are as good as ever, and are enthusiastically received. Mr Henry B. Lewis is highly entertaining as Professor Sylvanus Wood; Mr Harry Rousby is a smart Dick Marlow, whose uncle Sir Vincent is well portrayed by Mr G. Westacott; and Mr Cragie Edwards is a capital Alderman Trentman. There are a bevy of ladies, amongst whom Miss Doris Hanley as Miss Tudor, Miss Eva Daring as Miss De Vere, Miss Amy Hastings as Clarice, and Miss Agatha Rose as Clothilde stand out prominently.

CHATHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr Geo. G. Ridley.—Patrons of this house have enjoyed to the full an admirable performance of the late Mr Wilson Barrett's last play Lucky Durham by a William Greet company travelling under the direction of Mr Geo. A. Highland. The play is a detailed description of the triumph of an illegitimate child (John Durham) over birth and want and circumstance, until he becomes wealthy, and purchases the ancestral hall that had been gambled away by Lord Mountfallon, his father. The character of John Durham is well drawn—he is strenuous, square, successful, "a regular top-holer who don't gab much," as Lord Mountfallon's lawful heir frequently put it. The virtue is, however, not overdone, and even John Durham could not resist the temptation to gloat over his fallen foe—the ruined Lord Mountfallon—until John's guardian angel, his mother, protests that revenge is not the same thing as justice; then John is John once more, and Lord Mountfallon and his family are allowed to remain in the castle undisturbed by the illegitimate son. Incidentally John Durham says many strong things of society's unwritten laws that punish the betrayed mother and child, leaving the man to go scot free. There is also a charming love story running through the play that culminates in Helen Vallerton, the woman of his choice, volunteering to aid John Durham in making a home for his mother, and so enabling him to accept for himself the title, hitherto applied to him only by others, of "Lucky" Durham. Mr W. F. Grant played the title-role with great success. He exercised commendable restraint in his Americanisms, and gave a faithful study of a very admirable character. Miss Phyllis Relph as Helen Vallerton brought to her task a charming voice and good stage presence; her work in the third scene, when she wore a charming gown of French grey, with lace insertion, was excellently done. Lord and Lady Mountfallon were represented by Mr Henry de Solla and Miss Mary Relph respectively; both difficult parts well played. Mr Paul Belmore made a capital good-for nothing son and heir, the Hon. Reginald Steighton by name. The rôle of the Hon. Margaret Steighton was ably filled by Miss Jessie Winter. Mr Daniel McCarthy took the part of Richard Vallerton, and did well. Durham's mother, Mrs Durham, was played by Miss Nellie Bonser; make-up and acting alike were admirable. Other and minor parts were taken by Misses Gertrude Robins, Georgina Clarke, Frances Irving, and Beatrice Ford; Messrs Stanley Harrison, W. F. Clitherow, A. E. Walker, Percy Arthur, Henry Villiers, Gambier Melford, Roger Gordon, Arthur Comins, and George Mann.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr L. B. Barnard.—Harry Champion, comedian, tops the bill, and of course gets a big reception nightly; Lacey's Erascope continues to delight. Fred Southern's company is still here, giving on Monday and two following evenings The Private Hotel, and the remainder of the week His Lordship's Birthday. Also announced are: Flo Villiers, male impersonator; Clara Walters, pianist; Nelson and Thomas, comedy artists; the Sisters Julian, duettists and dancers; and Stanley and Greenop, banjoists.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr Frank J. Donne.—The leading attraction here is the engagement of the clever Selbini Troupe of cyclists. Other attractions are: John Clarke, the soldier vocalist; Davies and Davies, comedians and dancers; Martin Henderson, musical entertainer; Tom Collins, comedian; the Sisters Kay; Beattie Kent, comedienne; and the Edisonograph.

CHESTERFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr Holbery Hardy.—Mr Ian Maclaren's company occupies these boards this week in the spectacular drama A Fatal Crown. The company is a good all round one, and includes Mr Ian Maclaren, who gives an excellent representation of Lord Dudley, and Miss Margaret Saville, who acquits herself well as Lady Jane Grey. Miss Maude Anderson is seen to advantage as Mary Tudor. Mr Leonard R. Montgomery as Herne the Hunter and Mr Willie Atom as Xit render efficient aid. The piece is well staged and dressed.

COATBRIDGE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Mary Watson; Manager, Mr C. B. Fountaine.—Mr and Mrs Chalmers Mackey's company occupies the boards here this week with The Colleen Bawn. Mr Mackey, who appears in the rôle of Miles-na-Coppaleen delights the audience with his songs. Mr Conway Hastings is strong as Squire Corrigan, Mr Reginald Garland successfully portrays Hardress Cregan, and Father Tom is ably enacted by Mr H. Sainsbury. Mrs Chalmers Mackey displays ability as Anne Chute, Miss Kathleen Russell makes a hit as Eily O'Connor, and Mrs Cregan is cleverly undertaken by Miss A. Liddon.

COLNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Gerald Harding.—Popular taste is appealed to this week by Mr F. Brooke Warren's company, in The Mysteries of the Thames. The story abounds in exciting, pathetic, and humorous incidents, and is kept moving briskly by a large and capable company. Those who specially distinguish themselves are Mr Roy Fortesque, Mr Brooke Warren, Mr Elton Morgan, Miss Gwynne Warren, Miss Lallah Shelton, Miss Clare O'Sullivan, and Miss Nellie Palmer. The scenery is adequate, and the entire performance most satisfactory.

CORK.

OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr John Horgan.—This week Mr E. St. Alban's opera company commenced a week's engagement here in the comic opera Les Cloches de Corneville. The company is an excellent one. Miss K. Farrell as Germaine was most attractive and sang well; Miss Lucy Fitzroy as Serpolette was excellent, her singing being much appreciated; Mr St. Alban as Gaspard gave a powerful impersonation of the miser; as the Marquis Mr Geo. S. Fox sang and acted well; Mr Geo. Delaforce as the Baillie and Mr Fowler Thatcher as Gobo were humorous; and Mr Lawrence Wensley as Grenicheaux sang excellently.

COVENTRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—A powerful and stirring drama entitled A Modern Judas, by John Denton, and produced by his own company, is at the above house this week. The part of Jack Vavasour, the hero, is admirably taken by Mr Frank Beresford; Captain Melbourne, otherwise Slippery Jim, is in the capable hands of Mr Percy Rhodes; Elkanah Pearce, a very eccentric character, is well portrayed by Mr John Denton; Bennett, a burglar, is capitally rendered by Mr Trueman Towers. Miss Agatha Pearce is impersonated by Miss Ada Palmer, while as Polly Hopkins Miss Dorothy Harcourt is responsible for some amusement; Claire Rivers is charmingly embodied by Miss Violet King, and Elsie is in the hands of Miss Kate Walbran.

CREWE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry Taylor.—On Monday Mr Robert Perris's company presented for the first time in Crewe an American musical comedy-drama, entitled A Fight for Millions. The play abounds with striking situations and exciting incidents, and a strong company did full justice to the drama. Mr Robert Perris made a capital Tom Manley, and was well received; Hudson Rivers was consistently played by Mr J. N. Cowling; Mr W. S. Stevenson as Richard Dudley fully realised the villainy of the character; Willie Neverwork was humorously depicted by Mr Larry Clements; and Mr Fred Acton made a typical Solomon Moses. Pearl Rivers was nicely played by Miss Eva Purcell; Miss Fannie Williams scored as Mrs Rivers; Miss Evelyn Robson portrayed very sympathetically the part of Helen Dudley; and Miss Winnie Acton was well cast as Little Madge. Miss Gertie Douglas in the dual-rôles of Betty and May Brady gave every satisfaction. A scene with the Wireless Telephone and another with a Submarine Boat were introduced, and both proved attractive and interesting.

CROYDON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr Reginald Lawrence.—Messrs E. H. Kelly and C. M. Hallard's company is giving an artistic rendering of A Man and His Wife at the Grand. Miss Nina Boucicault acts creditably and without underrating the responsibilities of the rôle of Eleanor Ainslie, and handles the emotional passages very carefully. Mr C. Aubrey Smith is earnest and convincing as Roger Ainslie; Mr C. M. Hallard enacts Sir Noel Drage with good elocutionary effect; Mr E. H. Kelly acts with infinite ease as Lord Francis Hillier; and able support is given by Messrs Reginald Dance, Charles Ware, George Silver, and Reginald Rivington as Joe Thorn, Drover, William, and Woodhouse. Miss Enid Spencer Brunton is particularly agreeable as Adela Antrobus; Miss Beatrice Coleman is a charming Violet Antrobus; Miss Blanche Wilmot is natural as Lady Wickham; and Miss Annie Hill completes the cast as the Nurse. The comedietta Jerry and a Sunbeam is rendered by Miss Annie Hill and Mr Reginald Dance.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr H. D. Lyle.—A Victim of Villainy is being staged here by Messrs Atkin and Howe's company. Mr Sydney Arnold is a suitable Stephen Cavanagh; Mr Walter Howe is successful as Frank Manton; Mr Arthur Staples is a humorous Tom Leckie; Miss Zoe Davis is satisfactory as Mary Manton; Miss Helena Walbran deserves praise as Alice Cavanagh; Miss Marjorie Carroll is a lively Jane; Miss Nita Barton is first rate as Vera Diamond; and the remaining characters are well placed. Mr H. D. Lyle is a popular and courteous manager, and Mr W. Reillie's orchestra is a credit to the house.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Resident General Manager, Mr Eustace H. Jay.—A capital entertainment is again given at this popular house. Jeanette Latour is a pleasing ballad vocalist; Clark and Argyle are clever dancers and pipers; Rosie May, serio, is bewitching; Harry Tate, comedian, makes a big hit; the Three Sisters Slater are interesting banjoists, vocalists, and dancers; the Wallys, comedy jugglers, are brilliant; the Carlyles are expert whirlwind dancers; Connie Williams, comedienne and dancer, is fascinating; Georgina Middleton is a character vocalist of ability; the Sisters Hall, duettists and dancers, are applauded; and the Eight Hiawathas, in native costumes, scenery, and effects are given a welcome.

PUBLIC HALL.—The Lady Haldon's Protegees are putting in a week here, and nearly every item of their programme is encored. Miss Mathilde Rossini is an accomplished violinist; Miss Maggie Rawson's songs, with banjo obbligato, bring down the house; Mr Fred Alexander gives a smart and amusing conjuring act; Little Dora and Baby Winnie Crispe cleverly dance their way into favour; and it is a pleasure to see and hear Miss Madeleine Fuller in song and dance; Miss Paget, instrumentalist; Miss Hettie Ducane, in coon song and dance; and Tom Lawrence, comedian.

DARWEN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. L. Ormsby.—A large audience assembled here on Monday to witness Mr W. H. Kirby's company in The New Mephisto. Mr Kirby, a capital Dick Pilgrim, keeps the house in screams of laughter. Mr Fred Lynn as Mephistopheles is also excellent in his varied rôles and songs. Mr W. H. Vernon and Mr Herbert St. John create lots of fun. Dolly is ably portrayed by Miss Lily Gullick. Miss Marion Armitage as Becky Pilgrim contributes largely to the success. "The three goey widows" are Miss Dorothy Cecil, Miss Leah Howard, and Miss Marion Keeley, their singing and dancing being exceptionally good.

DERBY.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr Chas. Denley.—Mr J. F. Preston's répertoire company is here this week, opening on Monday with Lady Godiva. Miss Hilda Shirley in the title-rôle achieves a distinct success; Mr J. F. Preston acquits himself admirably as Tom o' Coventry; as Leofric and Algar respectively Mr Eric Mayhew and Mr Clifford Marle are thoroughly satisfactory; and Mr James Duncan as Edgar, Mr Ernest Hamilton as Unwolf, and Miss Georgie Walton as Lady Aldyth also merit special mention. Mr Dan F. Roe makes a diverting Robin Shacklebolt; and Miss Nina Westerleigh is an amusing Elfrida, the two singing several songs and duets with great acceptance. On Wednesday and Thursday excellent representations of Nell Gwynne were given, and Jane Shore was billed for Friday.

PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes.—The Reed Oetzmann Troupe in their sketch, On Tour in the Tyrol, provoke much laughter; Bert Woodward is a clever and amusing cycling coon; Helene and Emilon, continental novelty gymnasts, secure hearty appreciation; Les Bollingers, the original rag painters of Paris, supply a unique and attractive turn; Dan Conway, comedian and dancer, is well received; Alice Dora is an agreeable comedienne and dancer; Weston and May are responsible for an amusing comedy act, Married Life; and Massano, a clever juvenile juggler, is also well worthy of commendation.

DONCASTER.

NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Councillor J. W. Chapman.—The New Commander is the attraction here this week. Lieut. Frank Harding is successfully portrayed by Mr George Gordon; Mr E. Consh-Johns does yeoman service as Lieut. Jack Tremmingway; Mr St. Bernard Wyntour scores as the Sultan of Ramjamjah; and Mr J. P. Marsden is good as Matthew Flintheart. To Mr Millar Andarson much praise is due for evoking uncontrollable mirth. Miss May Dallas is a bright and lively Vivette. The title-rôle is charmingly impersonated by Miss Grace Warner. The Primrose Quartet of dancers were well received.

DOVER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Dover Theatres, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Fred C. Dew.—Miss Fortescue made her first appearance in Dover on Monday in a dramatisation of Moths. She was supported by a first-class company. The character of the repulsive and warm-hearted American suited Miss Fortescue to perfection, and loud and sustained applause and appreciative laughter followed her from her initial entry to the fall of the curtain. An effective rendering of the part of Vere Herbert was given by Miss Gladys Jesson, and Lady Dolly was played by Miss Madeline Meredith, who gave an extremely clever portrayal. Miss Miriam Lewes as the Duchess De Sonnaz acted with force, and succeeded in depicting the varying emotions of the part with success; and Miss Eugenie Vernie was capital as the Princess Nadine. Mr Conway Wingfield thoroughly realised the brutal nature of the rôle of Prince Zouroff; Mr Dalziel Heron, an actor of considerable ability, gave a powerful rendition of Lord Jura; Raphael De Correze was sympathetically portrayed by Mr Cecil Newton; and Mr Francis Burdett deserves a special word of commendation for his skilful handling of the part of the Duke of Mull. The School for Scandal and She Stoops to Conquer were also included in Miss Fortescue's répertoire. Mr Arthur Hare's company opened on Thursday with the comedy opera My Lady Molly.

DOUGLAS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr T. R. Wood.—My Lady Molly is being played here by the members of Mr Frederick Mouillot's company. Mr John T. M'Cullum as Micky O'Dowd presents a "Phiz"-like portrait. He sings with skill, dances with agility, and acts with emphasis. The Lady Molly of Miss Beatrice Edwardes is also in the picture; in her masculine disguise she suggestes the forgotten grace of the age of "snuff box and fan." Miss Rita Everard makes a pleasing and picturesque Alice Coverdale. The Hester of Miss Kitty Upton shows talent. Capt. Harry Romney is well played by Mr Harry J. Davies, and he sings his music with intention. Mr Ernest Mozar, who comes from "down under" and the other side of the Southern Cross, works with sincerity as Lionel Bland. He is an excellent actor, and a very finished singer. The Sir Miles Coverdale of Mr Augustus Cramer is conceived and carried out in the true spirit. He also makes a hit with the excellent solos provided for him. The scenery is quite adequate, the chorus have well-trained voices, and lend distinction to the ensemble. The unanimous opinion of Douglas is that My Lady Molly is a show to be seen.

GAIETY THEATRE, LIMITED.—Manager and Secretary, Mr Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Brittain.—Miss Louie Freear and company are here in Boy Bob, a spirited drama, which recalls the early work of John Strange Winter, and is always interesting. The interest is, of course, immensely accentuated by the creation of Boy Bob, which Miss Louie Freear is responsible for. It is pathetic and quaint, and has other fine qualities. She was received with a most appreciative recognition of her talent. Mr Stephen Bond played Captain Winton with distinction and power. The character is difficile and complex, but he made it convincing. The Sergeant Daniels of Mr B. Soane Roby was an admirable performance, well-balanced, well-considered, and excellently portrayed. Mr J. Russell Bogue was dignified as Colonel Vincent, Mr A. T. Hendon provided the necessary male comedy as Sergeant Field, and Mr Francis Hawley and Mr Brisco Owen were natural and interesting as Captain Fisher and Lieutenant Rex Harley respectively. Miss Jessie Glenn was well placed as Nurse Draycott. Miss Marie Rignold, Miss Dora Rignold, Miss Jessie Burgwitz, and Mrs H. A. Saintsbury by their artistic playing of the characters allotted to them added extra importance to a play of merit. The scenery was adequate, and Mr A. T. Hendon's stage-management most praiseworthy. The curtain-raiser, the late J. B. Buckstone's little comedy, Good for Nothing, was acted with success by Messrs A. T. Hendon, J. Russell Bogue, Brisco Owen, Frank Brown, Edwin Sheppard, and Miss Jessie Burgwitz.

PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Limited; Manager and Secretary, Mr Charles Fox, jun.—The attendance here has been most gratifying, but has been more than justified by the fare provided by an astute and far-seeing management. Mr Alf Gibson, who allows nothing to upset him, so he asserts in a quaint song, suits the class of patrons the Palace caters for. He is funny without being vulgar. Mr J. L. Wymas, a clever illusionist and conjuror, is well received. Mr James Dunn makes a banjo a musical instrument of value, and entertains. The cryptic performance which De Dio gives startles the unsophisticated, and causes the others to give pause. Shadowgraphy has always been an art artistic, and Professor Viveur is an excellent exponent of it. The Bio-Motograph is also an attraction with its latest pictures of the war. The dancing, under the influence of Mr Harry Wood's orchestra, demands attention.

NEW EMPIRE.—Lessees, Messrs Charles Elderton and A. E. Smith; Business-Manager, Mr Blake.—The two houses nightly seems to have caught on at this now popular vehicle for reasonable recreation at small expense. The programme this week has been received with applause by large audiences. Miss Rita Resdan plays the character made familiar by Miss Vesta Tilley with really a true sense of the limits of artistry. She has a sense of proportion and a sense of humour. Mdlle. Rosella, a trapeze artist, pleases. Miss Helena Stewart has a soprano voice which has been well trained, and which she uses with effect. Blake's Imperial Bioscope illumines the incidents of the passing show so really up to date that it is possible by dropping into the Empire to avoid the boredom of wading through the daily papers. Messrs Sleath and Aldin, in Under the Shamrock, have found a fanciful idea, which they prettily express. The Allisons, as gymnasts, excite the interest of their spectators. Max Merlin, the human crocodile, has been well received.

IT is the last week at Derby Castle. The programme has drawn large audiences. It includes Mr Horace Wheatley, the Allisons, and the Three Missouris. On Saturday the curious Manx function, "The Melliah; or, Harvest Home," will be staged with all the proper accessories.

MR FREDERICK BUXTON'S Pierrots and Village are still doing well. They ought to, as it is a clean and wholesome entertainment.

MESSRS C. H. POWELL AND CONNOR at the Hippodrome are now in the last week of a very successful season. It is a week of benefits, which have been well attended. These young managers by their courtesy and the excellent programmes they have put forward are most popular in the Isle of Man with visitors and residents alike.

MR GEORGE BURTON'S Pierrots on the band-stand attract large attendances.

MR CHARLES DARE'S Minstrels on the Head make for money. This show is one of the features of Douglas. On Wednesday he gave his company their annual benefit, when nearly all the available talent in Douglas appeared, and the Head was dark with a swarming multitude.

DUDLEY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr J. W. Tilley.—Mr Henry Swinerd's No. 1 company, in the musical comedy, Dare Devil Dorothy, is paying a first visit here this week. The company is one of all-round excellence, and the piece is mounted in a manner reflecting credit on all concerned. Silas Crump is admirably accounted for by Mr Arthur Verne, whose drolleries are highly amusing; Mr Wm. F. Green is thoroughly successful as Captain George Fielding, singing his songs in excellent fashion; Miss Marjorie Cecil is a charming Dorothy; and as Ruth Montrose Miss Kathleen Garnon deserves praise.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Tom Prichard.—Mr Prichard continues to supply talent of a high order. Ryan and Hall, who head the bill this week, keep the house in a roar; Ralston and Francis, in a musical scena, secure a well-merited encore; and Kloof and Ramsay are extremely clever musical eccentrics. Lui Lord is a pretty singer with a good voice; Miss Ella's educated lions continue to create a sensation; and other good turns are supplied by the Haldyne Duo, Charles Ashdown, comedian; Sisters Charnley, duettists and dancers; Harry Phillips, comedian; and Miss Nellie Wilson, comedienne.

DUMFRIES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. E. Potts.—On Monday and two following nights Mr Fred Bulmer, with a well-selected company, paid a visit with his convict melodrama, Sentenced for Life. The piece abounds in some very stirring scenes, which were all well depicted. Mr Harry Lloyd as Roy Stillwell was very good; Mr R. Bosco did well as Sir William Stillwell; Mr Ernest Vaughan as the villain, Captain Paul Derrick, was all that could be desired; Mr G. J. France as Adele Gray and Miss Madge Douglas as Kate Rednal played their parts cleverly; and Miss Mary Daley as Lady Stillwell was well suited to the part.

DEWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Resident-Manager, Mr J. Herbert Asquith.—The musical comedy entitled The Girl from Japan is here, and making a big success. The music is under the able direction of Mr Colet Dare, who is also responsible for the many tuneful numbers. As the Rev. John Smith Mr Ernest Spalding has made a good impression. Mr C. L. Ludlow scores as Bingle, and Mr Percy Baverstock has a congenial rôle in General Baugh. Mr S. Lockridge is capital as Lord Allenbury, and has a fine voice. Mr Alfred Wood is an acceptable exponent of Sir Mulberry Filppington. Miss Nellie Jackson has many opportunities as Pollie Perkins for her nimble dancing, and Miss Nellie Valentine as Violet Meadows is soon an established favourite.

HIPPODROME—General Manager, Mr G. Weldon.—The following artistes contribute to the bill here this week:—Payne's Little Vagabonds, in song and dance; Olive Vane, a fine vocalist; Keith and Merson, acrobatic comedians; Paddy and his Half Dollar; Muir and Bartlett, in a laughable sketch; Darrell Trio, instrumentalists; Sisters Brooklands, dancers; and Clara Butler, contralto.

DUBLIN.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr Charles Hyland.—Mr George Dance's company is appearing here this week in the musical comedy new to Dublin entitled Madame Sherry. Miss Georgina Delmar with a pleasing appearance and an excellent voice fills the rôle of Catarina admirably. Mr F. W. Ford acts with ability the character of Colonel M'Sherry and Mr J. Robert Hale gives a capital representation of Andrew M'Sherry. As Barbara Miss Lilly Elsie plays gracefully, and her excellent singing is warmly applauded. Mr Ivan Berlyn causes a great deal of amusement of the gendarme Gustave. Miss Kathleen Grey portrays the rôle of Marie, the chambermaid, in clever style, and Mr Fred Walton is responsible for a capital reading of Joseph. Mr J. Owen Ford as the president, M. Fauville, does well, and Mr Arthur Stroud is successful as Leonard. Miss Mabel Sealby as Mistigrette and Miss Ada Binning as Susanne are both good in their respective rôles.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr Arthur Armstrong.—The Earl and the Girl is being played here with great success by Mr William Greet's company. In the character of Jim Cheese Mr William Stephens is most diverting, and Miss Dot Carey, who appears as Liza Shoddam, acts the part with great success. Mr Percy Carr plays Dick Wargrave in capital style; his songs are cleverly rendered, and win rounds of applause. Miss Aimée Grey is successful as Elphin Haye, and Miss Florence Imeson makes a favourable impression by her excellent vocalism in the rôle of Daisy Fallowfield. Mr Will Hudson displays considerable ability as the American solicitor, Downham. Mr Bertie White gives an able impersonation of the Hon. Crewe Boodle (the supposed heir), and Miss Helen Langton is effective as Mrs Shimmering Black. A. Bunker Bliss has an able exponent in Mr William Walshe, and as Virginia Bliss Miss Daisy Morland is admirable. Mr J. C. Graves is capital as Mr Talk, and as Ladies Gussie, Violet, Gwendoline, and Muriel, the Misses Millicent Vernon, Hilda Davies, Violet Vaughan, and Frances Levy are all excellent in their respective rôles. The orchestra is ably conducted by Mr Evelyn Baker.

QUEEN'S ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr Kennedy Miller.—Mr A. Armour's No. 1 company opened here on Monday with F. Marriott Watson's romantic drama What a Woman Did. The rôle of Elise De L'Orme is capitally played by Miss Phyllis Atherleigh, and Mr W. A. Armour ably fills the part of Conrad De L'Orme. The Marquis De Viray is capably embodied by Mr Kenneth Smith, and as Marie Brisson Miss Molette Vivienne is excellent. As Fritz Von Hoegitheim Mr William Simpson is satisfactory, and the rôle of Teresa Herve is well played by Miss Emmie Wallace. Mr Owen Edwin is well suited as Pitou, and the same may be said of the Misses Tonie Lonora as Fauchon, Miss Nita Imeson as Nanette, and Miss Blanche Delroy as La Papillon. The parts of Perfect Peter Pippin, Andre Lafonte, Gaspare Villeroy, and Victor D'Estin are ably sustained by Messrs Cyril Dundas, J. H. Stewart, Victor Gordon, and Vincent Hayes respectively.

EMPIRE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. S. Figgis.—Topping the bill here this week we have Williams and Brown, Irish comedians, who meet with a cordial reception; De Kock Brothers are clever acrobats and hand-balancers; and the Sisters Bijou, duettists and dancers, have many admirers. Rezene and Robini, comedy gymnasts, cause much laughter; and James Grant is a successful comedian. Norman French, eccentric dancer, is much appreciated; as is also C. F. Best, comedian. The other turns who remain from last week are the Brothers Edgar, comedians, and George Formby, quaint comic vocalist, who are still scoring; and the Empire pictures of recent events are as good as ever.

TIVOLI.—General Manager, Mr Chas. M. Jones; Secretary, Mr H. A. Murphy.—The leading feature here this week is Bobby and Blank, musical artists, who are well received. The Five Foys, in their sketch The Excursion Depot, are highly amusing, and Adey Spencer is a pleasing comedienne. The Ernestine Trio, in the comedy sketch Yorkshire Lad in London, meet with success, and Fred Keeton is a smart comedian. Kisbey in his speciality "The Call Boy," is a capital turn, and Ailsa Douglas is a good soprano vocalist. The Sisters Bartholomew are excellent comediennes and dancers, Wallau is an expert juggler, and the Bioscope pictures are up to date.

ROUND ROOM, ROTUNDA.—Proprietor, Mr Chas. W. Poole; Manager, Mr J. R. Poole.—Poole's Myriorama, which has entered on its second week, is proving as attractive as on the opening night.

WORLD'S FAIR.—Proprietor, Mr Chas. James.—The following artists are appearing here this week:—R. M. Lang, comedy magician, comedian, and dancer; Vi Owen, vocalist and paper tearer; Alfred Lee, character comedian; Lee and Metford, duettists; Simosa Sar, juggler and balancing act, with her trained pigeons.

EASTBOURNE.

DEVONSHIRE-PARK THEATRE.—Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr M. V. Leveaux's excellently cast company is appearing here in Joseph Entangled. Very polished work emanates from Mr H. B. Warner as Sir Joseph Lacy. Mr Stanley W. Ashworth is a distinct and effective Hardolph; Mr Horace Lane gives a good sketch of the character of Harry Taverner; Mr Arthur Bell has a distinct individuality, which is well suited to the part of Gerald Fanmere; and Mr Lawrence Grant is a very able and dignified Jermyn Pyecroft. Mr Cecil Brooking gives a clever contribution as Professor Torfield. Mr Everard Digby is a dignified Knapman, and Mr Water Newcombe gives good help as Staddon. Unqualified success attends the artistic and charming work of Miss Mona K. Oram as Lady Verona Mayne; Miss Shelley Calton is a very animated and prepossessing Mrs Taverner; Miss Rosamund Bury a pleasing Lady Joyce; and Miss Claire Cavendish a satisfactory Mrs Knapman.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—For the first half of the week Mr Ben Greet's company was here in La Poupée. Mr Bert Danson the Hilarius caused much hearty laughter; Mr Algernon Lee sang with good effect as Launcelot; Mr J. Brull, another capable singer, was a satisfactory Father Maxime; Mr H. T. Parr and Mr Stanley as Balthazar and the Baron Chanterelle admirably carried out the duties allotted to them; and Mr A. Bishop was a most satisfactory Loremois. Miss Clesie Wade made a pleasing Alesia, and sang and acted very prettily. Miss Eva Ellis was a smart, bright, and engaging Henri; Miss Margaret Ainsworth a satisfactory the two dolls Miss Violet May and Miss Irene Hamilton were all that could be desired. Later in the week Mr Scott Buist and company appeared here in the new comedy The Axis.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr George Hayes.—At the head of the variety bill here is "Phroso," the wonderful mechanical doll, and he succeeds in completely mystifying the audience. The Russian Troupe of vocalists and agile dancers distinctly earn the large measure of applause accorded them; La Belle Nello adds grace and beauty to an extremely clever contortionist act; the Sisters Noma are smart and skilful trapeze artists; Alexandre and Hughes provide plenty of fun and music; the Five Olracs, very proficient acrobats, pay a return visit; Mr Frank Sylvo is both amusing and skilful as a juggler; Miss Sybil St. Elmo again charms with her vocalism; Miss Venie Clements is a dainty and sprightly dancer; and Mr Alfred Thomas is a satisfactory entertainer.

EBBW VALE.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr Arthur Knight.—Carl the Clockmaker has been played here to crowded houses. Mr Harry Starr's clever impersonations were worthy of the unanimous applause they received. Mr Richard Harris as Maurice Helmore helped to make the performance a great success; and Mr William Miller in the part of Arthur Attwood was highly appreciated. Mr Conrad Clarke deserves special mention; and Miss Edna Lester, Miss Rita Rosslyn, and Miss Ethel Danbury did good work. Mr J. S. Kershaw has conducted the orchestra.

EDINBURGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Hollister.—Quality Street has been seen here before, and, being no doubt well remembered, its reproduction by Messrs Gatti and Frohman's company was received on Monday with special favour by a well-filled house. Miss Grace Armytage-Noble gave a delightful impersonation of Phœbe, and the part of Susan was rendered with exquisite finish by Miss May Whitty. Miss Lizzie Scoble played with roguish humour as the waiting-maid, Patty, and other characters by Misses Rollo Deas, Bertha Woolcote, Eveleen Mills, and Alma Reeves-Smith were ably filled. Mr David Glassford made a spirited and effective Valentine Brown, and Mr A. Carlaw Grand's Ensign Blades was a highly meritorious performance. Mr Gordon Tomkins made something of the Recruiting Sergeant, and Master Robbins was a praiseworthy representative of the boy Thomson. The comedy was attractively staged, and the dresses were quaintly picturesque.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General-Manager, Mr G. T. Minshull.—The annual engagement of Mr Edward Terry is always welcome here, and on Monday the eminent comedian had a warm reception from a large audience, when he presented The House of Burnside. The rôle of Richard Burnside presented Mr Terry in quite a new aspect, and it is needless to say he gave a thoroughly artistic representation of the bluff, yet proud, Yorkshireman. Mr Arthur Cornell afforded excellent contrast as Robert Parminter, and another capital piece of character acting was the John of Mr Fred Knight, whose broad humour was very effective. Mr A. Hylton Allen made an interesting Jack Morrow, and Mr Allan Pollock proved a genial solicitor. The trying part of Marion Burnside was successfully sustained by Miss Daisy Murch, who acted with simple emotion and quiet dignity. Miss Beatrice Terry made a sweet and pretty Margaret. Miss Olga Kay was a smart Jenny, and Miss Beatrice Selwyn rendered excellent service as Betty. Bardell v. Pickwick followed, in which Mr Terry gave a highly diverting portrayal of Sergeant Buzfuz. On Tuesday Sweet Lavender was given, on Wednesday and Thursday Love in Idleness and The Passport were played, and on Friday Sweet Lavender was repeated.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss.—Messrs Horace Mills and W. H. Rawlins commenced a short engagement here on Monday, when they appeared in their comical sketch, Mashing the Missus, which went with greater success than ever. Both comedians were in first-class form, and the audience indulged in hearty laughter while they occupied the stage. Mr George Mozart has very droll methods as a comedian, and his new burlesque drama, Blue-Eyed Sarah, was received with considerable favour. The well-rendered songs of Mr Arthur Reece were loudly applauded, and the fine ballad singing of Miss Beatrice Willey also pleased the audience. A turn by Les Brunins was of remarkable cleverness, and the characteristic entertainment of the Olive Trio gave every satisfaction. Pictures of local events and others were shown on the Bioscope, and appearances by Mr Sam Shipley, Beatie Worth, and Amy Sullivan completed a varied programme.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Tom Ellis.—This week Messrs Fred Darcy and Fred J. Little's company has appeared in E. Hill-Mitchelson's drama, The Executioner's Laughter. The principal characters were admirably acted by Messrs E. M. Hamilton, George Beverley, and W. H. Sharpe, while talented assistance was given by Misses Dorothy Riddle, Carlotta Anson, Beatrice Moore, and May Rosie, the other parts being in capable hands. There was a large and appreciative audience.

EXETER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy M. Dunsford.—There was an exceptionally large audience at the Theatre Royal on Monday, when Old Heidelberg was presented for the first time in this city by Mr Mouillot's London company. The lion's share of the work lies between Mr George F. Tully as Karl Heinrich, Mr Clifford Bown as Dr. Jutner, and Miss Irene Lavington as Kathie. Each of these characters required most delicate and artistic handling, and each was effectively portrayed. Mr Tully in the varying moods and temperaments incidental to the young Prince displayed conspicuous ability. As the inn-keeper's daughter Miss Lavington was in turn vivacious and sympathetic, and her realistic acting evoked frequent and enthusiastic applause. Mr Clifford Bown showed himself to be a thorough master of his art in his exceedingly natural delineation of the rôle of Dr. Jutner. Mr Lionel Gadsden as Lutz was very successful, and some refreshing little bits of comedy were provided by Mr Alec Murray as Killermann. The play is admirably staged, and the incidental music is a very pleasing feature, especially effective being the songs and choruses of the students.

FALKIRK.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr Horace W. Ebbutt. There was again a varied bill at this theatre during the week, the attractions being The Country Girl and Her Second Time on Earth, both of which were produced to large and highly satisfied audiences. Mr Chas. Macdona's company appeared in the former for the first three nights. In the title-rôle Miss Clara Judge proved herself a pretty and winsome actress with a sweet voice; Mr Percy Davison as Geoffrey Chaloner sang very well, and the part of the Rajah of Bhong was fittingly filled by Mr Jack Parson, whose vocal efforts also afforded much pleasure. The chief figure in the comedy, of course, is Barry, and in this character Mr Harry Emerie proved a source of immense mirth. Miss Lilly Shaw's representation of Nan was also vivacious, and the singing of Miss Winifred Croft as the Princess was pretty and tuneful. Mr Jack Fortescue made a sufficiently entertaining Sir Joseph Verity. A special word is due to Miss Ethel Beverley for her graceful dancing. For the three remaining nights of the week Mr Walter Melville's company provided the entertainment with Her Second Time on Earth.

FARNWORTH.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell.—Mr F. Jarman's company is here this week in the effectively staged drama In Dark Siberia. Mr Charles Osborne does well as Major Waroff, and the Captain Victor Gordon of Mr Fred W. Mussett is immediately successful. Colonel Nevski is ably played by Mr H. Ramsay. Highly amusing is Mr Harry Seymour as Sergeant Petrovitch, and admirable also is the Ivanovna of Miss Maud Murray. Miss Cecilia Ransome quickly wins the sympathies of the audience as Paul Gregorovitch, and as Princess Natalie Orloff Miss Helen M'Culloch is distinctly good. A neat little reading is the Sonia Gordon of Miss Kate Osborne.

FOLKESTONE.

PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company in Cousin Kate was the attraction here the first part of the week. Miss Lilian Earle sustains with success the title rôle. Mr Yorke Stephen as Heath Desmond has a part for which he is admirably suited. Mr Walter Ringham is an able Rev. James Bartlett, Miss Hilda Honiss gives a clever portrayal of the part of Amy Spencer. Miss Helen Leyton is good as Mrs Spencer, Miss Betty Castle as Jane is worthy of praise, and Master Vyvian Thomas shows capability as Bobby Spencer. Each evening the play is preceded by the comedietta, entitled A Case for Eviction. Mr Louis Calvert and Mr Herbert Ross's company in Sunday opened here the latter end of the week.

VICTORIA PIER.—Lessees, Messrs Keith Prowse and Co., Limited; General Manager, Mr H. De Manche.—Miss Lottie Evans, soprano, sings with success; Mr Bullen Sanders, baritone, is a favourite; Mr Charles Capper, the well-known whistler, provides a capital turn; Mr Chris Hilton, entertainer, gains some well-deserved applause; Mr Fred F. Daniels is a smart humorist.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager, Mr Seabrook.—The vocalist here this week is Miss Marion Pilcher, contralto, who has a good voice. Mr Fred Culpitt is very popular; Miss Helena Brain, solo cornettist, and Miss Adela Sutcliffe, violinist, are much appreciated. The Ladies' Blue Salon Band gives some admirable selections, and the entertainment concludes with animated pictures.

GAINSBOROUGH.

ALBERT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Kirk.—Miss Ida Millais and company, under the direction of Mr Henry Herne, appeared here with a return visit of No Man's Land for three nights last week. The drama was excellently mounted, the scenic effects with real water being especially good. Mr Herne again appeared as the hero and Miss Millais as the heroine. Mr Fred Conyers repeated his excellent impersonation of Silas Moore, and Mr Sidney H. Morton was amusing as ever as Solomon Jacobs. Mr William Matthews gave a clever rendering of Mat Marsden, and the rest of the characters were in the hands of Messrs C. Haviland, A. Byron, Alfred Barrows, and Misses May Brown, Kate Maynard, and D. Hilstrom.

GATESHEAD.

METROPOLE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Straughan.—A strong all-round company occupies the boards at this variety theatre during the week. The bill is headed by the Manello and Marnitz Troupe, in a marvellous acrobatic exhibition. Miss Fatmah Diard earns a fine reception for her clever singing, and the Stavordale Quintet provide a good turn. Gerald Mount, character vocalist, and Leo Harvey, mimic, are responsible for good turns, and others who go towards making the bill a success are Kitty Marion, comedienne; Johnson and Bert, in a novel sketch; Harry Lawson, comedian; and the Twin Sisters Edwardes, vocalists and dancers.

GLASGOW.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Humphrys.—The attraction here this week is The Money Makers, in which Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company give a good account of themselves. Miss Muriel Ashwynne is a charming Dot, and scores with a smartly played impersonation. Captain Fitzgerald has a capital exponent in Mr Frank Lacy. Miss Lorna Lawrence as Mabel is very attractive, and plays the part in a graceful and becoming manner. Bella is well represented by Miss Frances Davie, and her acting is excellent throughout. Mr Allen Thomas is to be heartily congratulated upon his clever impersonation of Matthew M'Dougall. Miss Mary Griffiths makes the most of her opportunities as Mrs Bannerman; Miss Violet Ley is well placed as Baby Berkeley; Mr Edward Bonfield is quite at home as Charles Clifton; while Mr Edward Sidney gives a good study of Fred. Other parts are well played by Miss Nita Alexander, Miss Lilian Locke, and Mr C. C. Harley. The curtain-raiser, Two in a Trap, is capitally played by Mr Frank Lacy and Miss Violet Ley.

ROYALTY, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. M. Downie.—Mr George Dance's company is here this week giving a bright and entertaining performance of The Girl from Kay's. This is the second visit of the play to Glasgow, and Miss Simeta Marsden's spirited acting in the part of Winnie again forms an attractive feature in the production. The reappearance of Mr H. C. Barry is also welcome, his Hoggenheimer having lost none of its mirth-provoking qualities, and in their respective parts of Harry Gordon and Fitzthistle Mr Charles Hanbury and Mr Leslie Roy Cathie are still all that could be desired. Nora Chalmers is prettily represented by Miss Alice Russon, who also sings with fine expression; another pleasing singer being Miss Maisie North, the clever representative of Eilen, while Miss Violet Crossley gives character to the part of Mrs Chalmers. Mr Fred Rolph's Hall Porter is a quaint and amusing study, and Mr Arthur Jackson as Theodore Quench, and Mr John Wigley as Chalmers also achieve success. The parts of Jane and Jessie are well filled by Misses Florence Plunket and Madge Davis, and Mr Francis Rayne is a good Pembridge. The chorus and orchestra are under the direction of Mr Victor Champion.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Walden; Acting-Manager, Mr Hugh Murdoch.—Encouragingly large was the audience which greeted the production of Secrets — —— —— at this theatre on Monday evening, when Messrs J. F. Preston and P. E. Doherty's company produced this well-known play, under the direction of Messrs Walter King and George Davis. Miss May Carlton is admirably suited as Ismalla, and Zeulieka is most worthily and powerfully presented by Miss Ellen Beverley. Mr George Davis is quite a heroic Lieut. Herbert Markham, and makes the part fully interesting, as does his friend the Hon. Cecil Cholmondley, well played by Mr J. Herbert Carrigan. As Peter and Winnie Wilkins Mr Fred Lambton and Miss M. Hackett are responsible for mirth-provoking fun of a pleasant kind as touring music hall artistes in the East. Nouredin, a caliph of Balsora, and Ibrahim, a slave-dealer, have a considerable share in the working out of the story, and the parts are eminently suited to Messrs Henry Rutland and J. Templar Ellis. Mr T. Bowron as Breezy Bill does not belie the name of the character or the nature of his duties. Alma Meleda (Mr Alfred Wade), Thyrsa Meleda (Miss Maggie Thompson), Kara Mesrour (Mr J. R. Mitchell), and Khali (Mr James Clark) are effective rôles contributing to a performance followed with much interest. Acrobatic dancing by the clever Tivo Trio is rapturously applauded. The play is well staged.

GRAND, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Mascard.—The fare provided at the Grand this week is a return visit of Mr J. W. Turner and his well-known opera company. Maritana, Wallace's evergreen opera, was staged on Monday, with Mr Turner as Don Cæsar. He was in fine voice, and was recalled for his rendering of "Let me like a soldier fall." The title-rôle was filled by Miss Alice Boaden, who sang well, her performance being of considerable merit. Mr John Ridding (Don José) showed good conception of the part, his powerful voice helping him exceedingly. Mr Sidney Clifford in the rôle of the King is worthy of mention, his singing of "Hear me, gentle Maritana" being very fine. Miss Jessie Dennis (Lazarillo) was well received. During the week the following operas were played:—Il Trovatore, Tuesday; The Puritan's Daughter, Wednesday; The Bohemian Girl, Thursday; Faust, Friday; The Daughter of the Regiment, Saturday, matinée.

METROPOLE, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr John Dunbar.—The attraction provided here this week is J. K. Murray and J. M. Dawson's company in the popular domestic drama Driven From Home. Miss Lydia Donovan filled the part of Laura Raybrook, a rôle for which she is eminently suited. The other principal characters were also capitally rendered, particularly those of Anthony Raybrook and Walter Hatherleigh by Mr J. K. Murray and Mr Jack Dawson respectively. Excellent support is also given by Messrs Cyril Harrison, Frank Wilton, C. Stanhope, C. Quinton Fulford, and Misses Alice Metcalfe and May M'Kenzie.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. H. Oakden.—Mr Edmund Tearle and his répertoire company are here this week, opening on Monday in Virginius. Mr Tearle again gave his robust impersonation of the Roman father, and Miss Esther Tearle was a sweet and winsome Virginia. Mr J. Miller was the designing Appius Claudius, and Mr T. W. Benson acted well as Dentatus. Miss Mary Campbell as Servia and Mr Edmund Grogan as Icilius lent able assistance. The play was followed by the Scotch drama, Cramond Brig. The Three Musketeers and Julius Cæsar were given on other evenings.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss's Empires, Limited.—Harry Randall is the star here, and is drawing crowded audiences. Poluski Bros have a lot of new and funny business. Oallaw Trio give a wonderful display of strength and daring in the various feats. Howard and St. Clair have elaborated their comedy turn and introduced a funny golfing scene. Tatten Hall's quaint idea of singing his "lazy" song in bed is well carried through. Ben Brown and George Le Clerq are reviving their old sketch, A Dark Night. Nellie Coleman, in her Irish comedian turn; the Tally-Ho Trio, in their comedy business; Dome, the clay modeller; Sisters Govell, in song and dance; and Georgina Leonard complete a good programme.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Messrs Colquhoun and Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred C. Ewing.—A novel and interesting feature of the programme here this week is the shooting competition, which raises much enthusiasm. Misses Cooke and Clinton give an exhibition of sharpshooting and display remarkable skill. Walter Emerson, comedian, for his songs and humour gets a good reception, and the Sisters Rais contribute some graceful dancing. Great skill and nerve are shown by the Eugene Family, in their aerial gymnastics. A very picturesque turn in given by the Maples, in their piece Little Japs at Home. The Four Herberts create great amusement as the Californian Farmers, and Miss Maud Darlow, comedienne, and Mr Lew Wells in his musical entertainment are specially good.

PALACE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Rich Waldon and T. Barrasford.—An unusually fine programme was submitted on Monday evening. Miss Jenny Hartley had a first-rate reception in her comedienne turn, and was followed by a daring and brilliant trapeze performance by Mdlle. Martha, who performed some quite unique acts, and was warmly recalled. Mr Johnny Danvers gave two comic songs so well that he had to add a dance to his turn, which pleased greatly. Mr Jas. Devoye and his clever calculating pony Bill was a surprisingly pleasing interlude. The New York Comedy Four are too well known to call for lengthened reference, and they in solo and harmonised singing added fresh laurels. The rolling globe and juggling performances by the Jurgens Trio was smartly executed and loudly applauded. Miss Amy Augarde sang like the artiste she is, fine phrasing and intonation being a feature of her singing in a Japanese air, while her elocution in her fine Napoleon scene was admirable. Capt. Woodward's seals and sea lions exhibit marvellous training. A fine display on the Bioscope of "Life on a Japanese War Ship" closes a programme which does the proprietors infinite credit.

QUEEN'S, LIMITED.—Lessees, Messrs Colquhoun and Armstrong; Manager, Mr T. J. Colquhoun; Acting-Manager, Mr B. M. Armstrong, jun.—A first-class company is billed this week, the chief item being the engagement of Fred Karno's company of comedians in their pantomime absurdity, entitled Hilarity. Trapnell Family, Continental acrobats, provide a clever entertainment, and had to reappear. Hicks's Clerks, vocalists and dancers—including Peter, the child comedian—had a great reception, their jokes and singing being first-class. The rest of the company include Harry Jennings, comedian; Nellie Farrell, comedienne; Carrie Ford, expert dancer; the Violas, second-sight act; Shang Hia, Chinese magician; and Bendon's Bioscope, in the latest show of pictures.

HARMONIC CONCERTS.—Musical Secretary, Mr Wm. Biggam.—The thirty-fifth season of these concerts has opened well. Captain Devereux's trained dogs in their drama; Marvello, conjuror and ventriloquist; G. W. Fyvie, Irish comedian and dancer; Ross Combination of dancers; Bob Miol, the clever mimic; Grace and Mai Gilby, in instrumental selections; Lee and Arden, in a sketch, The Watchman; Jas. Perston, Nellie Clark, and Read and Wright were the attractions on Saturday.

GLOUCESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Owners, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr W. H. Weller.—Mr John Leopold's company, with the original Leopolds, in Frivolity is here this week. Mr John Gerant is successful as Oliver Buckwheat; Mr John Leopold, jun., is prominent as Daniel Teething; Mr Wilfred Vaughan is effective as Jules Vermiglio; as is Mr Bert Lloyd as Samuel Vermiglio. Messrs Tony, Willie, Joe, Bertie Leopold, Leopold Leglere, Brothers Leo, Ernest Valls, and Ricardo Valls impersonate the students, the Professor, and his page, and dance in a lively manner. Miss Amy Hall is good as Lucy Buckwheat, and Miss Vera Violota is a capital Vinnie More. Miss Queenie Bronte makes a neat Nanchette.

GOOLE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John E. Tomlinson.—Mr Roy Jackson and company are here with the sensational drama The Man with the Hand of Iron. Mr Roy Jackson displays his dramatic power cleverly in the rôle of Manuel Levigne. Mr G. Lambton does well as Edmund Singleton. Solomon Isaac Silver receives good treatment from the hands of Mr T. Ellis. Mr Gwyn Richardson causes much merriment as Hiram Lincoln O U. Duck, another amusing character being that of Mr Percy B. Braithwaite as Jos. Wellington Blogg. The part of Marie Durogue is played with power by Miss Kitty Douglas; Miss E. Townsend is duly sympathetic as May Sutherland; and Miss G. Harlington is lively and entertaining as Nell Swift. Miss B. Richardson is also highly amusing as Mrs Duck. Trilby and Quasimodo are also announced.

GREAT GRIMSBY.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—The Milton Rays' musical comedy, A Hot Night, has once more visited here this week, and has proved as amusing as ever. Mr Arthur Milton himself appears as Frank Frith, and is responsible for a good deal of quiet humour. On Mr Rolando Martin, however, falls the bulk of the comedy work, and he causes roars of laughter with his droll impersonation of the eccentric waiter, Whiffles. Mr Arthur Wellesley gives a clever burlesque of a spiritualistic humbug as Professor Sheerman. Miss Susie Beaven again represents Polly Drake, and both her acting and singing are highly pleasing. Mr James Sherwin is good as Captain Drake, whilst commendation is also due to Mr Harry T. Butler as Mark Maybury, Mr Francis Hope as Fontenoy Flutterwig, Miss Adeline Montague as Mrs Flutterwig, Miss Clara Reid as Lucy Lorrimer, Miss Madge Wrae as Fanny Frith, and Miss Jessie Wrae as Mary Maybury.

HIPPODROME.—Marie Collins has delighted the audiences at the Hippodrome this week with her bright songs and engaging manner; Madame Collard has introduced her troupe of trained dogs, which gives a performance of a novel character. The dogs are disguised as various other animals, and the act is entitled "Robinson Crusoe amidst his Favourites." Chas. Coverdale has proved an exceptionally good mirth-provoker, his songs and stories being very funny. The Ladderites have given a smart ladder performance, whilst the Three Zaraes have also contributed an excellent acrobatic turn on the triple horizontal bars. Cameron has greatly mystified those who have witnessed his display of illusions, which are puzzling in the extreme. The Tatlers (Kitty and Arthur) have presented some pleasing comedy business, whilst an amusing miniature farce, The Doctor, has been given by Paul Courtney's company.

EMPIRE, CLEETHORPES.—Maude Dewey, a lady artiste who mimics birds, has caused a good deal of interest here this week. Her imitations of the songs of various feathered warblers are wonderfully accurate, and the performance altogether is a charming one. Some really good singing has been accomplished by Flo Deighton, who is the possessor of a soprano voice of excellent quality. The Laure Brothers have combined a very clever acrobatic performance with some amusing drolleries. Barney Vox has proved himself a skilful ventriloquist, and his speciality, "Ally Sloper at Home," has been very successful. Others who have contributed to an excellent programme are Budd and Budd, singers and dancers; Nellie Dyson, serio; Bob Vokes, comedian; and Hart and Rudd, comedians.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Scott Phipp.—Mr George Dance's principal company in The Orchid is delighting huge audiences here this week. As Lady Violet Anstruther Miss Ethel Bryant is dainty and fascinating and sings charmingly; Miss Madge Lucas, a capital Caroline Vokins, delivers her songs with telling effect; Miss Eve Melville is excellent as Zelie Rumbert; Thisbe is vivaciously played by Miss Poppy Wilkinson; Josephine Zaccary is brightly represented by Miss Sylvia De Lacy; Mr Bertie Wright causes roars of laughter with his diverting depiction of Meakin, the little gardener; Mr G. Davy Burnaby is capital as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeor, singing effectively; Mr Edmund Hollick is admirable as Dr. Ronald Fausset; Mr Ernest Darrell makes an excellent Mr Aubrey Chesterton; Mr Edmund Page submits an amusing caricature of the Comte Raoul; and Mr Arthur T. Helmsley dances himself into favour. The scenery and dresses are beautiful, and the choruses go with precision.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. W. Nightingale.—Mr Frederick Thorne's company is paying a return visit with Little Miss Nobody. In the title-rôle Miss Mabel Archdall acts and sings charmingly; Miss Molly Tremaine is very successful as Lady Cheviot Stilton; Violet is pleasingly presented by Miss Dorothy Maxwell; Maggie is capitally played by Miss Mabel Dent; Mr Percy Clifton proves himself a clever comedian as Christopher Potter; the Earl of Cripplegate is in the capable hands of Mr Reginald Cooper; Mr Dennis Drew as Guy Cheviot and Mr Percy Barrow as Gussie Stilton are excellent; Mr James J. Jordan cleverly enacts the rôle of Jock Jamieson.

HIPPODROME.—Vasco, the mad musician, astonishes all with his clever turn; the Lukushima Troupe of Japanese give an extraordinarily clever performance; the Borghetti Troupe contribute a clever show as acrobats; Alexandra and Bertie gain favour for their aerial act. Other capital turns in the programme are Rabbit, in a juggling act on horseback; Victoria Dagmar, gymnast; Master George, juvenile singer; Talberto and Douglas, in a comic riding act; Baby Culeen, juvenile rider; Frank Craig and Louie, American cake-walkers; Clarke's Nippers; the Royal Bioscope; and the hunting spectacle Tally-Ho.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION.—Managing-Director, Mr J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr Edward Gray.—This week Arthur Roberts and company are attracting crowded houses and delighting the same with a most amusing entertainment of songs, sketches, &c. In addition, the Vernon Troupe give a clever turn as xylophone experts; Robert Ganthony is applauded as a caricaturist and entertainer; the Royal Zanettos contribute a marvellous show as Japanese jugglers; and the American Biograph and Mdlle. Angless's Ladies' Band complete a capital programme.

WELLINGTON PIER PAVILION.—Proprietors, Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr Harry Tunbridge.—A varied programme includes Patty Yole, comedienne; the Marblesque Trio, in classical statuary tableaux; Edgar Budden, soloist and skate dancer; Frank Boyce, comedian; the Pay 'n in the racing sketch Also Ran; Prince Fee Lung, conjuror; the Great Vincent, Arab tumbler; Sam Mayo, the celebrated immobile comedian; the Two Eltons, triple bar performers; the Pavilion Bioscope; and Miss Zette Handel's Ladies' Orchestra.

GREENOCK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Executors of the late Mr Alexander Wright; Managers Messrs A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Dr. Walford Bodie, assisted by an excellent company, is here this week. Dr. Bodie sustains the attention of the audience with ease, his ventriloquial and hypnotic powers being most marked. His variety company includes Miss Marie Walford, a charming instrumentalist; Tom Dewar, an excellent comedian; La Petite Bella, high-class burlesque actress; Sisters Lyle, pleasing duettists and dancers; Norman Mills, actor-vocalist, who does well; Little Dolly Robson, the child vocalist, who is applauded; Helen Henri, operatic vocalist, who submits an enjoyable turn; and the Garden Troupe of pipers and dancers are favourable received. Les Fontaines are seen in a clever marionette show, which is much appreciated.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. L. Skivington.—This week's company here includes Obo Brothers, duettists and comedians, whose turn is enjoyed; Akbar performs cleverly on the silver rings; Bella Leabourn, comedienne, is well received; Captain Devereaux's dogs provide an entertaining turn; Francis and Mills, musical brigands, are amusing; G. W. Fyvie, Irish comedian and dancer, is applauded; the Swift Trio are seen in a number of clever and comical cycle tricks; and the Electograph, with new pictures, completes the bill.

HALIFAX.

GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Acting-Manager, Mr Norman M. Robinson.—The Broken Melody is paying another visit here, and still enjoys a great popularity. Mr Van Biene has made the character of Borinski peculiarly his own, and plays it with great power and feeling. His 'cello solos are listened to with rapt attention. Miss Lena Burnleigh as Mabel deserves every praise for an impersonation which is thoroughly sound and convincing.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Steuart Cecil.—The engagement of Johnny Trundley, the Peckham fat boy, has justified itself, large audiences ruling nightly. The programme is of more than ordinary interest, and contains the names of Will H. Fox, comedian-pianist, whose clever work is nightly recognised by a delighted audience; the Watson Family of vocalists and musicians, who are popular here; Arrov, a clever juggler; the Remingtons, a troupe of five smart acrobats and head and hand balancers; Chris Richards, a clever comedian; Violl, who plays on a varied assortment of instruments with precision; and Marian Scott, comedienne.

HANLEY.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone.—Miss Olga Nethersole's company occupies the stage this week in Sapho. The piece is welcomed nightly by capital audiences, the mounting and acting throughout being excellent. Mr Arthur Royston as Jean acts most effectively; Miss Cecil Cromwell in the part of Fanny is exceedingly good; and Mr Cremlin as Uncle Césaire is most successful.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr C. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr James Wynes.—"Looping the Loop," by Miss Madeline, heads the bill, and is once more a good attraction; Mark Sheridan scores a huge success; the Bros. Brooks in their comedy act are amusing; the Sisters Brand sing and dance admirably; Hettie Lee meets with success; Florizell is a clever contortionist; the Floradors, in a musical turn, are exceedingly clever; Geo. Bendon, the white coon, is very smart; De Vere and Kenwick are entertainers of much ability; and the Katos provide a smart and clever show.

HOYLAND.

METROPOLE THEATRE (LATE PRINCESS'S).—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs Geo. S. King and Irving G. Edwards.—This place of amusement has been reopened by Messrs Geo. S. King and Irving G. Edwards, who have taken the theatre on a long lease. The building has been redecorated, and everything seems to point to a prosperous season. The attraction this week is the melodrama When London Sleeps, played by Mr C. Finch-Hatton's company. Mr R. S. Trelawney as Captain Rodney Haynes is a capital villain; David Eggleheart, the athletic star, is ably played by Mr Tom Ronald; Mr F. Morton Wright makes an excellent Mark Blackwood; Queenie Curruthers has an admirable exponent in Miss Mildred Clay, whose performance is extremely clever; Miss Grace Daring as Hilda Carode is also praiseworthy; a considerable amount of amusement is provided by Mr D'Arcy-Kelway as Sammy Blythe and Miss Hilda Young as Carry Jones; whilst Mr Charles Digby as the Hon. Berty Broomhead is also extremely funny.

Do you understand the immense importance of the unique superiority of Odol? While all other preparations for cleansing the mouth and teeth are effective only during the few moments of application, the antiseptic power of Odol continues gently but persistently for hours afterwards. Odol penetrates the interstices of the teeth and the mucous membrane of the mouth, to a certain extent impregnating them, and leaving an antiseptic deposit on the surface. In this manner a continuous antiseptic effect is secured, by means of which the whole oral cavity, to the minutest recess, is completely freed from and protected against all fermenting processes and injurious bacteria. Owing to this characteristic, peculiar only to Odol, fermentation is absolutely arrested and the healthy condition of mouth and teeth assured.

Price 2/6 a bottle, lasting for several months (the half-size bottle 1/6). Of all Chemists and Perfumers.

HARROGATE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr R. Hullah.—Mrs Lewis Waller, supported by her London company, opened another engagement at the Harrogate Opera on Monday, on this occasion presenting the drama Zaza, in which she sustained the title-rôle her acting reaching a high level. Miss Kate Kearney proved herself a capable actress, and Mr Edmund Lea and Mr Eric Mayne gave adequate renderings of their respective parts.

KURSAAL.—Manager, Mr H. J. Dacre.—Mdlle. Lydia and Albina, equilibrists, are the variety artistes at the Kursaal this week. On Thursday evening Sullivan's Golden Legend was given by a band and chorus of 250, in place of the usual evening concert.

HARTLEPOOL.

EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs Councillor Everton and J. W. Craggs; Manager, Mr Harry Burns.—Rudolph's elephants, pony, and dogs, which occupy first position on the bills this week, exhibit marvellous animal intelligence, and go through some wonderfully clever tricks with remarkable precision. Another instance of the remarkable perfection to which an animal can be trained is the almost human intelligence of the dog "Doe," which, when simply commanded by word of mouth alone, obeys readily and humanlike. Old favourites here are Harry Wenburn, comedian; Varley and Sinclair, operattic duettists; Barker and Rose, comedian; and the Josberthos Trio, in their refined strong act, all of whom are as well received as of yore; and the remaining turns are contributed by Bob Rixby, quaint comedian; Brothers Hayes, comedian; and Burns's Bioscope.

HASTINGS.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Gaze.—Staged and mounted with commendable completeness Whitewashing Julia is a great attraction here this week as played by Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr Charles V. France's company. Quite an ideal representative of the difficult part of Julia is given by Miss Ruth Maitland, whilst her devoted admirer, Mr William Stillingfleet, is a telling impersonation by Mr H. Asheton Tonge. The dignified character of Lady Binkney is well sustained by Miss Kate Bishop; Miss Marie Löhr gives a charming rendering of Trixie, the old bishop's niece; the legal profession is remarkably well represented by Mr Archibald M'Lean; the brothers embodied by Mr H. Carter Bligh and Mr Willox Cadogan are excellent from an artistic point of view; and as mother and daughter Miss Kate Osborn and Miss Lillian Brennard show conspicuous ability.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr R. Turner; Acting-Manager, Mr Chas. H. Hawker.—Ashton's Italian orchestra is augmented this week by some excellent vocalists, Miss Gertrude Maxted, Miss Lilian Gardner, Mr Roland Bagnall, and Miss Helen Mar, American raconteuse, who confines herself principally to jokes and characteristic yarns of a Yankee type. Owing to illness, Mr Bagnall, the humorist, could not appear the early part of the week. The soprano, Miss Maxted, sings with sweetness and expression, and associated with the pure contralto voice of Miss Gardner some charming duets are rendered.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr Elvey Thomas; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—Mr Esmond's pretty little comedy entitled One Summer's Day is being presented by Miss Annie Stalman (Mrs Drew Mackintosh), and a fairly balanced company. The staging and mounting of the piece is very effective, and adds greatly to its success. A fine realisation of the gipsy, Chiara, is given by Miss Stalman, who is the principal character in sustaining the interest of the play. Mr A. Harding Steerman is good as Major Rudyard; Captain Manley is highly amusing in the part of Theodore Bendyshe; Miss Nancy Harding and Miss Marguerita Delmore in their respective rôles of Maysie, the ward, and Irene are very successful.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Harold Penny.—The company here this week includes Miss Edna Masten, siffleuse, who whistles with remarkable power and sweetness. Mr Thomas Finglass and Miss Gracie Herbert are associated in an interesting Negro sketch. Some delightful renderings from various operas are submitted by Miss Ra-Leslie. An incident in tennis-playing causes great amusement by Messrs Grell and Grey. Messrs Mountford and Walsh are good speciality artists. A truly eccentric comedian is found in Mr Joe Mac. Messrs Polk and Kollins are smart banjoists. With amusing song and story Mr Harry Pleon keeps the audience in good humour.

PUBLIC HALL.—On Tuesday evening, under the direction of Mr N. Vert, Mr George Grossmith gave one of his humorous and musical recitals. The genial satirist was welcomed by a large and appreciative audience, and continual applause followed his clever and diverting pianoforte selections.

HEBBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. A. Jackson.—An excellent variety company here on Monday night was well received by a large audience. The programme was opened by Chard's Dog Circus, a performance entitling the trainer to every credit. The Dillon Trio appeared in their amusing and original comedy act. Marcus Boyle, character comedian, was successful with his clever impersonations and patter. The Danbys, eccentric comedians, caused roars of laughter by their grotesque representations of Weary Willie and Tired Tim, and the Henderson-Stanley Quartet, being vocalists, instrumentalists, and dancers of considerable ability, met with unstinted applause. Ada Whitton, male impersonator; Leo Selwyn, the mystifier; Minnie Morgan, chic comedienne and dancer; and Downey's animated pictures were also included in the programme.

HEREFORD.

DRILL HALL.—Manager, Mr A. Lovesey.—Mr George Edwardes' company is playing San Toy here to full houses. The piece is as attractively presented as formerly, and the chorus is well selected. Miss Dot Harradine scores in the title-rôle, her vocal contributions being rendered with real artistic excellence. Mr Alfred Beers as Li is most amusing; Mr Edmund Sherras as Bobby Preston acts well, and sings his share of music like a true artiste. The other members of an excellent company ably fulfil the requirements of the various parts.

HUDDERSFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy G. Arthur.—Mr C. Lubbock's company is here with a first appearance of The Cherry Girl. The presentation is a big success. Mr Frank Lincoln as Moonshine and Happy Joe is brimful of energy, and his clear articulation makes every point tell. Mr W. H. Walker is also admirable as Starlight and the Squire of Homewood Hall. Miss Helen Hart is a dainty Pansy; Miss Ida Worsley plays the Queen with a delightful grace, singing with fresh and tuneful voice and dancing with fairy lightness; Miss Connie Loxton as Night and Tip-Toe is effective; and a very attractive feature is the fine concerted singing of the Steinway Quartet. Mr Albert Delino as Esau and White Surrey contributes a couple of highly diverting animal impersonations. Three clever youngsters deserve mention, namely, Miss Rosie Campbell as Dimples, Master Louis Victor as Snowball, and Master Sidney Grata as the Rose of the Riviera. Messrs Charles Danvers and Alfred Ibberson make funny Beadles.

HULL.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr W. Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr W. F. Morton.—Though Florodora is supposed to be paying a farewell visit to this city, the phenomenal business done with it suggests that at present the idea of retirement must be hung up. Familiarity, in the case of Florodora, has not by any means brought with it contempt. Miss Lena Maitland is a charming Dolores, singing all her numbers with artistic finish. Miss Hilda Dugdale is a most pleasing Angela. As Lady Holyrood Miss Isabella Dillon shows much ability, and is exceedingly chic. Leonard Russell's song, "Under the Sheltering Palm," receives a triple encore. Mr Edward Lewis draws largely upon his quaint humour as Tweedlepunch, his presence on the stage being always a delight.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; Local Manager, Mr Wyn Miller.—Once again that ever-verdant play The Private Secretary holds the boards. The gentleman who has no liking for London finds an excellent exponent in Mr Eugene C. Stafford. The other members of the company are very capable.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Sole Owner, Mr W. Morton; Manager, Mr Geo. Morton.—That stirring play When Darkness Falls contains all those elements that go toward a successful production. It has also just the tinge of militarism that is always acceptable to playgoers. The company engaged by Mr Wm. Bourne shows much capability.

PALACE THEATRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Manager, Mr A. Graham.—Marie Lloyd is always a draw, and her songs are bound to be well received. Her new sketch, The Coster Wedding, goes very well, the welcome accorded her being of the most enthusiastic kind. Henri Kaiser shows that he is an adept juggler. The Mannings is another turn, and brings in its wake much applause and effervescent hilarity. Max Millian is a clever equilibrist.

ALHAMBRA.—Resident-Manager, Mr C. J. Bartleet Perry.—Carola's Circus is the leading item here. One of the best turns is Princess Madji, whose marvellous hand-balancing tricks create much enthusiasm. Martine and Son, American song artistes, also come in for much popularity; Ward Bros. create much enthusiasm; Charles Ridgwell, Rhoda Paul, and Kimberley Boys complete a good bill.

HYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Joseph W. Maloney.—Good business is being done here this week by Mr Tom E. Murray and company in the musical farce Our Irish Visitors. The central figure is Colonel Macmahon, most humorously impersonated by Mr Tom E. Murray; Mr J. W. Braithwaite is an amusing Michael O'Brady; Miss Helena Coe gives a capital rendering of Mrs Macmahon; Kate and Ellen are gracefully represented by Miss Edith Maynard and Miss Poppie Saunders; and Miss Dot Stanley makes a charming Janie.

ILKESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr L. F. A. Rogers.—A pleasing change is provided this week in the shape of Mr Henry Hare's musical comedy company, in The Girl from Chicago, which is greatly enjoyed by appreciative audiences. Mr Buckstone Clair is admirably witty as Judge Hussel. Mr Edwin Dodds sings well, dances nimbly, and is in addition remarkably funny as Billy the clerk. Mr Clarence Ibbotson makes the hit of the evening as Brother Obadiah Cacles, his vocal specialities bringing him much kudos. In the part of General Boomer Mr Henry Hare is well suited; Mr Douglas Vigors is very entertaining as Percy; and the Daffodils enact their parts with grace, introducing many pleasing dances. Miss Lucy Beaumont as Mrs Sweetlove, the housekeeper, is charming; Miss Nellie Vicott endows Lucretia Flatfoot with diverting humour; and Miss Lily Beverley makes a delightful Flora.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr Joe Richards.—The principal attractions here are the De Rells, musical funambulists; Jennie Hall, ballad vocalist; Starella, comic conjuror; Annie Holley, refined serio; and Hugh M'Cusker, comedian.

INVERNESS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr Cameron Burgess.—On the 18th Mr Chas. Macdona's company opened a three nights' engagement here with Are You a Mason? Mr Edward Thirlby as Amos Bloodgood was a great success; Mr William Pringle was an amusing George Fisher; Mr Arthur Claremont an admirable Frank Perry; and Mr Stanley Bell an artistic Ernest Morrison. Miss Augustus Dewsnap was a delightful Mrs Bloodgood; Miss Marie Clayton a charming Eva; and the parts of Annie and Lulu were well rendered by Miss Bertha Payne and Miss Lottie Maude.

IPSWICH.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. G. Fisk.—Mr Arthur Shirley's sensational production The Grip of Iron has been staged here during the week, and been well received. Mr Fred Powell's Simonet was a strong and vigorous bit of acting, while Lorentz De Ribas received effective rendering from Mr Charles Grant. Messrs Harry Agar-Lyons, John Britain, and Andrew Liston were each well suited to their parts, and Mr George Denham as Blanchard, the hero, was satisfactory. Miss Hilda Baynton and Miss Nellie Grant also rendered adequate assistance to the cast.

IPSWICH HIPPODROME.—The new turns introduced on Monday evening at the Woodbridge-road place of entertainment included the following:—Tom and Marie Motramo, experts on musical instruments; Fred Curran, vocalist; the Warlocks, patter artists; Beatrice Bonny, comedienne; Beatty and Blanche, a pair of pleasing singers; and the Driscoll and Beattie Combination, whose drollery was applauded in a skit entitled Major M'Phee, M.P.

JARROW.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Secretary, Mr William Y. Oakes.—Mr James Stillwell's company is here in The Queen of the Night. Mr A. C. Campbell gives a manly portrayal of Frank Cavendish; Mr James Stillwell submits a powerful rendering of Philip Stoneleigh; Mr Thorpe-Tracey is responsible for a good character sketch of Old Briskett; Mr Edgar Morgan is droll as Adolphus Briskett, his singing and funny jokes establishing him a favourite; Miss Tracey is most effective in the part of Dick; and Miss V. St. Lawrence is powerful as Paulina. Miss Barnett makes a satisfactory Maude Sylvester; Miss Marie Moon is quite at home as Mrs Adelaide Briskett; and Miss Pollie Denville is well placed as Kitty White.

KENDAL.

ST. GEORGE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr R. F. Chorley; Manager, Mr J. W. Butler.—Mr Norman Macowan's company had a most successful three nights last week-end with Monsieur Beaucaire. An excellent company includes Mr N. Macowan in the title-rôle, Mr H. Cornish as Major Molyneux, and Mr T. S. Willison as the Duke of Winterset. As Lady Mary Carlis'e Miss Violet Sterne was ladylike and more than praiseworthy. An enthusiastic audience gave Mr Albert Chevalier a hearty welcome here on Monday, when he was ably supported by Miss Flossie Behrens, whistling soloist; Miss Tresillian Davy, soprano; and Mr A. H. West, accompanist. Mr J. H. Morton's company, in the dramatic opera The Rajah of Ranjapore, was announced for Thursday.

KETTERING.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Payne.—This week Mr and Mrs Charles Clifford's company is here with On Circumstantial Evidence. Mr Gordon M'Leod is a capital Jack Ogilvy, and Miss Maud Camfield gives an excellent performance as Violet Ogilvy. Miss Madge Trevelyan as Mary Brandon and Miss Madge Hastings as Polly Smithers give very pleasing renderings of the characters.

KEIGHLEY.

QUEEN'S THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Business Manager, Mr Frank Barnes.—Mr E. Lockwood's company, in La Poupée, received a hearty welcome on Monday. Hilarius has an excellent exponent in Mr Arthur Reynolds; Mr T. A. Shale gives a meritorious impersonation of Lancelot; Miss Midge Clark affords much enjoyment by her artistic acting and singing as Alesia; Mr Eliot Skinner is a great favourite as Father Maxime, his "Jovial Monk" song being well rendered; Balthazar has capital treatment from Mr Walter H. Page; Mr Fred Walsh scores as the Baron; and Mr Chas. M'Lagan is successful as Loremois. Miss Lillie Leigh is thoroughly at home as Madame Hilarius, and Miss Florence Shaw ably represents Henri. A fine chorus and increased orchestra lend additional pleasure to the evening's entertainment.

LANCASTER.

ATHENÆUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Hy. Wilkinson.—Mr J. Leicester Jackson and Miss Blanche St. Alban's company in Her One Great Sin and The Penalty of Crime occupies the boards this week. The former piece was presented to a good house on Monday. Miss Florence Creagh played the part of Grace Warhurst most effectively; Mr Fredrick Loyd was responsible for a capital portrayal of Thornhill; and Mr Sam Arthur as Reuben, Mr F. Wright as Benton, and Miss Maudie Lambert as Little Gracie all did well. The comic element is introduced by Mr Fred Hodson as Jerry Jumble and Mr C. E. Lambert as Dan Hundle.

LEEDS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr Fredk. Vincent.—Mr Lewis Waller's company is here with the romantic comedy Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner, and Monday's performance was thoroughly enjoyed. Mr Thomas Kingston is to be complimented on a thoroughly convincing portrayal of Captain Peyton. Miss Elizabeth is played in captivating manner by Miss Gertrude Burnett, charm and grace being the keynote of her performance. The chicken-hearted Major Colden is well represented by Mr Hilliard Vox; Mr Geo. Mallet and Miss Alys Rees are seen to advantage in the light comedy parts of Mr Valentine and Mistress Williams; and the manservant Andrews has a capable exponent in Mr J. Attwood.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr R. Ernest Liston.—There is no more popular attraction here than Shirley and Landeck's strong military drama Tommy Atkins, and this week it is again proving a great attraction. The company is a strong one, and includes the capable Mr Frederick Ross as the hero, Harold Wilson, and Miss Lola Patey in a charming portrayal of Ruth Raymond. Mr George C. Doughty and Mr Reginald Holmes help the play along by capital work as the two Captains. Mr J. Nolan is equally good in the part of Sergeant Molloy, whilst other characters are well presented by Miss Florrie Vickers, Miss Marie Fontaine, and Miss Ethel Tinsley.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General Manager, Mr C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr Chas. Bush.—At this popular suburban house we are favoured with a return visit of the fascinating Eastern play The Darling of the Gods, presented by Mr Tree's powerful company. The cast is much the same as on the last visit, except the title-rôle, which is enacted with distinction by Miss Frances Dillon. Mr Robert Pateman as Zakkuri depicts this character in masterly style. Mr Douglas Gerrard is successful in the portrayal of Kara, and the numerous subsidiary parts are all capably handled. The staging and dressing of the piece are on an elaborate scale.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr T. Gerald Morton.—An exceedingly fine programme is in evidence here, a prominent turn being that of the Chinese mystifier Chung Ling Soo, who brings a much-improved show. Newhouse and Ward, comedy trick cyclists, are at the bottom of the bill, and submit expert and humorous business. There is also Phil Ray, a popular eccentric comedian, who is always entertaining. Charles F. Johnson, a coloured artiste, is great in coon song and dance; Leo Tell's mimicry of animals and instruments is proving successful; and those expert xylophone artistes Baker and Balfe also find much favour. The Two Graces appear in song and dance; clever acrobatic and speciality dancing by the Stella Troupe is a feature, and we are further entertained by Harry Bickley, eccentric comedian, and Edie King, song and dance artiste.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr Thos. Barrasford; General Managers, Mr Edgar O. Waller and Mr Charles Weldon.—Yukio Tani, the sturdy Japanese wrestler, is again a great attraction here, and many exciting encounters have been witnessed. Sam Elton evokes great hilarity with his novel acrobatic speciality. Lottie Siegenberg makes a welcome return with her clever vocal sketch. An interesting dramatic sketch by Grahame and Harrington arouses the greatest enthusiasm, and some fine acrobatic work is done by the Three Dagmars, and also by Steel and Laing. Ernie Myers is a popular eccentric. D. W. Watson, vocalist and cornet solist, finds much favour, and Lily Lonsdale, soprano, is also filling a successful engagement.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr F. W. Wood; General Manager, Mr J. C. Whiteman; Acting Manager, Mr S. Jones.—Those accomplished entertainers Bella and Bijou are staying on here a second week, and continue to be great favourites. A pair of clever knockabouts, the New Macs, also do a good turn; an expert card-manipulator and magician appears in Sydney Lee; imitations and impersonations are cleverly done by Eno; and the remainder of an entertaining programme is in the hands of the Sisters Dorrell, duettists and dancers; the Two Falcons, in a comedy acrobatic show; and Fred Terry, a popular comedian.

LEICESTER.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr C. D. Leigh.—The Duchess of Dantzic, presented by Mr George Dance's clever company, met with a particularly hearty reception here on Monday. The staging and dressing are conspicuous features, and the performance all-round is one of exceptional merit. Mr Albert Chapman gives a clever exposition of the part of Lefebvre, and Mr Frederick Moyes as Napoleon is to be heartily congratulated on the excellent impression he creates. Mr Colin Mackay is very amusing as Papillon, and Mr Thomas C. Maxwell is also well placed as Vicomte De Bethune. Miss Rita Presano makes a conspicuous success in the rôle of Catherine. Miss Alice Coverick is capital as Renee De Saint Mezard. There are a full chorus and orchestra, under the direction of Mr B. J. Paterson. Mr F. Draco is the business-manager for the company.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr John H. Clarke.—A large house here on Monday expressed in a hearty manner their appreciation of the efforts of Mr Frederick Melville's company in the drama Between Two Women. Like all Mr Melville's productions, the mounting and staging leave nothing whatever to be desired. Mr Albert Ward, who is possessed of high histrionic abilities, gives a most effective performance of the Rev. Philip Carton; Miss Morita Valdar is a thorough success as Carmen De Savereux; Mr Sidney Price is excellent as the Earl of Millard; and as Harry Millard Mr Harry Marlow is very good. Mr Fred Morgan displays to the full his abilities as James Durwood. Mr Tubby Edlin creates much laughter as Jack Pringle, and as Polly Pop Miss Sybil Hammersley does well. Miss Alice Bowes as a blind boy deserves the greatest praise. Miss Marie Robson makes a capital Violet Thornton.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal.—Miss Marie Loftus is again paying a return visit here. This gifted and versatile burlesque actress has a splendid reception, her pantomime skit bringing out her abilities in a remarkable manner. No more enjoyable juggling turn has been seen in Leicester than that given by W. C. Fields. Fred Harcourt has always something fresh in his conjuring "show," and the deft way in which he goes through his performance astounds everybody. Miss Minnie Cunningham, the Irish light comedienne, gives her songs in a vivacious style, which is greatly admired. Mdlle. Marvelle's macaws and cockatoos are put through a most enjoyable performance, the same remark applying to Henri Abdy's performing dogs. Both turns show the perfection of training. Miss Lilian Warren causes great delight with her beautifully illustrated song. Fred Lincoln, comedian, keeps the audience on the best of terms. Nat Travers, coster comedian, scores his usual success, and Miss Katie Weston is well received.

LICHFIELD.

ST JAMES'S HALL.—Miss Inez Howard's company appeared here on Monday in The Prodigal Parson. Mr H. B. Wilson as the Rev. Tom Godley played with effect the part of the Prodigal Parson. Mr Henry Parr was a capable heavy man; Mr George Wallace a characteristic Ben Jaggins; and Miss Eva Trevenna an attractive and capable Fern Godley, the much-tried wife of the parson. A striking feature was the clever acting of Little Minnie May as the blind child.

LEIGH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Dewhurst.—Messrs Hill, Barry, and Lang, burlesque comedians, who head the bill this week, give an amusing knockabout turn; Miss Lilian Neville, vocalist, is quite a success; Mr Bob Stephenson, Irish comedian, is well received; Shavo, expert comedy juggler, does some clever tricks; Miss Edie Endon, acrobatic dancer, contributes some pretty dances; the Alskarno Trio, tumblers and acrobats, give a meritorious performance; the Esdale Brothers, comedians and dancers, are greatly appreciated; and Mr Chris Franklin, ventriloquist, is greatly applauded.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. H. Dunlop.—The company engaged this week includes Miss Rose Budd, ballad vocalist, whose singing is greatly appreciated; Mr Jim Hegarty, the whistling coon, who is well received; the Ringlands, in their comedy motor and cycle act; Miss Minnie Nicholes, serio and dancer; Messrs Ayesha and Azra Rameses, very good in their illustrations of Egyptian living pictures; Mr Bill Bailey, comedian; and the Schaffers, Herculean gladiatorial wonders, in a clever performance.

LIMERICK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Robert Fogerty.—Mr Gordon Starkey's successful company is here this week in A Message from Mars. The delightful interpretation of Horace Parker by Mr Cyril Austen-Lee deserved the enthusiastic applause meted out to him. Mr Percy Tyler acted the somewhat difficult rôle of the Tramp effectively, and as Arthur Dicey Mr Alan Birch deserves praise. Mr G. R. Peach scored as Dr. Chapman, and Mr Douglas Stuart proved a capable Astronomer Vivian. Mr William Lockhart was a capital Messenger from Mars, and Mr Wentworth made a first-class policeman. Mr Frank Fortnum was good as Sir Ronald Wright, and as Joe the coster Mr Sam Haines made a decided hit. Miss Rosetta M'Laren was a delightful Miss Parker, and Mrs Clarence had a prepossessing exponent in Miss Violet Auberee. Miss Maud Shortland was a clever and chic Bella, and as Miss Minnie Templars was seen a pretty and promising artiste in Miss Edith Cuthbert.

LIVERPOOL.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Lawrence.—Liverpool theatregoers have thoroughly endorsed the opinion of London playgoers in regard to The Cingalee; or, Sunny Ceylon, which is being presented here this week by a company organised by Mr George Edwardes. The encores demanded from the principal artistes have quite unduly prolonged the pleasing entertainment. Mr Frank Danby as Chambhuddy Ram is largely responsible for the humour of the piece, and he proves a host in himself. Mr Rutland Barrington appears in the rôle of Boobhamba, and his dry humour is enormously successful. Mr Harold Thorley capably portrays Harry Vereker; Mr W. J. Manning is quaintly whimsical as Sir Peter Loftus; and Mr Jack Cannot is a good Bobby Warren. Miss Florence Smithson is a charming Nanoya; Miss Lydia Nervil sings with excellent taste; and Miss Eva Sandford is a pleasing singer and dancer. Particularly funny is the representation of monkeys given by Mr Danby and Miss Sandford. Mr Harold Vicars is specially to be congratulated as musical director.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Licensee, Mr J. G. Howard; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Montgomery, jun.—The attraction here is Mrs F. G. Kimberley's melodrama, A Sister's Sin, which is being performed in a most acceptable manner by Mr and Mrs Kimberley's company. Prominent amongst the characters are those of the revengeful and the fallen gipsy, respectively sustained by Miss Clara Santley and Miss Grace Jones. Miss Cora Linda gives a powerful interpretation of Minnie Hastings, and Miss Edie Macklin and Miss Lillian Warren are good as the rivals, their songs being a feature. Mr Raymond Thomas is a capital George Oakley, and Mr A. Parker Royston cleverly portrays Harold Raymond.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Coles.—The programme this week is topped by Joe Elvin and company, in an amusing sketch entitled The Hansom Cabby, which causes roars of laughter. Mr Elvin makes a typical cabman. Ike Scott and Son give another laughable turn. The Original Vivians appear in a musical travesty entitled "Life's Reverie"—a clever production. Gus Harris is always a favourite here; Harry Leybourne, described as the double-voiced society entertainer, is very laughable; Brothers Donar are smart acrobats; Lil Gorman is a pretty song and dance artiste; and Professor Hulbert's ventriloquial turn is good. The cake-walk competitions are a decided draw on Tuesdays and Fridays.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Simmons.—An Actor's Romance, from the pen of Mr Theodore Kremer, the author of The Fatal Wedding, is proving most popular here, the scenes depicted being thoroughly relished by those who fill the auditorium at each performance by the company organised by Mr Cecil Barth. The chief sensation is that provided by Miss Florence Hastings, the adventuress, portrayed by Miss Beatrice Bevan, discharging a revolver twice from a box at the hero, Harold Davenport, a part played with notable success by Mr Guy Hastings. As might be imagined, the scene creates intense excitement. The other members of the company satisfactorily fill the parts allotted to them, and the piece is carefully staged.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr Fred Granville.—A thrilling drama entitled The King of Thieves, written by M'Leod Loader, is holding sway here, the reception accorded the piece on this, its first production in Liverpool, testifying to its good qualities. Exciting episodes and strong dramatic incidents are provided in plenty, whilst there is also an abundance of excellent humour. Mr Jack Haddon gives a most successful rendition of the many-sided character of James Galston, the "King of Thieves;" and Mr John Cecil as Harry Travers, a young fireman, has deservedly won great favour; Mr Harry Liddle is a notable Joe Ricketts; and the remaining characters are in capable hands, while the staging of the drama is on an elaborate scale.

EMPIRE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss; Acting-Manager, Mr T. A. Cook.—Mr Horace Goldin, the remarkable illusionist, heads the bill for a second week, but this is not surprising when one considers the enthusiasm which has been aroused by the mystifying performances. Much merriment is occasioned by the pantomimic sketch, An Artist's Studio, presented by the Werner-Amoros Troupe; the noted comedian, Edwin Boyde, offers new items as well as old favourites; Jerry Hart and Beatrice Leo are successful in the song-scena, "Follow the Crowd on Sunday;" and other artistes are Rosie Bartlett, comedienne and burlesque actress; Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian; Fred Poplar, comedian; Cullen and Carthy, comedians, vocalists, and dancers, assisted by Cluly, the smallest of comedians; Kitty Wager, comedienne; Phillips and Terry, in "The Revolt of Man;" and Charles Baron, with his burlesque lions.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas are the premier entertainers this week, and their duologue, entitled "Her Birthday," is most amusing. Two excellent vocal numbers are introduced. Mr J. L. Shine is seen to advantage in Hogmany, which proves most popular; Vansart, a man with a powerful finger-grip, performs some wonderful feats; the acrobatic entertainment by the Gargans is neat and clever; the pantomimic absurdity Our Lodger, submitted by Johnny Alexander and company is followed with considerable merriment; Marie Gibeon renders pleasing soprano songs; the Brothers Wragg are clever gymnasts; Charles R. Whittle is a versatile comedian; and the comedy act A Little Bit of This and a Little Bit of That, staged by Avon and Orest, finds much favour. The animated pictures appear to be always welcome here.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr F. O'Toole.—The greatest enthusiasm has been created here this week by the appearance of Bugler Dunne, who, in a sketch entitled Defending the Flag plays his original part of Sergeant Mike Casey. Miss Queena Barnes's latest success "Good-bye, my Lady-love," is a particularly pleasing feature, and others contributing are Miss Blanche Ellen, low comedy artiste; Francis and Frances, in the funny comedy A Misunderstanding; Holger, American paper-tearing novelty; Sisters Isabelle, character vocalists and cake-walkers; the Alyeens, in "With the Broker's Man;" Herman, a wire expert; Emsy Leycester, comedienne and dancer; and Arthur Allen, character comedian.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr Edwin W. Smith.—After a tour of the world, Atlas and Miss Vulcana, the society athletes, are here this week, and the classic poses of the lady have been flatteringly received; Curtis and Vanity, described as the originators of the cake-walk in England, provide an excellent turn; the Sisters Terry (Bella and Minnie) are duettists and mimics of ability; and Jimmy Shields is notable as a one-legged dancer. E. J. Stirling contributes capital songs and dances; and Arthur Stacey also accompanies his vocal efforts with Terpsichorean exercises. The up-to-date Bioscope pictures continue to be attractive.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr J. Kiernan.—The Four M.P.'s (the Musical Palmers) are paying a most welcome return visit, and their speciality entitled The Officers' Rehearsal has been received with the utmost appreciation. Therein are introduced a fantasia for three coachhorns, a pretty peal of handbells, a selection on their silver quartet, and a realistic imitation of Sousa and his band, Miss Daisy Palmer being capital as the noted bandmaster. Mdlle. Haydee introduces with great success the magical electric mannikin theatre; the Albano Troupe offer a good musical act; and acceptable turns are given by Beatie Foster, descriptive vocalist; Billy Richardson, stump orator; Daisy Almer, serio and dancer; and Frank Tyrrell.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr M. Montgomery.—The most boisterous laughter is being created each evening by the sketch entitled A Quiet Night, which is presented by Will Onda and company. Another engagement which gives complete satisfaction is that of Jimson's circus, which embraces very clever and funny animals. The cake-walk competitions prove immensely popular. Read and Wright are talented top-boot dancers; the Walkers present an entertaining comedy act; Miss Sara Marchani is a pleasing contralto, and Frank Mulvan a really "swell comique."

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr James Kiernan.—The principal attraction here is the Continental novelty Aga, the suspended maiden, which performance has completely mystified large audiences. A. G. Spry is aptly termed "the essence of dry, unconcerned comedy"; Smith and Johnson, coloured duettists, prove highly entertaining in their latest hit "The Indian and the Coon"; and Satsuma is a noted Japanese wonder-worker. Violet and Harry Padley are clever comedy acrobats and expert dancers; and others contributing to the programme are Andy Kerr, comedian, raconteur, and dancer; and Chris Masters, character vocalist.

LLANDUDNO.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr R. Bellis; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Payne.—The first three nights of the week the theatre was occupied by Mr Norman Macowan's company in Monsieur Beaucaire. Mr Macowen undertakes the title-rôle, and his work throughout is warmly applauded. Mr F. Stuart Wilson gives a capital rendering of the Duke of Winterest. Mr Herbert Cornish as Major Molyneaux is excellently played. Mr P. Ramsey Forman as the Bully Captain Badger is good. Mr H. A. Young gives a creditable impersonation of Beau Nash. Miss Violet Sterne as the haughty Lady Mary Carlisle is admirable, and Millie Hamer as Luck Rellerton is worthy of high commendation. The drama is well staged.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr C. A. Hutton.—Mr Tom B. Davis's company is here this week in The Medal and the Maid. Miss Rita Leonhardt does sound work as Maria Sunningdale. Miss Maude Lake gives an excellent impersonation of Josephine. Miss Edith Blanch is well placed as Mrs Habbicombe; and Miss Lillie Leroy scores as Elsie Habbicombe. Mr Tom Graves as Levanter is commendable; and Mr Tom Fancourt as Simon Pentweasle brings down the house, his work being worthy of the highest praise. The chorus is good and the opera carefully staged.

LONDONDERRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr W. Payne Seddon.—Mr Henry Johnston's company is playing The Houp-La Girl here this week. As Archibald Lambton Mr Launcelot Usher is excellent; Mr Eric Dalvere is good as Davenport; and Mr Thomas Wyndham makes a capital Prince. Miss Margaret Wilson is a dainty La Belle Rosiere. Mr Jack Durant plays Frank Saville very well. The other artistes all fill their parts capably.

LONG EATON.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Mr Howell Webb's company in the musical comedy-drama, The Convent Bell, has possession of the house this week, and patronage has been quite cheering to all concerned. There is a sprinkling of musical numbers by Miss May M'Kenzie, Mr Stanley Carlton, Mr Howell Webb, and Mr Jack M'Kenzie. Generally speaking there is plenty of variety and exciting incidents, making a popular entertainment.

LONGTON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. S. Howard.—The Master Criminal is being presented here by Mr Stanley Hope's company. As Telford Lestage Mr Robert Forsyth gives an excellent exposition; Mr Herbert Skardon as Phillip Manners is good; Mr Stanley Hope as James Sharples is telling; and the Ben Beauday of Mr Julius Wright is carefully played. Miss Enid Edoni as Mabel Manners is effectively emotional. As Mary Murphy Miss Bessie Armytage is most acceptable. The comedy is in good hands, both Miss Mollie Robertson as Peggy Perks, and Mr Tod Squires as Tommy Dale, winning approbation; Miss Nellie Thearle's Cecile is a well-thought-out part; and Little Miss Marjorie Lawrence as Winifred Manners wins hearty applause.

LOWESTOFT.

MARINA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Ernest A. Smith.—A welcome return visit is made by Mr Edward Marris and company this week in The Dandy Doctor. Miss Florence Smithers (Jane, the "general"), Mr James Danvers (Colonel Pendred), Mr E. Marris (Brown, the millionaire), and Miss Lizzie Primmer (Ivy Pendred) are particularly good in their respective parts, and are warmly received. The cast also includes Messrs Walter Nugent and W. N. Gilmore, the Dandy Belles, speciality dancers; and Mr Ben Rowe and Miss Holder, in an American cake-walk.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr Pearce Butler.—The bill this week includes Neiman, ventriloquist; Ethel Loftus, vocalist; Brothers Lloddge, acrobats; Charles Morritt, illusionist; Charlene, juggler; and Minnie Duncan and Arthur Godfrey.

MAIDSTONE.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Manager, Mr Beslee.—Sunday, as played here this week by Messrs Louis Calvert and Herbert Ross's company, proves very popular. Miss Marie Polini plays with great effect in the title-rôle; Miss Maude Henderson makes an excellent Mrs Naresby; and Miss Dorothy Gordon depicts the nun's part appropriately. Mr Herbert Ross scores as Colonel Brinthorpe; Mr Arthur Willoughby as Tom Oxley does well; and the other characters are all in good hands.

MANCHESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr Edmondstone Shirra.—The attraction here this week is the appearance of Miss Lena Ashwell and a strong company in Marguerite, Michael Morton's adaptation of the French play La Montansier. The setting of this highly interesting piece is exceedingly picturesque, and the air of the period is well preserved throughout. Miss Lena Ashwell figures to advantage in the title-rôle, and she is admirably supported by Mr Frank Mills as Neuville and Mr Charles Groves as St. Phar. Miss Sydney Fairbrother gives a clever and telling delineation of Mdlle. Senedar; Mr Thomas Holding also is very good in the part of Philippe De Pommeuse; and other good parts are well played by Mr L. Rice Dunrobin, Mr H. Cusack, Mr H. Cotsford, Mr Charles A. Doran, Miss Marie Hudspeth, and Miss Beryl Mercer. A nice dance occurs in the second act, which takes place in the Green Room of Marguerite's theatre.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr George Lee.—A large audience on Monday welcomed the appearance at this theatre of Arthur W. Pinero's successful play Letty, presented by a company under the direction of Mr Charles Frohman. It is a most entertaining play full of distinct characters, well arranged in respect of plot, and informed with a caustic wisdom which nicely counterbalances the effect of its sentimentality. The sentimental side of the story, however is for a long time its chief attraction, and it is most convincingly presented by Mr H. B. Irving as Letchmere and Miss Irene Vanbrugh as Letty, both doing exceedingly well in trying scenes. A secondary interest of a similar kind is very prettily kept going by Miss May Blayney as Mrs Ivor Crosble. Miss Eleanor Souray has a prominent comedy part as the shop girl Hilda Cunning, and her rendering is certainly one of the good things of the evening; while Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson as Marion Allardyce supplies a very earnest and satisfactory foil. Much good comedy is contributed also by Mr Scott Craven as the unspeakable Bernard Mandeville, and by Messrs Leslie Victor, Charles Troode, and Tom Heslewood in minor parts. The programme is in every way a great success.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Thorburn.—Why Smith Left Home is the fare provided here this week, and this most diverting farce proved very much to the taste of a tolerably large audience on Monday night. Mr Horace Lingard as John Smith gives a capital comedy performance of a part not too easy to depict; Miss Hilda Stericker playing Mrs John Smith extremely well. Mr Herbert Dickeson and Miss Dorcas Corsble both figure to advantage as General and Mrs Billetdoux respectively; Miss Marie Vere makes a charming Julia, the attractive housemaid who plays a prominent part in the "why" Smith left home; Miss Constance Stephens gives a clever rendering of Lavinia; and as Count Von Guggenheim Mr Robert Grey causes considerable amusement. Others well worthy of mention are Miss Rue Daryll, Miss Ethel Russell, Mr Joseph Hudson, and Mr Henry Grey.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company are seen to advantage here this week in a vigorous and interesting drama entitled A Woman's Pluck. Mr James Willard, the author, sustains the part of Darrell, an adventurer, with distinct success, Mr Edward Ashby and Miss Jessie Yatman depicting excellently the heroic rôles. From a long and varied cast Mr Chas. P. Wentworth, Mr J. P. Dryden, Mr Cecil Raymond, Miss East Robertson, and Miss Tina Shaw may be singled out for special praise, not forgetting the comic contributions of Mr Harry Emerson and Miss Agnese D'Aragen. The scenery is very pretty, especially the Rose Garden in act one.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A capital programme, as usual, is provided here this week, as may be inferred from the presence of the following accomplished artistes:—Arthur Gilbert, vocal comedian; the Lynchs, rifle experts; Mr and Mrs Clifford Bronte in a farcical act; Cliff and Kean, comedians and dancers; Larry Lewis, a rising comedian; Pollo Jerome's troupe of lady gymnasts; the Akimotos Troupe of Japs, equilibrists and jugglers; Grace Compton, vocalist; Herbert Betts, comedian; and Burnetti, a clever quick-change character musician.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Mr Walter Melville's drama, A Disgrace to Her Sex, is the current attraction here, after a successful week at the Osborne Theatre.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Berry.—Messrs F. A. Scudamore and Arthur Richmond's company are here this week in an imaginative and sensational drama entitled The Beautiful Avenger. Miss Nannie Mead is conspicuously good in the dual-rôle of Vashti Volta and Victor Stanhope, and her efforts are very ably supplemented by Messrs Lionel Gillette and William Diamond as a couple of villains, and by Mr Algernon Syms, Miss Cissie Podmore, and Miss Mabel Scudamore as a trio of victims. Mr William Ames, Mr Fred Withers, and Miss Lilian Hawkins are capital in humorous parts. The play is well constructed, well staged, and well rendered throughout.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Heading an exceedingly good bill here this week are the celebrated Dayton Family, Risley and pedestal acrobats, whose performance is highly finished. Another excellent show is given by the Andos Troupe of Happy Little Japs, their feats of juggling, balancing, and wire-walking being really smart. Both turns are accorded well-merited applause. The Donatos, one-legged acrobats, are responsible for an exceptionally smart and amusing turn; Victor Newman is a first-rate character actor and mimic; Selby and Myers are capital in songs and patter, with particularly neat dancing added; and Craig, Rose, and Craig give a novel display on the trapeze and rings. Enjoyable items also are Clifton and Gibson, eccentric comedians, with plenty of laughter-making business; Carne Currie, in a refined comedy act, assisted by a remarkably clever dog; Ray and Miles, in a juggling absurdity; Dora Lyric, a pleasing comedienne; and "Barnum's Show Crossing a River," shown by the Hippodrome pictures.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—The distinctly amusing efforts of Charles Majilton's company of comedians in the sketch She Would be a Widow cause a constant ripple of laughter here this week and obtain a hearty round of applause when the curtain falls. The breezy style of B. Williams also meets with appreciation, and Maud Vera, a pretty young singer, achieves great success. Renson and Waite give an amusing patter and vocal act in a highly diverting manner; Andy Fagan contributes racy Irish character studies; and Lydia Dudley makes a hit with her song, "The smartest constable in the new female police." The Rosaire Boleros Troupe present a very clever laughter-provoking acrobatic performance; and a series of animated pictures complete.

TIVOLI.—Managing Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr Arthur B. Wilkes.—Will Evans, the well-known comedian, is here this week, and crowded houses are the rule. His songs and patter are highly amusing, especially that about "building a chicken house." Excellent turns also are Daisy James, a talented comedienne, whose songs are rendered in a most effective manner; Hughes and Elliott, vocalists and exceptionally neat buck and sand dancers; Ryder Slone, a capital comedian with good songs; and Dan Kennedy, the "Yankee Tourist," in songs and patter. Other items of interest are those of Martl and Julietta, pyramid and flying spar performers; Sisters Hula, duettists and dancers; Blanche Gerard, comedienne; and George Turner, comedian.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.—Rosina Castelli is here this week with her clever troupe of Chihuahua dogs of Mexico, and meets with a warm reception. Well received also is Jules Keller, the "human enigma," who executes some excellent sand and other dances, using his hands instead of his feet. The Seabornes perform some clever balancing feats; Oliver Conroy is an amusing comedian; Warden Reed and Miss Glenny are seen to advantage in a capital duologue, Married or Photographed; Joe Graham is responsible for a ventriloquial act; and Kavados juggles with cannon-balls in a most surprising fashion. The Warlocks, Florrie Lorimer, and Harry Roit figure in the programme, but on the night of our visit did not appear. Good turns, however, were submitted by a pleasing Tyrolean singer and dancer and a capital tramp comedian, whose patter and business at the piano was much appreciated. A series of animated pictures complete the entertainment.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—The sensation this week at this popular hall is provided by Electro, the mystery, an American novelty which is at once startling and unique. It is a surprising performance of a life-size figure apparently worked by electric wires. Other capital items on the programme are De Marce's trained ponies, dogs, and monkeys; Elsie Roby, the comedienne-pianist, in her "slavey" sketch; Lady Mansel's clever juveniles; Dan Crawley, comedian; Professor Dunning, ventriloquist; Marba and Verity, eccentric acrobats; Frank Seeley, comedian; Kahn and Kahn, magical and second sight artistes; the Dandies, society entertainers; Sisters Wingrove, duettists and dancers; and Lillian Bishop, male impersonator and mimic. The programme is agreeably completed by an orchestral selection and a series of Palace pictures.

ARDWICK EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Will Collins.—Full houses continue here at every performance, and, as usual, the programme is full of good things. Leonard Barry and company cause screams of laughter in a first-rate item, The Moochers' Walk; Nelson Hardy's ventriloquial impersonations of music hall stars are excellently done; the capital fooling of Billy Howard and the graceful contortions of Kathezra, introduced in their sketch, The Happy Tramp, meet with a big reception. Well received also are the Wartenberg Brothers, who go through a novel, clever, and original double foot musical juggling act in a decidedly neat manner. The Morton Trio are heard to advantage in harmonious singing, and create some amusement with their eccentric ways, and vastly entertaining are the M'Connell Trio in a vocal medley-sketch, 4 a.m. Clarice Netta is a pleasing ballad vocalist, Elly Adair dances very cleverly, and C. Post Mason, the American baritone, sings well. The programme is satisfactorily completed by some interesting pictures shown by the American Bioscope, including "Mrs Brown Off for the Holidays," one of the funniest films yet seen in Manchester.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Will Smithson.—Merthyr playgoers are this week provided with a rich musical treat by the engagement of Mr George Edwardes' company, in the popular musical comedy San Toy, produced under the direction of Mr J. A. E. Malone. The name part is in every way adequately sustained by Miss Don Harradine, who looks charming, acts with care and discretion, and sings with taste and sweetness; while Mr Edmund Sherras is a dashing representative of Captain Bobby Preston, his rendering of the stirring "Sons of the Motherland" being particularly enjoyable. The not very exacting rôle of Poppy is delightfully filled by Miss Mabel Lavelle; the maid, Dudley, being impersonated with refreshing vivacity and go by Miss Florence Arnold. Mr Alfred W. Clark is eminently successful as Yen How; while the six little wives are excellently presented by Misses Lydia Naylor, Nancy Duncan, Margaret Evans, Ethel Twitchin, Blanche Hounsell, and B. Tennyson. Very funny is the performance of Li, contributed by Mr Alfred Beers, who works exceedingly hard throughout with thoroughly satisfactory results. Mr C. J. Williams gives a decidedly humorous portrayal of Sir Bingo Preston. Mr Walter S. Wright's easy and natural manner is of material assistance in the part of Lieutenant Henry Tucker, that of Miss Rose Tucker being chiefly noticeable for the exceedingly graceful pas seul introduced by Miss Beatrice Gradella. The remaining principal parts are suitably undertaken by Mr Adam Gordon as Sing Hi, Mr Cliffe Davies as the Emperor, Mr Clinton Reynald as Fo Hop, and Miss Beatrice Vaenor as Ko Fan, Messrs Harry Smith, Whyte Wentworth, James Davies, and H. Arthur completing the cast. The chorus and augmented orchestra do their work admirably.

MARGATE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. Macknight; Business-Manager, Mr Charles E. Hardy.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company is here this week with the play Alone in London. Mr Henry George does well as John Biddlecombe, and Miss Madge Devereux plays with success as Annie Meadows, afterwards Nan, the flower girl. Miss Ada Tilley is seen to advantage as Gipsy Tom, subsequently known as Tom Chickweed. Mr Shephen Ewart is effective as Richard Redcliffe, playing the adventurer and swell mobsman admirably. A capital impersonation is Mr J. W. Wilkinson's Benevolent Jenkins. The rôle of Liz Jenkinson is forcefully played by Miss Ada Elliston, and Mr Lonnen Meadows is seen to advantage as Charley Johnson. Mr Stafford Smith as Mr Burnaby and Mr Herbert Light as Walter capably fill these parts, and as the heiress, Ruth Clinton, Miss Lily Lewis acts with much charm of manner.

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr C. F. Bawtree.—On Monday and Tuesday evenings Mr Mouillot's chief company appeared here with The Geisha, and presented this always welcome musical play with the excellence which is characteristic of the productions associated with Mr Mouillot's name. Miss Aimée De Leska makes a charming O Mimosa San. Miss Violet Kenyon gives a finished performance as the French girl, Juliette Diamante, whilst Miss Florrie Saunders does well as Molly Seymour. Miss Aubery Ashton is an excellent Lady Constance, and the other female characters are well placed. Mr Arthur Cartwright makes a good bid for popularity as Reginald Fairfax; Mr Edward Carlton's impersonation of Wun-Hi is quaint, and he figuratively brings the house down with his songs and dances and his eccentric acting of the part; and Mr Lionel Braham's commanding presence adds greatly to his successful portrayal of the rôle of Marquis Imari. The favourite songs are effectively sung, and have been redemanded, and the chorus is heard to advantage in the concerted numbers. On Wednesday the same company played The Greek Slave, and for the remainder of the week The Belle of New York figured in the bill.

HALL-BY-THE-SEA.—Sole Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr Chas. Evans.—Some good turns have been booked here for the current week. The Sisters Nellson, duettists and dancers, give an interesting show; Lincoln and Warren, acrobatic comedy cyclists, are smart; and Harry Maxam, comedian, sings some amusing songs; Walker and May, variety vocalists and cake walkers, delight the audience; and Miss Sybil Montague sings popular ballads pleasingly. The Five Bon-Bons play some merry pranks in their scene, Hot Time for One, which they are repeating this week; and Payne's Bio-Photoscope, which appears to be a fixture, continues to exhibit interesting series of pictures.

MEXBOROUGH.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. H. Melton.—Miss Winifred Maude's company is playing here this week in Sins of a City. Mr Royce Carlton gives an earnest rendering of Sandy M'Donald; the Ralph Backwater of Mr N. A. Overton is a well-sustained effort; Mr J. W. Baxter in the dual-rôle of Joe and Jasper Woodleigh displays exceptional ability; Mr Victor Du Cane is well placed as the Jew Isaac Levi; Mr Ivan Gore scores as Donald M'Ivor; Miss Winifred Maude treats the character of Seaweed with intelligence; Miss Marie Lyons performs skilfully in the rôle of Lesbia; Miss Eva Reed invests the part of Midge with eccentricity and humour. The piece is exceedingly well staged.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Middlesbrough Theatres, Limited; Managing-Directors, Messrs Geo. and Charles Imeson.—The Edge of the Storm is being played here this week. The company is under the direction of Mr Leon M. Lion, and includes several old Teesside favourites. Mr Henry Renouf still sustains his reputation as an actor of considerable ability, and gives a masterly representation of Jim Poulett. Mr Leon M. Lion as Mootooswami is worthy of special mention, and the Szentes Istvan of Mr Arthur Whitehead is a decided success. Mr Alan Borthwick's Major De Trafford is good; Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay as Szentes Leta gives a capable rendering of her part; Miss Minima Renouf plays Sophia Stent with spirit; and Miss Maud M. Magrath as Mrs De Trafford does justice to her part.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Company, Limited; Licensee and Manager, Mr T. Hopcutt.—The New Barmaid is fulfilling a week's engagement here, under the direction of Mr Alexander Loftus. Mr Joseph B. Montague as Bertie White is the life and soul of the piece, and Mr Alexander Loftus appears with success as William White. Mr Harrison Brockbank does well as Captain Lovebury; Dora Heather is well sustained by Miss Madge Merry; and Miss Gwladys Elvie as Ethel Joy is responsible for an excellent impersonation. Some clever eccentric dancing is introduced by Mr Albert Weston, who is good as the proprietor of Owlett's club.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow.—At the Empire this week the Pantzer Brothers made a great hit with their clever acrobatic feats; Walton and Lester, "the world's worst wizards," are as funny as ever; the Three Prestons in The Lift man's Rite keep the house in a merry mood; the Eight Lancashire Lads sing some old favourites with fine effect; John Green Marx, described as the modern Hercules, does some astounding feats; Harry Bedford, comedian, receives hearty applause; and Victor Travers, comedian; Miss Cissie Reece, Harry Zetter, and the Bio-pictures make up a good programme.

OXFORD.—Lessee, Mr Wm. Peacock; Manager, Mr Wm. Ainsworth.—Stalg's motor racing in mid-air company tops the bill at the Oxford and is well received. The Brothers Artois in their comedy bar act are appreciated; Adrim and Oram give a good acrobatic turn; impersonations of Happy Attwood delight the audience; Harry Mansfield creates a favourable impression; and Harry Nelson, comedian; Gus Barra, comedian; Texas Hatie, tight-rope walker; and the Bioscope pictures add much to the success of the entertainment.

MIDDLETON.

PARDOE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr William Pardoe.—A capital performance is being given this week by Mr Hugh Osborne's company in The Sins of the Fathers. Miss Beryl Ravenswood plays Con with a happy conception of the demands made upon her, and is well supported by Messrs Max Coutts, Arthur Traill, Harry E. Thorpe, and others.

NUNEATON.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr William Greet's company is paying a return visit with The Lady Slavey, which is attracting large audiences, the rounds of applause indicating the appreciation of this excellent company's efforts. Mr Harry Walsh figures well as Major O'Neill; and the Misses Jean Van Dalle and Ethel Ashton score as Maude and Beatrice, and give some clever and pretty dances. In the title-rôle Miss Addie Lennard is quite in favour. Mr Allen Morris is seen to advantage as Vincent A. Evelyn, his songs meeting with due reward. As Roberts, a sheriff's officer, Mr Frank Sherlock is well suited, and, as usual, keeps the house in roars of laughter. Mr Walter T. Hybert is an extremely funny Lord Lavender; and Miss Millicent Marsden's impersonation of Flo Honeydew leaves no room for improvement. The chorus is a strong one, and is under the direction of Mr William Stephenson.

OPENING OF THE KING'S THEATRE, GLASGOW.

This sumptuous new playhouse, the latest addition to Glasgow's long list of places of amusement, was opened on Monday, Sept. 12, when Mr E. S. Willard and company appeared in The Cardinal. The new theatre is situated at the corner of Bath-street and Elmbank-street, and is about one hundred yards from Glasgow's fashionable thoroughfare, Sauchiehall-street. The site is an exceptionally good one, being convenient to the car routes through the city, and yet with the advantage of a quiet street for the handling of the cab traffic to the principal entrance, and the formation of queues at the doors of the popular parts of the house. The building is a notable addition to the city's many architectural successes, and the proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited, and the architect, Mr Frank Matcham, are equally to be congratulated on their latest achievement. With frontages to two streets, extra exits to a lane at one side, and a private passage behind the stage, separating the theatre from the next block of buildings, the King's is thus completely isolated, and the gain to the public and the artistes in the additional safety thus ensured is a noteworthy feature. There are extra exits from all parts, the stage being provided with two emergency exits to the private lane mentioned, in addition to the usual stage-door and scenery entrances. Among the special features of the new theatre may be mentioned the comfortable tip-up leather-covered seats allotted to the pit patrons ("the backbone of the theatre," as Mr F. W. Wyndham expressed it), which guarantees a seat to each playgoer, and renders the obnoxious packer-up a thing of the past. Luxurious lounges, crush-rooms, foyers, and cloak-rooms have been provided on each tier, the gallery not being forgotten; ladies' and gentlemen's cloak-rooms being furnished there also, on a somewhat less gorgeous scale naturally. It should be mentioned that the patent automatic tip-up seats in circle, stalls, and pit, as well as the the rich brocatelle and plush curtains and draperies throughout the house, were supplied by H. Lazarus and Son, of London. As the pit is priced at 1s., and the gallery at 6d., the occupants of these parts have been specially well cared for. As a full description of the theatre was given in our last issue we need only add that a handsome act-drop by Mr T. E. Ryan forms an essential part of the scheme of decoration, and that the other scenery is from the brush of Mr Thos. F. Dunn, resident scenic artist here. "I hope you will look after us in your new theatre," said Sir Henry Irving to Mr Wyndham some time ago, and this request has been kept in mind in the equipment of the dressing-rooms, which are comfortably furnished, heated by hot water, and lighted with electricity. Retiring-rooms are provided, and ample means of exit.

A Press view was given on Friday, the 9th, when Mr F. W. Wyndham piloted a group of pressmen through the building, and pointed out the new and novel features of the theatre. On Saturday a reception was given by the chairman and directors to 900 guests, including Lord Provost Sir John Ure Primrose, Bart., Provost Kirkwood of Govan, Provost Wilson of Pollokshaws, Mr M'Killop, M.P., Bailie Simons (chairman of Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.), and a representative party of Town Councillors and city merchants, with their respective ladies. After the National Anthem had been sung by Miss Jenny Taggart, and joined in by the audience, several songs were given in excellent taste by the same lady.

Bailie SIMONS, in a neat speech, welcomed the audience to the new theatre. He jocularly referred to the undoubted respectability of the locality they were in, surrounded as they were by six churches and only one public-house. Discussing the effect of playgoing on the morals, he declared himself an ardent playgoer since his first visit to the "geggies" on Glasgow Green many years ago, right up to the present, and failed to see any ill-effects produced thereby; in fact, his thoughts had more often been raised to higher flights by the acting of some of our famous histrions than by the discourses of eminent preachers, all the best of whom he had made a point of hearing.

The LORD PROVOST followed with a few well-chosen remarks on the recreative effect and exhilaration of literature, athletics, and the theatre, and the enhanced value of a Shakespearian play as presented on the stage, compared with the perusal in the study.

Mr F. W. WYNDHAM was then, somewhat unwillingly, induced to say something, and began by proclaiming his preference rather to produce six pantomimes than make one speech. He appealed for the support of the Glasgow public to their new venture, and hoped that the company would never experience the disgust of a friend of his who built a fine theatre in an English town which shall be nameless, and who at the end of a disastrous six months' season in a valedictory speech told his audience that if he had built his theatre on the Goodwin Sands he would have had more support from the shipwrecked sailors than he had got in that town.

On Monday evening the actual opening took place, and a huge audience gave an enthusiastic send-off to the new theatre. After the National Anthem Mr WYNDHAM gave a short speech of welcome to the audience, and thanked the Lord Provost of Glasgow (Sir John Ure Primrose, Bart.) and the Lord Provost of Edinburgh (Sir Robert Cranston) for their presence on the occasion. Mr Wyndham then read a number of congratulatory telegrams from well-wishers, including Mr Martin Harvey, Mr George Alexander, Mr J. L. Toole (whose name evoked a rousing cheer), Mr Beerbohm Tree (with a neat quotation from The Tempest), Mr George Edwardes (who hoped for a successful season at Christmas here with The Cingalee and The Duchess of Dantzic), and last, but not least, Sir Henry Irving, who expects to meet all his Glasgow friends at the King's on Nov. 14. The curtain then rose on The Cardinal, and Mr E. S. Willard's fine rendering of the proud head of the Medicis was followed with much interest. It was from first to last a splendid performance, and the most striking part in which Mr Willard has yet been seen here. Mr A. S. Homewood gave a spirited touch to the younger Medici, and Miss Maud Hoffman was charming in the earlier scenes and tragic in the later as Filiberta. Mrs Russ Whytal as Clariela De Medici gave a clever rendering. The Chigi of Mr Charles H. Fenton was a really admirable piece of acting, and as the rugged Strozzi Mr William Sauter ably acted a trying part. Mr Ulick Burke as the weird bellringer, Miss Edith H. Tombes as the artful Honoria, and Mr Walter Edmunds as Baglioni, the chief magistrate, were all of much value to the cast. Mr H. Cane as a jovial English abbot and Mr John W. Lawrence as an usher were also worthy of mention. At the conclusion of the performance, Mr WILLARD, in a few words, expressed his pleasure at being the first to appear with his company in the new and handsome King's Theatre. Later in the week Mr Willard was seen as Cyrus Blenkarn, in The Middleman, and as the delightful old Professor Goodwillie, in The Professor's Love Story.

THEATRICAL FRAUDS.

At Marlborough-street Police-court on Wednesday, Charles Thomas, twenty-five, refusing his address, and Frances Thomas, twenty-one, of 60, Albany-street, Regent's-park, waiter and waitress, were charged with stealing £1 by a trick from Clare Thomas, of 26, Colehill-road, Fulham, and 5s. from Charles Knight, of Union-road, Croydon. Miss Gladys Thomas, living at Fulham, stated that in consequence of seeing an advertisement in a contemporary for a "novice or amateur" to take part in a play called A Millionaire's Romance, and to go on a six months' tour, she wrote to the advertiser, Miss Grace Edwards, 6, Tottenham-street, explaining that she would be able to pay the £1 deposit required in a week. Witness was "in the profession," but had been been doing nothing lately. She received a reply, and her mother sent the money to Miss Edwards, who wrote again, saying that her "part" would not be ready for about a week, and that she would call for her and take her away. Witness said nothing to her friends about what she had done, as she did not want it known. Hearing nothing more she gave the tour up as hopeless, but Detective-sergeant Simmons called upon her, and she became a witness in the prosecution.

Detective-sergeant Simmons, of the D Division, gave evidence of having made inquiries concerning the prisoner's doings for some days past, in consequence of which he watched a shop in Southampton-street, Strand. He saw the woman enter the shop on Tuesday morning, and leave with some letters in her hand. She went along the Strand, met the man, and handed him the letters. At that moment he arrested them, telling them the accusations. Thomas simply remarked "Yes." He had 4s. 1½d. in his pockets, and five letters that had been given him by the woman, together with several more addressed to various persons, and some post-cards relating to a play called The Baggage Man. The male prisoner refused to give his address, but at a lodging in Albany-street, where the woman was staying, he found a quantity of correspondence concerning The Millionaire's Romance and The Baggage Man, and a number of hectograph letters. These were addressed from different places, including 6, Tottenham-street, and a house in the Strand.

Mr Plowden—Is there any company of the sort in existence? Sergeant Simmons—No, sir.

Mr Plowden—The whole thing is bogus?—Yes, sir.

Mr Plowden (holding up the letters)—All this letter headwork is pure invention?—Yes.

Mr Plowden—And The Millionaire's Romance?—Yes.

The prisoners were remanded, the man declaring he knew nothing of the matter. Bail was refused.

PRESENTATION.—Mr W. C. Pike, the musical director at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Mexborough was presented by Mr J. Gar Kiddie with a silver-mounted amber and briar pipe in case and a cigarette case last week in recognition of the able manner he conducted the musical comedy A Chinese Idyl, in the absence of the travelling conductor.

A PIANIST

and DR TIBBLES' Vi-Cocoa

PERFECTLY PURE, BUT NOT INSIPID.

Mr. G. WALKER, 81, Clarence Rd., New Cut, Bristol, writes:—

"Having given your Vi-Cocoa a long trial, I feel bound to write to you in praise of same. I am a pianist by profession, and when I have to play all night for a ball, a cup of your excellent Vi-Cocoa is a boon to me in the interval—it invigorates me for the rest of my performance. I am recommending Vi-Cocoa to all my friends, as I am sure they would do the same when they found out its excellence the same as I have. I am positive it is pure, and I undoubtedly know it to be strengthening."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Sept. 15.—This ballet, or, as it is now the fashion to term pieces of the kind, dance-poem, has aroused the interest of the Emperor. As was stated in your columns last week, his Majesty attended one of the rehearsals, and gave a few hints broadcast in his own genial fashion, which those who do not understand call "brusque." The Kaiser's artistes know their Imperial chief well, and are so used to his popping in unexpectedly at rehearsals that they are quite at home with him. Coppelia is not new, and it will not, therefore, be necessary to detail the plot, which is by no means complicated. Scenery and costumes were new, and a number of fresh dances have been introduced. There is a charming czardas, and a not less pretty ball waltz. Fräulein Dell' Era as Swanilda again fully proved her title of première danseuse of the Imperial Opera; the clever dancer exhibited astonishing agility, combined with the grace and personal charm that has made her famous. The pleasing music, the ravishing costumes, and fine mise en-scène all made their mark, and Coppelia will certainly retain its place in the bill for some time.

ANOTHER important change in our theatre annals is the triumphal entry of Dr. Paul Lindau in the Deutsches Theatre as lessee and manager. Dr. Lindau—esteemed alike as author and manager—was director of the Berliner Theatre for a number of years, during which he produced several highly successful plays, notably Björnson's Ueber unsere Kraft and Alt-Heidelberg. The Deutsches opened under the new régime with Shakespeare's Troilus and Cressida, adapted for the German stage by Dr. Lindau himself. Here, where Shakespearian plays are so frequently and so well done, it is a matter of wonder that Troilus and Cressida is comparatively little known. It came in the light of a première, and was extremely successful. Dr. Lindau has retained many of his former artistes and has acquired new and efficient ones too, so that a first-class company is the result. The cast for Troilus and Cressida was admirable, Fräulein Paula Müller and Herr Walden, in the title-rôles, Herren Sommerstorff as Hector, Abel as Thersites, and Fräulein Arnold, Herren Marx, Waldow, and Schlaeger being all worthy of commendation. The popular author-manager was—with the chief actors—called and recalled, and applauded to the echo.

A word as to the physical improvements of the Deutsches Theatre—a house of old-fashioned type much in need of alteration. Dr. Lindau has worked a complete transformation during the holidays. Stairs have been widened, handsome new carpets laid down; the seats in the stalls and first circle are new and are of mahogany and crimson velvet. The whole of the interior has been repainted in delicate shades, with touches of gold and with crimson velvet draperies, while extra exits have been provided in case of danger. The Deutsches is now one of our handsomest and most artistic theatres, and the general wish is that Dr. Lindau's reign may be a long one.

THE first genuine novelty at the Deutsches was Lady Windermere's Fan, produced last week. Notwithstanding the pains that had been taken with it, the piece failed to take with anything approaching enthusiasm, a respectfully cordial reception being all that was accorded to it. Herr Walden and Fräulein Paula Müller gave the rôles of Lord and Lady Windermere.

AT the Berliner on Saturday Grillparzer's play, Des Meeres und der Liebe Wellen, was revived. The beautiful setting of the legend of Hero and Leander has been frequently set before us, and never fails to make a profound impression. Unfortunately the interpretation on Saturday was not an adequate one. Herr Weigert's conception of Leander left much to be desired, and the same may be said of all the remainder of the cast. The audience laughed where they should have been moved to emotion, than which a better proof of the inadequate interpretation cannot be given.

JOHANN STRAUSS' charming little operetta, Die Fledermaus, was revived at the Theatre des Westens on Wednesday with capital results. It was excellently acted and sung, and very tastefully mounted. Fräulein Doninger carried off deservedly the palm of the evening for her delightful rendering of Adele; her acting was as graceful and humorous as her singing was pleasant to listen to. Fräulein Linda made her mark as Rosalinde; Fräulein Carry was a fascinating Prince Orlofsky; while Herr Pohl, Herr Wellhof, Herr Broda, and others were equally deserving of praise. A number of topical hits had been introduced with effect. Someone observes, sotto voce, on being introduced to the slender young Prince, "How small the Russians are, to be sure!" a remark which provoked laughter throughout the house. Herr Prasch, with his handsome wife (the clever actress Frau Prasch-Grevenberg), looked on from his private box, and might well be satisfied with the excellent performance, as were, undoubtedly, the audience.

THE Royal Opera has issued its programme for the coming season. There is nothing of very great importance, the new works of Leoncavallo—Der Roland von Berlin—and Humperdinck—Die Heirat wider Willen—arousing, perhaps, the most interest. Steinhammer's musical drama Das Fest auf Solhang, the book derived from Ibsen's play, will not be given until after Christmas.

THE Neue Freie Volksbühne gave a performance on Sunday at the Neues of a six-act tragedy by H. L. Wagner. The work, entitled Die Kindermörderin, is a so-called "tendency drama," and was written in the year 1776. Why the play has been exhumed is a mystery. There are enough realistic modern pieces of this type with more pretensions to art than this. The experiment was not a success, and I fear it is a case of labour lost.

A VERY fine performance of Siegfried was given at the Royal Opera on Monday. Herr Grüning, in the title rôle, was excellent, as also were Fräulein Plaischinger (Brünnhilde), Herr Krasa (Alberich), and Frau Goetze (Erda). Frau Herzog made her usual mark in the Voice of the Bird. It is a part well suited to her flute-like tones. Kapellmeister Schlar conducted with skill.

A NEW play by the Austrian dramatist, Herr Bahr, has been accepted for the Neues, and is to be produced during the next few weeks. The work is a four-act tragedy, entitled Sanna. It will, I believe, be simultaneously produced at Vienna.

HERR INTENDANT PRASCH has acquired Die Liebesfestung—a new three-act operetta by Bogumil Zeppler—and will give it at the Theatre des Westens for the first time during the present season. I hear unusually good reports of the new work.

HERR HAUPTMANN is unfortunately not yet quite off the sick list. The popular author, it will be remembered, had a severe illness while in Italy last winter, and he does not make so much progress towards complete recovery as his many friends and admirers could wish. The rumours, however, as to grave complications are entirely unfounded.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS ETHEL DANBURY.

THE accompanying photograph conveys the fact that Miss Ethel Danbury is a very charming personality; but few would imagine that a lady with such a winsome smile could display the depth and intensity of the tragedy and passion of life requisite for the leading parts she sustains. But it is to the versatility of her nature and that rare combination of light and shade that she owes her success in the dramatic profession. Of Irish descent—she is of the true Irish type and temperament, dark blue eyes, dark hair and fair skin—she entered the profession somewhere about eighteen years ago, under the tutelage of her husband (Mr Harry Starr), as a serio comic singer and dancer in the music halls, accompanying him in his various engagements in London and provinces, and playing most of the principal halls. In fact her career has always been closely associated with that of Mr Starr. When this gentleman gave up comic singing, and produced his sketches in London, Miss Danbury played prominent parts in the same, notably, A Double Dutchman, The Bullfighter, and the sketch run by Edwin Barwick and Harry Starr, entitled Jossiter's Jubilee, and one later by Harry Starr and James Turner, entitled Matrimonial Bliss. In 1892 she crossed "the Herring Pond" to play principal girl and speciality dancer in M. B. Leavitt's Spider and Fly company, appearing with great éclat in all the principal cities of the United States, coming home for a brief period in 1893, and returning as leading lady in Mr Starr's own venture, The Fat Men's Club, and subsequently a new farce-comedy, Through the Keyhole. Miss Danbury's versatility has stood her in good stead in pantomime, playing her first small part at the Theatre Royal, Middlesbrough, in 1884-5, in Jack and the Beanstalk. Her next venture was second girl in Babes in the Wood at the Grand Theatre, Cardiff, and the following season Bo-Peep, in Cinderella, 1891-2. This success she repeated in the same pantomime at the City Theatre, Sheffield, 1895-6. But Miss Danbury's greatest successes have been achieved in the legitimate drama, as her personality is inseparable from the part of Lena, in Carl the Clockmaker, a part which shows to the greatest advantage the buoyancy and depth of feeling of which the actress is capable. This rôle she has been playing for the past ten years. Scarcely less fitted is she in the part of Lara, the flower girl, in Otto the Outcast, which she has alternated with the above for the past five years. Lately she has added to her répertoire another great success in the part of Greta, in Mr Starr's new adaptation of Rip Van Winkle, entitled Schwenk the Dreamer. In private life Mrs Starr is essentially domestic, and all her ideas are centred upon home and family. Her treasures consist of a most interesting and clever little girl of thirteen, and a miniature man of eleven. A dog, a cat, and two parrots make up the rest of the family. She has no views to air nor problems to elucidate, but is content to relegate all that tends to promote wrinkles to her husband, who on the other hand bows meekly to her superior taste in the matter of dress, an artistic gift that is undoubtedly the envy of all her lady friends. There is scarcely an actress upon the boards who is a greater favourite in the popular theatres at the present day than Miss Ethel Danbury.

MR. JAMES CHIPPENDALE.

MR. JAMES CHIPPENDALE.

MR JAMES CHIPPENDALE has been connected with the theatres nearly all his life. His father, the late Mr W. H. Chippendale, who was associated with the Haymarket Theatre for many years, under the management of Mr Baldwin Buckstone, is still well remembered as Sir Peter Teazle, Mr Hardcastle, and Sir Anthony Absolute. He always had a liking for the stage and a leaning towards his father's line of business. Even when at school in France he had a miniature theatre, which he worked in conjunction with the late Fred Leslie, of Gaiety fame, who was his fellow student at the time. After a few months of office work in the city of London, where his firm became "infirm" and insolvent, and a year or two farming and cattle trading at Charlottesville, Virginia, U.S.A., he started the profession in earnest, some thirty years ago, at the Star Theatre, Swansea, South Wales, under the management of Messrs George and Andrew Melville. They played some dozen pieces per week, which must have been hard work for the principal members of the company, but did not affect him much, as he had only to make announcements as a servant, which, through stage fright, he failed to do for the first week, but they told him he looked very well. Mr Chippendale was next engaged for several stock seasons at different minor theatres, where he was cast for every line of business, from utility to lead, receiving various salaries ranging from something to nothing—the former giving him a great theatrical experience and the latter the best method of living economically. He believes the period is now called "the latter end of the palmy days." However, during this time he had the honour and pleasure of meeting such stars as Mr Charles Dillon, Mr Barry Sullivan, &c. Mr Osmond Tearle then engaged him for his touring companies, this being one of his most comfortable engagements. He played, in a round of the legitimate, such parts as Polonius; Brabantio, in Othello; Sir Peter Teazle, Mr Hardcastle, Sir Anthony Absolute, Sir William Fondlove, in The Love Chase; Sir Harcourt Courtly, Colonel Damas, Stukely, in The Gamester; Joseph, and Baradas, in Richelieu, &c. With Mr Robert Pateman he played Doctor Broadway Wilkes, in Odette, and Jack Gong, in The Green Bushes. Through this last character he was recommended to Mr Warner for Joe Buzzard, in In the Ranks, which part he played, off and on, for some fifteen or sixteen years, also Tom Bassett, in Hands Across the Sea; Tom Dossiter, in The Harbour Lights, and most of the Sims and Pettitt répertoire. Having become a full-fledged comedian through a lucky mistake, Mr Chippendale received many offers for pantomime from managers of the best provincial theatres. Nearly always playing dame, he had two seasons at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, under the management of Mrs Nye Chart; two seasons Theatre Royal, Edinburgh; two seasons Comedy Theatre, Manchester; two seasons Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham; two seasons Alexandra Theatre, Liverpool, under the management of Mrs Edward Saker; also Theatre Royal, Sheffield. Theatre Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Theatre Royal, Birmingham, Theatre Royal, Bolton, Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, London Hippodrome, and last year he played the Queen, in The Sleeping Beauty, at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, N., under the management of Mr J. F. Elliston. During these engagements Mr Chippendale has played with the Misses Vesta Tilley, Ada Reeve, Harriett Vernon, Marie Lloyd, Maggie Duggan, &c.; also Messrs Tom Woottwell, Brothers Edgar, Ben Albert, Bert Gilbert, Tom Squires, Teddy Royce, Little Tich, &c.

MR. ERNEST MUNRO.

MR. ERNEST MUNRO.

In the days of stock seasons, years gone by, the name of James Munro was known throughout the dramatic profession both as an actor and as the lessee of several provincial theatres, the Theatres Royal, Birmingham, Wolverhampton, and Worcester being among the number. The subject of our present biographical sketch, Mr Ernest Munro, is a grandson of the late James Munro, mentioned above. Like wooden legs, a turn for the stage often runs in families. Mr Munro was born in Birmingham, the birthplace of so many of our artists in the theatres and on the halls. At an early age he became a member of a flourishing amateur dramatic club in that city, named the Zingari. His first professional engagement was in a stock season at the old Theatre Royal, Woolwich. Then followed three years of répertoire work in the fit-ups with the late Sam Geary, and afterwards with Mr E. C. Matthews. While with these gentlemen he played the leading parts in upwards of fifty pieces and farces, including Young Marlow, Charles Surface, Claude Melnotte, &c. Then followed engagements as heavy or juvenile lead with Messrs Hubert O'Grady; Gilbert Elliott, in The Romany Rye; and Henry C. Arnold, with whom he played the late Mr Wilson Barrett's part in The Lights o' London. Stock seasons followed with the late Joe Rainbow and Mr T. Morton Powell. About three years ago, while playing Jack Felton, in The Worst Woman in London, Mr Munro first met his charming and accomplished young wife, Miss Marie Jones, to whom he was married while still serving under the banner of Mr Walter Melville. Since then Mr and Mrs Munro have been seen at several of our variety theatres in a duologue entitled A Society Belle, which Mr Munro wrote specially to show his wife's versatility in depicting the pathos and humour in the lives of the boy and girl waifs of our great city.

MISS NINA BLAKE ADAMS.

MISS NINA BLAKE ADAMS is the daughter of Mr Blake Adams, the well-known actor. She started her professional career at the early age of five years, when she appeared as Little Leah, in Isabelle Bateman's company of Leah. Since then she has been constantly employed by various managers for children's parts. Her next engagement was with Mr Seymour Hodges as Luce, in The Slave Girl. Then Mr Louis Calvert engaged her to play Little Adrienne, in Proof. Mr Ronald Grahame next offered her the part of Jessie, in Mankind. After that she played the King of Rome, in A Royal Divorce, under Mr W. W. Kelly's management. Among the number of her successful children's rôles have been Eva, in Uncle Tom's Cabin; Leila, in When London Sleeps, with Lester Collingwood; Kit, in Hoodman Blind, under Mr Rollo Balmain's management, and many others too numerous to mention. At the early age of fourteen (two years ago, for the talented young actress is now only sixteen) there came a turn in her career, for she was, in consequence of the illness of the juvenile lady, suddenly called upon to take the part of Judith, in The Days of Cromwell. Miss Adams played the part for a fortnight with great success. Then she returned to her old line of children's and boys' parts and was engaged by Mr W. A. Armour to play Blind Crutchie, in A Marked Man, and during the tour a singular thing happened. She was called upon through the illness of Miss Nina Vaughton to play the heavy part, that of the Mother to Blind Crutchie, the rôle she was originally engaged for. On the conclusion of that tour she was engaged by Mr Henry Chattell to play Walter Hatherly, in Driven from Home, then Ned Doyle, in Man to Man. On concluding that contract she was engaged by Mr Douglas Bruce to play Joe Perkins, in Dangerous Women, in which character she achieved a marked success. Then when the tour ended she played Walter Grove, in A Trip to Chinatown, and then was re-engaged by Mr Bruce for his second tour of Dangerous Women for her old part of Joe Perkins. On finishing that engagement with him last December, she was immediately engaged to play the juvenile lead, Ruth, in The Worst Woman in London, by Mr Walter Melville. In this rôle she made a new departure from her past lines, and showed that her talents were of a much higher standard than she had previously had the opportunity of portraying. During the indisposition of Miss Eva Dare, Miss Adams was called upon at two hours' notice to play the part of Tilly, in A Girl's Cross Roads. This she did with great success, and so climbed another rung of the ladder of fame. Miss Adams is now playing the rôle of Isabelle Howard, in Tom, Dick, and Harry company. This talented young actress undoubtedly inherits her histrionic ability, as she comes of an old theatrical stock, her grandfather being Adam Alexander, and her mother, Miss Ada Arnott, being a well-known provincial actress now playing in Mr Kennedy Miller's Irish répertoire company. Miss Adams is of a bright, vivacious disposition, and a general favourite with all her comrades. Her pet hobbies are cycling and sketching, and in the latter she shows considerable ability.

MISS NINA BLAKE ADAMS.

MADAME ELLA RUSSELL gave her last concert before leaving for the United States at the Town Hall Ryde, on Wednesday afternoon. Amongst the audience were Princess Henry of Battenberg, the Duchess of Albany, Princess Ena, and Prince Maurice. A song composed by Princess Henry of Battenberg, "The Sunny Month of May," was sung by Madame Ella Russell.

"JONES'S JAUNT."

A Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Glen Macdonough, Produced at Her Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen,
on Monday, Sept. 12.

Stanley Jones	Mr Charles Collette
Kate	Miss Rosamund Rokeby
Percy	Mr Edmund Beresford
Dollie Bond	Miss Sophie Harriss
"Birdikins"	Miss Irene Ross
Tom Breeze	Mr Orlando Daly
Catesby Duff	Mr J. R. Crawford
Smith	Mr Ernest Wintour
Beadle	Miss Mabel Luxmore

This amusing farcical comedy was produced with much success at Her Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen, on Monday. The plot is ingeniously worked out, and the comical situations which arise caused hearty and frequent merriment. From start to finish the interest never flags, and the fun flows to the accompaniment of a continuous ripple of laughter. The usual fault of plays of this class is that the end of the first act leaves one wondering how the author will contrive to sustain the humour and interest through the remaining two acts. The result is very often a disappointing second act, or a dénouement too early foreshadowed. Such is not the case, however, with Jones's Jaunt. It is constructed not only with wonderful ingenuity and knowledge of stagecraft, but it has also a plot that develops in such a way as to increase the interest as the play proceeds and bring about a last act which is the best of the three. The action fits like the parts of a machine—as it should in every well-ordered farce—and the fun is pure, healthy, and honest. The success of the play was beyond question. The hearty and unanimous call that brought the artistes in front of the curtain at the close of the performance was a compliment rarely accorded in Aberdeen. Stanley Jones is a middle-aged gentleman and a respectable citizen who starts from home ostensibly on an exploring tour to the wilds of Africa. Having, however, met a charming serio when about to start, he is diverted from his purpose, and "does the halls" instead. On reaching home again he draws largely on his imagination for his facts. His valet assists him in inventing a story of thrilling adventures in unknown parts of Africa, and this baseless narrative finds, through the medium of an enterprising journalist, its way into the press. This leads to a series of complications, which become still more bewildering when the attractive serio puts in an appearance at Jones's residence, in search of another of her admirers. This is no other than Jones's own son, who is saved from marrying the syren by the fact that the lady has already a husband, though they are living apart. Jones has a pretty daughter, who has lent a willing ear to the suit of a young fellow named Tom Breeze. The last-mentioned doubts the truthfulness of Jones's account of his strange experiences in African wilds, and, to test his veracity, impersonates one of the personages who have had their origin in a fertile imagination. By this means he gets the old gentleman to give his consent to a union with his pretty daughter. The new production was well played by Mr Lilford Arthur's company. Mr Charles Collette brought all his acknowledged ability as a comedian to bear upon the part of Stanley Jones with the result that the middle-aged romancer became in his experienced hands a delightfully amusing personage. Mr J. R. Crawford does well in the part of Catesby Duff. The part is one that is very much at the discretion of the actor, and we have no doubt of Mr Crawford's ability to make it a still greater success. Mr Orlando Daly scored as Tom Breeze, the sweetheart of Kate Jones, a rôle played in pleasing style by Miss Rosamund Rokeby. As the syren of the music halls, who captivates the susceptible Joneses, father and son, Miss Sophie Harriss embodied the character with much animation. She cleverly seized upon all the humorous points of the rôle, and made quite a hit in it, her experience and cleverness being of the utmost value throughout. Mr Ernest Wintour gave a neat and finished sketch of Smith. Mr Edward Beresford as Percy and Miss Mabel Luxmore as Beadle contributed to the success of the production. A particularly good musical programme was submitted by Mr Loseby's orchestra, including the Oberon overture, selections from Faust and Haddon Hall, as well as one from the new Messager opera Véronique.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following abridged description is specially drawn for The Era by Messrs Hughes and Young, patent agents, 55 and 56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all patent matters.

"A MADCAP PRINCESS."

A Comic Opera, in Three Acts,
Produced at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, on Sept. 5.

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT).

This piece, in which Miss Lulu Glaser began an engagement at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, on Monday, Sept. 5, is a musical version of Charles Major's romance When Knighthood was in Flower, which was dramatised under the same title for Miss Julia Marlowe. The music is by Ludwig Englander, and the book by Harry B. Smith. The original narrative is not followed literally in the opera, but the essential points are retained, particularly Mary Tudor's elopement with Charles Brandon, which requires her to disguise herself in the clothes of a courtier in order to escape the match arranged by her brother, King Henry VIII. The three scenes represent a May morning in Windsor Forest, with Princess Mary as the leader of a picturesque village gathering; Mary's apartments in Bridewell House, where she receives the King with his suite as she lies in bed; and a typical English tavern of the sixteenth century, where the lovers are overtaken and Mary coaxes her royal brother to consent to her union with Brandon. Miss Glaser enacts Mary Tudor with the same grace and vivacity that made her Dolly Varden such a delightful performance. Mr Bertram Wallis, who made his American début as Charles Brandon, scored a success, the opera being received with marked approval by a large audience.

NEW FOREIGN PLAYS.

In order to assist managers and others in the selection of pieces for adaptation, we shall publish from time to time synopses of notable Continental plays, so that dramatic speculators may judge for themselves of the suitability of the plots for their purposes. All particulars respecting "rights," &c., can be obtained of the International Copyright Bureau, 4, Eastcheap, London.

"DR. ARMYON'S WIFE."

Adapted from the German of Paul Oskar Hoecker by C. Ainsworth Mitchell.

This play in its original version, Wappenhaense, met with a most enthusiastic reception both at the hands of the English and German Press. Dr. Armyon is a brilliant surgeon, who finds no scope for his talents in the humdrum life of ordinary practice. He is of excitable temperament—a man who takes nothing very seriously except his profession. His lack of work that satisfies him has led him to look for amusement among wild and irresponsible students. He is careless about money matters; so much so that his wife has frequently to get into debt. For all that, however, he is "a good sort," and passionately fond of his wife and child. Lena, his wife, is an idealist. She is pained by her husband's thoughtlessness, and has made constant efforts to get him to take life seriously and to rouse his ambition, though the main result has only been to irritate him. Though not blind to his faults she is deeply in love with him. Otto, their son, is a boy of seven and a-half years. Anne, Lena's sister, is good-natured, clear-headed, and thoroughly practical in what she does. Jenny Bloom is an artist, boisterous to the verge of extravagance, and caring nothing for the conventionalities of life. She is in love with the doctor, though he only regards her as a good comrade. Aunt May, Jenny's aunt, is an old maid who lives with her. The first, third, and fourth acts take place in Dr. Armyon's Flat in London; the second in Jenny Bloom's Cottage in Windsor. The time is the present.

ACT I.

Dr. Armyon has once more spent the night with his boon companions and has not yet come home. Lena talks to her little son Otto, trying to deceive him as to the cause of his father's absence. The doctor returns, sober again, though inclined to be very irritable, especially on finding his wife in a depressed mood. He has made arrangements to join his friends again after seeing his early patients, and in order to get away the sooner sends Beazley, an unqualified medical student, to attend a patient. In the meantime Anne, Lena's sister, brings word that through her husband's influence Armyon can be appointed chief surgeon at a big hospital. Lena is wild with delight, for she sees that this will get him away from his light-minded companions, will give him work that will interest him, and will put an end to her constant humiliations, caused by the want of money. Armyon, too, jumps at the idea of becoming a great surgeon with an independent position. Soon after, however, comes the news that Beazley, the medical student, has made a fatal blunder leading to the patient's death. Armyon is thoroughly upset by the news, which he sees will ruin him if it becomes known. He determines to hush the matter up and swears Beazley to secrecy. Again irritated by his wife's reproaches for his want of conscientiousness, he announces his intention of going to Windsor with his friends. Lena pleads with him not to go before he has had the interview with reference to the hospital appointment. He insists on going, but promises to be back in time. Lena is in despair, knowing that he won't keep his promise, and the final touch is put to her misery when the little boy returns in tears, and tells how he has been teased by the other boys for not taking money for the school games. When Armyon goes out, after making some unkind remarks, she breaks down completely, and the curtain falls upon Otto trying to comfort her.

ACT II.

The same evening near midnight in Jenny Bloom's cottage in Windsor. Armyon and his friends have been there most of the day. They are all somewhat heated with wine, and are chaffing one another in a spirit of good-humoured badinage. Presently one Murphy produces a love poem written by Lena to her husband, which Armyon had given him on some former occasion. He recites this in spite of Armyon's protests, and all express surprise to find that Lena should have so much fire beneath her calm exterior. After more chaff, all with the exception of Murphy and Aunt May go into the cellar for champagne to celebrate the occasion. While they are absent Lena arrives in pouring rain to fetch her husband. It has been settled that Armyon shall speak at the Medical Congress next day, so that the hospital appointment shall be given as a result, and not appear to be an act of favouritism. Armyon dashes in from the cellar after Jenny, and all are surprised to see Lena. She explains the cause of her visit, and Armyon's displeasure gives way to gratitude for what she has done. The men covertly sneer at Lena, which so arouses Armyon that when he and she are going out to catch the last train he stays behind for a moment to give them a piece of his mind. They talk to him and gradually get him calmer, until he forgets all about the train. He is startled by hearing the whistle, and finding that his wife has returned to London without him. The act closes with Jenny and the men singing a chorus "What will to-morrow bring," while Armyon sits apart muttering, "What will to-morrow bring?"

ACT III.

The following afternoon. Armyon has walked home through the night to convince his wife that he had not purposely missed the train. Lena forgives him and encourages him to set to work upon his lecture at once. There is a beautiful love scene—he full of gratitude and promising to make a clean sweep of the past, while she shows her belief in his repentance and pleads for his constant love. At the moment that he is going into his room Jenny Bloom arrives. Lena is greatly annoyed at the interruption, not knowing its real cause. Jenny has come to inform the Doctor that a reporter has learnt about the patient dying, and that unless he goes to see the editor of the paper it will be published that evening. She tells the Doctor this bad news while Lena is temporarily out of the room. When Jenny leaves Armyon returns to his room, but goes out by the side door to see the editor. Lena knows nothing of this, and thinks him hard at work on the lecture. Presently Murphy calls and tells Lena that he has seen Jenny and the Doctor together outside. Lena is at first incredulous, then she dashes into his room and, finding it empty, returns utterly dazed. She feels that all her efforts to save him have been in vain, and she believes that the Doctor and Jenny had made an arrangement to deceive her. Murphy attempts to console her, and then quotes Lena the love poem which she had written to her husband, and makes violent love to her, telling her that she shall not be unhappy. Lena repulses him with scorn, and then breaks down, and the curtain falls upon her sobbing, while Murphy stands silent with his back to the audience.

ACT IV.

The same evening a few hours later. The Doctor's boon companions have been fetched from the club by the charwoman, who had found the flat deserted. Presently news is brought by one Smithells that Armyon had, after all, spoken at the Congress, and had been a brilliant success. The Doctor now arrives, and is startled to learn that his wife and child have gone. While they are discussing the reason Anne arrives, and the men go out. Anne has come to inquire whether Lena has come home. Lena had taken Otto to her, and had said she was going to come back and see the Doctor. They fear that she must have killed herself, and Anne tells Armyon that the last straw must have been the news about the patient's death having appeared in several of the evening papers, in spite of having been kept out of one. Armyon is in despair. Presently one Mrs Straker comes to say that Lena is in the street. Anne goes and persuades her to come in. Lena enters. She had been on the point of throwing herself into the river, and only the thought of Otto had kept her back. She has decided that she is no longer strong enough to go on living with Armyon in the same old surroundings, for she has lost all respect for him. He pleads for a last chance, but she, weeping bitterly, says that a separation is the only way of redeeming the past. She promises that if he will go away and make a new, an honourable career for all three of them that she will gladly join him again, for then she can once more be proud of him, and he will be an example for their boy. The curtain falls while he is acquiescing in this plan and she encouraging him.

NEW MUSIC.

FROM Leonard and Co., 311, Oxford-street, we have received the following works:—Song, "No rose without a thorn," words by Eileen Ashton, music by Cyril Thorne. This pretty and simple ditty is of the kind to please amateurs, and it will be strange if it does not find its way into the domestic circle, being so pure in tone and pleasing in melody. Our copy is in the key of E flat, but there is also an edition in the key of C, which contralto singers will appreciate. "Acushla" is, of course, Hibernian in tone. The music of Wilton King reminds us somewhat of an old Irish melody, but the composer cannot be charged with direct plagiarism, as the plaintive tone adopted is commonly met with in the ballads of the Green Isle. The distant echo of a bird calling to its mate is the subject of a song not wanting in merit, composed by Evelyn Kardley Howard, "Columbine," a characteristic sketch for the pianoforte by Godfrew Marks, which may prove useful to the teacher, as well as interesting to a student who practises it carefully.

DORMI AND CO., Argyll-place, Regent-street, send the following:—"The Song of the Sea," words by J. J. Pender, music by M. Donegan. Here we have an artful lover sending a tender message by the sea in the moonlight. But the love song must come to an end, and the sentimental swain must depart. He goes with the sad murmur of the waves in his ears, and declares that the ocean will never again carry so sweet a message. Perhaps not for him. But there are always sweethearts to be fascinated by the sea, and they will be pleased with Mr Donegan's song. "Come to me now, my own," written by Huan Me, composed by G. W. Byng, is supposed to be a Venetian serenade, and the musicianly ability displayed by the composer will make the song attractive to a clever vocalist, while its sentiment cannot fail to please. All lovers, Venetian and otherwise, will echo the strain "Come to me now." "A Desert Love Song" has the disadvantage of suggesting the popular "Bedouin's Love Song." But Mr Donegan, the composer has wisely adopted quite another style of melody, and his song has a character of its own. "Love's Eternity," composed by Lilian Bookner, has that strong belief in the future of love which is a consolation to many for the sorrows of earthly life, and the fair composer puts the subject forward in a pleasing and attractive manner by means of a graceful, flowing melody worthy of the theme she has chosen. "The Legend of the Snowdrop," by Sir Francis W. Brady, Bart., is an agreeable setting of the pretty verses of E. M. Christian, who has gracefully treated the legend of the snowdrop.

HELLER AND CO., Wells-street, Oxford-street, send "When we're Apart," by B. Farnhill, which has a pleasing melody rendered still more effective by a violin and 'cello accompaniment, not at all difficult to play but decidedly pleasing in style. The second part of the melody is in waltz time, another feature the amateur will appreciate. "The Roses of Old," by Giuseppe Villa, has the swing and accent of a melody by Verdi; and the subject, with its passionate sentiment, will appeal to all tender and sympathetic natures. "The Men of the North" is a setting of some spirited verses of Sir Charles Gavan Duffy by Hubert E. Rooney. The admirable baritone Mr William Ludwig has sung "The Men of the North" with great success, and such a vigorous and stirring melody will be sure to have plenty of admirers. "A little while, dear heart," is a pathetic farewell of lovers written by Stanhope Gray, with music by Lindsay Lennox, who has perfectly caught the tender spirit of the ballad. "Come, O thou traveller unknown," written by the Rev. Charles Wesley, M.A., is set to music by Orlando A. Mansfield, with organ accompaniment. The "traveller unknown" is Love, and his advent is gracefully expressed in words and music.

AGATE AND CO., Poland-street, send "One Fair Morn in May," written by Gunby Hadath, and set to music by W. R. J. Maclean. It is a pretty ballad, and is dedicated to Princess Christian. The same author and composer have written a song with the refrain "Sweet! Sweet! Sweet!" the song of a blackbird, being supposed to echo the sentiment of a lover.

"NOONTIDE LULLABY," words by Ed. Oxenford, music by Julian Clancy. The illustrated title-page explains the story of the song. A pretty girl is swaying in a hammock while her swain is singing a noontide lullaby beseeching her to dream of him. "A Song of the Days of Yore," by Oscar Allon, not only sings of olden days, but of the present time, for its theme is love, the ever new and ever old story again treated in song with much earnestness and effect.

"CARATTE," by J. Michael, is a pretty waltz for the pianoforte, with some fresh ideas. "Angel Whispers" is a Reverie for pianoforte, by Angus Gray, who is also the composer of a Romance called "Golden Sunset," and "Blondina," an Intermezzo, both for the pianoforte, and both agreeably written.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Co., Berners-street, send the following songs:—"The Sweet Melody," by C. A. Yates, set to music by H. Pinchbeck, does not belie the title, the melody being pleasing. "The Castle Builders" relates to a couple of children building sand castles at the seaside. The words are by Antony Templemore, the music by Lincoln G. Hale. "I pray thee send me back my heart." The words are by Sir John Suckling, the music by H. K. Hamilton Field. The query of the poet why his lady-love should not make a fair exchange and give her heart for his is answered effectively in the music. "Aubade" has words by Alfred De Musset, with an Italian version by Mazzoni and an English version by Horspool. The music by Gabriella Beretta expresses the sentiment of the words cleverly. "Star of Israel" is a song by Ernest Davison in memory of Dr. Herzl.

"SHOOTING THE CHUTES," by F. T. Chaplin, is published at San Francisco, and has been much played by military bands.

AT the Old Bailey on Wednesday Raphael Cioline, thirty-two, an Italian, was put upon his trial charged with the murder of James Albert Lee, a supernumerary employed at the Hippodrome, by stabbing him in Old Compton-street, Soho, at midnight on July 31. Prisoner, in the witness-box, denied using the knife. The defence set up was that there was an entire absence of conclusive proof that it was the hand of the prisoner which inflicted the fatal wound. After deliberating in private for ten minutes the jury found the prisoner guilty of manslaughter, and sentence was deferred.

HISTORIC PROVINCIAL PLAYHOUSE.

BY T. H. BARROW.—III.

Seemingly Tate rose to high popularity at a bound, yet he did not remain at York long, as Edinburgh claimed his services, and he had a brilliant season in Auld Reekie. En route from the Scottish capital to London he paused at York, where he found Baker "in high glory, giving directions to the workmen who were erecting part of a new theatre, at a great, and his sole, expense. It was upon a much more capacious scale than the old one, though nearly on the same spot, as he was then finishing the tail of the new while the players were employed in the head of the old."

Tate Wilkinson agreed to play on Saturday, April 28, 1764, Othello for the benefit of Mrs Quin; but he was taken very ill during the afternoon and could not appear. Frodsham, who usually played the part in the stock company, could not be found, whereupon Baker had no alternative to the abrupt dismissal of the audience for that evening. Tate seems to have got into disfavour over the "Tea" performance at his benefit the year previous, and on the Quin benefit occasion he, fearing popular resentment, tried to forget his troubles with alcoholic assistance—and over-did it! Tate surveyed the local position, however, and still unwell, insisted on appearing on May 1, as Mayor Sturgeon in a popular play. His entrance was the signal for a prolonged general hiss, accompanied by a fusillade of over-ripe oranges. Fortified by grim determination, he strutted to and fro up and down the stage as the gallant major, affecting indifference to the sibilant demonstration. The audience, who considered themselves grievously wronged by him at his benefit, wanted an apology or at least an explanation. He, on his part, declined both; though hardly able to bear the weight of his heavy military boots he kept the stage to the end of the first act, and "at his exit received every mark of disgrace." When he appeared four days after, the animosity of the audience was less marked, and before the lapse of another week he was re-installed in public favour.

January, 1765, saw the completion and formal opening of the new theatre from which the present imposing structure may be said really to date. The bill-of-fare, frequently changed to meet varied tastes, was the best Baker's stock company could produce, and the fact that for many months the house was well accustomed shows that at any rate the patrons of the drama bore Tate Wilkinson no further resentment. Occasionally the well-filled gallery became turbulent over some imaginary slight, but rebellion was quelled by the raising of the price of admission to witness popular plays—an expedient which, I am convinced, would not prove successful in these more advanced days.

York has been for many generations famous for its spring and autumn race meetings. It was during one of these historic turf gatherings in 1765 that Lady Bingley (who, like others of the nobility, had a winter residence in the city) and some friends announced their intention of visiting the theatre on condition that the play of The Provoked Wife, already announced, was withdrawn and another piece substituted. They considered The Provoked Wife objectionable. Her ladyship carried her point. Possibly she was a leader of York society, and the manager deemed it inadvisable to offend her.

Baker at length took Tate Wilkinson into partnership, and in 1769 spent £500 in obtaining an Act of Parliament in his own name for two royal patents for the York and Hull theatres the patent rights being granted for twenty-one years. The authority thus obtained from the Crown afforded numerous privileges as well as removed certain disabilities from which he had hitherto suffered. For example, he had now some sort of security for the sums he had expended, he was elevated to the title and prerogatives of an esquire, and his company of players were no longer under the inconvenient necessity of announcing a concert of music and presenting a piece gratis when their real object was to present a play.

King George II. graciously condescended to patronise the performance at the York theatre on the first night of the season in 1769 (April 8), when was played for the benefits of Mrs Baker—imagine a benefit on a first night nowadays!—a new tragedy called A Fatal Discovery, and Tate Wilkinson spoke a specially-written prologue.

Bridge Frodsham, a member of Baker's stock company, was a scion of an ancient family of that name residing at Frodsham, near Chester. Endowed with the dramatic instinct and aided by a sound education, he became a popular actor. Indeed, in his heyday he had no peer in the expansive county of Yorkshire. He captivated all classes, was a great favourite with ladies, could do nothing wrong with his audiences, and was considered in all essentials the superior of David Garrick, with whom he was contemporary.

"Nor," says Mr Benson, "would that decision in favour of Frodsham have been from elderly ladies only, as he had often melted the youthful fair ones of the tenderest moulds, whose hearts have been susceptible whenever Frodsham was the lover. The print shops displayed portraits of him, his popularity was so great." Frodsham was not a highly-paid actor even at the rate of remuneration in those days, for he received one guinea per week; and, worse still, he was deprived of any opportunity for observation or self-improvement. After a time Baker released him for a fortnight, whereupon he made his way by stage-coach to London. At his non-appearance in York there was great lamentation among the fair sex, who had come to the conclusion that if Garrick saw Frodsham York would know their hero no more.

But Garrick did see the provincial star, and thus the story is related. A card inscribed "Mr Frodsham, of York," was left by the latter at Garrick's residence. Garrick was at home. He was highly amused at the nonchalant freedom and affability of his visitor, and in a patronising way presented him with a ticket for the pit that he might see him play Sir John Brute. Frodsham was unfeignedly delighted with Garrick's interpretation of the character, and at breakfast next morning discussed the subject.

Quoth Frodsham to Garrick:—"I am sure you saw me in the pit at the same time, and with your eyes you seemed to say 'Frodsham, did you ever see anything like that at York? Could you do that, Frodsham?' But, as to Hamlet, I flatter myself I play it almost as well as yourself, for comedy, my good sir, is your forte.'"

Garrick, possibly in order to test Frodsham's elocutionary qualities, asked for a speech from Hamlet. His guest at once complied, and with the utmost composure. Garrick then offered him an engagement in London, upon trial, to play any character he cared to select.

"Oh! you are mistaken, my dear Mr Garrick," exclaimed the York leading man, "if you think I came here to solicit an engagement. I am a Roscius at my own quarters. I came to London purposely to see a few plays, and, looking on myself as a man not destitute of talents, I judged it a proper compliment to wait on a brother genius. Indeed, I considered it indispensable to see you and have half-an-hour's conversation with you. I neither want nor wish for an engagement, for I would not abandon or relinquish the happiness I enjoy in Yorkshire for the first terms that your great and grand city of London could afford."

With a haughty bow Frodsham quitted Garrick's presence, and returned to the scene of his provincial triumphs. He died in October, 1768, at the age of thirty-five years. "His mind, understanding, and superabundant good qualities were all warped and undermined by nocturnal habits, and with plentiful potations of York Burgundy and other pleasant spirited draughts, he too soon finished his life and fame."

AMUSEMENTS IN PITTSBURGH.

PITTSBURGH, PA., SEPT. 5.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Harry Davis.—Last week's programme included quite a galaxy of variety artists. Chief amongst them was Dan M'Avoy and his Fifth-avenue Girls in a speciality, wherein mirth, melody, and dancing are happily blended. Odette Tyler and company appeared in the sketch entitled The Maid, the Marriage, and the Man. Mayme Remington was entertaining with her Bungle Boo Loo Babies. A clever performance was given by Thompson's dogs. Allan Shaw was applauded for his wonderful coin manipulations. Theo F. Smith and Miss Jennie St. George Fuller introduced some excellent instrumental and vocal selections with original novelties. Eddie Girard and Jessie Gardner scored in their farcical hit Dooley and the Diamond. Elizabeth M. Murray in songs and stories, James J. Morton in bright monologues, and the comedy acrobats Welsh Montrose Trio proved attractive numbers. Innes and Ryan, Fred and Annie Pelot, comedy jugglers, Wilson and Davis, and the Kinetograph brought an enjoyable performance to a close.

BIJOU THEATRE.—Lessees, R. M. Gullick and P. J. M'Nulty.—The boards here were occupied by The Factory Girl, written by Charles E. Blaney. The company under the direction of Mr Phil B. Isaac was a decidedly competent one, chief among them being Messrs Lou Hascall, James Slevins, and Guy Rawson, while Miss Caroline May as the factory girl took first honours. The play is a powerful melodrama, teeming with interesting situations, and it was well received by the large audience. The plot is simple enough. A beautiful factory girl is accused by the female cashier of the works of having stolen some money. The owner of the works has two sons. Both of them love the girl, but in different ways. While Tom Hartman is prepared to make the girl his wife, Roger, his brother, wants her to be his mistress. The girl is brought before the Court, and just at the moment when she is about to be sentenced to a long term of imprisonment, a young insurance agent (Mr Lou Hascall), a good-hearted, reckless man, steps forward and declares himself the thief, thus saving the innocent girl from punishment which she did not deserve. In the third act Roger, the wicked brother, all but succeeds in killing his brother by placing him under a steam hammer, while his father, who enters at the critical moment, is pushed by him against the electric machine and killed. Roger succeeds in eluding the arm of the law, but death in the shape of consumption claims him, while Tom Hartman marries the factory girl, and inherits the works and all his father's money.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, E. J. M'Cullough.—F. E. Johnson and H. A. Dykeman's company appeared at this theatre in A Child of the Slums, written by Howell Pole and Henry Belmer, a sensational melodrama, in four acts. The title-rôle, Midge, a child of the slums, is sustained by Ernie Veronee, a clever and resourceful little boy, who played with extraordinary tact and coolness. He was ably supported by Mr Martin A. Somers as Bill Maglone, the thief, while Mag Maglone, the latter's better half, was admirably played by Miss Nellie Maskell. Mr J. E Toole and Miss Helen Trowbridge as Lawyer and Mrs Mathers submitted a laughable picture of the hen-pecked husband and his wife. Mr George Darrell as Frank Wentworth and Mr Charles D. Middleton as Richard Gerson, his false friend, gave good renderings of their respective parts. The rest of the company was satisfactory.

HARRY WILLIAMS ACADEMY.—The Transatlantic Burlesquers, under the management of Mr Edwin J. Cohn, presented a musical extravaganza, in two acts, called The Pirates of Panama. The audience gave a hearty reception to this clever little farce, and did not stint their applause. Tsuda gave an exhibition of balancing. George Murphy and Nat Brown poked fun at the automobilists, Erne and Dave Warsaw performed on various instruments, while Rita Redmond sang with good taste. Omri and company did some globe revolving and skirt dancing.

THE Paris Opera is offering two prizes for a symphonic poem which would be suitable for performance at the opera house as an intermezzo between an opera and a ballet. The conditions seem somewhat hard to fulfil, but no doubt candidates will be numerous.

AUTHORS and Playwrights, why be bothered with the technicalities of a copyright performance and the trouble of obtaining the Lord Chamberlain's Licence for a play when for a sum under a ten pound note the International Copyright Bureau, of 4, Eastcheap, E.C., will undertake all these formalities, and fix the playright to an author as securely as the coat upon his back. Every description of literary property protected. Moderate fees. Prospectus on application.—[ADVT.]

THEATRICAL ANECDOTES.

(BY AN ACTRESS OF EXPERIENCE.)

A DEAR little actress had risen about 6·0 a.m. to see her sweetheart off. Six is early for stage folk.

"The day is so long," she said, "when Jack's away."

"You must stay to dinner," we said. "Do!" But we dined a little late—2·30; from 6·0 till 2·30 is a long time. The little actress got very tired, though she tried to appear cheerful as ever.

"I really must ask the landlady to hurry on the dinner," said someone; "I know you're faint."

She confessed she was a little. She kept looking at the clock, and at the Scriptural texts round the room—anything to while away the time till Jack comes home, and not to be left alone, for she couldn't "abide it," as the old country people say.

At last, enter the landlady. "Dinner's ready, ma'am," said she.

"Oh! Praise the Lord!" said our little friend, fervently.

And though she did say she was merely reading out the text on the wall, she did not hear the last of that in a hurry.

SOME years ago, at the old Adelphi Theatre, Liverpool, a comedian, George V.—no I will not give his name; I'll spare his blushes. This George had admirers of the fair sex, who brought him flowers and posies; one was thrown on to George; as a lady was also on the stage, he had to present it to her.

"No, Jarge, no—it's for you," and "Them's for Jarge," said the donors.

George made his exit. When he returned: "Did you yet them, Jarge," shouted the girls. A half assent our hero gave. "That's right," said a voice, "they ain't for the gal; them's for Jarge."

"WHAT is your experience of the most painful scene in which you have had to act and appear as though nothing was the matter?" I was asked.

"I have had one or two," I replied, "but one painful episode I shall never forget. As we were playing a storm scene, lightning, thunder, &c., at North Shields, a real storm was outside. Thunder, lightning, and the gun from sea, telling of a wreck. Nearly all the audience left the theatre and went to see the wreck. A few remained, and we played on."

IN Cardiff, just a few years past, we—a stock "crowd" of Thespians—were playing Richard III. The scenic artist was coaxed to go on after the Lady Anne scene, the funeral cortége, and made it a proviso that he should not speak.

But the Richard would not go on till he did. He should have said, "Go we to Chertsey, my lord?"

In prompting him the word "Chertsey" was a bit of a worry to an ignorant and non-Shakespearian student; but he knew it was a funeral, and he fancied that he heard something about church. The two seemed connected in his mind, so he walked briskly down, and, gently sawing one foot in the air (a way he had when nervous, just as you have seen a trained elephant), he briskly observed

"Are ye going to Church?" and there he stood, swaying his right foot and leg, and looking ridiculously cheerful.

They did not ask him to oblige them any more.

IT really happened before my time, but I heard of it from old actors. A fishmonger in a certain town got a fit of stage mania, so he studied and went on the Sheffield Theatre stage to perform in Shakespeare, of course. His mother, a rustic, with clogs and a loud striped shawl, much against her better judgment, went into that ungodly place a playhouse. All went well till Polonius says, "Do you know me, my lord?"

"Excellent well," says Hamlet, "You are a fishmonger."

That was enough for the mother. Up she got, shouldered her way out, exclaiming loudly, "Let me get out! let me get out! I knew they'd insult our Jack!"

A LEADING lady touring the small towns told her landlady to get a crab for supper, and not to sit up for her; she would not require her. The landlady very thankfully assented, as she had to rise early each morning.

However, on reaching home, she found the worthy landlady up.

"Why," she said. "Didn't you get to bed?"

"I couldn't, Ma'am, I couldn't. The dratted thing would keep jumping off the table."

She had bought a live crab, and the unfortunate animal had crawled off the dish, fallen to the floor, and had been restored to the dish by the landlady several times.

Now, if you want to arouse a shudder of disgust in that lady, just mention "crab" as an appetising supper.

A VERY young fellow who essayed the part of Laertes, was very nervous when at the grave scene in the play of Hamlet, and, instead of saying—"And from her fair and unpolluted flesh let violets spring," he rendered it thus: "And from her fair and unpolluted flesh let diamonds spring."

SAID the actor, "Madam, may I suggest"—(pronouncing 'g' hard, as in 'jug').

"Not sugg-est," said the stage-manager. "Pronounce the G softly thus, 'sudgest, or 'sujjest'—that's the correct sound."

Triumphantly our actor brought forth his part.

"SUGGEST," said he. "Sugg-est! Where's your J?"

WHEN playing the blind mother in Gerald Kennedy's For England, the dogs used to walk on and off the stage in a very natural way. Jack, one dog, introduced some "new business." He used to plant himself in my lap, and the other dog would look enviously on. However, one night, Jack was not there; the other dog proudly took Jack's place. The next night this happened again.

But before the scene was over Jack appeared. "No nonsense of this sort," he seemed to say. "That's my business."

So he jumped on and shouldered the understudy off. I will do the understudy the justice to say that he knew it was fair, but he liked it none the better for that.

By the way, one night a strange black cat jumped on my lap, and the dog kept his place. He would not give up his part. Clever dog. But then, of course, he was an actor's dog, and stood on his rights.

IT was his first "fit-up," that is a travelling stage, fitted up as a stage on an ordinary platform.

And he was not used to exit in a quiet way and make himself small behind the wings and scenes; so he walked off right through a gap in the curtains, and behold he was in the hall, with the audience. Quickly he returned. We laughed. "How came you to do that?" we said.

He turned round, majestically, and said, "I've not been used to your 'foot-ups'."

He hadn't.

IN playing in a piece with the late Mr Clarke and Miss Furtado (I think the piece was Ours), one of the company made a remark to me touching some previous conversation relating to a croquet ball—"and his head." I reply, "No, that other wooden thing," pointing off, to ball. Now, our character actor would get in my line of vision, and, oddly enough, would be cross with me, and say, when off the stage, "Don't point to me when you say 'that other wooden thing!'" I said I would not. I honestly did not mean to repeat it, but next night I did exactly the same thing. He got in the line I pointed at—he would! Now, actually no laugh would have been raised at his expense, but he was so wild, he gave me one withering look of defiance and annoyance, and literally bounced off the stage. I smiled, so do did the audience! That was my best round of applause in the piece, but I was not allowed to introduce it again. He did not give me the chance.

C

THE LYRIC.

That happily associated couple The Earl and the Girl changed their quarters on Monday from the Adelphi to the Lyric, their house-warming at the richly redecorated theatre in Shaftesbury-avenue being attended by an enthusiastic audience that filled the auditorium from stalls to gallery. It is generally considered a risky experiment to change the rendezvous of a successful piece; but there were no signs of any waning interest in the farcical experiences of Jim Cheese as the wearer of the strawberry leaves, or in the many subterfuges of Dick Wargrave and the Hon. Crewe Boodle. The musical comedy has been redressed with exquisite taste, the ladies' modern dresses being triumphs of the art of the modiste. New fancy costumes designed by the resourceful and artistic Comelli have been turned out by M. Alias with his usual care and completeness; nothing could be in better taste than the hunting dresses by Goodall and Graham; and, of course, Willie Clarkson's wigs are perfect. Much curiosity had been excited in the minds of the play-going public concerning the new additions to the score, and as Miss Agnes Fraser had given her confidences to an interviewer concerning a cookery song, expectation ran high respecting the "realities" of the number. Truth to say, it was a disappointment; and despite the genuine "hasty pudding" that was made in sight of the audience, and the very realistic gas stoves and cooking appurtenances used by the chorus, it went exceedingly flat. Not so the pretty owl song "To Hoo? To you," from the well-known and enterprising American firm of Witmark and Sons. This was delightfully sung by Miss Louie Pounds, and an entrancing effect was produced by the electrically lighted eyes of miniature owls held by the large chorus. Nothing more elaborate or more effective has been seen in musical comedy, and it was a triumph of stage-management. The best written item of the new numbers from the humorous point of view was "The Patchwork Garden," which, if we mistake not, bears the impress of being the work of Mr Edgar Bateman, the Cockney lyrist, who is the author of "The 'ouses in between," and a hundred or so other lyrics. It was sung as a duet by Mr Walter Passmore and Miss Florence Lloyd, and it need hardly be said that both the comedian and comedienne did it complete justice. To that excellent tenor Mr Robert Evett another solo is assigned. It is from the pens of Styles and Bucalossi, and is entitled "In a Gondola," and it met with immediate success, being rendered in the cultured style that we always look for in a singer trained in the school of "the Savoyards." Mr Evett's "Rose" song has not lost any of its popularity, and the same remark applies to "The Cosy Corner Girl," which is more daintily rendered than ever by Mr Henry A. Lytton, Miss Agnes Fraser, and a chorus of ladies in rich-looking orange and flame-coloured skirts. Mr Lytton and Miss Fraser's earlier scene of clever mimicry is rightly retained, and their artistic work is a great factor of the play's success. The dance entitled "Entente Cordiale," with music from the pen of Mr Hamish M'Cunn, who conducted, is a short international divertissement, in which representatives of the great Powers and Japan foot it in a series of graceful measures, Miss Winifred Hart Dyke being conspicuously successful therein. Mr M. R. Morand, a character actor of rare ability, continues a great success as Downham, the American solicitor, and has to oblige with a large number of extra verses in the well-written song "The Man Behind," which has a much-appreciated verse on Mr Chamberlain. Mr Ernest Torrence is as amusingly splenetic and explosive as one would expect the fierce American of farce to be; Mr Frank Elliston does not fail to emphasise the Hebraic peculiarities of Mr Talk, the English lawyer; and Mr Reginald Crompton exhibits a sense of character in the part of the landlord Mr Hazel. Miss Phyllis Broughton, who seems very little older than when she formed one of a famous quartet at the old Gaiety, is both genial and attractive as Miss Virginia Bliss; Miss Gladys Fontaine gives just the necessary touch of ill-breeding to the rôle of Mrs Shimmering Black; and Messrs Powis Pinder, Charles Childerstone, Alec Fraser, Rudolph Lewis, and J. Gordon contribute to the success in small parts. "Sammy," as sung by Miss Louie Pounds, seems to be as irresistible as ever; and the fair singer and her assistant ladies were pelted on Monday with roses. The stage-management of Mr E. W. Royce, jun., is admirable, and a word of praise should be given to Herbert for the pretty floral decorations that are used in the popular "Mediterranean" number and at the end of the second act, when the stage becomes literally a floral bower.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Modern Drama, in Four Acts, by William Bailey, jun., and Charles Berte, entitled "THE CITY OF MILLIONS."

The City of Millions, which was noticed in these columns on its production at the West London Theatre on Whit Monday, 1903, is the attraction here this week, and large and appreciative audiences are extending a cordial reception to the play, which is staged with extreme picturesqueness, and excellently interpreted by a well-balanced company. Mr Martin Sabine invests the part of the arch-villain Captain Wilfred Dread with the composure and plausibility of the consummate scoundrel; the protestations of love to the irresponsive Jessie are delivered with fervour, and the encounters with Rosa are played with the requisite address and finesse. An excellent study of Rosa De Valois is presented by Miss Madge Girdlestone, who aptly discriminates between the varied phases of the ill-starred woman's career, playing the final struggle scene with Captain Dread in act four with fine grip and nervous tension. Jessie Townsend, the long-sought heroine, is portrayed with winning freshness and girlish simplicity by Miss Kathleen Coleman, who acts with moving sincerity and true womanliness throughout. Mr Vernon Sansbury as the much-wronged hero John Stacey contributes a manly and earnest impersonation, and Mr David Denard causes amusement as the vapid Hon. Benjamin Boodle. Some delightful comedy is afforded by Mr Sam Wilkinson as an amorous dustman Bob Westwood, and by Mr Clarmont Gaskell as a susceptible policeman, Joseph Smudgely. Their efforts are loyally seconded by Miss Gladys Vernon, who is a sprightly and vivacious Kitty Taylor. Little Audrey Sutherland scores neatly as the child Jessie, and a creditable performance of Timothy Tippett is given by Miss Agnes Verity. Miss Audrey Canning is successful as Mrs Chesney, and Mr Henry Nelson displays much power as John Townsend, whilst Mr Charles Elliott is a capital Richard Goldsworthy. Miss Elaine Wilson is satisfactory as Juliet, and commendable support is rendered by Mr H. Stanley as a Bandsman, Mr A. Pickering as Inspector Ferris, and Mr F. Bowman as the Judge. Realistic stage pictures are provided by the scenes Hampstead Heath at Play and The Regent's Park Band Stand, in the latter a popular selection of music being given by the band of the 4th Volunteer Battalion Royal Fusiliers, City of London Regiment. The company is under the direction of Miss Madge Girdlestone, whose general-manager is Mr Martin Sabine.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Drama, in Four Acts, by the late Frank Harvy, entitled "THE WAGES OF SIN."

The name of the late Frank Harvey was one to conjure with for many years, both as an actor and author, and Mr George Davey in reviving for a week the above piece gives the lovers of drama in the metropolis a rarely granted opportunity of making the acquaintance of a play that for a long period was accorded unqualified success, and no doubt full advantage will be taken of the opportunity. The Wages of Sin is an excellent type of the better class drama. True, there is nothing of striking originality in the plot, but there is a sincere attempt to portray types of characters, and this, together with some exceptionally good dialogue, makes the witnessing of this play an experience which contains a welcome atmosphere of freshness. Mr Oswald Brand has again devoted his usual attention to every detail connected with the production, and a good performance was naturally the result. Mr Ernest Leicester as the Rev. George Brand acted with his accustomed fervour and distinction. He looked the part, and he acted it for all it was worth, and fully earned the applause with which his efforts were greeted. Mr Joynsen Powell as Stephen Marler played a particularly graceless part with great power and effect, his acting in the last scene being in every way cleverly conceived and artistically presented. Mr Arthur Estcourt as Josiah Deane played a poor part in his usual finished manner, and did everything possible with it. Mr J. C. Dudley as Harry Wentworth was quite adequate and successful. Mr George Elliston, who made a welcome reappearance, played Ned Drummond in his own humorous style, and was responsible for much laughter. As for the ladies, Miss Helen Bancroft as Ruth Hope is entitled to our congratulations for a very earnest and well-balanced performance; it is, in fact, one of the best things Miss Bancroft has done here. The two ladies who presented the comedy rôles are entitled to great credit for the very artistic way in which they succeeded in giving valuable and clever character studies. Indeed, Miss Calhaem demonstrated how much may be made of a comedy part, and as Mrs Bloggs presented a portrait of that worthy which was very diverting. Miss Kate Brand as her daughter, Julianna, a lady with histrionic aspirations, was equally good, her acting during the rehearsal incident in act two causing unstinted amusement and applause. Miss Naomi Neilson was good as Barbara Dale, though there is little in the part, and Miss Winifred Leeson was agreeably alert and bright as Rosa Deane. The remaining minor parts were in safe hands. The mounting of the play was on the usual complete scale here, and left nothing to be desired. There was a large audience present on Monday, and the drama was soon established as an unequivocal success. Mr Gliddon's orchestra still continues to make itself an attractive and important feature of the evening.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Drama, by the late Henry Pettitt, entitled "HANDS ACROSS THE SEA."

That the late Mr Henry Pettitt was a past master in the art of stagecraft, and that he well understood the golden methods of reaching the emotions and touching the sympathies of the public, is conclusively proven by the large audiences thronging this popular Surrey-side theatre every evening to witness an excellent representation of his romantic drama, Hands Across the Sea, by the theatre's autumn stock company. It is a good many years since Hands Across the Sea first saw the light of day, but the story unfolded is so interesting that the attention of the audience is riveted from the rise to the fall of the curtain, and hearty and spontaneous applause greets the efforts of the capable performers engaged by that enterprising actor-manager Mr Ernest E Norris. In the arduous part of Jack Dudley Mr Norris displays a grip of character that at once stamps him as an actor of infinite resource and versatility, and his fine elocutionary powers are utilised to the greatest advantage. Mr Norris is a virtual tower of strength in the piece, and he deserves every commendation for a clever characterisation of a difficult rôle. Mrs Bennett had a very cordial reception on the evening of our visit, and she achieves a notable success in the part of Lilian Milford. Possessed of a charming presence and a sympathetic voice, Mrs Bennett's acting was of the highest class, and the house was unanimous in its expressions of warm approval. Mr Edward Snow puts in some good work as Joseph Stillwood, and Mr J. C. Aubrey seems eminently adapted for the part of the rascally Robert Stillwood, and handles the scenes in which he is concerned with consummate skill and discretion. Mr Harry Paulton, jun., works energetically as Tom Bassett, and in conjunction with Miss Agnes Paulton as Lucy Nettlefold (most vivaciously played, by-the-way) is responsible for a great deal of laughter during the evening. Miss Judith Kyrle makes a fascinating Madame Valerie, and the part of Jean De Lussac receives a natural interpretation at the hands of Mr Jo Monkhouse. As Dick Milford, from Australia, Mr Charles Langley is responsible for an excellent bit of acting, and succeeds in investing the character with a touch of humour here and there that adds much to the impersonation. Mr Norman Clark gives point to his lines as Captain Land, and Mr Charles Webb is successful as Lieutenant Victor. Mr Paige Lawrence puts genuine work into his portrait of Count Paul, and makes a great hit. Mr Thomas Ball as the French Minister makes the most of a small part, and Mr Cecil Scott cleverly represents an American, Hiram Hickory. Miss Ethel Newman is very satisfactory as Polly, and Mr Alf G. Hudson adequately represents a waiter. Mr Eric Wemyss gives a good representation of Inspector Thompson, and Mr Arthur Wilson is capable as a port official. The general mounting of the drama is excellent, and Mr Norris, who is responsible for the production, deserves full credit for his work, whilst Mr J. G. Pightling, the acting-manager, works indefatigably in the front of the house.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Musical Comedy, entitled "KITTY GREY."

That charming damsel, Kitty Grey, on Monday drew a crowded house to this theatre, and from her hearty reception it is certain she will continue to do so for the week she is here. Miss Hilda Guiver in the title-part sang in cultured style, and is an accomplished actress and dancer. Miss Eile Helene, a dainty and sweet Lady Binfield, has installed herself a favourite. Miss Emily Stevens is excellent as Mrs Bright, her song being one of the most popular numbers in the play. The King of Illyria is capitally portrayed by Mr Robert Whyte, jun; Mr Robert Selby is excellent as Sir John Binfield; and Miss Constance Hamilton has little to do as Sadie De Pouison, but does that little well. Principal honours of the evening fell to Mr Leslie Harris, who as Lord Plantagenet kept the house convulsed with laughter. Mr Harris is a comedian to the backbone, and it is impossible to conceive a more amusing rendering of the part. In addition he is a dancer of great ability. The chorus sings well, the scenery and dresses are most elaborate, and Mr St. John Denton must be congratulated upon his company.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Play, by William Gillette and A. Conan Doyle, entitled "SHERLOCK HOLMES."

Mr Charles Frohman's company is appearing here this week in Mr William Gillette's exciting play Sherlock Holmes. The acting throughout is of the best, and the scenic and lightning effects are especially good. The large audience of Monday followed the thrilling adventures of the great detective closely, and gave signs of their approval in a marked manner at the close of each act. Mr H. A. Saintsbury appears in the title-rôle, and the calm manner in which he plays is most effective, the cool and collected way of dealing with each fresh adventure showing how thoroughly he had grasped the situations. Moriarty, the Napoleon of crime, has a capable representative in Mr W. F. Stirling, who portrays this scheming gentleman excellently. Mr Leslie Carter is seen to advantage as James Larrabee, and Miss Maud Linden is to be complimented on her acting of Madge Larrabee. The part of Alice Faulkner is not one which offers many possibilities, but Miss Vera Longden, who undertakes the part, leaves nothing to be desired. Mr Laurence Leyton makes an exceedingly good Dr. Watson, and Mr Marc Macdermott does good work as Forman. Sidney Prince is humorously depicted by Mr Legal Robinson; Mr Cedric Walter deserves the utmost praise for his playing of Billy, acting his part smartly and with intelligence. Among others we might mention are the Misses Doncaster and Notrelle and Messrs Kirkwood, Munro, and Fairburn. Mr Douglas Munro is responsible for the stage-management, on which he may be complimented.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 12, The Play, by Madeline Lucette Riley, entitled "MICE AND MEN."

A cordial welcome was assured beforehand to Mr Forbes Robertson, and when he appeared on Monday evening with his talented company in the successful play Mice and Men he could not have been disappointed, for Mr Mulholland's luxurious theatre was excellently filled, and the play never met with a better reception, the audience following its different phases with the utmost appreciation. At the end of each act the curtain had to be raised several times, and we think that financially, as well as artistically, Mr Forbes Robertson will have no reason to regret his first visit to the King's. In his original part of Mark Embury, the scholar with such unconventional ideas, Mr Forbes Robertson acted with all the skill with which his name is so brilliantly associated. Capital support was given by Mr Ian Robertson in the character of Roger Goodlake, and the rendering of Sir Harry Trimblestone by Mr Leon Quartermaine was in every way satisfactory. As Captain George Lovell Mr Frank Gillmore much pleased the audience by his very able acting. Mr J. H. Riley made a success in the comparatively small part of Kit Barnigar, and Peter was humorously played by Mr Ernest Cosham. Mr Guy Lane's Beadle of the Foundling Hospital was by no means to be despised. Miss Gertrude Elliott was an engaging Peggy ("Little Britain"), and the house thoroughly enjoyed her gradual conversion from the raw foundling girl to the young lady of eighteen. Mrs Joanna Goodlake was excellently sustained by Miss Auriol Lee, and Miss Ada Mellon created a good impression as Mrs Deborah, the housekeeper. Miss Minnie Griffin cut an amusing figure as the Matron of the Foundling Hospital. The young ladies who undertook the foundling girls were of more than average merit. The scenery by W. T. Hemsley was the cause of much admiration. The Light that Failed was given during the latter part of the week by Mr Forbes-Robertson and his company, and met with unequivocal success.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Lingford Carson, entitled "THE HEART OF A HERO."

This drama of Mr Carson's is a play that appeals in no uncertain fashion to the enthusiastic patrons of Mr Wm. Bailey's commodious Marylebone theatre, with the result that a very cordial reception was given to Messrs Carson and Granville's excellent company on Monday. Mr Fred W. Goddard easily carried off the chief honours as the Lancashire lad, Jem Rosdale. Both in action and speech Mr Goddard showed his sympathy with a part that might have been specially written to bring out his sound capabilities as an actor of infinite resource. Mr Charles E. Johnson as the unscrupulous Wilfred Marl quickly worked on the feelings of the house by reason of his finished portrayal of polished villainy. Mr A. B. Mackey played in a sound manner as Mark Marl; Mr G. B. Wright was a creditable Jack Collinson; Mr J. Harold was satisfactory as the chief of police, Henry Barker; and Mr Eric Forth was a warm favourite as the clever, if somewhat impulsive, detective, Dave Pritchard. Mr Allen Carruthers bore the brunt of the fun of the play on his capable shoulders, giving a thoroughly genuine display of sound humour. Miss Cissy St. Elmo sustained the trying rôle of Nell Resdale with much pathos and effect. Miss Lily Langley was sweet and winsome as the unfortunate May Ryder; Miss Ida Mackey was full of life as the pert waiting-maid, Susie Slack; whilst Miss Beatrice Hudson was duly impressive as Mrs Barker, alias Mrs Ryder. The minor characters were all in safe hands, and the piece was well mounted. Mr Chas. E. Johnson, the general manager for Messrs Carson and Granville, is the right man in the right place.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Comic Opera, in Two Acts, by G. H. Jessop, Composed by Sidney Jones, entitled "MY LADY MOLLY."

The revisit of My Lady Molly may be aptly termed a welcome one, and a very cordial reception was extended to this charming opera on Monday last on its reappearance at Mr F. W. Purcell's Stoke Newington Theatre. The company that Mr F. Mouillot has selected for the presentation of the piece is one of all-round excellence, the principals being well suited to the several parts they are called upon to fill, while the chorus display a brightness and animation above the average. In the title-rôle Miss Edmee De Dreux scores an emphatic and deserved success, and her impersonation of Lady Molly Martingale will compare more than favourably with that of any of her predecessors in the part. A very dainty and engaging Alice Coverdale is found in Miss Zoe Gilfillan, who sings, acts, and dances alike with equal grace and charm. Miss Mabel Carr is smart and bright throughout as Lady Molly's maid, Hester, and Mdlle. Ebba Darcier is in every way satisfactory as the French governess, Mdlle. Maribeau. In Mr Stephen Fitzgerald the company possesses a comedian whose work loses none of its effect by its artistic restraint, and his Micky O'Dowd, while being entirely unforced, is at the same time a genuinely funny and amusing performance. Mr Leicester Tunk's fine presence admirably fits him for the rôle of Captain Harry Romney, and his song in the second act is as well received as any number in the opera. Lionel Bland is pleasantly played and sung by Mr Harold F. Payne, and Mr H. Godwin Hunt admirably realises the bluff Sir Miles Coverdale. In parts of less importance Messrs Dan O'Regan, Cashel, and G. M'Closkie, and Misses K. Johnson, Violet Lingard, and Kate Holmes do well, whilst of the excellence of the chorus we have already spoken. Mr Leonard Leslie is the musical director of the company.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the World-Famous Play, "THE TICKET-OF-LEAVE MAN."

Mr F. W. Purcell's attraction for his numerous clientèle this week has been the old-time favourite play, The Ticket-of-Leave Man, which has proved quite to the tastes of his patrons. It would be difficult to find anyone shrewder than Mr Purcell in supplying the wants of a neighbourhood, the result being good business and a widespread popularity. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's talented company, with Mr Henry Neville in his original character of Bob Brierley at its head, have met with hearty receptions throughout the week. The fine impersonation of Bob Brierley contributed by Mr Henry Neville is wonderfully clever, considering the years that have elapsed since he first undertook the character. Possessed of first-class elocutionary powers, a pleasant voice, and a natural style, he never fails to make the most of his many opportunities. It is always pleasing to find a rôle that demands an entirely pathetic rendering cast to a clever exponent, and Miss Evelyn Weedon as May Edwards shines in the many situations in which she appears. Miss Weedon plays the part with simple and unaffected grace; she is well suited to the character, and from first to last she has with her the sympathy of the house. Groans and hoots have marked the stage careers of James Dalton, alias the Tiger, and Melter Moss, the scheming Jew, impersonated by Mr William Devereux and Mr T. W. Rawson, their success, therefore, being undeniable. A special word of praise must be accorded for the wonderful disguises effected by Mr Devereux, his make-up as an aged City man being especially good. Mr L. Cory Thomas works with unabated success as the notorious detective, Hawkshaw, and Mr William Mallalieu does some good work as the bill-broker, Mr Gibson. Mr John Mason is a capital Maltby, and in the small part of James, the waiter, Mr L. St. Clair deserves praise. Miss Adie Boyne gives a breezy rendering of young Sam Willoughby, and as the talkative Mrs Willoughby no better exponent could be found than Miss Emma Victor. Mr F. G. Thurstans is exceedingly droll as Green Jones, receiving energetic support from Miss Lily Bertram as Emily St. Evremond. The company is under the managership of Mr Alexander Telford, and Mr T. W. Rawson, in addition to his clever study of the Jew, is a capable stage-manager. Mr F. R. Yeulett is quite a model acting-manager, and Mr J. G. Kahn deserves a word of praise for the able manner in which he conducts the Marlborough orchestra.

PRINCESS OF WALES'S, KENNINGTON.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Thomas Raceward, entitled "SUNDAY."

Miss Julia Neilson and Mr Fred Terry will be quite justified in adding Sunday to the list of successes they have achieved in partnership. The piece had, as everybody knows, a prosperous run in the West-end, and on Monday a suburban audience emphatically endorsed the verdict already pronounced, a fact which goes far to justify the prophecy of a big provincial success for the play. Miss Neilson repeats her clever impersonation of the curiously named heroine, and scores in an unmistakeable manner. The character of the girl, with her plentiful lack of sophistry, comes like a fresh breeze after a procession of women principally occupied with futile introspection, and Miss Neilson's art is sufficient guarantee that none of Sunday's virility is lost She is well supported by Mr Fred Terry, whose Colonel Brinkthorpe is a clever study of a quiet and reserved English gentleman. Mr J. D. Beveridge, a thoroughly experienced actor, gives an admirable impersonation of Tom Oxley, sound at all points, a piece of work that only an artist with a thorough knowledge of his metier could give. Mr Malcolm Cherry plays the blackguardly Arthur Oxley in first-rate style, while the quartet of miners, Towzer, Davy, Lively, and Jacky could not be in better hands than those of Messrs Rothbury Evans, J. Carter Edwards, Horace Hodges, and Alfred Kendrick. Miss Bella Pateman is a clever Mrs Naresby, and Miss Adeline Bourne is quite efficient as a nun, one regretting that one should see so little of this clever lady. The cast is completed by Mr Ernest Imeson as Abbot. The mounting is quite adequate.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Melo-Farce, by Cecil Raleigh, entitled "THE FLOOD TIDE."

Good business is being done at the Dalston Theatre this week, where Mr C. Lubbock's company is presenting the Drury-lane piece, The Flood Tide. The four acts, including twelve scenes, are played with commendable exactness, and the stage pictures most admired are, perhaps, the Paddock, Kempton-park; a front view of the Reservoir, Blackmere (where the flood occurs); Col. Corry's House in Mayfair; and the view of a railway station. One of the most interesting characters in the play is Macnaughton, the diamond king, and the kind of "polite lunatic" of the story. This somewhat difficult part is well played by Mr Edward W. Maule-Cole, who is greeted with quite enthusiastic cheers when at last he announces that he has "got his boots on." Mr William Seguin as Captain Jack Champion, V.C., Mr Alec Flood as Dick Champion, and Mr Conrad Franklyn as the Earl of Sutton sustain characters that are important in the story, but special mention must be made of Mr Maitland Marler as George Wellington Clipp, a part affording fine opportunities for comedy which are not missed by the actor. Mr T. Ashton Winslow also affords amusement as Billy Bunn. Miss Ella Anderson, who is specially engaged to play the Baroness Pitchioli, certainly surrounds that character with a good deal of interest, putting all the necessary amount of power into the most forcible scenes, while she is equally interesting in the lighter passages. Miss Kathleen Russell acts well as Marie Pitchioli; Miss Marie Wright is deservedly popular as Polly Champion, being in evidence in every scene; and Miss Seymour Hodges scores as Mabel Corry. Miss Nellie Audley is also well placed as Mrs Meredith, while Miss Jessie Williams plays Matilda and Miss Ethel Enever Madame Muriel. Mr W. Roberts as Sir Valentine De Relique, Mr Herbert Legerton as Menotti Derago, Mr Sydney Vauties as Roderick O'Grieff, and Mr Frank James as Podmore Blackman each imbue the parts alloted to them with living interest. Others in the cast include Mr Sydney Teversham, Mr Henry Ogden, Mr Edward Rose, Mr D. J. Hennessy, Mr Leonard J. Watson, Mr F. Ault, Mr W. Smith, Mr G. Holloway, Mr T. Williams, Mr J. Temple, and Mr A. Fisher.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Military Drama, in Four Acts, by Seymour Hicks and George Edwardes, entitled "ONE OF THE BEST."

The title is decidedly appropriate to this melodrama, for it has proved itself one of the best by the long run it has had and the continued favour it meets with from the public. It has once more visited the Shakespeare, and once again it has met with success, good houses ruling throughout the week. The hero, Lieut. Dudley Keppel, had a fine manly representative in Mr Sanley Bedwell, who thoroughly earned the applause he received. Mr E. Bellenden Clarke was successful as the villain, Philip Elsworth; and Miss Helen Haye as Esther Coventry, his companion in crime, was received with mingled hisses and applause. Mr W. Templer Powell was good as a foreign government agent and spy; Miss Jeanette Le Gros was winsome as the heroine, Mary Penrose; and the rector, her father, had an excellent representative in Mr Wilfred Beckworth. Mr H F. Maltby as Lieut.-General Coventry, in command at Portsmouth, gave a vigorous and acceptable rendering of the part, as did also Mr William M'Allum as President of the Court Martial. Mr George Hart was capital as Sir Archibald M'Gregor. To Mr Beard Randall as Sergeant Hennessy fell the unpleasant duty of stripping the hero of his medals and facings, which he carried out with such determination as to harrow the feelings of the audience. The necessary comic relief was supplied in a manner so fully appreciative as at times to stop the progress of the play by Mr Herbert Darnley as Private Jupp and Miss Lilla Nordon as his sweetheart, Kitty Spencer, while Mr Charles Medwin as Jason, a gravedigger, supplied additional comical elements, in which he was ably seconded by Miss Nellie Gilmore as the mother of Kitty, and landlady of the Nut and Squirrel public-house. The minor parts were well filled, and the two military bands and the eighty additional soldiers filled the barrack-square with moving masses of colour to the delight of the audience.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled "THE SILVER KING."

That perennial attraction, The Silver King, is playing to splendid business at the Stratford Borough Theatre this week. Messrs G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company give a thoroughly praiseworthy interpretation of the piece, which is mounted in exemplary style. Mr Austin Melford repeats his finished and artistic performance as Wilfred Denver, his incisive and well-defined portraiture eliciting frequent applause. Mr Charles Levey hits off exactly the cool and callous nature of Captain Herbert Skinner, thus rendering the character particularly obnoxious to the "gods." Mr C. C. Grattan's embodiment of the faithful Jaikes is a most acceptable piece of acting, and the crafty old reprobate, Elijah Coomba, is realistically portrayed by Mr Arthur H. Rooke. Corkett is smartly played by Mr James L. Power; Cripps is cleverly enacted by Mr C. P. Amalia; and Mr Arnold E. Palmer makes the most of his opportunities as Geoffrey Ware. Miss Emelie Polina plays with much charm and expression as Nellie Denver, and carries the sympathies of the audience throughout. Miss Phyllis Dailly is very successful in the rôle of Olive Skinner, and Miss Amy Wood as Tabitha Durdan and Miss Dolly Norton as Mrs Gammage contribute clever performances in their respective parts, while Miss Amy Manfree is deserving of a special word of praise for her promising performance as Little Cissy. Minor parts in a long cast are played with ability.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 12, for the First Time in London, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Clifford Rean, entitled "A TEMPTER OF WOMEN."

Kate, Lady Gunislake	Miss NESTA SANFORD
Rhoda Sleath	Miss NELLY MURRAY
Polly Phillipino	Miss LILLY LLOYD
Dobson	Miss MARY WHITCOMB
Jerry Blythe	Mr CLIFTON RONALD
Benjamin Isaacs	Mr DAVID PHILLIPS
Duke Allthere Phillipino	Mr HAROLD WESTON
Bill Sleath	Mr HARRY HOUSDEN
Harold Vaughan	Mr SYDNEY T. PEASE
Reeves Delemere	Mr FORBES MURRAY
Little Lord Gunislake	Miss JESSIE GILLETTE
Horatio Buskin	Mr CLIFFORD REAN

All that is expected of a villain is realised in the nom-rôle of A Tempter of Women, which was produced at Stratford on Monday, but to what circumstance of his stage career he owes the titular appellation is not quite clear, nor is it of paramount importance. Enough that the working out of his machinations becomes thrilling in the extreme to a popular audience and provides them with sufficient excitement to keep them engrossed during the whole evening. An element of the picturesque is obtained by the introduction of a travelling circus, the opportunities for fun thus presented resulting in merriment which at times grows uproarious. As the plot of the piece was dealt with exhaustively in these columns on its production at the Theatre Royal, Aston, on July 25, only the merest outline of the incidents is necessary. Tribulation sets in early for the heroine of the piece, Kate, Countess of Gunislake, who has married the elderly Lord Gunislake in order to preserve her father from financial ruin, leaving her lover, Harold Vaughan, to languish forlorn in Australia. The Earl dies, leaving behind him a son and heir, who is stolen by Reeve Delemere, the Earl's cousin, to whom, but for the Earl's marriage, the estates would fall. In the second act the young Earl has been missing for twelve years, having been sought in vain by his widowed mother. By the action of the Court of Chancery he is presumed dead, and unless the boy is produced within fourteen days the inheritance goes to Delemere. Then from the "Never Never Land" comes the valiant Harold Vaughan, who soon gets upon the scent of the boy, who is eventually found to be travelling with Phillipino's Menagerie, having been abducted by Bill Sleath, the strong man of the company. The youth is known as Toby, the "boy lion-tamer," and as his identity is in danger of being disclosed Delemere arranges with Bill Sleath to secure the boy's death by keeping the lion without food so that it may attack the lad when he enters the cage. The plot works out favourably, but just as the animal, maddened by hunger, prepares to spring on Toby, a shot from Harold's revolver kills the brute, and the boy's life is saved. He is restored to his friends, but is recaptured by Sleath and handed over to Delemere, who endeavours to drown him in an old reservoir, but the villain himself is caught by his own trap, and a thrilling rescue of the boy is made, in which a flash of lightning plays a prominent part, Harold and the widowed Lady Gunislake, whose love has never declined, being reunited.

The piece is liberally furnished with incidents both interesting and comic, which are well brought out by Messrs Clifford Rean and Sydney T. Pease's company, Mr Rean playing the part of Horatio Buskin, a strolling actor, to whom most of the comic lines are allotted. Apt quotations from Shakespeare are as frequent as blackberries on the hedgerows, and the effect which he obtains from their recital is unfailingly hilarious. A hero stalwart and bold is made of Harold Vaughan by Mr Sydney T. Pease, whose gallant speeches never miss fire, and whose acting bears the mark of true sincerity. Miss Nesta Sanford renders with gentleness and grace the rôle of Lady Gunislake, playing with refinement and consistent gradations of emotion. To Mr Forbes Murray is entrusted the presentation of Reeves Delemere, and the actor never swerves in his duty of making him the embodiment of vice, even though he forfeits entirely the esteem of Stratford's virtuous citizens. Brightness and animation are the characteristics of Miss Lilly Lloyd in the part of Polly, the charming daughter of Duke Allthere Phillipino, a rôle enacted by Mr Harold Weston, who makes a popular personage of the worthy proprietor of the menagerie. A burly Bill Sleath is provided by Mr Harry Housden, who deserves a special compliment on the distinctness of his utterance and on his passionate energy. Miss Nelly Murray as Rhoda Sleath draws a vivid picture of the Gipsy wife. A liberal contributor to the fun of the piece is found in Mr Clifton Ronald, who furnishes some merry moments as Jerry Blythe, a publican who aspires to enter the lion's cage, and assistance in the laughter-making is also given by Mr David Phillips as Benjamin Isaacs, a Jew money-lender; Miss Jessie Gillette being also commendable for a perfectly natural rendition of little Lord Gunislake.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Drama, by Frederick Melville, entitled "HER FORBIDDEN MARRIAGE."

On Monday Mr Fredk. Melville's company, in this recently produced drama, met with a most gratifying reception from critical Brixtonians. The company engaged is rich in histrionic talent, and does every justice to the cleverly written play. As George Maddison Mr Horace Hunter submits a manly and refined embodiment. Mr Clarence Hague adds laurels to his already commendable reputation in his particularly fine impersonation of the unscrupulous Charles Devereux. The part of Geoffrey Broughton is admirably played by Mr J. Ansdell Wilson. Mr Charles Willowby is seen to conspicuous advantage as John Williams. Mr Gilbert Heron makes the most of the part of the Rev. Mr Dean, whilst as Dr. Fenwick Mr W. Browning is commendable. Miss Emily Hughes as the Mother of the Convent presents a beautiful and sympathetic portrayal. The Lady Lucretia Lancaster as portrayed by Miss Doris Brookes is indeed a real personage. As Sir George Ward Mr Charles Carte brings all his experience to bear, and submits a most praiseworthy reading. As Lucy Miss Isla Garnet Vayne merits the highest eulogy. The smaller parts are all in capital hands, and Mr F. Melville has reason to congratulate himself upon the whole production.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Drama, by Geo. R. Sims, entitled "LIGHTS O' LONDON."

An enthusiastic audience welcomed the appearance of Mr Herbert Hollister's company in this popular play on Monday evening, paying rapt attention to the intensely human phases of the squalid side of London life. The Harold Armytage of Mr Cecil E. Calvert is marked by self-restraint; and the Bess of Miss Jeannie Burgoyne is effective. Mr Percy Compton is full of humour as the Crummles-like Jarvis, and Miss Emilie Dawson, an excellent Mrs Jarvis, and Miss Gladys Murray, a pert Shakespeare Jarvis, admirably support him in some good, old-fashioned merry-making. Mr J. W. Mackay is a taciturn Jim. Mr F. V. Lloyd is good as Squire Armytage; Clifford Armytage has an able exponent in Mr Albert Brasque; Mr H. Hollister is responsible for a fine performance of the burly keeper, Seth Preene, the impassioned scenes of remorse being especially strong. Philosopher Jack is highly entertaining in the hands of Mr Ernest R. Nelson; and the eccentricities of the penniless Percy De Vere are made very droll by Mr Reginald Gear. Miss Kate Randolph scores well as Hetty Preene, and Miss Ida Murray is smart as the street arab, Joey. Several minor parts are intelligently filled, and the mounting of the drama is magnificent.

NEW EALING THEATRE.

"FLORODORA."

Messrs H. J. Callan and Wentworth Croke's company is here in Florodora. The bright comedy, the musical charm, and the tinge of romance that are the salient features of this delightful comic opera have been most heartily appreciated by the playgoers of Ealing, and Mr Arthur Carlton's beautiful theatre has been largely attended during the week. Mr Willie Everard is an admirable exponent of Frank Abercoed, and sings excellently. Mr C. Young Fixott scores as Cyrus W. Gilfain. Mr Frank Graus as Captain Arthur Donegal is seen and heard to great advantage, his rendering of "I want to be a military man" being specially noteworthy. Mr A. Coleby does well as Leandra. Mr Arthur Lenville is a comical exponent of Anthony Tweedlepunch. Miss Dorothy Sephton makes good use of her opportunities as Lady Holyrood, and her singing is much admired. Miss May Yates is a lively Angela Gilfain, and Miss Violet Bronson wins favour by her charming embodiment of Dolores, doing every justice to the songs allotted her.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH-END.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Domestic Drama, in Three Acts, entitled
"SWEET LAVENDER."

This popular play is being presented here under the direction of Mr Russell Rosse. Mr Arthur Munro plays well as Geoffrey Wedderburn, the banker, whose adopted son Clement Hale receives excellent treatment from Mr François Cellier, jun. Mr Leslie Carter supplies a skilful characterisation of the fashionable physician, Dr. Delaney. Mr W. F. Laney scores in the part of Dick Phenyl, whose drolleries are amusingly illustrated. Mr James Geldard smartly plays the American Horace Bream. Mr Maw, the solicitor, is made the most of by Mr Clarence Pelham, and Mr Fred Clive is responsible for the part of the hairdresser, Mr Bulger. As Mrs Gilfillian, the widow, Miss Leonora Braham (Mrs Duncan Young) wins praise, being quite at home in the rôle. Miss Ida Phillips does ample justice to the part of Minnie. Miss Ethel Verne is good as Ruth Rolt, and contributes a dainty and pleasing picture of Lavender. The play, which was thoroughly successful, was produced by Mr F. Laney, who deserves commendation. A more than usually acceptable item in the comedietta, A Pair of Lunatics, precedes, in which the lessee, Mr Duncan Young, made his reappearance on the boards as He. He was ably assisted by Miss Edith Hesketh as She.

BROADWAY THEATRE, NEW-CROSS.

On Monday, Sept. 12.
"THE SWISS EXPRESS."

The popular Renad Brothers are here and are giving unbounded satisfaction to large audiences in the successful musical pantomimical comedy entitled The Swiss Express. Messrs Charles and Frederick Renad are responsible for much of the merriment by reason of their mirth-provoking impersonations of James and John. Excellent support is rendered by Mr Wilford Bailey as Dr. Gondimar Gull, Mr George Martin as Bob Rollingstone, Mr Alec Wylie as Dudley Green, and Mr H. Alexander as Septimus Squeeze. Other parts are capitally acted by Mr George Power (Rhino), Mr Harwood Cooper (Jack and Admiral), Mr Cecil Barrett (the Gendarme), Mr Fred Strachan, Mr Joe Clark, and Messrs Russell Johnstone, Cooke, Mason, and Leloire. Miss Nellie Fern is an amusing Mrs Septimus Greeen, and Miss Marie Milward is a delightful Virginia, and the four maids at the Black Bear are charmingly impersonated by Miss Rosie Chandler, Miss May Cornish, Miss Dolly Payne, and Miss Hetty Coventry.

GREENWICH THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Sensational Drama, entitled
"THE RED BARN."

Mr W. H. Melrose and company are fulfilling a six nights' engagement at this theatre. The performance of the drama is well received, and much applause is awarded Miss Issa Steel, Miss Lizzie Moorley, and Mr W. H. Melrose for their capital singing. Mr George Steel plays Clement Carlton in a style which wins many plaudits from the popular parts of the house. Mr Leo Rodway plays William Carlton carefully and effectively. Mr W. H. Melrose causes much amusement by his really humorous impersonation of Jerry Updike. A well-trained donkey is introduced with good effect. Miss Issa Steele acts Lucy in pleasing style. Miss Lily Winter gives a highly dramatic representation of Mary Menton, and Miss Lizzie Moorley is a bright and attractive Betty. The remaining characters are in good hands.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Musical Play, entitled
"THE CHERRY GIRL."

True to his policy of providing his patrons with every form of dramatic entertainment in turn, Mr Sounes this week has secured Mr R. C. Lubbock's company in the delightful musical fantasy The Cherry Girl, which has met with a most gratifying reception. Miss Elsie Molloy was charmingly easy and natural as the Queen, her acting and singing soon making her a general favourite. Her song "I want to be naughty just for once," was one of the hits of the evening. Mr H. Herbert was entirely successful as Moonshine, and proved himself a worthy successor of Mr Seymour Hicks, the original exponent of the part. Mr Herbert has evidently carefully studied his predecessor's methods, but has at the same time brought his own talents to bear on the part, with the result that his representation has an individuality of its own, and is by no means a slavish imitation. He and Miss Molloy made the utmost of their comic scenes together, the imitation of Datas and the travesty of a few lines of melodrama being particularly well received. Miss Julia Viders, a refined Silvia, has a good voice that was heard to great effect in her song in the first act, which, prettily accompanied by a chorus blowing soap bubbles, was one of the most successful numbers of the evening. Miss Dorothy Frostick retains her original part of Mdlle. Pas Bas, dancing as cleverly and gracefully and securing as loud applause as at the Vaudeville. Mr Fred Le Franc gave a humorous performance as the Monkey and the Donkey, and with the aid of Master J. Sako as the Rose of the Riviera was responsible for much laughter. Master Harry Williams, who played Snowball, and Little Decima Brooke, who supported him, are a couple of clever children; Miss Katie May did well as the real cherry seller; and the glee singing of the Avondale Quartette, with the dancing of Miss Lottie Stone's troupe, were notable features of the entertainment. The chorus was well dressed, pretty, and tuneful and rendered the concerted numbers with good effect.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Sept. 12, the Drama, by Arthur Shirley, entitled
"THE MIDNIGHT MAIL."

Mr Arthur Shirley's realistic drama The Midnight Mail was the attraction here on Monday. Messrs Dottridge and Longden have gathered together an unusually strong company of artists for a highly successful production, which is under the able management of Mr James Willard. The cast includes Mr Geo. Harvard, who takes the part of Harry Steyne, an engine driver, who becomes a great favourite. Mr Fred G. Evison plays the difficult and trying rôle of Billy Brewer, a drunken stoker, and his sinister rendering proves him an accomplished actor; Mr Alec Alves as Leonard Royle, an African explorer, is particularly good, especially in his denunciation of Hassan Padishah, whom he ultimately brings to justice. The latter character is ably taken by Mr Arthur Gilroy, who makes a great hit. Mr Chas. M'Cann as Donald Craig creates an excellent impression, being repeatedly applauded. Miss Ada Oakley as Mary Steyne, the engine-driver's wife, is extremely pathetic in her rendering, and her acting is much admired. Miss Mildred Carr plays with considerable vim the lively rôle of Nancy Brewer; and Miss Nellie Steventon makes an ideal Lady Phyllis Eustace.

PRINCE OF WALES'S, RICHMOND.

"A CHINESE HONEYMOON."

Mr Geo. Dance this week presents the ever-popular musical play A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr Helier Le Maistre is an imposing Emperor Hang Chow, and Mr Rudolph Kloss an admirable Lord Chancellor Chipple Chop. The Lord High Admiral, Hi Lung, is capably rendered by Mr Lennox Barry, and Mr Clifford Morgan is bright and effective as Tom Hatherton, his song in the second act being vociferously redemanded. Mr Gus Wheatman as Mr Pineapple gives a capital performance of the part, and his drolleries thoroughly amuse an appreciative house. Miss Elsie Carew is a most effective Mrs Brown, the "official mother-in-law," and the Misses Curtis and Pennington play prettily as Yen-Yen and Sing-Sing, the maids of honour to Soo-Soo. The last-named lady is charmingly represented by Miss Nellie Wigley, and the Mrs Pineapple of Miss Dot Stephens is a vivacious and clever performance. The all-important part of Fi-Fi is entrusted to Miss Gwennie Harcourt, whose rendering is exceedingly humorous. The chorus, scenery, and costumes are alike above reproach.

MISFORTUNES AT SEA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—It is apparently well known in this island that an accident occurred to the steamer Douglas on her passage from Liverpool on Sunday night last. She left the Salisbury Dock at the appointed time, 11·0 p.m., and made a good passage until nearing the island (about 2½ or 3 miles from Douglas Bay), when her steering gear broke down. I believe the rudder was either smashed or carried away entirely. This occurred shortly after 4·0 a.m. on the following (Monday) morning. Thus disabled, it was impossible to proceed further without assistance. The captain, evidently an able and experienced seaman, immediately signalled the Steam Packet Company by means of flags and the steam-whistle, notwithstanding which four hours were allowed to elapse before receiving any assistance. At 8·0 o'clock or thereabouts another vessel, the Mona, of the same owners (Isle of Man Steam Packet Company), came out and attempted to take us in tow, but the hawsers snapped and she went back again, leaving us where we were. Later on she returned, and there was much shouting between the two vessels. Our captain received the advice, or orders—which it was, of course, I did not know—to let go his anchors and ride out the storm. The Mona once more sheered off, and our anchors were dropped. The indescribable suffering and terrors of those on board, which included My Lady Molly company as well as ourselves, particularly the ladies of both companies, for the next twenty-two or twenty-three hours that we remained, held only by our anchors and battered by the heavy seas, can be well imagined. Everybody on board had a full knowledge that had the anchors dragged or the cable parted we should have drifted on to the lee shore and have become in all probability a total wreck, for it was not until six o'clock on Tuesday morning that the powerful steam tug the Kingfisher came to our assistance and brought us safely in.

The misfortunes of this night were in all conscience bad enough to endure had they been absolutely unavoidable, but I contend that they were not. Why, in the first place, were four hours allowed to elapse before the Mona came out to see what she could do? Why, after she proved useless to aid us, was not an urgent cable immediately sent to the Kingfisher in the Mersey to put to sea at once to succour us? Had that been promptly done she would have reached us in some five or six hours, and both companies—Miss Freear's Boy Bob and My Lady Molly—could have been landed in time for their respective performances, instead of which the two Douglas theatres had on the Monday night to be closed, involving a serious financial loss to all concerned, to say nothing of the callous indifference to human suffering displayed by the Steam Packet Company, who seemingly preferred to delay cabling to Liverpool for the tug until the danger to their own vessel absolutely necessitated it in their own interests. Yours faithfully,

B. SOANE ROBY,
Business Manager for Louie Freear and the Boy Bob company.
Gaiety Theatre, Douglas, Sept. 13.

HUMPERDINCK'S new opera, in three acts, Die Heirat wider Willen (The Forced Marriage), is to be produced in Berlin in January. The official list of novelties contemplated at Berlin includes no mention of either of Richard Strauss's new operas, but promises new productions of The Ring and Tannhäuser.

AT the Royal Victoria Jubilee Hall, Weymouth, Messrs Percy D. Standing and Monckton Hoffe's company has been appearing this week with the farcical romance, His Excellency the Governor. The title-rôle was in the able hands of Mr Percy D. Standing, who did full justice to the part; and Mr Monckton Hoffe was good as the Right Hon. Henry Carlton, M.P. Mr William Allison as Mr John Baverstock and Mr Charles Brandon as Captain Rivers were an excellent pair, and were deservedly well received. Miss Nona Hoffe as Stella De Gex was very amusing and fresh. Miss Isabel Grey as Mrs Bolingbroke and Miss Joan Ellis as Ethel Carlton also did well. The principal piece was preceded by the one-act play, The Lady who Dwelt in the Dark, by Monckton Hoffe, in which Mr Harold Sims scored as Frederick Pym, M.D. The remaining characters were ably performed by Messrs Standing and Hoffe and Miss Joan Ellis.

AT the usual weekly meeting of the council, held last Tuesday, Clarence Bell, Hermione Shaw, and Harold Payne were nominated as candidates for election as members of the Actors' Association. The hon. solicitors reported the receipt of certain monies in settlement of members' claims for arrears of salary, &c. They were requested to apply on behalf of a member for payment of salary due. A member attended before the council, and having stated the particulars concerning his claim, the hon. solicitors were requested to look into the matter on his behalf. The secretary reported that a case recently referred to arbitration had been withdrawn, as the member making the claim did not wish to proceed further in the matter. A question having arisen as to the determination of an engagement by notice, and one of the parties having attended before the council and given explanations, the hon. solicitors were requested to write to the other on the subject. The question as to the appointment of an hon. medical officer at a provincial town having been discussed, the secretary received instructions to deal with the matter.

RULES AND REGULATIONS WITH REGARD TO THEATRES IN THE JURISDICTION OF THE LORD CHAMBERLAIN.

1. The name or names and private address or addresses of the actual and responsible manager or managers must be printed in legible type at the head of each bill announcing any representation at his or their theatre; and such manager or managers shall become bound each in the penal sum of three hundred pounds, and two sufficient sureties for each manager in the sum of fifty pounds each, for the due observance from time to time during the currency of the licence, of each and all of the rules in force at the date when the licence is granted, for the regulation of such theatre, and for securing payment of any penalties which such manager or managers may be adjudged to pay for breach of the said rules, or any of the provisions of the Acts of the 6th and 7th Vic., chap. 68, and 41 and 42 Vic., chap. 32.

2. Applications for licence, with the names and addresses of the actual and responsible manager or managers and of his or their two or four proposed sureties, who must be resident householders and ratepayers, must be forwarded to the Lord Chamberlain's office at least seven clear days before the day for which the licence is required.

3. Theatre licences are granted only for buildings in which the Lord Chamberlain's regulations can be carried out, and on the express condition that these and every other reasonable and practicable precaution against fire or the dangers arising therefrom are adopted.

4. The manager or managers will be held solely and entirely responsible for the carrying out of the Lord Chamberlain's regulations (which must be printed and posted in the theatre), for the management of his or their theatre before and behind the curtain, and for the safety of the public and the members of the company.

5. Theatre licences are granted for one year, from Nov. 1, and also for shorter periods, but all licences cease on Oct. 31, and are issued subject to the observance of these rules and regulations.

Upon the breach of any of the above rules or regulations, the Lord Chamberlain may, at his discretion, revoke the licence, whereupon the same shall forthwith cease to be valid.

6. It is expected that all alterations suggested and approved by the Lord Chamberlain for the safety and convenience of the public will be carried out before the issue of the annual licence.

EXITS AND ENTRANCES.

7. All doors and barriers must open outwards, and the management must allow the public to leave by all exit and entrance doors, which must be thrown open for the use of the audience at the end of the performance.

8. Sufficient gangways, passages, and staircases, for the exit of the audience, must be provided and kept entirely free from chairs or any other obstructions, whether permanent or temporary, and the audience are not permitted either to sit or stand in such gangways.

9. The corridors must not be used as cloak rooms, and no pegs for hanging hats or cloaks shall be allowed therein.

10. All exits from the theatre used by the public must be plainly indicated in 7-inch letters over such exits and placed at a height of at least 6 feet 9 inches above the floor level.

11. The words "No Exit" must be clearly printed in 7-inch letters and when and where practicable placed at a height of at least 6 feet 9 inches above the floor level over all doors and openings which are in sight of the audience, but which do not lead to exits.

All doors, except those marked "No Exit," must, if fastened during the time the public are in the theatre, be secured during such time by approved automatic bolts only.

12. All curtains covering doors, or in passages, must be hung so as not to trail on the floor.

13. Each exit door from the auditorium and stage must have a distinct light fitted over it, such light to illuminate the exit notice, and to be maintained throughout the performance.

14. All exit doors must have a notice clearly painted on them indicating the method of opening them.

FIRE APPLIANCES AND PRECAUTIONS.

15. An ample water supply, where possible on the high pressure main, with hose and pipes must be available to all parts of the house.

16. The safety curtain fitted in the proscenium opening must be lowered daily in the presence of the audience, about the middle of the performance, so as to ensure the arrangements being in proper working order. There must be a note in all programmes and playbills stating this fact. Any failure in the working of the safety curtain must be communicated at once to the Lord Chamberlain.

17. An inscription of the following nature must be exhibited on the fire-resisting screen:—"Safety curtain." The notice must be exhibited in sufficiently large letters that can be read from all parts of the house.

18. Whenever the curtain is lowered all lights in the auditorium which are not controlled from the stage switch-board must be lighted.

19. No wires, &c., in connection with gymnastic or other displays, or any other apparatus, must be allowed to interfere in any way with the lowering of the safety curtain.

20. Communication must be established between a point on the stage in close proximity to the releasing gear to the safety curtain and the telephone alarm in connection with the nearest fire brigade station.

21. Wet blankets or rugs, and buckets filled with water must be always kept in the wings and flies and the approaches to dressing-rooms; and attention must be directed to them by placards legibly printed or painted, and fixed over them. Some person must be responsible for keeping the blankets, buckets, &c., ready for immediate use.

22. Hatchets, hooks, or other means to cut down hanging scenery in case of fire, must be always in readiness.

The Committee of the House of Commons, in their Report on Fires in Theatres in 1877, recommend "with respect to the daily management of the theatre, naked lights should be protected; inflammable materials should not be allowed to be placed where they are likely to catch fire; the hose and other apparatus should be maintained in good order; the passages should be kept clear, and a plan settled beforehand of what should be done in the case of a fire or panic, each of the employees being instructed as to the place he is to take, and the duties he is to perform, and all being occasionally drilled together for the purpose."

23. The regulations as to fire must be always posted in some conspicuous place, so that all persons belonging to the theatre may be acquainted with their contents. A report of any fire, or alarm of fire, however slight, must be at once sent to the Lord Chamberlain's office and to the Fire Brigade.

24. If a temporary proscenium be required it must be formed of non-inflammable material.

25. Where performances are regularly given, and where scenery is used, at least one fireman must be employed during the entertainment. The responsibility as regards the employment of such men must rest, as at present, with the management.

26. Druggets or crumb cloths where used must be secured so as to be in no way liable to rucking, or to be in any way a source of danger to members of the audience.

27. A sufficient number of employees must have definite duties allotted to them in the event of fire or panic, and statements of such duties must be posted up in conspicuous positions. Dry fire drills must be held at least once a week in all theatres.

28. All open fire-places or stoves must be protected by strong fixed iron wire guards and fenders, part of which may be made to open for all necessary purposes.

29. All scenery, wings, sky borders, and cloths, whether on the stage, in the auditorium, or in other parts of the premises, must be rendered and maintained non-inflammable as far as practicable.

LIGHTING.

30. All fixed and ordinary gas burners, whether about the stage or other parts of the theatre, must be furnished with efficient guards. Movable and occasional lights must be, where possible, protected in the same manner, or put under the charge of persons responsible for lighting, watching, and extinguishing them. The service of light for the auditorium and entrance passages must be separate from that of the stage.

An additional means of lighting, for use in the event of the principal system failing, must be provided in the auditorium, corridors, passages, exits, and staircases, and if oil or candle lamps are used for this purpose they must be of an approved pattern, properly fixed to an uninflammable base, out of reach of the public as far as practicable.

Such lamps must be kept alight during the whole time the public are in the premises, and no mineral oil must be used in them.

31. The footlights and floats must be protected by wire guards.

32. The rows or lines of gas burners at wings must commence four feet at least from the level of the stage, and must be protected by fixed iron wire guards.

33. All gas taps within reach of the audience must be made secret. All gas pipes must be made of iron or brass. All gas burners must be protected by glass or wire globes.

34. Where there is an electrical installation a properly qualified man must be in charge of such installation.

35. In all cases in which it is desired to instal temporary lighting, notice must be given to the clerk of the London County Council, in writing, as long as possible before it is desired to commence the work.

Wires and cables must be adequately and firmly fixed, and must be similar to the wires specified in the London County Council's regulations, and in all cases where the wires are within reach of the public they must be cased.

All joints must be soldered and taped if used for more than one week, and if used less than a week the wire must be soldered, if larger than 7-20 S.W.G. or its equivalent. In either case the joints must be taped.

The circuits must be sub-divided as much as possible, no sub-circuit exceeding ten amperes.

All temporary work must be immediately removed when no longer required for the purpose for which it was installed.

In the case of temporary work on the stage, all connections to the permanent installation must be removed immediately after each performance in which they are used unless permission be obtained to the contrary.

Such special conditions as may be requisite in each case will be attached to the consent of the London County Council to the use of temporary electrical work.

36. All main switches, fuses, &c., which are the property of the electric supply company must be distinguished by being coloured red with a white band.

37. At least one pair of indiarubber gloves must be provided for the use of the electricians in connection with the electric lighting arrangements as a precaution in the event of a high voltage occurring. The gloves must be kept on the stage switch-board, and be kept in good order.

38. At least one bucket, filled with dry sand, must be kept in some accessible position on the stage in readiness for use in dealing with an electric fire, and one must also be kept in each of the intake rooms.

STRUCTURE, SEATING, &c.

39. No structural alterations must be made in the theatre without the sanction of the Lord Chamberlain's Department.

40. Counter-weights, where possible, must be carried to the walls of the buildings. This regulation need not apply to existing theatres, but the ropes attached to the counter-weights must be constantly tested.

41. No decoration, or construction for the purpose of decoration, must be employed in the dressing-rooms which does not adhere without any cavities to the surface of the wall.

42. The seating area assigned to each person must not be less than 2ft. deep and 1ft. 6in. wide in all parts of the house where no backs or arms are provided to the seats, and not less than 2ft. 4in. deep by 1ft. 8in. wide where backs or arms are provided. In all cases, however, there must be a space of at least one foot in depth between the front of one seat and the back of the next measured between perpendiculars.

The above regulation shall not apply to the seating now in existence except in cases where it is proposed to re-arrange the seating or to alter the premises.

43. Before any alterations are made in the seating or in the arrangements of the premises, the person or persons in whose name or names the licence is granted must submit full particulars and a plan to the Lord Chamberlain's department for approval.

44. Where chairs are used they must be battened together at a distance of not less than 1ft. 8in. from centre to centre where they have arms, and 1ft. 6in. where they are without arms, and in lengths of not less than four nor more than twelve in a section.

GENERAL REMARKS AND REGULATIONS.

45. Admission must be given at all times to the officers authorised by the Lord Chamberlain and the Police.

46. No exhibition of wild beasts or dangerous performances is permitted on the stage. No women or children must be hung from the flies, or fixed in positions from which they cannot release themselves.

47. No masquerade or public ball is permitted in the theatre without the consent of the Lord Chamberlain.

48. No encouragement must be given to improper characters to assemble, or to ply their calling in the theatre.

49. Refreshments may be sold in the theatre during the hours of performance only to the audience and company engaged in the house, and only in positions which do not interfere with the convenience and safety of the audience.

50. No smoking is permitted in the auditorium, the orchestra, the green rooms, the dressing-rooms, the wings, or within the precincts of the stage, except so far as may be necessary on the stage in connection with the performance.

51. Overcrowding in such a manner as to endanger the safety of the public must not be permitted in any part of the premises.

52. All check-boxes must be fixed and placed in such positions that they will not obstruct exit.

LICENSING OF PLAYS.

53. A copy of every new stage play intended for production must be forwarded to the Examiner of Plays, Lord Chamberlain's Department, by the manager or managers of the theatre at least seven days before the date of production, and earlier when circumstances will permit.

54. Copies of all play bills must be sent to the Lord Chamberlain's Office every Monday, and when a change of performance is announced.

55. Notice of the change of title of a piece must be given to the Examiner of Plays.

56. No profanity or impropriety of language is permitted on the stage.

57. No indecency of dress, dance, or gesture is permitted on the stage.

58. No offensive personalities or representations of living persons is permitted on the stage, or anything calculated to produce riot or breach of the peace.

"THE AXIS."

A Comedy, in Three Acts, by Cyril Harcourt, Produced at Worthing Theatre Royal, on Monday, Sept. 12.

Aubrey Warren	Mr SCOTT BUIST
Professor Eustace Warren	Mr WALTER RUSSELL
Patrick Muriel, M.D.	Mr MAURICE MANCINI
Benjy Corcoran	Mr ATHOL STEWART
Admiral Sir Hugh Ventry, Bart.	Mr W. R. STAVELEY
Hugh Ventry	Mr HUGH ARDALE
Martin	Mr ARTHUR CURTIS
Lady Wakefield	Miss MARIANNE CALDWELL
Lady Ventry	Miss CLAIRE PAUNCEFORT
Helen Ventry	Miss INA ROYLE
Vicky Ventry	Miss IERNE FITZGERALD
Lady Marjorie Royle	Miss MADGE M'INTOSH

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT).

The first act opens in the rooms of Eustace Warren at Oxford. It is Commemoration Week, and Eustace and Martin, a college scout, are discussing the honours which are to be bestowed upon the former's brother, Aubrey, he having recently returned after a highly successful three years spent in Arctic research. Eustace lends Martin a copy of a book descriptive of these researches written by his brother and "dedicated to M." Hugh Ventrey enters and informs the Professor that Lady Ventry and her daughters are coming to the ceremony. Aubrey Warren, greatly perturbed at the thought of having to wear his robes of honour, makes his appearance, and is soon followed by Lady Ventry. After introductions, we find Eustace Warren and Lady Ventry busily engaged in trying to entrap Aubrey, whose cares and thoughts are centred on exploration, into matrimony. They decide that Helen Ventry would be a suitable partner for him, and make use of the same subterfuges which were so successful in the case of Beatrice and Benedict, in Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing. Patrick Muriel and Benjy Corcoran, old shipmates of Aubrey, enter, and seeing how things are going, the former decides to intervene by simulating love for Helen himself.

Ten days are supposed to elapse between acts one and two, which latter is enacted in a Room in Admiral Ventry's House, Eaton-square. Corcoran and Vicky Ventry have been dancing, and, in conversation, the intention of Muriel is made known to Vicky, who forthwith determines to inform her sister. Aubrey and his partner prefer to rest in the conservatory, and Eustace and Lady Ventry seeing this, with the aid of Hugh Ventry, begin to put their design into execution, one of them remarking, so that it shall be overheard by Aubrey, that Helen is deeply in love with him, and because he shows no signs of returning her affection, is suffering in health. Aubrey, in desperation, determines to propose to Helen at the first opportunity. Admiral Sir Hugh Ventry enters with Lady Marjorie Royal, and the latter recognises in the retreating figure of Aubrey her former lover, and her hopes are realised when the Admiral discloses Aubrey's identity. Meanwhile, Helen, who has fallen in love with Dr. Muriel, is informed by her sister Vickey of what Corcoran had told her, and in pique determines to accept the first man who proposes to her. Aubrey, entering and remembering his former resolve, proposes in a very awkward, off-hand, and unorthodox way, and is accepted. In conversation Helen finds that Aubrey had dedicated his book to "M." because it was the initial of Marjorie, a woman of his acquaintance in the past. Muriel, whose ruse to defend Aubrey had so signally failed, has fallen in love with Helen himself, and enters, to be confronted by Aubrey, who asks the doctor to congratulate him. The end of the act comes by an introduction by Admiral Sir Hugh Ventry of Lady Marjorie Royal to Aubrey, and she proves to be the Marjorie of bygone days. The unravelling of the entanglement comes in the third act. Aubrey releases Helen, the latter accepting Muriel; Vicky becomes engaged to Corcoran, and Aubrey to Lady Marjorie.

Too much praise cannot be accorded the very excellent company for their admirable handling of the piece. First and foremost Mr Scott Buist was excellent as Aubrey Warren. A dismal failure in the part might have been recorded if it had been in the hands of a less talented artist. The Professor Eustace Warren of Mr Walter Russel was a typical portrayal. Mr Maurice Mancini gave a polished delineation of the part of Patrick Muriel, M.D. Mr Athol Stewart was good as Benjy Corcoran. Mr W. R. Staveley breezily depicted the small part of Admiral Sir Hugh Ventry, Bart. Mr Hugh Ardale and Mr Arthur Curtis were good respectively as Hugh Ventry and Martin. Miss Marianne Caldwell presented a careful embodiment of Lady Wakefield. Thoroughly excellent in every detail was the Lady Ventry of Miss Claire Pauncefort. Miss Ina Royle was successful as Helen Ventry. Miss Ierne Fitzgerald acted the part of Vicky Ventry admirably, naturally delineating in every detail the up-to-date young lady. The extremely meagre part of Lady Marjorie Royal was a fine character study as presented by that excellent actress Miss Madge M'Intosh.

"THE GIRL FROM KAY'S," which ran for eight months at the Herald-square Theatre, New York, last season, was revived for two weeks on the same stage on Sept. 5, and drew large and appreciative audiences. Sam Bernard as the blasé "Piggy" and Hattie Williams as Winnie Harborough do excellent work in this favourite musical comedy. The Dictator, the clever farce which brought William Collier good fortune in the merry springtime, is running once more at the Criterion Theatre, and The County Chairman, a delightful drama of American rural life, is enjoying another term of popularity at Wallack's. Miss Henrietta Crosman made her reappearance in Sweet Kitty Bellairs at the Belasco Theatre on the 3rd inst., the company enacting this delightful comedy of manners being practically the same as last season, and including Messrs Edwin Stevens, Frank H. Westerton, Charles Hammond, Herbert Bostwick, H. Reed Davies, Addison Pitt, and Robert Peyton Carter. Another interesting revival is that of The Old Homestead, in which the veteran actor, Denman Thompson, is appearing at the New York Theatre in his famous impersonation of Joshua Whitcomb.

MR W. G. HOLE'S poetical drama Queen Elizabeth, the acting rights of which have been secured by Mrs Brown Potter, will be issued in volume form by Messrs George Bell early in the coming month.

THE students attending at the Guildhall School of Music last year paid to the Corporation in fees the sum of £28,250, to which a balance of £3,235, brought forward from the previous year, was added. The fees paid out to professors amounted to £20,202. There are 125 professors in all, and the amounts paid to them varied from £693 to £2. The largest sums were paid to Mr Henry Gadsby, Mr Francesco Berger, Madame Bessie Cox, Mr Arthur Thompson, Mr Wallace Wells, Mr Edward Wharton, Mr Alfred Gibson, Mr I. De Solla, and Mr A. Beaumont. Of the balance, £8,385 was applied to the general expenses of the school, amounting in all to £11,094, the Corporation paying the difference out of the City's cash. A committee of the Corporation is now inquiring whether the school cannot be made absolutely self-supporting without requiring an annual subsidy from the City's funds.

MR GEORGE MUSGROVE'S Belle of New York company, with Miss Beatrice Lomotte in the title-rôle and Frank Lawton, of whistling fame, in his original part, will pay a farewell visit to the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, next week.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In to-day's issue you mention Mr J. Bruce as playing the Rajah of Bhong in The Country Girl at Buxton, whereas the part was and is still being played by yours faithfully, VINCENT EGWYER. Opera House, Harrogate, Sept. 10.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

As the result of the cordial co-operation of friends of the late Mr Herbert Campbell it has been decided to erect a fitting memorial to the popular and genial comedian, to be placed, if possible, in the vestibule of Drury-lane Theatre, the scene of so many of his triumphs. The directors have not only approved the suggestion, but have, through Mr Arthur Collins, generously promised the sum of £10 10s. towards the fund, which has already been started. The memorial is to take the form of a marble or bronze bust. Mr Edward Ledger has consented to receive and acknowledge all contributions in the columns of The Era. A letter from Mr Henry Joyner, director of the Camberwell Palace, &c, announcing the intention of the late comedian's friends, and giving the first list of subscriptions, will be found in another column. Gentlemen are invited to serve on the committee, and those willing to act should communicate without delay with Mr Joyner.

Sir Henry Irving will begin at Cardiff on Monday what may be called his series of farewell performances. Sir Henry will visit fourteen towns, and will finish his autumn tour at Manchester on Dec. 10. His repertory will consist of Becket, The Merchant of Venice, The Lyons Mail, The Bells, and Waterloo, and his company will include Miss Edith Wynne Mathieson, the young American actress, Miss Maude Fealy, Mrs Cecil Raleigh, and Mr Gerald Lawrence.

Everyone arrived in time for the remarkable shipwreck scene at His Majesty's. Among the earliest arrivals were Mr Arthur Pinero, Mrs George Alexander, Mr Charles Mathews, K.C., and Miss Lily Hanbury, who had just returned from an enjoyable holiday at Folkestone. Mrs Tree had a party in her usual box; and other occupants of the stalls included Sir Charles Wyndham, Sir Squire Bancroft, Miss Constance Collier, Mr and Mrs Oscar Asche (Miss Lily Brayton), Mr Comyns Carr, Mr John Hare, Mr Boyle Lawrence, and Mr John Davidson. Lady Maud Warrender and Miss Muriel Wilson were together in the centre of the stalls.

Mr George Barratt was married very recently at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, by special licence, to Miss Lilian Hugo, daughter of the late Thomas Hugo, general manager of the Bank of South Africa, Pretoria, and Johannesburg. The marriage was a very quiet one, owing to the death of the late Wilson Barrett, uncle to the bridegroom. Mr Barrett has just been engaged by Mr Frank Curzon to play Mr Arthur Williams's part in Sergeant Brue, on tour.

The other night a theatrical manager had occasion to take a cab to a railway station. On alighting, he tendered the cabman what he thought was a reasonable fare. Thereupon cabby said, "Another bob, sir." "What do you mean?" returned the manager. "surely that more than covers your legal fare?" "Yus, mebbe," Cabby rejoined, "but we've gotter live, and it carn't be done on air." The manager handed over another shilling and departed. Next night Cabby and wife appeared at the front of the theatre in their best clothes. Said Cabby "Good evening sir, can we go in?" "Certainly, sir," politely replied the manager, "there's the box-office." Cabby looked surprised; "But I means, can you pass me and the missus? You remember I drove you to the station yesterday." The manager's face assumed the managerial smile, as he murmured sweetly, "Yes, may be; but we've got to live, and it cannot be done on air. There is the box-office, prices 1s. to 5s." And he turned away to attend upon other patrons.

The grave of the late Mr John Billington at Highgate Cemetery is situated a few yards from the southern entrance. Close by is a stone erected to the memory of a Mrs Sara Lane (and her husband), but this is not the lady who for so many years was the proprietress and manageress of the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, as she lies buried in Kensal-green Cemetery. We gave in our last issue the names of those who attended the funeral service on the 9th inst. There were also present at the graveside Mr L. F. Chapuy, who played with the deceased actor years ago, Mr E. W. Garden, Mr Weedon Grossmith, and Mr Byron Webber. Mr William Billington, who was with his brother at the last, was deeply affected and was led away from the graveside by sympathetic friends. It should be added that wreaths were also received from Mrs Alfred Mellon, Mr Frank J. Arlton, and Mr and Mrs J. R. Elliot.

Soon after the opening chorus of The Earl and the Girl at the Lyric on Tuesday, an extraordinary incident happened. Without a moment's warning, a sheet of water was suddenly let loose from above the flies, and almost washed Mr Hamish M'Cunn, the conductor, out of his chair. The members of the orchestra were drenched, and the drums were so saturated that new ones had to be procured. The cause of the strange occurrence was the new automatic fire sprinkler, fixed by new order of the London County Council, being set in motion through some unexplained cause. Miss Louie Pounds was one of the first to be sprinkled, and Miss Agnes Fraser, who made her entrance later as Elphin Haye, was unfortunate enough to fall on the wet boards, without, however, hurting herself.

Mr Walter Passmore and Miss Florence Lloyd are now singing, as a duet, with great success in the first act of The Earl and the Girl, a humorous song entitled "The Patchwork Garden," by Edgar Bateman and Paul Mill, the music by J. Airlie Dix. The song, the authors of which were lately felicitated by Mr George R. Sims, is published by Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter. The song sung in the second act entitled "The man behind" is also being put upon the market by the same eminent firm. It is by Messrs Leigh and Pether.

Miss Eleanor Robson, who is Merely Mary at the Duke of York's, was born in Wigan some twenty-four years ago, and her mother, who is still living, is an actress who was once popular in England, and is still delighting playgoers in America. Her stage name is Madge Carr Cook. Probably her last engagement in London was in a performance of Moths, with a cast that included Miss Fanny Brough, Mr Kyrle Bellew, and Mr Charles Cartwright. When seven years old Miss Robson was taken to America, and some years later made her first appearance on the stage at San Francisco in a stock comedy, in which her mother also appeared. Though she is making her first appearance on the London stage, this is not her first visit. She met Mr Zangwill about two years ago when here. Eventually she read his story of "Merely Mary Ann," and suggested to him that he should dramatise it. Last summer when in London she again read the draft of the play. It was produced in Chicago, where it was a big success. Miss Robson is proud of being a British subject, and when she returns to America she will be able to contradict one general idea—that is, that the Londoners have no sense of humour. "On the contrary," she says, "the brightest and cleverest men, who say the brightest and cleverest things, are Englishmen."

Mr William Wymark Jacobs, the joint author of The Beauty and the Barge, now being performed at the New Theatre, was born in 1863, and was educated in private schools. He entered the Civil Service, and was allotted to the Savings Bank Department of the Post-office. His first book, "Many Cargoes," appeared in 1896, and "The Skipper's Wooing" in the following year.

London playgoers pride themselves on being first in the field when anything new is on the tapis, but people in the provinces have shown that they are no less backward when first nights and inauguration ceremonies are being arranged. Mr J. Bannister Howard, the lessee and manager of the New Theatre Royal, King's Lynn, which is to be opened on Monday week, advertised that tickets would be available to purchasers at the booking office on Wednesday last at 11·0 a.m. Walking towards the theatre before that hour on the day in question, Mr Bannister Howard was surprised to find the street blocked with people who were waiting for the box-office to open. Fortunately, Mr Howard and Mr Herbert Leonard, his resident manager, were fully prepared for the rush; and within one hour's time they had sold every seat in the house.

Curiously enough, both the Conservative candidate and the Liberal candidate for the division have secured boxes for the opening night, their seats being exactly opposite each other. The Mayor of King's Lynn, members of the Corporation, and many of the prominent county people will also be among the first-nighters. On the Monday night at 8 0 o'clock Mrs Beerbohm Tree will speak the inauguration prologue, and will conclude her visit on Tuesday afternoon at 2 30 by appearing in the trial scene from The Merchant of Venice, the mad scene from Hamlet, and a scene between Sir Peter and Lady Teazle from The School for Scandal. Sir Henry Irving, Miss Ellen Terry, Mr Beerbohm Tree, and others have kindly presented Mr Bannister Howard with their photographs, to be hung up in his new theatre.

As already announced, the performances in the New Theatre Royal will be started by Mr Ben Greet's No. 1 company in La Poupée, which will be presented, in addition, on the Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. On the last three nights of the week the attraction will be the play entitled That Woman From France. The musical conductor of the theatre is Mr C. W. Dowell, a gentleman who has exhibited conspicuous ability in similar work previously.

Mr Howard informs us that, with the exception of the Press and professional ladies and gentlemen, there will be no free list at all in his theatre. He has evolved a scheme for dealing with playbill exhibitors which he thinks will be the means of getting his establishment better respected than if he were to give free tickets to shopkeepers who allow his posters to be stuck up in their premises. He considers the latter system, which, by the way, is so much in vogue all over the United Kingdom, tends, like undue familiarity, to breed contempt, and causes people to regard admission to a theatre at too cheap an estimate.

Miss Louie Freear and her Boy Bob company left Liverpool on Sunday night by the steamer Douglas with the object of fulfilling a week's engagement at the Gaiety, Douglas, and by the same steamer travelled My Lady Molly company under engagement at the Grand Theatre at the same popular resort. Despite a south-east gale good weather was enjoyed until the steamer was within a few miles of Douglas, when the rudder was damaged, and the vessel came to an anchor. She lay thus for nearly twenty-four hours, but was eventually picked up by a Liverpool tug, which had been telegraphed for. The Douglas then proceeded under her own steam, being steered from behind by the tug, and in the end the port was reached at half-past six on Tuesday morning. The passengers bore the delay and other inconveniences philosophically and even cheerfully, though some of them suffered much from sea sickness.

Miss Freear, in relating her experiences of the adventure, said:—"I think I was the only passenger on the vessel, lady or gentleman, that was not ill. If it had not been for the misery of others and the anxiety about my being able to play that night, I should have enjoyed it. I like to see big waves and feel spray on my face. It was a beautiful and magnificent sight; as for danger, I thought, 'We have to die some time,' and I should die like a Briton. The cabin was very like a hospital. The men were quite as ill as the women." Mr Stephen Bond, joint author of Boy Bob, said "Miss Freear went about ministering to sufferers and supplying their wants as far as she was able. We didn't know but that something serious might happen at any minute."

As a result of the recent decision in the case of Betty v. the Attorney-General, in the Chancery Division, the household furniture, &c., at the Betony, 127, Thurlow-park-road, West Dulwich, will be sold by auction by W. Henry Willoughby, on the premises, on Wednesday and Thursday next. The property includes about 450oz. of antique silver jewellery, a suit of armour, and a collection of theatrical relics.

Mr Lionel Brough, who made his first appearance on the boards at the Lyceum, in December, 1854, under the management of Madame Vestris and Mr Charles Mathews, in an extravaganza, by his brother, William Brough, entitled Prince Pretty Pet, and a farce, My Fellow Clerk, is to be entertained at dinner by the members of the O P. Club, at the Criterion, on Sunday, Oct. 30, in celebration of his jubilee on the stage. The compliment is richly deserved, for Mr Brough is one of our soundest and most original comedians.

The Lord Chamberlain, after several conferences with Mr Stanley, the legal representative of the Theatrical Managers Association, has issued a new series of rules and regulations, which he considers it desirable to attach to future licences, and a copy of the same has been sent to proprietors and managers of theatres under his jurisdiction. We print the rules in full elsewhere.

At four o'clock on Wednesday morning a fire was discovered in the auditorium of His Majesty's Theatre, Carlisle. All was safe when Mr Stanley Rogers, manager, inspected the building at 11·15 on the previous night. Notwithstanding the efforts of the fire brigade, assisted by the military, in a few hours the building was completely gutted and all the properties destroyed. A gas explosion blew up the stage and destroyed the rear of the building. The theatre was only reopened in August after being entirely remodelled behind at a cost of £2,000. Mr George Dance's company, who opened at the theatre on Monday with A Country Girl, lost a number of dresses and effects. The house was the property of the Carlisle Public Hall Company, and was carried on by Mrs Stewart M'Kim's representatives. The damage is estimated at about £6 000, and is covered by insurance. On Thursday night the fire burst out again, and the brigade had to play on the débris for three hours to prevent the spread of the flames. The Scotch National Church and public elementary school, close to the theatre, narrowly escaped destruction. The damaged structure was erected over thirty years ago, and for about ten years was used as a hall, with a platform and galleries along the sides. It was then converted into a theatre.

Madame Liza Lehmann, the composer of In a Persian Garden and of the music to Sergeant Brue, is about to write a light romantic opera on the subject of Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield" for Mr David Bispham, the baritone. Mr Bispham made his first appearance in London as an operatic artist in The Basoche, at the Royal English Opera House (now the Palace Theatre), in November, 1901, and he will play the Vicar when Madame Lehmann's opera is performed in London next season.

A "realistic" drama was being recently performed at a small town where the stage staff (through want of practice) were not absolutely perfect in their duties. In a scene of the play a large hook was lowered from the flies to suspend a chandelier. For some reason this hook was lowered by the flyman in the wrong scene, and completely escaped the attention of the stage-manager and actors until too late. The villain and the heroine occupied the stage, the former wearing the usual long cloak. The villain vowed the lady should be his wife, and a struggle ensued. Suddenly the hero was heard "off" as he rapidly approached the spot—the villain hesitated and sprang back, and as he did so the aforesaid hook became firmly fixed in his garments. The play demanded that he should say:—"Ah—ah, my enemy approacheth, I will hasten me to prepare him a warm welcome. Hark, he is here! I fly!" with which he made an attempt to exit, but, unfortunately, the stage-manager had just then discovered the rope hanging from the flies and given an angry and hasty order for it to be drawn up, with the result that the villain really "flew" upwards, to the intense delight of the audience. In the course of his flight he struck the back flat, and it fell on the heroine, who in turn lost her balance against a wing, which overturned and upset the stage-manager, struck the musical conductor on the nose, smashed the big drum, and generally disorganised the orchestra. Then the curtain was rung down.

The advertisement which recently appeared in our columns from a dramatist desiring to let, on royalty, a realistic melodrama, in four acts, by a popular writer, in which a gross miscarriage of justice, on circumstantial and police evidence, supported by counsel for the Crown and the presiding judge, nearly takes place, has brought to us the following letter:—"Sir,—Should such a play be coming out, I would be very glad to take a part. I was Deputy Governor of Portland Prison, in the years 1898, 1899, and 1900, during which years Mr Beck was my prisoner, and every one of his petitions must have passed through my hands. Yours faithfully, L. C. Dundas. 39, Lavender-gardens, Clapham-common, S.W., Sept. 14, 1904."

The latest Prospero, Mr William Haviland, is one of the Lyceum men who may be said to have grown up under the care and training of Sir Henry Irving. He made a notable success as the Fool, in King Lear. During the summer vacations Mr Haviland and Mr Martin Harvey used to try management on their own account, going on tour with a Shakespearian répertoire and sharing the best parts between them. On leaving the Lyceum Mr Haviland went to South Africa, and met with many amusing and interesting experiences. He acted in Johannesburg all through the exciting time of the Jameson Raid; at one of the smaller towns his company performed Hamlet on a platform that only measured 14ft. by 20ft.; and on another occasion, in an old theatre made of corrugated iron, with several holes in the roof, the heat was so intense that the actors were obliged to stand in the shaded parts of the stage, and even then they found their faces tanned at the end of the matinée.

Edward Miles, the oldest living actor, who, now in his ninetieth year, resides at Wisbech, Cambridgeshire, has seen five reigns and witnessed four coronations. He has had an unique and adventurous career. Advised by Joey Grimaldi, Miles took to the stage in 1834, seventy years ago, and made his début at Hereford, performing with Braham, the tenor, and Templeton, the falsetto. Among other celebrities with whom he appeared were Mrs Stirling, Mrs Honey, Mrs Nisbett, Mrs Waylett, Vandenhoff, Charles Kean Macready, G. V. Brooke, Raymond and Hammond, T. P. Cooke, Sheridan Knowles, Misses Glynn, Cushman, Helen Faucit, Ellen Tree, Julia St. George, Madame Celeste, Mrs Fitz-William, J. B. Buckstone, Paul Bedford, and Wright—truly a remarkable record. He was associated with nearly with all the stars and celebrities of the profession during the last century. Miles has had several remarkable escapes from death, by drowning, by fire, by railway accident, and by firearms. He was born in London, March 11, 1815, and about 1835 his daughter, Sophie Miles, leading lady, performed with Sir Henry Irving at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, and her sister, Miss Emily Miles is daughter-in law to Sir Peter O'Brien, Lord Chief Justice of Ireland.

Miss Ada Mellon, who has been specially engaged as the successor of her cousin, Miss Mary Rorke, in the part of the housekeeper, of Mr Forbes Robertson's tour of Mice and Men, is a grandniece of Mrs Alfred Mellon. She has been a member of Sir Henry Irving's company for the last four years, her favourite part being Madame Matthias, in The Bells. Some years ago Miss Mellon was engaged by Mr Louis Calvert to play Lady Percy, in his Manchester revival of Henry IV., and it was then she met her husband, Mr S. A. Cookson, who has been with Mr Tree for over eight years, and is now playing Alonzo, in The Tempest. Mr and Mrs Cookson live in a pretty house at Wimbledon, and both take a great interest in gardening.

In connection with the Carl Rosa Opera Company, Limited, lien was recently registered for £500 ten per cent. debentures, part of £2,000 authorised, charged on the undertaking and all the property, present and future, including the uncalled capital.

Mr William A. Brady, an American manager, thinks it is time for the proprietors of musical plays to protect themselves against the music publishers. It appears that a song called "Sally," one of the hits of Mr Brady's production Girls Will be Girls, has been published by arrangement with the author of the book and the leader of the orchestra, without regard to what Mr Brady considers his rights. He says:—"If a man buys a musical piece, and pays $20 000 or $25,000 to produce it, and also pays the authors good royalties weekly, he should own, or at least share, in the publishing rights. This abuse is the main reason why the English stage producers are stealing our 'hits.' The American music publisher sells them over there with right of stage production, and we have not the same rights over here. A petition to Congress this winter for a few corrections in the international copyright law would be useful in protecting the brains of American producers from local and foreign pilfering."

Mr Lewis Waller will produce at the Imperial Theatre in October a romantic comedy, in four acts, entitled His Majesty's Servant, written by Sarah Barnwell Elliott and Maud Hosford. The action takes place in the period just before the Restoration. Mr Waller's company will include Miss Evelyn Millard, Miss Darragh, Miss Haldée Wright, Miss Ada Neilson, Miss Kate Tyndall, Miss Constance Walton, Mr H. V. Esmond, Mr Norman M'Kinnel, Mr E. E. George, Mr Arthur Lewis, Mr Frank Dyall, Mr John Beauchamp, Mr H. Carvill, Mr Elphinstone, Mr Frank Woolfe, Mr John Byron, Mr S. B. Brereton, Mr Cecil M'Guinness, and Mr Eric Scott.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs Will Smith (Alice Webb). For the last twelve months Mrs Smith has been suffering from heart trouble, and after a sudden and painful illness she succumbed on Sept. 7 at the General Hospital, Nottingham. The funeral took place on Sept. 8 at the Cemetery, Nottingham. Most beautiful wreaths were sent by A Trip to Chinatown company, Mr Finney and staff of the Royal, Nottingham, and others. Miss Webb will no doubt be remembered as a professional swimmer as well as an actress.

Miss Helen Rous, who has played the Countess of Pangbourne during the whole of the long run of The Duke of Killicrankie without being absent from a single performance, is leaving Wyndham's at the end of this month to enact another countess—Lady Plumleigh—on Mr Hare's tour of Little Mary. If Miss Rous believed in luck and chose to regard small tin spoons in the light of little mascots, she would have cause to congratulate herself on constantly finding them in the street. She has picked up from the pavement twenty-six specimens of this doll's house "silver" during the run of Killicrankie alone! Little Mary is not the first of Mr Barrie's pieces in which she has appeared, for Miss Rous made her South African début—where she became a very popular actress during a stay of two years—in the part of Sarah, in Walker, London. The gallery boys of Durban liked her so much as the distressed sweetheart of Walker, that her appearance behind the footlights was usually greeted with loud shouts of "Good old Sarah!"

Mr Kyrle Bellew, who, on his return to New York, was asked about the "Americanisation of the London stage," said:—"I wouldn't express it that strongly. Let us call it, rather, an exchange between the two countries, in which, let us hope, both are benefited. There is one thing in this Americanisation, as some people call it, in which not alone the British public, but the actor as well, reaps great benefit, and that is in the enterprises of American managers of standing in London. With their methods, ability, and honesty, men like Mr Frohman and Mr Tyler and Mr Frank M'Kee are most welcome."

It seems almost a curious coincidence that two of the sons of the late Mr Edmund Yates, the founder of the World newspapers, should be acting-managers at theatres exactly opposite each other. Mr Arthur Yates combines with Mr James Howell in the management of the Tivoli; while his brother, Mr Charles D. Yates, has been appointed acting-manager at the Adelphi Theatre, for Mr Otho Stuart's season with The Prayer of the Sword.

Miss Edna May, who is now scoring a success as Lillian Leigh, in The School Girl, at Daly's, New York, declares that nothing hurt her so much during her previous visit to her native land as the remarks of certain critics to the effect that she was "no longer an American girl, but sickeningly English." Miss May said that she really didn't try, but perhaps she had lost her American twang, although now that she was in New York she might find it again. Asked which she liked best, the English or the Americans, her tactful reply was, "I love them both." The New York Press say that Miss May has gained in ease, in repose, and in grace; and that she went away a favourite and came back a triumph.

Notwithstanding the fact that Mr Tom B. Davis's principal Florodora company has paid five previous visits to the Theatre Royal, Hull, it has been this week taking more money than on any previous occasion, with the exception of one Christmas engagement in 1902. The piece has been received most enthusiastically; in fact, it was the general remark on Monday night how fresh and bright it appeared. Mr Davis and Mr Morton are to be congratulated on such a success.

Miss Grace Lester, who concluded on Saturday last a successful starring engagement as Lady Isabel and Jeanie Deans with Mr Rich Waldon, has been engaged by Mr Preston to play the leading part in his new production at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, commencing the 19th inst.

Mr Frank Vernon is now hard at work in New York producing Miss Viola Allen's revival of A Winter's Tale, the most ambitious of all her Shakespearian productions. Mr Vernon made a name for himself first of all in Trelawny of the Wells, at the Court Theatre, but will chiefly be remembered for his Defarge, in The Only Way, with Mr Martin Harvey. His last performance in London was at Wyndham's Theatre, in The Sword of the King. He returns to England next April, holding a contract to produce a new play in London then for Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell.

Mr Norman V. Norman's recent visit to Brighton with David Garrick was attended with extraordinary success. The receipts nearly doubled his former visits. This is all the more remarkable as it was his third visit to Brighton within the past twelve months.

When The Earl and the Girl company were transferred to the Lyric Theatre, and Mr Otho Stuart was able to get inside the Adelphi in order to prepare for his forthcoming production of The Prayer of the Sword, he gave up his office in Henrietta-street, Covent-garden, and the premises were immediately occupied by Mr Alfred Smyth-Pigott on behalf of Mr F. R. Benson. From Henrietta-street all the arrangements in connection with Mr Benson's two companies touring Great Britain, as well as the one which is to be sent to Jamaica, will be controlled.

Mr Benson has quite recently been appointed the principal of the new school of drama and acting which has been added to the other departments of the Hampstead Conservatoire. Mr Hugh Moss is to become the vice-principal and stage-manager.

Mr George Davey will present on Monday at the Grand Theatre a new and enlarged version of Black-Ey'd Susan, in which Mr Oswald Brand has woven a new comedy character. Miss Helen Bancroft will appear as Susan.

The scheme of the symphony concerts, which will take place at Queen's Hall on Saturday afternoons,—Oct. 29, Nov. 12 and 26, Dec. 10, 1904; Jan. 28, Feb. 11 and 25, March 11, 1905—under the conductorship of Mr Henry J. Wood, is a very attractive one. Of the modern compositions for the production of which negotiations are pending, Richard Strauss's "Symphony Domestica" may be considered the most noteworthy. Hugo Wolf will be represented by his symphonic poem "Penthesilea"—admittedly his most important orchestral work. Native art will be liberally recognised. Mr Joseph Holbrooke's new symphonic poem "Ulalume," based on Edgar Allan Poe's poem, will be performed for the first time, and Elgar's incidental music to Grania and Diarmid will figure among the works, which, without being first performances, are practically novelties to many concert-goers. Of these works, which will be included during the season, may be mentioned Tschaikowsky's "Manfred Symphony," Liszt's "Faust Symphony," Richard Strauss's Don Quixote," Schumann's "Overture Scherzo and Finale," and Lalo's suite "Namouna." It has been decided to limit the duration of each concert to one hour and forty-five minutes.

There is another story going the rounds relative to the play Saturday to Monday. It is said that the piece was recently billed at a certain suburban London theatre, and on a Sunday evening two old ladies were discovered by a policeman patiently waiting outside the theatre. On being questioned as to why they were waiting there the ladies replied that they wanted to see the play. "But," said the constable, "there is no play on to-night." "Oh, nonsense," iterated one of the ladies, "here is the play. See, it says Mr Percy Hutchison's company Saturday to Monday, and that must include to-night." The eyes of the myrmidon of the law twinkled as he murmured gently, "Lady, Saturday to Monday is the name of the play which starts to-morrow night!"

Mr Pinero's new play is in rehearsal at Wyndham's Theatre, under the personal supervision of the author. It is in three acts, and will be called A Wife Without a Smile.

Mr William Boosey's adaptation of Le Prince Consort, entitled His Highness My Husband, will shortly be produced at the Comedy Theatre with a cast which now includes Mr Leonard Boyne, Mr Paul Arthur, Mr Herbert Ross, Mr Philip Cuningham, Mr W. Lugg, Mr Akerman May, Mr Harvey Long, Mr M. Douglas, Mr Herbert Vyvyan, Mr Richmond Webb, Mr H. Williams, Mr J. H. Millar, Miss Miriam Clements, and Miss Lottie Venne.

Among the operas likely to be mounted by Messrs Frank Rendle and Nell Forsyth during the projected six weeks' autumn season at Covent-garden are Giordano's Andria Chenier and Cilea's Adriana Lecouvreur. It is a strange coincidence that both should be works by Italian composers on French subjects. It is probable, also, that Puccini's Manon Lescaut will be given. This work was scarcely a conspicuous success when the late Sir Augustus Harris introduced it at the opening of the season of 1893; but the production was hampered by a cast upon which the publishers of the opera urgently insisted. Apart from the Neapolitan company, other artists have been specially engaged, notably Mr Caruso, whose many triumphs last season will be fresh in the memories of all opera-goers. The entire forces are to be furnished by the company of San Carlo at Naples. Theatre prices will be charged, and the directors of the Grand Opera Syndicate are taking personal interest in a scheme which may well lead to the establishment of a regular autumn season in London. The date of the opening of the season is fixed for Oct. 17.

The announcement that Mr Frederick Kerr is to join Mrs Brown Potter's company at the Savoy is premature. Mr Kerr has resigned the part allotted to him, and it will be played by Mr Gilbert Hare, who will stage-manage the production of The Golden Light.

Mrs Patrick Campbell, Madame Kirkby Lunn, the operatic prima donna; Madame Nordica, the well-known soprano, and Miss Ada Rehan were among the passengers on board the New York, which left Southampton on Saturday for America.

"The Chevalier" at the Garrick is now preceded at eight o'clock by Mr Malcolm Watson's one-act comic play The Conversion of Nat Sturge, in which Mr Arthur Bourchier repeats his success in the part of the Bishop. The performance of The Chevalier now commences at a quarter to nine.

The annual general meeting of the members of the Playgoers' Club will be held at the Victoria Hall, Hotel Cecil, on Friday, Oct. 7, at 7·30 p.m. Several matters of importance will be discussed, and the officers and committee for the ensuing year will be elected.

Mr Oswald Brand is busily engaged upon the writing of a new play, to be entitled A True Lover's Knot, which he intends to produce at the Grand Theatre in the spring. He is also arranging an adaptation from the French of a drama called The Veiled Woman, which he hopes to present this autumn at the Islington playhouse.

Madame Melba, the famous Australian prima donna, was driving in the Boulevard Pereire, Paris, on Sunday, accompanied by her two cousins, the Misses Walker, when she was the cause of a fatal accident to an old gentleman named Pierre Benoit. M. Benoit was crossing the road in front of the motor-car, which had sounded the alarm, when, seeing a cab coming towards him, he stepped back. The chauffeur immediately put the brake on, but was too late to avoid a collision with the old gentleman, who was knocked down and died of fracture of the skull. Madame Melba, who was greatly distressed at the sad event, immediately returned to her hotel.

The father of Mr Walter Telbin, the scene-painter, who has done some of Mr Tree's scenery for The Tempest, at His Majesty's, painted the scenery for Mr Charles Kean's production at the Princess's in 1857.

We regret to announce the death of Mr Leo Stern, the celebrated violoncellist, and husband of Madame Suzanne Adams, the operatic prima donna who is so popular at Covent-garden. Mr Stern originally intended to be an analytical chemist, but his inherited musical abilities were so pronounced that he was induced to study music seriously and to adopt it as a profession, a decision fully justified by results. Madame Suzanne Adams is one of the many Americans who have won a second home in the affections of the English people. In its early days the motor had in her a strong supporter, and she and her husband were among the first to be seen driving in this country. On one occasion Mr Neil Forsyth, of Covent-garden, had to pursue them, for the opera had been changed owing to another singer's illness, and Madame Suzanne Adams was wanted as prima donna. It was only after an exciting chase that he overtook them, and then only just in time.

Encouraged by the reception accorded to The Axis, the new comedy produced by Mr Scott-Buist at Worthing on Monday last, arrangements are now being made for this play to be seen at a West-end house in the near future.

Lord Redesdale, with the Rev. Francis Hodson, of Stratford-on-Avon, has been elected life trustee of Shakespeare's Birthplace, in succession to the late Canon Evans and Mr Frederick Haines, F.S.A., who resigned for reasons of health. He was born in 1837, and began life as Algernon Bertram Freeman-Mitford, but in 1902 he was raised to a barony. Through Eton, Oxford, and the Foreign Office Lord Redesdale arrived in course of diplomatic service at such interesting quarters as St. Petersburg, Pekin, and Yeddo, which gave him an intimate knowledge of the East, and his "Tales of Old Japan" were alone powerful enough to make a reputation on their merit.

The first performance of Amica, Mascagni's new opera, is to be given at Monte Carlo on March 1, when the maestro will himself conduct the orchestra. Amica, the young girl heroine, will be played by Madame Calvé; M. Renaud, of the Paris Opéra, will take the part of a shepherd; and to M. Rousselière, the tenor, will be allotted the rôle of Georgie. Amica is a modern tragedy, the scene of which is laid in Piedmont. The first act passes in a farm, the second in a mountain gorge, with a rushing torrent, which descends from a great height, and into which Amica throws herself and perishes after a most dramatic scene. The scenery for the opera will be painted by the celebrated artist Visconti.

Lord and Lady Londesborough, Lord Westmoreland, Lady Angela Forbes, Miss May Dansey, Lady Ida Sitwell, and a large house party were present on Wednesday evening at the Londesborough Theatre, Scarborough, to witness Mrs Langtry in her latest American success Mrs Dering's Divorce, which is now being played to overflowing houses in the provinces.

"Little Miss Nobody" was played under difficulties at the Theatre Royal, Great Yarmouth, on Monday evening. The band parts had gone astray, so the orchestra could not play, but Mr Spencer Dickinson, the able conductor who travels with Mr Thorne's company, accompanied the singers on the piano, and so the difficulty was overcome. The missing parts arrived about 10 30 the same evening.

"THE TEMPEST" AT HIS MAJESTY'S.

Revival of Shakespeare's Fairy Play, in Three Acts, at His Majesty's Theatre, by Mr Beerbohm Tree, on Wednesday, Sept. 14.

Caliban	Mr TREE
Prospero	Mr WILLIAM HAVILAND
Ferdinand	Mr BASIL GILL
Alonzo	Mr S. A. COOKSON
Sebastian	Mr JULIAN L'ESTRANGE
Antonio	Mr LYN HARDING
Gonzalo	Mr J. FISHER WHITE
Francisco	Mr FRANCIS CHAMIER
Adrian	Mr CECIL ROSE
Trinculo	Mr LIONEL BROUGH
Stephano	Mr LOUIS CALVERT
Master of Ship	Mr SOUTHGATE
Boatswain	Mr W. A. HAINES
Miranda	Miss NORAH KERIN
Iris	Miss ALICE L. CRAWFORD
Ceres	Miss VIOLA TREE
Juno	Miss N. HUTCHISON
Ariel	Miss VIOLA TREE

Some ancient critics have written in grandiloquent strains concerning The Tempest, and have called it the most sublime creation of Shakespeare's genius, wherein he allowed his master mind to revel in all the imagery of a most luxuriant fancy. More sober and more modern criticism, however, does not accord with this high estimate of the play, which has more the character of a masque, with its shapes and fantasies and "etherial essences" tangible to sight and apprehension. Neither does it possess the necessary dramatic qualities to make it a good acting piece. Still, the subject is one that has always appealed to the poetic stage-manager—such a one, for instance, as the late Charles Kean, to whose grand production at the Princess's in 1857 Mr Tree refers. The scenic appliances of that revival were of a more complicated nature than had ever been attempted. In the production at His Majesty's modern science has enabled Mr Tree to fairly stagger us by some wonderful storm effects and to produce a magnificent realisation of the shipwreck that opens the play. The vessel takes up the whole of the stage, and is such a one as might have carried a Vasco Da Gama on a voyage of discovery in the fifteenth century. Amid the shrieking of the wind and the roaring thunder we hear faintly the voices of the ship's master and the boatswain; the very timbers seem to creak; the mainmast snaps like a piece of matchwood; and the spectacle is really awesome. In the triumphs of modern stage-craft nothing quite so fine as this shipwreck has been seen, and it will be the talk of London. The play is presented in three acts, and Mr Tree needs no apology for his successful attempt to bring out its poetic charm and its idyllic sweetness by the aid of beautiful scenery and delightful music. Of course Dr. Arne has been laid under contribution, and Sir Arthur Sullivan's interludes, entr'actes, and settings of the songs. "Come unto these yellow sands" and "Full athom five," are also wisely chosen. Mr Raymond Roze has written the music for the trio of goddesses, and the setting of the nymphs and reaper's ballet is also from his pen. To this ballet Mr Tree specially refers in his monograph on the play. "In the last act," he says, "a masque takes place in which Iris calls on the 'Naiads of the winding brooks' to celebrate a contract of true love with the 'Sunburnt sicklemen of August weary.' The author's stage instructions are as follows:—'Enter certain reapers, properly habited—they join with the Nymphs in a graceful dance.' To illustrate this incident I have designed a little ballet with a purpose. The Naiads of the winding brooks are discovered disporting themselves in the water among the rushes and water-lilies. Iris calls on them to leave their crisp channels to dance on the green turf. Nothing loth, the Naiads leave their native element and dance as mortals dance. The sudden appearance of the boy Cupid interrupts their revels—the Naiads modestly immerse themselves in the water. Cupid, ever a matchmaker, brings in his train the sunburnt sicklemen who, leaving their lonely furrow, are enjoined by Iris to make holiday with the nymphs 'in country footing.' Taking advantage of the chaste amiability of the nymphs, the reapers endeavour to embrace them, but their advances are indignantly repulsed, the maidens very rightly pointing to their ringless wedding-fingers, it being illegal (in fairyland) to exchange kisses without a marriage certificate. Thus rebuffed, the reapers continue their dance alone. Suddenly Cupid reappears on the scene, and shoots a dart in the heart of each coy maiden—at once they relent, and love conquering restraint, they sue to the reapers; but the reapers are now obdurate. They laugh, the maidens weep. Cupid now shoots an arrow into the heart of each of the reapers, who, seeing their little friends weep, now sue to them, pointing to their wedding fingers. Cupid reappears on the scene, and an impromptu wedding is arranged, all the reapers and nymphs taking part in the ceremony. To the wedding song of 'Honour, riches, marriage, blessing,' the nymphs assume the marriage veils which they gather from the mists of the lake, and each having received a ring and a blessing at the hands of the Rev. Master Cupid, they dance off in quest of everlasting happiness, thus triumphantly vindicating the ethics of the drama." A fertile imagination has also been at play in the realisation of the stage instruction — "Enter several strange shapes bringing in a banquet." These beings without any specified identity Charles Kean endowed with a mythological interest, and the principal goblins and demons commanded to torture the brute Caliban and his drunken associates, Trinculo and Stephano, were copied from Furies spieted on Etruscan vases. The monsters peopling His Majesty's stage belong apparently to the palæozoological period, and might have been copied from an ancient Egyptian monolith. It must be admitted that the house on Wednesday evening did not take these strange shapes quite seriously. The stallites seem to regard them as caricatures of a prehistoric period. To come to the scenery. Mr Walter Telbin, son of the scene-painter who did so much for Charles Kean's revival of the play at the Princess's, has painted a beautiful picture of "these yellow sands," and he is also responsible for the shipwreck, which we have already endeavoured to describe. There is a wood by M'Cleary, in which the gurgle of a plashing brook plays a running accompaniment to distant music; Ariel depending from a bough sings "Where the bee sucks," hidden by a veritable bower; and the exuberant fancy of Mr Richard Douglass has found legitimate scope in A Barren Waste, Before Prospero's Cell, and Another Part of the Island. Mr Hemsley's brush has also been artistically employed in The Cliffs and In Prospero's Cave.

Mr Tree's treatment of the part of Caliban was instinct with vindictiveness, and the hybrid monster's impotent railing of Prospero when he accuses him of robbing him of his island was a fine outburst of spite that harmonised well with his revengeful-looking nails. The repulsive creature's nature becomes softened by the generous wine of Stephano, and Mr Tree's affectation of a grim joccsity and uncouth freedom of manner contrasted well with the morose and sullen aspect assumed in the first scene. In the final scene a poetic effect is produced by the uncanny figure of Caliban seated on a rock and silhouetted against an azure sky watching the departing vessel sailing away from the enchanted shores sped by auspicious gales, with Prospero and his companions on board. Mr Tree admirably sustained the part throughout. He was admirably made up. Long, lank hair, a ragged moustache and beard, tusky teeth—that enabled the actor to produce the effect of a snarl—claw-like nails and hairy skin, were most effective helps in the realisation of the character. Mr Wm. Haviland's Prospero was sonorous, dignified, calm and—in his speeches to Miranda — very tender. The set speech, "the cloud-capt towers," was delivered without the stiltedness that has always seemed to cling to it. Prospero is a passive part, and offers but few opportunities for dramatic effect, but Mr Haviland struck the right note of majestic dignity. Mr Basil Gill, a young actor with an admirable voice and presence, completely justified his selection for the part of Ferdinand. His wonderment on first meeting Miranda was very naturally expressed, and he made a most picturesque lover, speaking the beautiful passages assigned to the part with romantic tenderness. Miss Norah Kerin's Miranda was handicapped by nervousness, but she realised the poetic grace and delicacy of the part, and Miranda's distress at her father's ungentleness and her intercession on behalf of her lover were naturally expressed. Miss Viola Tree, who was very warmly received on her entrance as Ariel, sang delightfully, her purity of voice and charm of style enabling her to give a dainty rendering of the popular number, "Where the bee sucks." She was an active and vivacious sprite, and her cleverness and adaptability were further displayed in the rôle of Ceres. Miss Nancy Hutchinson's beauty was not her only qualification for the part of the goddess Juno, for her voice is of charming quality, and she sang her solo with considerable culture. Miss Alice Crawford completed the trio of goddesses by an effective rendering of the part of Iris. Mr Lionel Brough, whose Shakespearian clowns are always endowed with such unctuous humour, made Trinculo a little too inebriated, but on the whole put nature into the part. Mr Louis Calvert as the drunken butler, Stephano, was also responsible for a performance that was in every way admirable. Mr J. Fisher White may be congratulated on his exposition of Gonzalo's notion of a commonwealth, founded on a passage in Montaigne's Essays; Mr S. A. Cookson did good work as Alonzo, the King of Naples; and the conspirators Sebastian and Antonio were adequately interpreted by Mr Julian L'Estrange and Mr Lyn Harding. Mr S. Yates Southgate as the Master of the Ship and Mr W. A. Haines as the boatswain complete the cast, but their voices could not penetrate to the stalls through the "tempest howling" on the opening night. In scenic richness, poetic beauty, and musical charm, the production of The Tempest fully sustains the best Shakespearian traditions. It is a spectacle that will live long in the memory of those who see it, and it will be sure to attract full houses at His Majesty's for some time to come.

THE FATE OF A MANUSCRIPT.

Tobin, the author of that long-popular play The Honeymoon, certainly had bad luck. His comedy, which he had sent to Drury-lane so long before that he never expected to hear any more of it, was accepted and put into rehearsal just before he died. This piece of good fortune to the almost broken-hearted aspirant after dramatic fame arose from mere accident. Sheridan had promised his co-proprietors of the theatre to write a piece that should bring more money to their treasury than even his all-attractive Pizarro; but his literary promises, like his pecuniary ones, he frequently—too frequently—failed to perform. The receipts of the theatre were most alarmingly low. Novelty was demanded, and none was ready, when Sheridan, who had been sighing over the treasurer's ledger, suddenly recollected having looked over the MS. of a blank verse comedy about two years before that struck him as prettily written, as to language, but a most barefaced plagiarism as to plot; Shakespeare's Petruchio and Beaumont and Fletcher's Leon having had unwarrantable liberties taken with them by the unknown author.

"Look it out, Bannister, will you, and see if you can make anything of it—you'll find it in that cupboard, amongst two or three hundredweight of literary rubbish from unknown authors. I remember it was neatly written, in a sort of law hand; it is in a marble-covered schoolboy's copybook, which gave me an ill opinion of it: genius is never neat—find it—read it—and tell me to-morrow what you think of it! I remember that I then thought it a good play; all but the stolen plot. Perhaps the thief may be pardoned by the elegance of his language, for the fellow, whoever he may be, is a literary Barrington; but perhaps you can put him in a position to transport his audience—although the daring robber deserves transportation himself." Such was the treatment of unknown literary genius by the man who was himself one of the greatest geniuses of his age.

The manuscript was found amongst the "rubbish." It was placed before the audience with a most judicious cast of characters, and its success was decided. When the news reached poor Tobin, he was on the point of setting off from Bristol, to embark for the West Indies, as the last means of restoring his enervated constitution. He sailed, but his voyage was doomed to be a short one; a contrary wind drove the vessel into the harbour of Cork, and there the author of the comedy then delighting all London was found dead in his cabin. His remains were sent on shore and buried, unwept and unattended.

THE Southwark Borough Council has under consideration the important question of where to plant a mulberry seedling. The seedling comes from the mulberry tree which grew in the garden attached to the house in which Shakespeare died, and has been offered as a gift by the Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon. It is intended to plant the seedling in front of the town hall if a majority of the Southwark Council will agree to the momentous proposal.

THE Beckenham Swimming Club, at their annual gala, introduced a pleasant novelty in the shape of a water stage play. One end of the bath had been made to resemble a rocky shore with a coastguard's cottage, while the bath itself represented the open sea, on which, as the play proceeded, a raft with two prostrate sailors gradually drifted. The bath being one of the largest in the south of London lent itself admirably to the piece, while the effect of turning out the electric lights and illuminating the raft and shore with limelight was extremely good. The shipwrecked sailors were rescued by a small boy and girl, pupils of the Beckenham Elementary Schools Swimming Association, who also "resuscitated" them according to the methods advocated by the Life Saving Society.

THE friends of Mr Walter Sealby will be sorry to hear that he has been very unwell and has been unable to attend to business. He hopes soon to be able to get into harness again.

A PLEASING ceremony took place at the Gorleston Pavilion on the 9th inst., when Mr Bertram Knight, the local manager for Messrs Keith Prowse and Co., was presented with a tantalus, a barometer, and a silver cigar-holder, by numerous friends amongst the inhabitants of the quiet little watering-place. The presentation was made by the Vicar of Gorleston, who, in felicitous terms spoke of Mr Knight's pleasant courtesy during the time he had held the post of manager at the Pavilion. Mr Knight suitably responded.

MR LIONEL RIGNOLD AND MR C. W. SOMERSET open at the Spa, Scarborough, Monday next, in the new farcical comedy, Stranger in a Strange Land.

MR WILLIAM HUGHES, who for more than a quarter of a century has been Mr James C. Williamson's chief town and touring manager in Australia, is now in London taking a holiday. Mr Hughes, who is familiarly known as "Pete" Hughes, is one of the most picturesque and popular personalities in the Australian theatrical world. In 1864 Mr Hughes travelled through England with "Boss" Garrett and Palmer's Uncle Tom's Cabin, and to-day he is "as fresh as a foal and as game as a fighting cock." His wife, from whom he will never travel apart, is also an American lady. Mr and Mrs Hughes, who arrived in London a fortnight ago, will return to Australia in about three weeks' time.

"THE CATCH OF THE SEASON."

Lady Caterham	Miss ROSINI FILIPPI

Mr Seymour Hicks and Mr Cosmo Hamilton's latest recipe for musical comedy is a very simple one—just the story of Cinderella with musical interludes and twentieth century surroundings. We may admit at once that the heroine of the hearth bears the journey from the regions of romance to the modern drawing-room exceedingly well. The piece, nevertheless, is strangely unequal. There is a scene of dainty sentiment at the end of the first act that would establish the fame of any aspirant to playwriting honours; and on the contrary there were surprising indiscretions in the lines that have now been expunged. The public on the first night did not mince matters, but very properly hissed a palpable offence against good taste. The happiest stroke of humour is the introduction of a diminutive cockney page-boy—a lovesick urchin named Bucket, who puts on all the romantic airs of his elders with rare drollery. Undoubtedly Bucket was one of the successes of the opening night.

The Cinderella is Angela, the daughter of Sir John Crystal. Lady Crystal, whom Sir John has married en secondes noces, has two girls of her own, the Hon. Sophia and the Hon. Honoria Bedford, who fill the position of the ugly sisters of the original story. The whole family, who live in Berkely-square, are invited to the coming-of-age ball of the Duke of St. Jermyns; but for no particular reason Angela is not to be allowed to go, and on the eventful evening is regaled with thick bread-and-butter and told to go to bed at ten. While the other members of the family are dressing the Duke himself calls and makes the acquaintance of the little girl he had so often seen on the balcony. The love scene that ensues is very pretty and charming. Angela's fairy godmother is her aunt, Lady Caterham, who guesses the probable state of affairs, and brings with her from Paris a small contingent of modistes with the latest thing in evening gowns. The ball-room at the Duchess of St. Jermyns is the scene of Angela's further adventures. She is introduced to the assembled guests as Molly O'Halloran from County Clare; and though recognised by everybody as Angela, she brazens the deception out even to the enamoured Duke. Another love scene brings the story to a conclusion. Angela has secured "the catch of the season." The curtain is once more raised on a pretty wedding scene, and falls to the sound of the marriage bells.

The music by Herbert E. Haines and Evelyn Baker is not distinguished by any great originality, but has the popular ring. The number that secured most favour on the night of the production was the song and chorus "Church Parade," into which Mr Hicks put a deal of restless energy; but more original writing is to be found in the pretty duet for the Duke and Angela which we may call "Suppositions." In this number, too, Mr Charles Taylor, the author of the lyrics, has distinguished himself. One must not complain that "Butterfly," a baritone song in the second act, is utterly irrelevant to the story, because it enables the stage-management to secure an effective picture by posing the gorgeously dressed ladies of the chorus in reclining attitudes on coloured velvet cushions, and because it is particularly well sung by Mr Frank Wilson, of The Earl and the Girl company.

The part of Angela (Cinderella) was evidently written for Miss Ellaline Terriss, who, it will be remembered, made one of her earliest successes in the character of the cinderwench heroine at the Lyceum, but the part is assigned to Miss Zena Dare, who has never before played such a prominent rôle in an important London theatre. Miss Dare is decidedly pleasing, and as she is not yet out of her teens, she looks the character completely. A truly artless and winsome maid is this modern Cinderella, and in the tender little love scene at the end of the first act with the Duke of St. Jermyns she is positively bewitching, playing with a sweetness and delicacy that are beyond all praise. In the second act, where Angela becomes Molly O'Halloran, the gaiety of the young actress is irresistible; and if Molly leaves her brogue in County Clare, as she says she does, she brings more than an "illigant" taste of it to the Strand. Mr Seymour Hicks plays the Duke of St. Jermyns with considerable tenderness in the love scenes, which contain the best writing in the piece, but he is prone in his whispered declarations to become almost inaudible. His dancing is wonderfully good, and he does not spare himself in the "Church Parade" song, the liveliest number in the piece. He has not given himself much chance in an early episode of the second act, where the Duke is asked to make a speech to his assembled guests on attaining his majority. At present the dialogue is rather stupid, but it could easily be strengthened, and with Mr Sam Sothern as Lord Dundreary, the son of the stage celebrity of the sixties, it should be well worth doing. Mr Sothern acts with such unconscious humour that there should be no difficulty in increasing his opportunities, and at the same time in cutting out the peculiar lines relating to the mother of the Gibson family of ten girls, who always accompany their father, Mr William Gibson, en masse to society functions. Mr Compton Coutts makes the most of the character of Gibson père, but he has very slight chances. Miss Hilda Jacobsen as the Hon. Honoria Bedford sings in praise of the seductive cigarette, and one of the ladies expresses her wonder what our grandmothers could have done without it. "Perhaps they are smoking now," is the exquisitely witty rejoinder of another. In the second act Miss Jacobsen has another solo, "The charm on my chain," to which her cultured voice does complete justice. Miss Ethel Matthews' beauty of face and figure is set off to great advantage in some exquisite frocks, and she plays the cynical Sophia with finesse and distinction. Miss Molly Lowell as Lady Crystal is sufficiently acidulated in her manner without becoming waspish; the good nature and fatherly affection of Sir John Crystal are benevolently emphasised by Mr Charles Daly; and the part of Higham Montague, of Christ Church, Oxford, is neatly played by Mr Stanley Brett, who acts with much artistic restraint, and does not over accentuate the Hebraic traits of the character. Miss Rosina Filippi's Lady Caterham is full of the spirit of joyousness, and her liveliness and gaiety in the second act become quite infectious. The advent of Mr Frank Wilson, of The Earl and the Girl company, gives opportunity to one of the ladies to fling a little mud at the profession by the suggestion that some actors knock their wives about. Mr Mervyn Dene, who appears as an inert army captain, is introduced into the cast apparently because he plays the piano. He accompanies Miss Barbara Deane, who is responsible for a prettily rendered number in the first act—viz., "My little song bird," which pleased the house immensely on the opening night. Miss Deane is a delightful singer, and is a decided acquisition to the theatre. Miss Katie Vesey's dancing is a perfect exposition of the poetry of motion. Master Valchera, a born actor, is genuinely funny as Bucket, and made a pronounced hit, and his Cockney high falutin and mannish airs set the house in a roar on the opening night. The beautiful costumes deserve a notice all to themselves. They are the best that have ever been seen at the Vaudeville. Mr W. Harford's two interiors are worthy examples of artistic brushwork. Mr Edward Royce has done excellent work in his arrangement of the dances and chorus effects. To the calls for author at the conclusion of the piece Mr Hicks bowed his acknowledgments, and after the curtain had been lowered and raised again three other gentlemen associated with the musical comedy mixture were for the most part received with applause, though there were a few "boos." Playgoers who are fond of a good variety show will find The Catch of the Season exactly to their tastes.

"MILITARY MAD."

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

This is an English version, by Leo Ditrichstein, of the German comedy Im Bunten Rock. The piece was cleverly played and many of the situations were amusing, but like many other plays of German origin presented in New York it would be more correctly described as a translation than an adaptation, and while the conditions involved in the original story were thoroughly German, the interpretation on the whole was thoroughly American, with the result that the piece seemed to be "neither fish, nor flesh, nor good red herring." Karl Hartwig, who has held the post of German Consul in New York, has returned to his native land with Marian Lee, his niece, a young American girl, whom he hopes to marry to his son Hans, who is a simpleton. His plans are maturing when a number of officers, who are taking part in certain manœuvres are quartered at his home. Several of the officers proceed to fall in love with Marian, and, to add to Hartwig's discomfiture, the entire household goes "military mad," especially the female servants, who pair off with the soldiers and neglect their duties. Marian's uncle is panic stricken when he sees the dashing young officers paying ardent court to her, and he appeals to Lieutenant Victor Von Hoheneck to pretend to make love to the young heiress in order to keep the others at a distance, the humour of the situation lying in the fact that Vot Hoheneck is a notorious "lady killer" and that he and Marion are already smittten with each other. The final outcome is that Victor and Marian are engaged, while Hans, the booby son, bestows his affections elsewhere, and Hartwig accepts the inevitable and gives his blessing. Mr Ditrichstein appeared as Victor Von Hoheneck and gave a truthful portrayal of a young German army officer. Mr Henry V. Donnelly, recently of the Murry Hill Theatre, who has decided that it is more profitable to accept an engagement at a fixed salary that to run a theatre at popular prices, was capital as the ex-consul Karl Hartwig. Hans, the son, was cleverly played by Mr George Henry Trader, and Mr Thomas A. Wise made a hit as a bibulous Baron. Miss Ida Conquest, as the young Kentucky girl, Marian Lee, was charming.

BIRTHDAYS OF THE WEEK.

Most heartily we wish many, many happy returns of the day to the following ladies and gentlemen:—

AFTER many attempts, Mr Edward Marris, the popular lessee of the Grantham Theatre Royal, has been successful in obtaining a full licence for his house, a boon which will be much appreciated by local playgoers. The season was opened last week with a visit from Mr Sydney Spenser's company in The Hero of the Flag; but, owing to extensive alterations, rendered necessary by the granting of the concession above stated, the theatre will be closed for another month.

ACCORDING to M. Georges Bourdon, who holds an official position in connection with the subventioned theatres of Paris, the chief cause of the financial success of English playhouses is the comfort of their appointments. The typical Paris theatre is so constructed that no one can see, and few can hear; in the corridors one is elbowed till one is sore, and in the auditorium the atmosphere is stifling and the seats are much too narrow. "The Paris public," remarks M. Sarcey, with genial cynicism, "love to feel each other's elbows." The Paris playgoer is therefore in a perpetual fever of worry while in the theatre, and never goes twice to the same piece; he only goes at all so that he may say, "I have been to ——." Whereas, in London, all the spectators, to the surprise of M. Bourdon, can see and hear.

THE Theatres' Sweetmeat Automatic Company, Limited, was recently registered by Jordan and Sons, Limited. Capital, £5 000 in £1 shares (4,000 preference and 1,000 deferred). Object, to acquire any patents and rights relating to improvements in coin-freed automatic delivery machines or otherwise; in particular, to acquire from G. Stephenson and A. Marsden the benefit of an existing invention for improvements in automatic machines, and to carry on the business of chocolate and sweetmeat manufacturers and merchants, automatic machine proprietors, theatre and music hall owners and managers, restaurant proprietors, &c.

FOR the opening attraction of the Waldorf Theatre in Aldwych, the Messrs Shubert, who are the lessees of the house, have fixed upon Piff, Paff, Pouf, a musical comedy, which has been a great success in America during the past six months, and is now attracting crowded audiences to the Casino, New York. The company, which will consist of Americans, will be under the management of Mr F. C. Whitney, a well-known American impresario.
